Tuition To Be Refunded To Men Going in Service

Army Enlisted Reserve to Call Men Next Term; Navy Reserve at End of Year

[illegible] promise to refund all tuition [illegible] student inducted into the armed [illegible] a semester was made by President Hans S. Millis of the University of Vermont.

The promise was contained in a letter to students which endeavored to explain from the latest available information concerning their future.

It indicated that enlisted Air Corps reserves would be called as needed, that seniors taking advanced military will continue [illegible] until June, that members of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps will be called at the end of the present semester, that Navy, Coast Guard and Marine reserves will continue in college until June [illegible] that certain technical students will resume their studies for a time at least. The president's letter to the students follows:

"The Army and Navy have made definite plans to contract with a number of colleges and universities, as yet unselected, to give specialized training to men in the armed forces who will be in uniform, under military discipline, and on base pay. For some students this will be a continuation of their present curriculum; for others it will represent a distinct change in course of study.

"It will, of course, take some time to make the necessary arrangements to implement the program. As a consequence, special arrangements have been made to permit certain students to continue for at least the balance of the current academic year which ends May 17, 1943. This arrangement concerns both those enlisted in reserve corps and those under the supervision of local selective service boards as follows:

"1. Members of the Air Corps Enlisted Reserves will continue under the supervision of the Air Corps and will be called at the discretion of that branch of the service.

"2. Members of the Navy Enlisted Reserve Corps, including Marine Corps and Coast Guard, will not be called probably until the completion of the academic year (May 17, 1943). Members of the Naval Reserve, even when called, will be permitted to complete a minimum of six semesters and those of advanced standing, seven or eight semesters.

"3. All senior students in R.O.T.C., whether members of the enlisted reserve corps or not, will be continued in college until the end of the second semester (May 17, 1943).

"4. Members of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps will be called to duty after the close of the current semester (February 1, 1943), except those who are deferred

Mid-year Grad. Speaker Chosen

The speaker at the commencement day [illegible] at the University of Vermont [illegible] 31 at 8 p.m. will be Harry Parker [illegible] dean of the Engineering College at the University of Pennsylvania, according to an announcement by Prof. Howard G. Millington, chairman of the [illegible] committee.

"This midwinter commencement can be termed an engineer's commencement," said Professor Millington, "so the choice of the committee of this speaker is both timely and suitable." Parker is a professional engineer and author of numerous books and reports, chiefly on various aspects of engineering training. He has been particularly active in the society for the promotion of engineering education, and in this connection has done much to advance the cause of training for engineers.

Opportunity for Girls to Join WAAC And Finish School

Must Be Able to Complete Course in Less Than One Year

The opportunity is now open for women students at the University of Vermont to enroll as members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, yet still be able to complete their college course, provided such course can be completed in less than one year, according to information received by Dean of Women Mary Jean Simpson from the recruiting and induction headquarters in Rutland. Such enrollees are permitted to remain on an inactive status until completion of the current school year or the course for which enrolled, and then automatically take their places as part of the women's army.

A second WAAC training center has been opened at Daytona Beach, Fla., to take care of the expansion of the corps to the full strength of 150,000 now authorized by Congress, and many different jobs are open to enrollees. Women of 21 to 44 are eligible, regardless of race, creed or color.

"This is a women's war, too," says the bulletin from the Induction Center, "and the responsibility rests upon their shoulders as well as upon those of the men."

President Roosevelt recently signed a bill increasing the rate of pay for the WAAC. The pay and the ranks are now the equivalent of the Army's.

War Depletes Badly Medical Faculty

With the war requiring more and ever more doctors, the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont is carrying on with a depleted faculty, having contributed to the armed services and to defense seven professors, 10 instructors, four research fellows and three assistants.

These men, many of whose present whereabouts is unknown, even to the medical college, include: Ray G. Daggs, Ph.D., associate professor of physiology; Maurice N. Bellrose, M.D., associate professor of orthopedic surgery; Paul K. French, M.D., associate professor of clinical medicine; John Abajian, Jr., M.D., assistant professor of anesthesia; Paul D. Clark, M.D., assistant professor of pediatrics; Winthrop M. Flagg, M.D., assistant professor of urology; Walford T. Rees, M.D., assistant professor of surgery.

Henry N. Farmer, M.D., instructor in preventive medicine and public health; Alfred M. Glickman, M.D., instructor in clinical obstetrics; Fred S. Kent, M.D., instructor in clinical medicine; James P. Mahoney, M.D., instructor in clinical medicine; Albert J. Crandall, M.D., instructor in clinical surgery; Nicholas S. Sarcello, M.D., instructor in clinical urology; Clarence J. Speas, D.D.S., instructor in oral hygiene and dental medicine; Louis G. Thabault, M.D., instructor in surgery; George C. Tully, M.D., instructor in clinical urology; Conrad Wall, M.D., instructor in clinical neurology.

Clarence E. Bombard, M.D., assistant in medicine; William H. Heininger, M.D., assistant in medicine; John H. McCrea, M.D., assistant in medicine.

Break Relations With Providence After Game

Informed spokesmen at the University of Vermont disclosed that athletic relations with Providence College probably will be suspended following the treatment issued the Vermont basketball team in Providence, December 19.

Members of the team reported that the officiating was the "worst" to which they had been subjected to and showed injuries to prove the roughness of the game.

Coach John C. Evans wanted to take his team from the floor during several instances and actually did replace the first team in the second half.

The Providence coach apologized to Evans and to the players for the poor officiating at the completion of the contest.

Pres. Millis Fears Decrease in Men

Calling of Reserve Will Affect Enrollment

CAPT. P. N. CARLETON

A report was presented by President Millis on the probable effects upon University enrollment of the recently announced army and navy plans for college students, at the meeting of the board of trustees of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College Saturday. President Millis predicted a sharp drop in male enrollment during the coming semester, due to the calling of the army enlisted reserve. Considerable time was devoted to discussing methods of meeting problems which will naturally follow.

Leaves of absence were granted to Phillips Carlton, assistant professor of English, who has recently accepted a commission as captain in the marine corps; to Rex Collier, assistant professor of psychology, who has recently accepted a commission as captain in the army, and Miss Emily Dinegan, director of the Visiting Nurse Association, Burlington, was appointed as instructor in home economics for the second semester. Miss Dinegan will give a one-credit course in home care of the sick.

Reports were made by the investment committee, the auditors, the budget committee and other routine business was transacted, reported President Millis.

Christmas Dinner for 29 Members of CAA

The University entertained at Christmas dinner 29 men in the army and navy branches of the CAA who were in their fifth week of training at a U. V. M. dinner at the Hotel Vermont.

Most of the men were unable to go home for Christmas. The Government ordered that, because of the national emergency, they would not be permitted to go more than 25 miles from Burlington during the holidays. It is explained that the reason for this ruling is the necessity of getting the men in the Civil Aeronautics Authority War Training Service trained as soon as possible.

Members of the U. V. M. faculty and their wives, who have been associated with CAA men, were also present at the dinner.

SAE House Hit Hard by Long Vacation Freeze-up

Doubt Damage Can Be Fully Repaired Because of Scarcity of Materials

With the buildings emptied of students over the Christmas and New Year holiday recess, last week's cold wave froze up several fraternity houses at the University of Vermont, it was learned yesterday.

The most extensive damage was at Sigma Alpha Epsilon house, 56 Summit Street, where the automatic stoker-fed coal fire in the furnace went out. The machinery was still running, however, when the damage was discovered. Pipes and radiators were frozen solid and cracked in many places.

With government restrictions on such materials, it is doubtful, said one alumnus, if the damage at the SAE house can be repaired and the place made ready for occupancy again when college re-opens after Christmas recess. Fifteen students made their home there at the time U. V. M. closed for the Christmas vacation.

There was also freeze-up trouble of varying degrees at the Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Tau Omega and Kappa Sigma houses, a check with alumni members in Burlington showed. One room at the Delta Psi house was also frozen.

The girls' sororities appeared to have escaped damage, although the oil-burning furnace at the Pi Phi house ceased to operate during the height of the cold wave, but this was discovered in time to prevent a freeze-up there.

Plumbing concerns in the city, rushed with emergency calls the past week, reported that only yesterday were they beginning to catch up with their work. The rush service calls came at a time when the staffs of plumbing houses had been badly depleted either by the armed forces or moving on to other work outside the city and state.

New Blood Plasma Machine Set Up at Medical College

Lab Cost, $10,000; $3,000 Contributed by Lawrence Campbell

The only available new blood plasma processing machine in the country has arrived and is being set up, awaiting arrival of necessary supplementary equipment, in the state blood plasma bank laboratory in the University of Vermont medical college, said Prof. Paul D. Evans, state chairman of the Vermont blood plasma bank, last evening. A large centrifuge and an autoclave (sterilizer) have not yet arrived to complete the $10,000 laboratory.

The machine for drying the blood plasma cost $3,000 contributed by the State Council of Safety, and made available to the state bank by the foresight of Lawrence Campbell of Barre of the state hospital office and executive committee, who saw the machine about six weeks ago in St. Louis.

Dr. Wendell E. James, head of the Bacteriology Department of the College of Medicine and director of the plasma bank, is spending this week at the laboratory of Dr. Max Strumia of Bryn Mawr, Pa., outstanding blood plasma specialist of the country who designed the system to be used here. He is making investigations and a study of recent developments at the Strumia laboratory.

Professor Evans explained that the drying of the plasma is especially advantageous and superior to the freezing method in that the large refrigeration expense in hospitals will be eliminated and that the dried plasma can be distributed for wide use in the offices of every doctor in the state whereas otherwise it could be kept under refrigeration in only a few hospitals in larger centers. The dried plasma may also be shipped quickly for use by the armed forces or in such emergencies as the recent Cocoanut Grove fire, while the frozen plasma must be specially packed and shipped, requiring longer time, he said.

Skillman E. Myers to Speak at Chapel Jan. 6

The first Chapel service after Christmas vacation will be held at 10.30 a.m. in the Ira Allen Chapel on January 6. The speaker will be the Reverend Skillman E. Myers of the Unitarian church of this city. He attended Brown University, the Union Theological Seminary, and the Pacific School of Religion at Berkeley, California. He did his graduate work at Harvard but he always cheers for Yale at their annual football classic. Mr. Myers is the director of boys' work at South End house in Boston, Mass. He was a junior minister at Evanston, Ill., before coming to the Unitarian church here in 1930.

The University entertained at Christmas dinner 29 men in the army and navy branches of the CAA who were in their fifth week of training at a U. V. M. dinner at the Hotel Vermont.

Most of the men were unable to go home for Christmas. The Government ordered that, because of the national emergency, they would not be permitted to go more than 25 miles from Burlington during the holidays. It is explained that the reason for this ruling is the necessity of getting the men in the Civil Aeronautics Authority War Training Service trained as soon as possible.

Members of the U. V. M. faculty and their wives, who have been associated with CAA men, were also present at the dinner.

New Blood Plasma Machine Set Up at Medical College

The only available new blood plasma processing machine in the country has arrived and is being set up, awaiting arrival of necessary supplementary equipment, in the state blood plasma bank laboratory in the University of Vermont medical college, said Prof. Paul D. A maelstrom crowd of sad haggard students have returned to their respective frozen piped, radiatorless, bedraggled habitats at the old U. V. M. After recovering from a two week period of buffoonery our green and golders now are faced with the large prospect of resuming their long forsaken studies. (You readers may relax for we bring you no message.) Perhaps there are those among us who upon heralding in the new year did so with a note of resolution. If such was the case we can only warn them that the result of these will be practically nil, they are weak trys to interfere with scientific law and their origin is pure vanity. They give us some of those weak emotions especially applicable to the weak. They are simply cheques men draw from a bank at which they have no account.

Many of the male students return here for the last time; around a hundred will graduate in January and a large number will be taken from school by the Enlisted Reserve Corps. To those affected by the E.R.C. we should like to advise that they stay in school until called. Mr. McNutt, national manpower head strongly urges this and President Millis has made a plea for such a step and has further enticed E.R.C. enlistees to remain by promising a full tuition refund if called during the semester. All corps members can not be inducted right away and doubtless a large number will probably remain the entire semester.

As the old year rang out and the realization came to us that the war had been with us for over a year, we stopped to take some solemn and thoughtful stock taking. At the completion of this cogitation we wondered if U. V. M. students were providing for effective organization of war activities.

Does Vermont have

1. War stamp and bond sales
2. Salvage collection
3. Student war relief drive
4. Campus protection (training of student air raid wardens, fire fighters, bomb squads, fingerprinters etc.).
5. Campus discussion program on war issues and post-war problems.
6. War workshops to take care of knitting, bandage rolling and first aid instruction.
7. Training in motor mechanics, home nursing and other emergency skills.

No need to lengthen the list but one can easily see that U. V. M. sadly lacks most of these things. Immediate steps should be taken by some campus organization to form a War Council or a similar organ which would take care of our war activities.

No Navy Fliers; Vermont Has Army Middlebury Navy

In a re-shuffle of the civilian pilot training program the University of Vermont will henceforth become a training center for prospective army pilots only. Prof. Howard G. Millington, who has charge of the CPT program at U. V. M. disclosed.

Navy pre-flight men will no longer be trained at U. V. M. effective January 18, he said. However the change will not result in a lowering of the number of men who have been sent here to receive their preliminary ground and flight instruction. Nor does the change have any connection whatever with the Northeast Airlines advanced training school.

To make up for its loss of navy pre-flighters the University will have added to its roster an equal number of army pre flight trainees said Professor Millington.

The re-shuffle at the present stage amounts to an even swap with Middlebury College's CPT school. Middlebury College will henceforth train only navy pre-flighters under the direction and supervision of a navy officer stationed there. The University of Vermont, a land-grant college with an R.O.T.C. unit and its military headquarters already set up here, will devote its training program entirely to army pre-flight men. Both now have some navy and some army pre-flighters.

Eventually, the CPT training program at the University expects to have an ever-growing enrollment of prospective pilots for some phase of army activity, added Professor Millington. The expanded program has only recently gotten under way here.

Any change also affects the Fli-Rite School for Aviation at the municipal airport operated by Harold Pugh. The University provides the ground courses and the Fli-Rite school the flight training.

New Portrait Is Now in the Library

Over the main doorway of the Billings Library there has hung a photographic enlargement of a daguerreotype of our first president, the Rev. Daniel Clarke Sanders, who served in that capacity from 1800 to 1814.

Today that faded portrait is replaced by another, painted in oils by James Sanford Ellsworth about 1835, at Medford, Mass., when Mr. Sanders was representing Medford at the state Constitutional Convention.

The recently hung portrait has a varied history, having been once salvaged, slightly damaged, from a fire, by a Mr. Fraser Mathey and later given to him by the Sanders family. In 1867 it became the property of Mr. Mathey's daughter, Grace Mathey Reynolds, and in 1927 was in the possession of a connection of the family, Mrs. M. McCool of New York, from whom it was purchased by Dr. H. F. Perkins, director of the Fleming Museum at the University, whose attention was attracted to it by Henry B. Oatley, ex-president of the University Alumni Council.

The portrait has been re-framed, the new frame, donated and retouched by Francis Colburn, artist-in-residence at the University, being now in keeping with the other paintings on the library walls, and it bears on its reverse side an inscription to "the memory of Daniel C. Sanders, the first president of the University ... endeared to all his pupils by his frankness of manner—singleness of purpose ... his untiring devotion to, and able discharge of the arduous duties of his position ... his kind and courteous department and paternal solicitude."

In October 1800 he was chosen president of the University of Vermont and for the first years of its office personally directed the studies of all the classes besides preaching regularly to the local religious society in town. In June of the report showed a total of 61 young students and a college building four stories high; but the War of 1812 brought difficulties. The college building was closed for a season and plans for a boarding hall in 1814 instruction was suspended by order of the corporation. Mr. Sanders returned to Massachusetts where he died in 1850 at the age of 82.

PI BETA PHI

A tea dance was held at the Pi Phi House Saturday evening, from 5.30 to 8.00 with Jean Hotchkiss and Barbara Burnham in charge. The chaperones were Mr and Mrs. Page and Prof. and Mrs. Long.

Jane Allen '41 passed cholocates at the sorority meeting Monday night to announce her engagement to Richard Hadley, a graduate of Dartmouth, attending Vermont Medical College.

Elizabeth Gurney '41 also passed chocolates to announce her engagement to Lt. Bruce Lauritzen, now stationed at Fort Devens, Mass.

A settlement school sale was held last Thursday afternoon at the house by the Pi Beta Phi alumnae.

A waffle breakfast was served Sunday morning to the seniors by Mrs. Rutledge, housemother.

Mrs. Pollard entertained the pledges for buffet supper on Monday evening at her home on Adams Street.

The arrival of the long-awaited tickets for oil rationing prevented the opening of the fireplaces to keep the house warm.

ALPHA XI DELTA

Last Sunday a successful pledge tea was given under the direction of Kay Zwick.

The Alpha Xi's have done away with alarm clocks since Bobby Robinson moved in.

Marion Nelson and Sylvia Wellwood refuse to comment on the Outing Club hike of last week-end.

Mary Lou Strauch is still recuperating from her Yale week-end, and let it be known that the rosy tint on the end of her nose is from a cold.

The pledges are working on a basket to give to some needy family for Christmas. Next Monday night the chapter will hold its annual Christmas Party, and a second basket will be made when the ten-cent gifts (minus the appropriate ? poems) are collected.

Marion Nelson finally has the coffee trained to walk in by itself when she is studying late. She says it will be a sorry day when her slippers start coming downstairs.

Mary Lou Strauch is forming the S. P. C. F. P.—The Society for the Prevention of Commissioning Favorite Professors.

The Alpha Xi's have just bought a piano to play hot music on to help keep the house warm. Incidently, due to the shortage of fuel, baths are now being rationed at the house.

SIGMA GAMMA

Sigma Gamma entertained thirty Burlington children at Southwick on Saturday afternoon, December 12 with games, a Christmas tree, and Santa Claus.

Sigma Gamma celebrated the Christmas season, and the twenty-second anniversary of its founding, on Monday, December 14. Carols were sung, and apples, popcorn and chocolate were enjoyed.

Cagers Split on Trip; Drill for Horsemen

Cats Outroughed, 73-37, By Providence Quintet

PHIL ROBINSON

[illegible] abbreviated but well-earned [illegible]ation and better than a [illegible]ve drill behind them, Ver[illegible]sters will be out after their [illegible]rs in six starts as they face Norwich Saturday.

[illegible] to Larry Killick, the Cat's ace [illegible] court, the Green and Gold [illegible] a 69-62 victory over a hard-rid[illegible] Tufts college on the first leg of their [illegible]caunt, but were not quite so [illegible] as evening later when Provi[illegible]ence College battered them into submis[illegible] to score of 73-37.

[illegible] Rhode Island state basketeers [illegible] dirty play in the books out [illegible] inspection, and Fuzzy Evans' dribblers [illegible] back to Burlington somewhat the [illegible] for wear.

Killick Hot

[illegible] night previous it was a different [illegible] however. Playing the best ball of [illegible] college career, Killick tossed in twin [illegible] from all corners of the floor to [illegible] a total of 37 points in the narrow [illegible]2 win over Tufts.

There was no stopping this former Burlington High School star as he flipped the leather from all parts of the surface, in addition, setting up innumerable scoring plays when not firing away at the [illegible] himself.

Initial reports out of Medford, Mass., gave Larry but 35 markers for his evening's work, but official scorers gave a rebound shot to the sensational forward that had been credited to Vermont's center, Norm Beaulieu.

With 17 baskets and three foul shots, Killick equalled Cousens gym all-time record which was established by Tufts' Charlie Tibbs against Rhode Island State in 1937.

Advancing deeper into New England, the Cats faced off against Providence college in a bang-up, night-stick affair that found the collegians on the long end of a 73-37 score.

Friars Rough

Every member of the squad returned to the Queen City with some form of physical injury ranging from banged shins to black eyes.

The Rhode Island crew threw everything at Vermont with the exception of the [illegible] and reversed that process by [illegible] Ralph La Pointe into the bleachers.

At one time, Evans contemplated calling a halt to the free-for-all, but instead, [illegible] his regulars off the surface after [illegible]ation, and let the reserves take the [illegible] of the Providence "gentlemen."

[illegible] the Providence coach apologized for the poor officiating and the unsportsmanlike play of his club, it's generally conceded that Vermont has cut off [illegible]s with that college.

Pelkey to Coach Green and Gold Sextet

Few Veterans on Hand For Harsh Schedule

With the first real taste of winter in the air Vermont was ready today to embark upon another season of hockey.

Regardless of the war, the Cats will take another fling at the ice sport. When one scrutinizes the records, it is hard to find just when the Green and Gold came up with a winning hockey club.

The Vermont pucksters racked up a rather inauspicious record last winter, taking it on the chin twice from Middlebury, and banging out a 3-2 win over St Michael's across the river.

According to recent announcements from the physical education department, Leon Pelkey of St. Johnsbury will guide the destinies of the 1943 ice aggregation.

Pelkey is no new face in Green Mountain hockey circles, having compiled rather a neat record in semi-pro circles. But with all his tricks, Pelkey will have no easy job shaping a workable sextet out of the few veterans that have returned to classes.

Most of last winter's varsity stickers have graduated, entered medical school, or for various and sundry reasons have left the halls of Vermont. Among them are Jim Stephen, Sig Sisko, Stu Evans, and Fred Bundy.

Eddy O'Connell, a deceptive skater who saw a lot of action last winter will be out of the picture. Ed receives his diploma in a few weeks and will off to the Navy before the season rolls around.

Whit Switzer, a sophomore veteran who was the only freshman on the squad last year, will be ready to answer the call providing Uncle Sam doesn't nab him first. Dave Tuholski, the Cat's net tender up from last season will be on hand along with "Bish" McGill, Bob Lockwood and Bob White.

To date the schedule calls for a home and home series with Norwich, Middlebury, and St. Michael's. What the Horsemen and Hilltoppers may uncover in the line of hockey is a matter open to much question, but the Panthers have already opened their season, and faced off against some tough competition New Year's week-end in Lake Placid.

Schoolboys Impressive; Cochran Registers 11

Burlington High School opened its court season at the Memorial auditorium last week with a convincing win over the University of Vermont Jayvees, setting the collegians back by a 32-22 margin.

Although the Sea Horses showed many of the signs typical of early season play, they showed enough to assure the fans that Burlington will have a characteristic club, such as have been consistent threats in state basketball in the past.

Buck Hard used his entire squad against the Jayvees and the reserves managed to do better than hold their own with their more experienced opponents.

The school boys took an early 5-2 lead and built it up to 15-6 at halftime. In the third period the Jayvees matched the Sea Horses with a 10 point total and held a small 7-6 edge in the closing period.

The schoolboys were sparked throughout by Cal Smith, who showed not only a clever floor game but also registered nearly half of his team's points. He scored all of the Burlington points in the final period.

Mickey Cochran was outstanding for the Jayvees, scoring 11 of their points for the top spot.

Riley, Killick, Yett, Stafford and Bessette, all showed that they will be among the Burlington dependables this season. Other reserves performed capably, indicating that Hard can coast when the first club needs a breather.

NOTICE

At a recent meeting of the Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences the following was adopted by vote:

"Students who receive a grade of X for the first semester of a full year course will have the failing grade replaced by the minimum passing grade if the grade for the second semester is 72 or better. Such students have the privilege of taking a make-up examination in April if they prefer to do so.

"If students do not take a make-up examination in April and do not attain a grade of 72 at the end of the second semester, they will have to repeat the first semester's work, no second make-up being permitted.

"Students who take the make-up examination and receive grade X will receive credit for the first semester's work providing the second semester is passed with a grade of 72 or better.

"The Studies Committee will authorize special examinations at the common convenience of the instructors and students in cases where the mid-year examinations are missed on account of illness."

This action was taken in view of the fact that the Spring Vacation has been shortened to four days. Notice that students may take a make-up examination if they wish to do so but they must register for this at the Registrar's office.

ENROLLMENT OF COLLEGE WOMEN IN WAAC RESERVES

A notice has come informing us of a plan to enroll college women in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps while they are still in college.

The plan permits them to remain on an inactive status until completion of the current school year or the course for which they are enrolled, providing such course can be completed in less than one year.

Further information may be had by calling at the office of the Dean of Women. Only Juniors and Seniors are at present eligible for enlistment under this plan.

Three U. V. M. Trustees Resign; By-Laws Change

Important changes have been made in the by-laws of the board of trustees of the University of Vermont. These changes, which affect the private and self-perpetuating members of the board, constitute a major reorganization in term of office and election.

The new by-laws limit the term of office of the corporate trustees to six years, which is the same length of term now provided by charter for the trustees elected by the state legislature in behalf of the state college of agriculture. Formerly trustees on the part of the university were elected for an indefinite period and usually held office until resignation or death.

Three trustees, according to the new plan, are to be elected every two years for terms of six years in the even numbered years. Such an arrangement will bring the elections up in those years during which the legislature does not meet and elect its trustees. The elections to the board will thereby be staggered.

A further by-law provision has been made that no member of the board may succeed himself in office.

The terms of the present members of the board have been organized by lot to conform with the new system. The term of Arthur H. Kehoe, New York City, and I. Munn Boardman and Frederick W. W. Shepardson, both of Burlington, will accordingly expire February 1, 1944. The term of Walter A. Dane, Boston; Leon F. Smith, Burlington and Maurice I. Kelley, Montpelier, will expire February 1, 1945. The term of Dr. Frank P. Farmer, St. Johnsbury, Horace H. Powers, St. Albans and Joseph B. Johnson, Springfield, will expire February 1, 1948.

Resignations from the board, it has been announced, have been tendered by Dane, Kehoe and Doctor Farmer. The resignations of Dane and Kehoe have been accepted, and became effective at the close of the meeting of the board December 19. The resignation of Doctor Farmer has not been accepted as yet.

George Percival Auld, at present of Concord, Mass., formerly of New York City, a member of the class of 1902 at the University, has been elected to succeed Kehoe; and Dr. Peer Prescott Johnson of Beverly, Mass., a member of the class of 1900, will succeed Dane.

George P. Auld was born in Rutland, January 28, 1881. He received his A.B. from the University in 1902. In World War one, he was an officer of supply corps, U. S. Navy, with the rank of commander and later served as aide to Admiral Sims in London. In 1919, he was assistant financial adviser to the U. S. peace mission in Paris, and from 1920 to 1924 accounting general of the Inter-Allied Reparation commission.

In 1924, he became assistant to Owen D. Young, first agent general for reparation payments. Since 1924, Auld has been a member of the firm of Haskins and Sells in New York City, until something more than a year ago when he resigned to set up accounting and fiscal control systems for the U. S. Navy in Washington. Impaired health forced Auld's retirement from this post, and he is at present residing in Concord, Mass.

He was awarded the navy cross, is an officer of the French Legion of honor; a member of the American Institute of Accountants, the Vermont Society of New York, the Council on Foreign Relations, the National Trade Council. He is also the author of books and numerous articles and reports on finance and accounting.

Dr. Peer P. Johnson was born in Wallingford, August 21, 1875. He received his A.B. from the University of Vermont in 1898, and his M.D. in 1900. He took part in the Spanish-American War in 1898 and from 1917 to 1919 served in the medical corps of the U. S. Army as captain, major and finally lieutenant-colonel. He has been head surgeon of the Beverly hospital, a member of the New England Surgical society, fellow of the American College of Surgeons and American Medical Association and vice-president of the Massachusetts Medical Society. From 1929 to 1933, Doctor Johnson served as alumni trustee of the University. He resides in Beverly, Mass.

until the end of the second semester as follows:

"(a) Medical, pre-medical, dental and pre-dental students.

"(b) All engineering students who have completed a minimum of one year.

"(c) All students pursuing technical courses in chemistry, physics and bacteriology and who are within two years of completing the course.

"5. All those not members of any enlisted reserve corps will remain under the direction of their local selective service boards. Directives to the local boards have been issued to continue deferment of students in medicine, pre-medicine, engineering, chemistry, physics and bacteriology under the same conditions as enumerated above for the members of the enlisted reserve corps. Details of these directives can be obtained by consultation with your local draft board.

"Students who have not as yet reached their eighteenth birthday may enlist in the Navy Enlisted Reserve Corps up to March 15, 1943. Details concerning this matter may be obtained from Professor Butterfield.

"Mr. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, and heads of the armed forces have strongly urged all students now in college to remain in college until they are formally called for induction. It is obvious that it is a physical impossibility to induct all the men affected by the recent orders at one time and hence several weeks, in fact months, may elapse prior to your own induction. The trustees of the University of Vermont have arranged so that no student will suffer financial hardship should he be inducted in the middle of the semester. Any student who is inducted and is unable to make arrangements to complete his current courses of study is entitled to a full refund of all tuition paid.

"I strongly urge that you follow the advice and direction of Mr. McNutt and our other leaders and continue your education until such time as you are called for military duty."

Military Program Effects Discussed

College Careers Change Says President Millis

Students in all the departments of the University of Vermont have received from President John S. Millis a letter explaining the effect of the prospective military program on their immediate college careers and assuring them that tuition moneys would be refunded to any and all students that may be inducted and unable to complete current courses of a semester.

With definite plans in the making by the army and navy for colleges and universities, as yet unselected, to give specialized training to men in the armed forces who will be in uniform, under military discipline, and on base pay. Doctor Millis explained that for some students this would be a continuation of their present curriculum, and for others, a distinct change of course content.

It was indicated that members of the air corps reserve may continue under air corps supervision, and be called at the discretion of that service. Seniors taking advanced military will continue until the end of the school year; those in the army enlisted reserve will be called at the end of the present semester, with the naval, coast guard and marine reserves continuing until June. Others taking specialized and technical subjects may be deferred from service for completion of their work in the case of medics, pre medics, engineers, etc., directives having been issued to local boards to that effect.

Students who have not yet attained their 18th birthday anniversary may enlist in the naval enlisted reserve until March 15, 1943, and may learn details from Prof A. D. Butterfield.

Doctor Millis urged that all students continue with their educations until called for military duty.

U. V. M. Graduates Talk to R. O. T. C. Class

Two officers of the United States Army, 1st Lieut. Lawrence A. Simpson '41 and 1st Lieutenant Coss were in Burlington last Tuesday. They were persuaded to give talks to the members of the senior R. O. T. C.

Lieutenant Simpson, a member of the Quartermaster Corps at Carlisle, Penn., gave a very inspiring address on Motor Maintenance Work.

Lieutenant Coss of the Medical Administrative Corps who is a graduate of Officers' Candidate School spoke about the school. The boys were very interested because most of them plan to attend O. C. S. upon leaving school.

Due to the proximity of exams, the dance which was scheduled for this Saturday, following the basketball game, will not be held. The honor societies hope to put one on sometime soon during second semester.

The Block V Dinner will be held Wednesday, January 13, at 7.00 o'clock, third floor of the Waterman Building.

Director of Athletics.

'Collegiate Digest' to Print Prize-Winning Pictures

Staff and Sandal and Ariel Board Sponsoring "Cover Contest" After Mid-years

How would you like to open the Cynic some Tuesday and see on the cover of the Collegiate Digest a great big picture of U. V. M. with appropriate captions? No, it's not that but how would it be if you yourself had selected the subject and snapped the shutter? Such a thing is more than likely to happen if you are a camera fiend with ingenuity and a desire to help the University do a little publicity work. After midyears (not before, mind you!) Staff and Sandal with the aid of the Ariel board is sponsoring a "Cover Contest" with the main purpose of giving Vermont a bit of the spotlight where the other colleges are concerned and the secondary aim of enriching this year's Ariel with as many choice shots as possible. Arrangements have been made with the Collegiate Digest to print at least the first two prize winners—one of them to receive the cover spot while others of merit and honorable mention will find their niche on the pages of the forthcoming yearbook.

Of course there's no need to drop all preparations for Midyears in your zeal to be No. 1 but there's no harm in considering a few ideas and keeping your eye peeled for arresting subjects. Incidentally how about a shot of long wooden tables with close-ups of a couple of agonized faces deep in the throes of a psychology final. Get the idea?

Further detail about deadlines, judges etc., will be coming up soon but in the meantime for goodness sake don't just forget it and sink into that traditional U. V. M. lethargy. There are enough expert cameramen on this campus to fill a dozen Collegiate Digests for a year, so start humming, please.

Faculty-Student Supper Comes 10th

Staff and Sandal plans the second Faculty-Student Supper for Sunday, January 10. It will be held at Southwick from 5-6 p.m. with a charge of 15c to help cover expenses. The purpose of the supper is to get faculty and students together in an informal gathering.

Staff and Sandal first tried this scheme a few weeks ago. Representatives from the fraternity and sorority groups and a number of professors and their wives were invited. The atmosphere at this supper was so congenial that a regular program of them has been organized. They are now open to every student and every member of the faculty, and all in these groups are most cordially invited to attend.

Bob Stockwell and Wilma Shannon Married

On Sunday, December 20, the first day of the Christmas recess, Robert S. Stockwell, who will graduate from the University on January 21, was married in Chelsea, Mass. to Miss Wilma Grace Shannon of that city. It was an afternoon church wedding and the double ring service was used.

The best man was Ernest R. Stockwell, brother of the groom, and two of the ushers were Oliver F. Swift and Leonard Harrington, both of the Senior class at the University and both fraternity brothers of the groom.

C. A. A. Pilots Training Here Go Through Rigorous Program

There it was, that fiery hoop, blazing merrily. And one after another, following their leader, Sgt. A. J. Landa of the Military Department of the University of Vermont, the 29 men came over the hurdles to catapult straight through the flaming ring.

"Bless me!" murmured a spectator. "What are they doing that for?"

Sergeant Landa emitted a satanic chuckle and barked a few orders. Instantly the 29 men became as many animals. They duck walked and camel walked. They did the lame dog walk, the bear walk, the jackrabbit walk and the jackass walk. And they came through whole and breathing with fair normalcy.

In fact the 29 C. A. A. service pilots now in training at the University of Vermont are leading a strenuous life. Sergeant Landa, who is more or less the cause of it all, thinks they are a pretty special lot. In addition to crowded hours of class work they are being put through a rigorous program of athletics designed to develop the perfect coordination so necessary for the job ahead.

Commando Courses

This special program, Sergeant Landa tells us, includes a commando swimming course, calisthenics, foot drill, marine drill, organized athletics such as basketball, soft ball and volley ball, tumbling, ladder work-offs, indoor track, rope climbing, hurdling, and work-offs on the gym horses and on trapeze.

For the first two weeks the trainees received the calisthenics and foot drill which are basic training for recruits. Then they were started in on marine drill, in which the commands are given in rhythm and the movements are executed by squads instead of platoons but still maintaining regular intervals.

Also since the second week of training they have been doing marching calisthenics, maintaining continuous exercise over a period which is gradually increased to an hour and a half without pause, as well as the animal calisthenics already described.

Tumbling

The tumbling consists of a 20 minute period in which the men do a series of five tumbles, with and without hands. In the rope work they climb a 15 foot rope, hand over hand, without using their feet. The ladder work is also hand over hand.

Twice a week there is swimming practice in the pool at the Burlington Community Y. M. C. A. In this commando swimming course the recruits must swim 35 yards under water, both the length of the pool, tow another person a distance of 60 feet; swim breast stroke for 100 yards; disrobe in the water; swim 60 feet carrying a 10 pound weight above their heads; separate two people from a stranglehold under water, and administer artificial respiration.

When the training course is completed the last of this week in addition to the athletics the men will have had 40 hours in the air and 240 classroom hours, says Prof. Howard G. Millington, director of the course, and in the radio class will have learned to take down seven words a minute for the primary trainees and ten words for the secondary pilots, both by radio and blinker.

And with all this, these men must pass the same rigid barracks inspections as those required in the regular army. Altogether, after such an intensive training period, it will take a pretty tough war to phase this particular bunch of airmen.

Mrs. Nerac, Noted Lecturer to Come Here January 22

We are highly privileged in having as a guest speaker Mrs. Nerac. The Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring this lecture, scheduled for January 22.

Mrs. Nerac came to America in June, 1941, through the assistance of the Emergency Rescue Committee, created by American writers and scientists to rescue European intellectuals from Nazi tyranny.

Mrs. Nerac was born in Strasbourg, the daughter of a French father and German mother. At the age of fifteen, while a student in college, she wrote her first book, a novel which was published in Leipzig. While continuing her writings for ten years she played leading classical roles, such as Nora in Ibsen's "Doll House," in Vienna and Munich. She left the stage to join the staff of literary collaborators of the widely known satirical review, Simplicissimus, which opposed Hitler from the beginning of his rise to power. For this reason she was obliged to leave Germany in the spring of 1933, in order to avoid imprisonment and probably execution.

For the next eight years she lived in the south of France, writing novels and short stories which were published in Switzerland and France. After the fall of France, she was imprisoned in the notorious camp Gurs until the Emergency Committee secured her release and made possible her immigration to this country. Mrs. Nerac is a member of the Pen Club. Her name is also listed in the French edition of prominent women "La Femme Remarquable" and in the German "Who's Who."

VOL. 61 JANUARY 8, 1943 NO. 26

[illegible] months of uncertainty, the Army and Navy, with the approval of the War Manpower Commission, last week announced their long-awaited plan to utilize the facilities of many colleges for training of thousands of young selectees as specialists in the armed forces on a "broad, democratic basis."

Only selectees under 22 years of age will be eligible except in cases involving an "advanced stage of technical training." They will be given their thirteen weeks of basic training at an army camp and sent to a selected college. They will be organized under a cadet system for drill similar to that of West Point but subordinated to academic training. "Appropriate courses" yet to be determined will be prescribed for them and the length of the courses will be varying. Rigid standards of proficiency will be laid down and if a trained cadet he will be returned to his ranks.

To facilitate the transition of students from the Enlisted Reserve and R. O. T. C. into the new program the following steps will be taken: Medical students will be called to active duty at the end of the semester and will continue their studies. Seniors taking advance R. O. T. C. will be ordered to active duty on graduation or on the completion of the next semester. Juniors of the Enlisted Reserve who are taking engineering courses will continue in inactive status until the end of the next semester; all other Enlisted Reservists will be called to active duty at the end of the current semester.

At the end of their training selectees may be chosen for: Further training in an officer candidate school, as a technical non-commissioned officer; return to troops, advanced technical training in exceptional cases, or technical work outside the army in very exceptional cases.

Dr. Lescure has asked undergrads to restore their idle change, especially nickels and pennies to circulation. Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, Director of the Mint, says many tons of vital metals can be saved if the coins come out of hiding. They should be spent—turned into the Mint.

Lost and Found Department Brought to Light

The Bookstore has been running a Lost and Found Department for over three years. Many articles are brought there when found, but so few people know about this service that the losers rarely claim their property. Among the articles seen by the writers were books on every topic, from to senior, wallets with and without, pens, pencils, note books, mittens, and everything imaginable. If you have ever lost anything, call there and ask for it. If most of it is not claimed, it will go at auction for war relief.

The Bookstore has agreed to run a Lost and Found Department. Therefore if you lose or find anything call promptly.

News Briefs

Los Angeles, Calif.—(ACP)—A trip to the moon may not be as fantastic as it sounds. Our great grandchildren may make the first one in the opinion of Dr. Dinsmore Alter, director of the Griffith Astronomical observatory.

Dr. Alter predicted that man's first visit to the moon will take place "some time within the next 100 years—if not sooner."

The first flight, he said, depends on development of a new element known as Uranium 235, now being studied at the University of California.

"It's possible to send objects to the moon right now," the scientist said. "It is almost a matter of fuel and cost. It has been estimated the cost of a rocket to span the 232,000 to 253,000 miles would be about $100,000,000."

Providence, R. I.—(ACP)—Thousands of pages from forgotten books and documents dealing with the early civilization of Latin America are being copied on micronim for the use of scholars everywhere in a special project under way at Brown University.

The work was made possible by a grant of $35,000 from Rockefeller foundation.

All of the material to be microfilmed over a period of three years in libraries in South America, Central America and Mexico will be added to material on Latin America now housed in the John Carter Brown and John Hay libraries at the university.

Brown plans to use the microfilmed books and manuscripts in connection with graduate opportunities for undergraduates and graduate students who want to study Latin-American culture. Eventually the university expects to become a world reference center for students of early Latin-American civilization.

Physics Course Offered For Second Semester

The Arts Faculty has approved the offering of a course in Physics, Physics 2, second semester. There will be three lectures, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday second hour, and one laboratory which will be held 3:00-5:00 Tuesday afternoon. Students taking and passing this course satisfactorily will receive three hours credit.

This course will not be counted as satisfying the requirements of a laboratory course and will not satisfy the requirements of a course in Physics for Pre-Medical students. Students who have had Physics 1 will not receive credit for this course and credit for the course will be cancelled for those who later take and pass Physics 1.

Physics 2 is being given primarily as a war emergency course for students who have enlisted in the Reserves and wish some knowledge of Physics before entering the armed forces. Students planning to elect this course should consult the Dean regarding their second semester program if it involves changes from the schedule originally planned. They are asked to leave their names with the Dean's Secretary so that the Physics Department may know the approximate number which it must accommodate in the laboratory.

ELIJAH SWIFT,
Dean.

Council Has Voted to Issue Certificate

To Whom It May Concern:

The University Council has voted to issue a certificate to students leaving to go into the armed forces, which will state the number of terms each student has been in residence at the University of Vermont.

As soon as any student knows that he is about to be called to active duty, before leaving college work, he should present this fact to the Registrar's office and a certificate may be prepared and signed by the proper authorities.

The first certificate will be available for about two weeks. Basic training has just been ordered. But if the student finds it necessary to leave for the armed forces before that time, he may leave his name and address and a certificate may be mailed to him.

HOWARD C. [illegible]
Director.

The time schedule of classes which was put into effect as of November 2 will be continued until further notice.

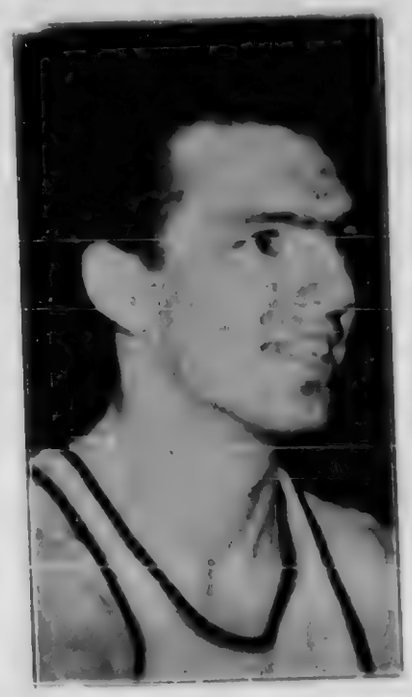
New Musk Source Discovered Here

Baton Rouge, La. (ACP)—Discovery of a new source for natural musk, a rare and extremely valuable ingredient of expensive perfumes, is announced by scientists at Louisiana State University and Yale University.



Formerly obtained only from the musk deer of Asia and the civet cat of Abyssinia—sources now cut off by the war—musk now can be produced from the muskrat by a process just developed. Muskrats are found in large numbers throughout North America, especially in Louisiana, but also in Pennsylvania and Canada. This discovery may open up new markets for trappers, who up to now have been discarding the carcasses of millions of muskrats after obtaining their fur pelts.

Dr. J. L. E. Erickson, associate professor of organic chemistry at L. S. U., and Dr. Philip G. Stevens, instructor of chemistry at Yale, announced the results of their collaborative research in the Journal of the American Chemical Society. Preliminary work on various natural musks began as early as 1935 and is now being furthered at both L. S. U. and Yale.

Dr. Rupert Vance, research associate at the University of North Carolina, believes the south will enter a period of wide industrialization immediately following the war.

Hockey and Ski Teams In Midst of Training

With the Holiday Social Season negotiated successfully Vermont's winter sport addicts returned to the campus this week, earnest to get started on their respective campaigns.

Although the schedule is still pretty much in the embryo stage, the Cat's hockey hopes are on the upswing, and with new Coach Leon Pelkey recently signed as mentor the local picksters are exhibiting more enthusiasm than ever before. With the back campus rink flooded the lads start practice sessions in the immediate future. However, in spite of the ardor of the Green and Gold stickers, Chief Board of Strategist Pelkey is facing a plenty man sized job in whipping a team into shape before the first clash of the season.

Many Lost

Most of last year's varsity ice-men have left this campus, through graduation, and a dire shortage of hockey material is the discouraging result. Remaining are several veterans upon whom Coach Pelkey will no doubt pin most of his hopes. They are last year's goalie rugged Dave Tuholski, Bush McGill, veteran of many a pile upon the boards, versatile Bob Lockwood, Bob White, and Wint Switzer, only freshman member of last year's sextet. Ed Ott, council goes into Uncle Sam's navy shortly after mid-years, and will not be available for the current campaign. On the whole this does not give Newcomer Leon much to work with but he is reputed to be a crafty and wily mentor and may pull some surprises out of his bag of tricks before the tilts with Middlebury, St Mike's and Norwich are done.

The skiing situation is still undecided according to Captain Art Patterson. If all goes well the Cats will compete in numerous meets during the winter months to come, but plans are pretty hazy at this writing. Captain Art spent a week on Mt. Mansfield during the vacation just passed, and was joined during that time by Earl Perce, another veteran of the snows. Both reported conditions were good and each got in some valuable practice for the forthcoming clashes.

Cadet Five Untested

Evans Stands Pat On Starting Line-up

By Paul Robinson

The roaming Norwich Horsemen will pull into Burlington tomorrow evening very much intent upon pinning the ears of Vermont back on the basketball court in the way Lavengood & Bittle have a habit of treating the fall football waves.

Thus far this season the Cadets have seen limited action. They set back the 71st Field Artillery at home 58-42, and that has been the extent of their forays. The same week Vermont set back the Fort aggregation 52-42, with the Cats content to breeze along on a 40-13 lead at half time, using its reserves at will.

Where Fuzzy Evans' charges will have the edge will be in Larry Killick, the Green and Gold's ace forward. The former Burlington high school star has paced the Vermont quintet in three victories in five starts and will be set to show the Maroon and Gold the point getting power that netted him 37 markers against a strong Tufts College five a few weeks back.

Daley New Star

It will be a green Norwich five that faces off against Vermont on the Memorial Auditorium surface tomorrow night. With the exception of Herbie Dean, a veteran center of the Military College's basketeers, Coach Sheppard will be counting on the services of Jack Daley, an unproven freshman, Bob O'Neil, former Cathedral high school courtster, Miller and Stoblan.

Daley, a versatile guard accounted for a dozen of the Cadet's points against the Fort five. Other than this the Horsemen are virtually an unknown quantity.

Evans will probably start the five that has racked up wins over Williams, Fort Ethan Allen, and Tufts. Larry Killick and Milt Kaufman will get the nod for the forward assignments, while Norm Beaulieu will be in at center. Capt. Bob Doherty and Ralph LaPointe will round out the Vermont contingent.

In the prelim, Vermont's Junior Varsity will roll against Vermont Junior College. Earlier in the season, Sherm Fogg's lads nipped the Green and White of Cathedral, but fell before the attack of Burlington high school an evening previous to the Christmas holidays.

Game time is 8.15.

Probable starting lineups:

Vermont		Norwich
Killick	lf	O'Neil
Kaufman	rf	Stoblan
Beaulieu	c	Miller
LaPointe	lg	Daley

U. S. Changing To Moronocracy

Hamilton, N. Y. (ACP)—The United States is changing from a democracy into a moronocracy, according to Dr. George H. Estabrooks, Colgate University psychology professor.

The professor views with alarm the fact that the birthrate at present in America is low and is both more prolific than that of citizens in the "above average intelligence" group.

Dr. Estabrooks is even more pessimistic, almost sure to predict destruction being that the human race will end in moronism in from 1 to 10,000 years unless it takes steps to correct the differential birthrate and the racial effects of modern medicine.

Stay in School; Tuition Refunded Says Pres. Millis

Draft Boards Lenient, Even Reservists May Be Able To Finish

Amid conflicting rumors and uncertainty the University of Vermont enters the second semester of the current year. As a result there is the danger that many students may be persuaded into action which they would not otherwise have contemplated. President Millis, in a letter to all the male students of the University has attempted to clarify the existing situation to avoid these mistakes.

In order to make certain that those men who are called to the armed services during the middle of the semester do not suffer thereby, the University Senate has adopted a resolution to refund full tuition to those called into service. Thus they are trying to make sure that those men who only think they will not be able to finish the year do not make the mistake of not enrolling for the second semester. According to information received by the President, there are indications that many, if not most of the students will have the time in which to finish the school year before they are called. Drafts boards, also, are being quite lenient in their considerations in regard to finishing a section of higher education.

Besides many students deferred for educational reasons, there are many who are in the various reserves. Some of the reserves will be allowed to continue for an undetermined period, some will be called shortly, and still others are making provisions for completion of a certain portion of the college curriculum before calling their men. However, as was pointed out in the President's letter, even though some of the reserves are being called shortly, they can not all possibly be called within a short space of time. Therefore, many reservists may be left in school until the end of the semester.

President Millis has urged the student body to continue with their education in order to receive full credit for their work, and to be in a better position to serve their country when they are called. At the date of this issue, it was not as yet certain whether or not enrollment for the second semester would be affected by the armed service calls. Definite information will not be obtainable until early next week.

Hint To Photographers For Coming Contest

Just a reminder that next week will see the launching of the U. V. M. "Cover Contest," details of which were announced in the issue of two weeks ago. For those whom midyears have not completely incapacitated, it will be remembered that this is a photography contest, open to everybody sponsored by Staff and Sandal plus the Ariel Board with the prize efforts to be displayed on the cover of the Collegiate Digest. Remember, too, that an interesting and striking subject is as essential as the quality and workmanship, so make that your first objective. Another thing, if you have any snapshots on hand which are exceptionally good and have not previously been published anywhere pass them in along with the others. Hoarding is not allowed these days. Watch for all particulars next Tuesday.

Annual Block "V" Banquet Ceremony

Certificates, Speeches Mark End of Athletics

The University of Vermont tendered certificates of award to the members of its athletic teams at the annual Block "V" dinner at the Waterman Building January 14. Nearly 125 athletes, coaches, faculty members and guests gathered for the "Hail and Farewell" ceremonies, with the institution's athletic program presumably about to conclude for the duration with the completion of the present basketball schedule.

Prof. Robert E. Long was toastmaster and introduced Dr. John S. Millis, president, who expressed his pride in the athletic program and complimented the coaching personnel on their successful efforts, describing it as "the evidence of some of the most successful instruction at the university today."

President Millis said that the gathering would probably be the last of its kind for the duration. Of the uncertain future, he said, "There are too many pessimists talking about what we will have to give up. There are some phases of our present educational setup that will have to be foresworn for a time, but I trust that the University of Vermont and the country's institutions will be able to preserve the true spirit and principles of our democratic educational ideals."

Nearly 100 certificates of award were handed the athletes by the coaches of the 1942 teams. Larry Gardner presented them to his baseball men, Fuzzy Evans to the football players, Archie Post to track and cross-country team members, Prof. Fred D. Carpenter to the tennis team and Lieut. D. W. Thayer to the rifle team. No awards will be made in basketball until the completion of the present season. The actual letters and the gold insignia, the latter won by members of state championship teams, will be presented at a later date.

The Rev. Charles C. Martin, rector of St. Paul's church, gave the invocation. After President Millis' brief talk, Co-captains Bill Benoit and Phil Chesarone of the football team and Capt. Bob Doherty of the basketball five spoke briefly.

After singing the Alma Mater, "Champlain," the group adjourned.

Forty-four graduating students at the University of Vermont received their bachelor's degrees and awarded a degree were conferred last evening at the Commencement exercises were held in the gymnasium. Dean Hugh P. Hammond of the Engineering School at Pennsylvania State College was the principal speaker.

Maxwell, Adams, Mass., are the two honor graduates were William F. Cassidy, Essex Junction; Murray L. Eggert, Richmond; Carleton L. Hodgdon, Bristol; and Irene L. Harris, Wantastiquet.

Critics Praise Colburn's Work

Considerable interest has been aroused among magazine and newspaper critics by the exhibition of paintings by Francis Colburn, artist-in-residence at the University of Vermont, which was held recently at the Knoedler gallery in New York. The two leading art magazines Art News and Art Digest both reproduced paintings by Colburn in their December issues.

According to the Art Digest, Lincoln Kirstein best describes Colburn's work: "A grade, colored as Russian villages but not definitely American are these winter scenes at a town setting down for the night or bursting with the neat dusk activities of playing children. A transplanted painter, Colburn sees things with clearly defined edges, rich shadows and jewel-bright lights. Despite the distance gained in these broad views of cities and country crossroads, Colburn's compositions never wander, never give the impression of aimless meandering. . . . are full and clean cut." The magazine reproduced "Country Bus."

The magazine Art News which reproduced the large "Quarry" painting exhibited earlier at the Fleming Museum, called Colburn's oils "dark, discrete and metallic." Speaking of the painting "Playground" also exhibited here the magazine pointed out: "In the animated canvas Colburn escapes clutter while handling many figures almost as deftly as Breugel."

According to the New York Times "One senses in Colburn's sweep, compactness a spirit akin to that of Frost's verse."

The New York Herald Tribune's Emily Genauer's [illegible] described the work as "painted with great clarity and firmness of texture. The work bespeaks the simplicity of Vermont and the artist's own integrity of purpose."

Melville Upton of the New York Sun wrote: "It is eminently serious work that of a painter who knows his craft and

VOL. 61 JANUARY 22, 1943 NO. 27

There is much sighing manifested by educators at their various meetings these days and the latest renewed from physics, chemistry and other science that subject is the prime their agitation. If the war is a long one, a large number of students will have to close (about 200 have already gone to Canada, students and some back by the armed services for further training. But the armed forces are not interested in training in the liberal arts. They say no doubt rightly that it will take science and engineers to win the war.

There is little the educators can do about this save accept it as the fortune of war. But their agitation is not alone over the immediate threat to the liberal arts curriculum. They are concerned with the long run effect. If the girls are being restricted and discouraged now, is there any assurance that they will return to a proper position after the war? Their concern is vital because it is tended up to the basic principles for which we are fighting this war. They figure a man just as soon lay down his life for his country but not the American principles to the defense of which he has devoted himself.

The war cannot be won unless there is a large number of liberal educated people in the world. Freedom is what we are fighting for here and we hope others elsewhere are. But how can we preserve freedom if we do not hold on to the roots from which it flows? We will win the victory with the truth and only the truth, and in order to do so the liberal arts will have preserved our free and individual principles. Freedom is an intangible can't put your finger on something which we carry around in our heads and convey with our tongues. It is a freedom that is only prolonged by continuation of liberal arts. We must preserve these arts to preserve our freedom and to achieve victory.

College men, take notice! Beginning February 1, all persons between 18 and 45 who have been vulnerable to the Selective Service Act for six months or more must carry on their persons their classification card (Form No. 57) and their registration certificate (Form No. 2) to show that they are in good standing with their local board. Those who cannot produce them will be subject to fine or imprisonment or both.

January 12, 1943

To the Editor of the Cynic:

I am asking your cooperation in meeting the war effort as it affects the Food Service Department.

Scarcities resulting from loss of sources of supply, shortage of transportation; diversions of raw materials, industrial plants, and labor to the production of war goods all play a part in the problem which faces the food service director today.

The large quantities of food consumed on the campus make it increasingly difficult to obtain the amounts necessary. Substitutes are used whenever possible. However, we must face the fact that we will go without many items in the near future.

Soda fountain supplies are no longer available in the quantities necessary for running the fountain twelve hours a day. Consequently we are beginning January 16 to close the fountain at 6.30 p.m. each night. It will open at 10.30 in the morning.

The cafeteria hours beginning January 16 will be:

7.00-10.30 a.m.
11.30- 1.30 p.m.
5.00- 6.30 p.m.

Beginning second semester we are discontinuing the sale of ticket books. The prices on food are as low as is possible under present conditions to make them.

My staff of workers are doing their very best to satisfy you in so far as it is possible, and I will appreciate your cooperation.

Pre-Meds May Try For Med. College

Attention is called to the bulletin of the Selective Service Section 4, given below. Accordingly the College of Medicine is now accepting applications from all pre-medical students who have satisfactorily completed their first year of pre-medical work. Application blanks may be obtained at the Dean's Office, Room 6, Medical Building.

"Students in Preprofessional Training—A registrant who is in training and preparation as a premedical, predental, prevterinarian or preosteopathic student, pursuing courses in liberal arts or science in a recognized university or college, may be considered for occupational deferment after completion of his first academic year in such preprofessional course, and thereafter if he is a full time student in good standing, if he continues to maintain good standing in such course of study and if it is certified by the institution that he is competent and that he gives promise of successful completion of such course of study and acquiring the necessary degree of training, qualification or skill."

Present Draftees More Educated Than in 1917

Draftees in the present war are educationally head and shoulders above their counterparts in the last war, recently compiled figures show. Twelve percent of the present draftees have a college education, as against five percent of college trained men in the 1918 Army. While only almost 17 percent of the draftees in the last war had a high school education, over 55 percent have the same amount of schooling now. The remaining 78 percent of the draftees in 1917-1918 had only been to grade school or had no education whatever, while at present only 33 percent of the men who have been drafted fall into this low education group.

Students must take courses in which they enroll unless changes are permitted by the Dean. All changes in enrollment must be made through the Dean's Office within two weeks following the beginning of the second semester, that is up to and including Wednesday, February 3.

Wednesday, February 17, will be the last day on which courses may be dropped without penalty except in cases of illness or under other circumstances where the Dean believes the dropping of a course justified.

America Is Theme Of Music Concert

'Ballad for Americans" To Be Program Feature

The annual joint concert of the University glee clubs and orchestra will be given at Southwick next Thursday, January 28 at 8 p.m. The glee clubs will be directed by Prof. Howard C. Bennett and the orchestra by Mr. Ernest Cates Tapparelli.

A program consisting chiefly of modern and American compositions will be sung by the men's and women's glee clubs. A feature of the program will be the modern composition "Ballad for Americans" to be given by the mixed glee club. The outstanding lyrics are the work of the poet John Latouche with the musical setting by Earl Robinson.

Ballad for Americans

In 1935 the young poet John Latouche felt the need for a stronger argument against hatred and persecution that seemed to spread through the civilized world. In this tempest he set to the original poem, Ballad for Americans, a musical form, using a narrative history of the United States as a burning symbol of freedom and democracy. He had previously come to New York from Richmond, Virginia. In New York he gained a reputation as a poet winning poetry awards at Columbia University for two successive years, 1934 and 1935. It was in 1939 that Latouche met Earl Robinson. Composer Robinson is also considered an American composer. Washington State as a modern minstrel who appeared at meetings to sing his songs accompanied by his own guitar.

Between these two men the stirring words and music became an amalgam of mixed blood, American spirit.

On November 1, 1939, Ballad for Americans had its first performance over the Columbia Broadcasting System. It was presented by a cast of 100 singers and actors. Rarely has any American music been created that immediately aroused the interest. Rarely has any song been written and sung of its own first hearing. It seems to have caught in words and music the deep spirit of character and philosophy of the native American people.

Gluck Overture

In contrast to the modern offering of the mixed glee club is the part of the program to be presented by the University orchestra consisting of music by 17th and 18th century composers. The overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis" by Gluck was written for a serious tragedy in three acts first performed at the Paris opera in 1774. It is considered to this day to be one of the foundation stones upon which the entire complicated structure of so-called modern opera has been built.

Gluck wrote the overture in such a way as to lead immediately into the opening scene of the opera. There are two endings to the overture written for concert performance. The concert ending to be used at this performance was written by Wagner more than 75 years after Gluck wrote the work.

From Handel, the Lorin from the Concerto Grosso in D for Music has been chosen. Handel's Pieces based on the chorale "All Glory Be to God on High" will Latin Classes Flourish Deep In The Heart Of . . .

Austin, Texas—(ACP)—Long known as a "dead language," Latin is far from dying out in Texas schools, Dr. H. J. Leon, University of Texas professor of classical languages, has asserted.

"We have more calls for Latin teachers than we can fill," Doctor Leon said, "and the shortage is being increased by the war."

About 300 Texas high schools offer courses in Latin, he revealed.

WAACS Advertise In Co-Ed Papers

Sometime during January student newspapers in all women's colleges and all co-ed colleges having 250 or more women students will carry a recruitment advertisement from the WAAC—the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

This specially designed appeal is part of the over all WAAC enlistment drive now being carried on in magazines, over the radio, by poster and pamphlet. The coming advertisements will emphasize the opportunity for college trained women in the WAACS and will explain fully a recent regulation permitting college women over 21 years old to enlist in the WAACS while still in college and remain on inactive status until their academic year is completed. This regulation also applies to women now enrolled in technical schools, WAAC officers announce.

The Women's Army Auxiliary Corps needs 150,000 women in all but has set no specific quota for 1943. The latest figures show that well over 15,000 women are now in the corps, many of whom are already on active duty at home and abroad.

The Medical Aptitude Test will be given on Friday, January 22, at 3 p.m. in the Student Lounge in the Waterman Memorial Building. All premedical students who have not taken this Test should do so, regardless of what class they may be in. Registration is in the Dean's Office, Medical Building, fee $1.00.

be given. Another part of the program consists of a suite of excerpts from operas written by Lully between 1675 and 1684. Included in the suite are the overture from "Theseus" in which have been noted the characteristics of a national hymn and "La Marche des Sacrificateurs" also from "Theseus."

L. de la Laurencie says "No homage could be more appropriate to a monarch intoxicated with military glory for it is always of Louis XIV whom Lully thinks when he composes solemn marches."

Other excerpts from Lully's works to be performed are "Menuet Pour les Suivants d'Urgande" from Amadis, "Menuet des ombres Heureuses" from Proserpine and "Air Pour la Suite Chez" from Isis.

Isis was the favorite opera of the King. It was called by Romain Rolland "the most perfect example of the psychological and romantic musical satire of the ode."

The full program to be presented will be announced in Tuesday's CYNIC.

Mozart Opera Is Great Enjoyed

Audience Approves Modern Staging Here

Right in the middle of exams the Vagabond Opera came to town under the auspices of the Community Concert Series drawing a large number of students away from their studies.

The opera took on the likeness of a musical comedy being sung in English. The Marriage of Figaro by Mozart is never hefty at any rate but when a group of young stars all graduates of Juilliard School of Music present it in formal evening attire it, Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" fashion you forget that it is opera and settle down to enjoy the unravelling of a very intriguing plot.

To the opera fan the familiar arias lost their verve when not sung in the native tongue but the recitatives which were so very well done, took on new life. That the men outshone the women was evident. Sharing the laurels were Dean Grunwell as the very suave narrator who doubled as Antonio the gardener and Hugh Thompson in the title role. Both of these men were splendid actors and singers as well.

Altogether the concert was most enjoyable in spite of the fact that the piano pedals fell off in the middle of the first scene. Miss Ruth Cumbae handled the difficult score with reasonable assurity.

Navy V-1 Program Has Modifications

A letter under date of Jan. 7, 1943, has been received by the University of Vermont from the Office of Naval Officer Procurement in Boston, Mass., "modifying" the regulations with regard to enlistment in the Navy V-1 Reserve Program. High school students, under the new regulations, may not enlist unless they will commence attendance at an approved institution of college level prior to March 16, 1943.

Since the University of Vermont does not plan to admit students who have not completed requirements for graduation from high school, it regrets to announce this change in enlistment regulations.

Information is now being received from the high school principals of the state as to the advisability of a summer quarter starting about June 1 for students entering engineering, pre-medical and science fields. From the replies already received it seems according to Heath K. Riggs, Director of Admissions, that it will be feasible to admit students at that time. This will enable many seniors who are not yet 18 to complete a year of college before they become of draft age. A further definite announcement with regard to details will be made shortly.

President Urges Students to Stay

In a letter addressed to all University men, Pres. John S. Millis urges men students to remain in college until called to active duty in the armed services.

President Millis explains that as yet no announcement has been made of the exact date at which members of the Army Enlisted Corps will be called to service, nor has any announcement been made of the exact date at which the Army and Navy specialist training program will be put into effect. A letter received from the Secretary of the Association of American Colleges indicates the improbability of putting the plans into effect at as early a date as originally anticipated.

Since many special groups of students have been advised that they will not be inducted until the end of the second semester of the current academic year President Millis considers it probable that a large number of men will be able to complete the semester. Therefore, students have been urged to register for the second semester and continue in attendance until inducted. Recent action by the Board of Trustees of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College guaranteeing full refund of tuition to students inducted during a semester will insure that no financial hardship is involved.

U. of Michigan Offers Army Medical Course

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(ACP)—Seventeen army medical officers are being given special course in laboratory training and methods in the medical school at the University of Michigan.

The officers are the first of three groups the army is sending to the University for twelve week instruction periods.

The extensive course provides the army physicians with latest developments in laboratory methods and is designed to develop the officers into "one-man laboratories" so they can perform any ordinary type of procedure if they are established at isolated posts.

Suggests Teachers Be Provided With Insignia

New Haven, Conn.—(ACP)—A Yale professor suggests teachers be provided with "suitable uniforms or insignia of office" as an inducement to stick to their profession.

"The Red Cross has demonstrated the value of the psychological principle involved in such a device," said Prof. Clyde M. Hill, education department head at Yale, in an editorial in School Management.

Cagers Lose One Win One

Drop to St. Michael's Setback Norwich Five

The U. V. M. cagers grabbed an even split in two pre-exam state series games squelching the Norwich Horsemen, as expected, 59-45, on January 9, but falling before an inspired St. Michael's five on January 12, 45-43, in the biggest state series upset in several years.

The Horsemen fell easily in a rough and tumble contest that totaled 31 fouls, and saw two men leave the game on personals. Norm Beaulieu for Vermont and Jack Daley of the Horsemen. The Vermonters ran up a total of 17 personals the Kaydets 14.

Norwich scored first on a foul by Daley, whereupon Vermont ran up 10 consecutive points a lead which they stretched to 23-15 at halftime. George Henderson who came into the game early to replace Milt Kaufman, scored 14 for the balance of the half.

Vermont consistently outshot the opposition from the floor, scoring 25 field goals to 16 for the Horsemen.

Captain Herb Dean led his club in scoring with ten points and did much of the playmaking. Web Miller and Art Steblan each accounted for eight points.

In the closing minutes, Fuzzy Evans sent in the reserves, among whom was Leon Sheppard, son of the Norwich University coach.

Against St. Michael's the Green and Gold were less fortunate, as the underdog Ryanmen staged a sustained second half rally that slowly ate up the Vermont lead, and finally passed it to win, 45-43.

It certainly looked like another Vermont win at the end of the first half, as the Green and Gold passing well and controlling the ball a good percentage of the time, piled up a 23-18 lead. Larry Killick popped in six long-rangers to snap the strings for 12 points and the scoring lead.

The second half, however, was of a horse of another color. Killick dunked a two-pointer to open the scoring, but here the Saints took over, and scored two consecutive points to take a 28-25 lead before a wild and enthusiastic crowd. From here on the Saints nursed their narrow lead and held it for the rest of the game. The closest Vermont came to regaining their prestige was early in the fourth quarter, when Doherty and Killick scored consecutively to bring the score to 34-33, St. Michael's. But for every basket that the Cats scored, the Michaelmen laid in one or two of their own.

With two minutes to go, the men from the Hilltop led, 40-39. At this point the partisan audience of Mikemen were on their feet, shouting their lungs out, for the unbelievable was being done.

Fitzgibbon swished a foul through the strings, and followed up seconds later with a twin-counter by Bob Linehan, then Milt Kaufman retaliated for the Vermonters with a rebound shot from in front of the hoop.

Linehan banged in another one, and Ryan's men were ahead by four points. Not to be denied while there was yet seconds to play, Norm Beaulieu, Vermont's stellar center, took the ball and flipped in a beautiful shot from the side just as the gun sounded.

It was a dejected group of Vermont courtsters that gathered in the locker-room after the battle, for their path towards another state championship had been interrupted by this never-say-die aggregation from Winooski Park.

Killick continued his rampant scoring spree, dumping in 20 points, while Linehan passed the victors' way with a dozen markers to his credit.

Evansmen Out After Second State Triumph

Panthers Set to Upset Vermont's Title Drive

By Morris Kelley

Fuzzy Evans' cat-mauling Catamounts hit the out at town trail tomorrow night to meet the bloodthirsty Middlebury Black Panthers in their own den. With three victories in four starts the Midds boast a rangy veteran line-up which has the potentialities to put several kinks in the Cats' plans for another state title.

Just returned from a successful road jaunt New York state with the scalps of Union College and New York State Teachers clinging on their belts, the Blue and White hoopsters have dire plans for Capt. Bob Doherty and Co. The Panthers boast a line-up well over six feet tall and tipping the scales at a neat 176 each. Football co-captains Boat Adsit and Earle Bishop hold down guard and forward berths respectively, with big Mac McGarry at the pivot post. Freddy Lapham is at the other forward niche and Johnny Cadwell, a Pittsford lad, holds forth with Adsit at guard. All are lettermen with plenty of court experience under their belts.

The Midds started the season on a sour note taking a bad drubbing from Hartwick 52-34, but did much better in their second clash, eking out a 48-47 over a Fort Ethan Allen combine. The NY junket went further to prove that the down staters are a real threat to UVM's championship aspirations, as they nipped Union at the tape 34-33, and whipped the Teachers 39-36. Coach Leo Brown has nursed his lads along until they have developed into a smooth-working, basket-wise machine which the Green and Gold may not be able to take into camp as easily as pre-season dopesters maintained.

Vermont will pull into Panther town tomorrow eve still stung by last week's undreamed of defeat by Pinky Ryan's inspired St. Michael's hoopsters, and determined to break the Purple's clutching grasp on the top-rung of the league standings. The Cats are in top-notch shape to face the Blue and White assault, and will use the same line up which started in the Winooski Park fracas. On the two main scoring cogs of the U. V. M. offense, Larry Killick and Bob Doherty, will rest the burden of out-pointing the Midd sharpshooters, who have the vital height advantage. Let no one think, however, that despite their record to date, the Panthers will have an easy time in mauling the Catamounts. Fuzzy's charges have seen much more action than the Middlebury five, so far this season and have well proved that they are an exceptional ball club. It may well be their privilege to decisively topple the high-riding hill-toppers and again take their place at the top of the state heap.

The game will be doubly interesting because of the friendly rivalry between Catamount scoring ace, Larry Killick, and the Middlebury captain, Freddie Lapham, both of whom were on the same Burlington High School team in days of yore.

J. V. Quintet Tackles Midd

Fogg Loses Bister For Tomorrow's Tilt

By Bem Kee

Vermont's lower basketball quad will be gunning for their fourth win Saturday when they meet the high-stepping Middlebury reserve team at Middlebury.

The Jayvees have an admirable record this year chalking up three wins and one loss to date.

In their opening encounter they eked out a close win in defeating Cathedral High School, 29-28. Lanky Bob Hunziker dumped in ten points to lead the winners.

The squad traveled across the river to Winooski to down a high school array, 27 to 25. Breen, a freshman, topped the scoring with five twin-counters.

In a loosely played game the Jayvees tumbled to a 32-22 defeat at the hands of a classy Burlington High School five, who seemed to have full control of the game from the opening gun.

By virtue of a 34-26 win over a Vermont Junior College five, the Jayvee basketballers chalked up another one in the win column. Hunziker had a pleasant evening, clicking for 14 points to set the pace.

The forthcoming Middlebury tussle promises to bring plenty of surprises. Coach Fogg already has lost regular forward Bill Buster to the armed services.

Icemen Tieup With Norwich

The roving Horsemen from Norwich were in Burlington again this afternoon, ready to face off against an inexperienced but game Vermont hockey team.

The Cadets set back M. I. T. last week, 8-3 and have played a few games earlier this season, while this afternoon's ice battle was the season's opener for Leon Pelkey's skaters.

Whit Switzer, Bish McGill, Bob Lockwood, and Jim Duckworth, veterans up from last season were set to start against the Norwich six with Charlie Anderson, a New York product, and Pete Kadzis, better known for his gridiron tactics ready to round out the Green and Gold team.

Probable starting lineups:

VERMONT—Anderson, Lockwood wings; Switzer, center; McGill, Duckworth, defense; Kadzis, goalie.

NORWICH—Perkins, Cannon, wings; Wright, center; Wharton, Collins, defense; Sellars, goalie.

Killick Still Leads In Vermont Scoring

Larry Killick, Vermont's sensational scoring ace, still holds his lead over the Catamount scorers as he ran his total just over the hundred mark for 101 points. In two state series since the vacation Larry scored 26 points, giving him a 28-point lead over the captain and runner up, Bob Doherty.

George Henderson, Frosh reserve ace, dunked 20 points against the Horsemen to boost his total to 48 points and establish himself a dangerous third-place threat to Norm Beaulieu.

Scoring to date:

Killick	101
Doherty	73
Beaulieu	50
Henderson	48
LaPointe	27
Kaufman	27
Sheppard	4
Conti	2
Clairmont	2
Johnston	2

Psi Toppler's Review Fight This Afternoon

Inter-fraternity bowling was back in the spotlight this afternoon as SAE-Sigma Phi, and the Independent-Faculty topplers rolled at 4 o'clock.

The Sigs were out to rack up seven points thereby slipping into first place against the idle Delts, while a win for the SAE five might mean possible possession of fifth place.

The Faculty bowlers tied for sixth place with the Phi Sigs will face off against the Independents who have a chance of garnering sole possession of seventh position in the league if they outroll the teachers.

The Sigs will be playing with one new member, Ted Bangheart having reported to the Merchant Marines.

With Bob Bennett rolling a clean 150 yesterday afternoon it looks as though the AFO club would put up plenty of competition for the Delts, who lead the latter club by a scant two points.

At present about 5,000 WAVES are on active duty in training.

A new type of WAVE training will get under way about February 1. Navy Department officials report when [illegible] aviation schools will open up to train women [illegible] aviation ground work. WAVES will take technical courses in these schools after a brief "boot" or preliminary course.

As well as the 17,500 WAVES to be [illegible] this year, the Navy hopes to recruit 8,000 women for the SPARS—the women's reserve of the Coast Guard. This new women's service—set up to release men at shore stations for active duty—has the same requirements as the WAVES, and the newly announced education and marriage specifications apply to the SPARS as well as the WAVES.

Museum Holds Vt. Camera Exhibition

Variety Is Keynote Among 84 Pictures

The second All Vermont Camera Club exhibit has been on display in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont and will continue through January 31.

The 84 pictures composing the exhibit represent the work of the camera clubs of Vermont. Pictures were contributed by the Granite Center Camera Club of Barre, the Bennington, Brattleboro and Burlington Camera Clubs and the Skitchawaug Camera Club of Springfield.

The Burlington Camera Club's section of the exhibit consists of pictures by A. C. Quance, president of the club, E. H. Royce of St. Albans, honorary member, Dr. H. A. Dorrie, J. V. Detore, G. W. Bennett, Mrs. Guy W. Page and Prof. Paul A. Moody.

Variety is the keynote of the exhibit, reflecting the varied interests and activities of Vermont's camera enthusiasts. Localities run the range from city interiors to the heart of the Green Mountains. Wintry landscapes have especial photograph appeal but countrysides in warmer moods are also well represented. Still life studies stand next to action shots on playing field or ski slope. Portraits, both human and animal, patterns of surprising appeal usually not noticed, child studies, pictures of varying human activities, all vie with each other for the visitor's attention.

The prints will be exhibited by the contributing clubs in their own communities after the close of the display at the university.

There are six other members of the board of trustees whose terms have not yet expired.

Tomorrow's elections will also include justices of the supreme court, superior court judges, a sergeant-at-arms and the assistant general of the state.

The first meeting this semester of the dancing class will be held at Southwick on Wednesday, January 27, at 7:45 p.m. The Square Dance Group will meet following this at 8:30 p.m. Let' have a good turnout.

Some Selectees to Train in College

War Dep't Announces New Requirements

The War Department set forth the qualifications last week by which it will [illegible] thousands of selectees for specialized training in basic and advanced subjects within college walls under the [illegible] Army-Navy plan.

Applicants for the basic training must measure up to these requirements:

1. Score 110 or better in an Army [illegible] Test.
2. Be high school graduate between the age of 18 and 21 inclusive (not attained 22nd birthday).
3. Complete the regular basic Army training or be in the process of completion.

To qualify for advanced training under the plan, the applicant must meet these qualifications:

1. Pass the Classification Test with the same score.
2. Have one year of college work or its equivalent and be at least 18 but not necessarily under 22.
3. Complete or be completing the Army basic training.

The War Department's statement pointed out that the trainees will be in uniform on active duty, will be paid while they learn and will be subject to military discipline. The colleges to which they are assigned will provide the instruction prescribed by the Army and will furnish housing and feeding facilities. The students will receive military training but it will be secondary to their academic work.

"The principal objective of the Army's Specialized Training Program," the statement declared, "is to meet the need of the Army for technically trained soldiers for certain Army tasks for which its own training facilities are insufficient in extent or character."

Canterbury Club Initiates Service

One service a month to take place at the All Saints' Chapel, at the juncture of Ledge Road, South Willard St. and South Union St., is the program outlined by the Canterbury Club for the remainder of the year. The club, an organization of Episcopal students at Vermont, has announced that these services will not only be open to all students regardless of denomination, but also to the community in general with a special invitation to those in the immediate neighborhood. Chaplain Hill of Fort Ethan Allen will be in the pulpit while Prof. J. E. Pooley will conduct the service next Sunday with Clement Holden reading the Lesson. The choir will be under the direction of I. Pappoutsakis of the University faculty. Members of the committee are Rosemary Thayer, James Lobdell, Alberta Reid, Harry Twitchell, and Franklin Fowler, president. Miss Genette Davis is faculty adviser of the group.

The Western (Big Ten) athletic conference has voted against admitting freshmen to varsity competition.

Prof. Cameron Lectures On Tropical Medicine

The Dean of the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont announces that Prof. Thomas W. M. Cameron is to deliver the lectures in Tropical Medicine this year. His first lecture will be given on Friday afternoon, Jan. 22, at 1:30 o'clock, in Hall A at the Medical Building. He will lecture each Friday afternoon for the rest of the session.

Dr. Cameron is director of the Institute of Parasitology, MacDonald College of McGill at Montreal. Russian Relief $10,000 Mark Hit

Dean and Long Express Gratitude At Response

Bolstered by substantial contributions from Washington, Chittenden, Bennington Windham, Franklin and Essex counties the Vermont Russian War Relief drive has now gone rolling over the $10,000 mark and is on its way toward the $15,000 state quota.

"All our county and town chairmen are keeping on the job and driving hard," say state chairmen, Dean and Long. "With such excellent and persistent cooperation throughout the state we are confident Vermont will reach and pass its goal."

Steady shipments of war relief supplies are being moved into Russia as a result of the United States and British relief campaigns. They are transported free of charge on United Nations vessels. Each helps in Russia's big push. Many expressions of gratitude, report national relief headquarters, are being received. Some come in cables from Red Army surgeons and military leaders, and in letters from soldiers and citizens.

"Our country serves the humane cause in bringing to health Red Army men defending the safety of all mankind against a common enemy," says Dr. Yefim I. Smirnov, chief of the Administration of the Red Army Medical Services.

According to reports reaching state headquarters some of the Vermont drive workers in rural districts are now forced to travel restrictions to cover their assignments on foot, but they continue to do

New Courses Offered In Math and Physics

There are two new courses which grace our college catalogue this second semester. Math 109 is being given by Professor Fraleigh to a few students who requested an advance course in differential equations.

Physics 2 is a preliminary course to Physics 1, given to those students who wish to have an elementary knowledge of physics before they are drafted. There are three lecture periods and a lab being given each week. Credits are not given to those who take Physics 1 later

Kappa Sigs Hold Informal Vic Dance

All Other Fraternity Informals Saturday

Tension, anxiety, sleeplessness and jangled nerves had so completely possessed the Vermont student body and faculty that when Tuesday night rolled around no one could acclimate himself to a free night with no studying and the sight of a comfortable bed. The freedom was exercised in various ways, but the fraternities were so overcome by it that they could not make any plans for informal dances until last night.

Kappa Sigma was the only fraternity on the hill to house a vic dance last Saturday night. From all reports, everyone who attended had a very enjoyable time. Fred Miller '44, was in charge with Professor and Mrs. Ladd as chaperones.

Al Weiss '45, states that Phi Delta Theta will swing out Saturday night with the Catamounts accompanying them

Bernard Kaye '45 is chairman of the Phi Sigma Delta vic dance to be held at their house next Saturday. On the committee are Leonard Paul '45 and Richard Kaufman '45.

Delta Psi, Lambda Iota, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi, and Tau Epsilon Phi believe in suspense and won't be able to release any plans until the next issue of the Cynic on Friday.

First aid classes will be resumed at 7.45 at the Alpha Chi Omega House Tuesday night.

Ariel and Staff and Sandal Sponsor Contest

Not only the thrill of seeing your picture on the cover of the Collegiate Digest but the additional award of $5 and $2.50 respectively for the first and second prizes is the latest bulletin on the Staff and Sandal—Ariel sponsored "Cover Contest." The deadline has been set for February 13, the Saturday before Kake Walk and all entries should be submitted on or before that date to the University Book Store in the form of a glossy print, together with the name, address and class numeral of the contestant.

Subject matter is unrestricted but action or candid shots are apt to be more successful. In casting about for ideas it might help to thumb through several copies of the Collegiate Digest for suggestions, and remember that the cover shots are always vertical rather than horizontal.

Each sorority and fraternity group will be asked to submit at least one entry either of individuals or of the group in action but these pictures will act only as a nucleus. It is suggested that, where possible, other organizations such as Ski club, W. A. A., the Dramatic club, Student Government, etc. submit pictures typical of their activities with credit and awards going to the group as a whole Nor does this mean that individual entries will not be just as welcome and receive an equal amount of consideration

Announcement of the prize winners plus a list of honorable mentions will be made the night of Kake Walk after which time all prints will be turned over to the Ariel staff to use as they see fit

Aggies Meet Tonight

There will be a meeting of the Aggie Club on Tuesday, January 26, at 8 p.m. in Waterman. The election of officers will be taken up, and slides on the embryonic development of the chick will be shown.

The University of California library totals 1,170,738 books.

Many U. V. M. Professors Contributing to Human Thought

Scores of articles, books and brochures on scores of subjects are published by members of the University of Vermont faculty every year. Each one makes its contribution to some phase of human thought, endeavor or welfare. Among the writers are agricultural men, doctors, scientists, engineers and humanists. Publications bearing the names of University of Vermont authors during the past year run the scale from fiction and biography to scientific reports and research studies designed to promote human progress and learning

Included in the work done by University faculty members during the last few months and typical of much more are, in the popular field, Elliott Merrick's novel, "Northern Nurse" and Leon W. Dean's historical biography, "Old Wolf," both by members of the English faculty; "Friendly Mountains," to which Louis Puffer, head of civil engineering, contributed one section, and, by the same author, an article entitled "Good Old Web Feet," which appeared in "High Spots," the year book of the Adirondack Mountain Club.

Technical Field

In the technical field, the current issue of the American Journal of Science carries an article on "A Paleozoic Revision of Vermont" by Charles G. Doll of the Geology Department; Daniel B. Carroll, head of Political Science, appears in the University of Kansas City Law Review and in the State Normal University Alumni Quarterly. Professor Carroll's article "Unicameralism" in the first mentioned periodical is based for the most part on his studies in Vermont. A. R Gifford head of the Department of Philosophy, has published a report of the Vermont Commission on Child and Family Legislation; and George Dykhuizen of the same department is the author of articles which appeared in The Humanist and in the Land Policy Review, a U. S. Department of Agriculture publication. Professor Dykhuizen has also started the new year's publications with an article in the current issue of Rural Sociology; and Phillips D. Carleton of the English Department appeared in the December Bul-

Retiring Editor

G. E. Little, Jr.

With two issues of the Cynic each week, there is a need for an active and efficient administrative system. During this past year this system has consisted of seniors who have devoted much time to preparing and organizing the material for the Cynic issues

To mention a few there is the Recording Secretary, Alfred Amee. He has been on the Senior Staff for two years and has been a loyal supporter of the Cynic. Outside of his work on the Board, he has done much to further the Campus Sings and the Christmas Caroling. He is associated with the Christian work on the Campus, and has interests in dramatics, and public speaking

The feature editor is Helaine Goldberg Her work on the Cynic began as a scrub her freshman year and she has worked up through to her present position on the Staff. She has many varied interests on the U. V. M. Campus which include the parts which she has played in some of the major plays, her work in the French Club, as well as being President of her sorority and House President at Redstone Dormitory.

Another responsible position, on the Staff is that of Managing Editor which has been so ably filled by Alice Needham The principal work of Managing Editor is to organize the material as it comes to the Free Press. Alice is active in many other organizations: she is a member of Blue Stockings, an officer in Student Union, and she has been active in the new Student Government organization.

The office of Re-write Editor is held by Daan Zwick. He also has worked up from a scrub beginning in his freshman year. He has taken part in activities varying from the Cynic to Debating, and he has interests in the Student Forum, International Relations Club and in Athletics. He is a member of the Scribes and is on the Track and Cross Country teams.

These are only a few of the Cynic organization who have cooperated in its work in the last year.

Six Women Receive Diplomas at First Winter Graduation

At the winter commencement held on Thursday night, January 21, six girls were graduated under the accelerated program. Although the program was instituted primarily to help boys complete their courses in the shortest possible time, these girls took advantage of the shortened system to graduate a semester early in a class of forty-four students.

None of the girls intend to enter war work directly, but war needs are vitally affecting the supply of persons to fill all kinds of positions, and the graduate's chances in their respective fields will be greatly influenced by such needs.

Bertha Palinkos, a pre-medical student from Norwalk, Conn., intends to enter medical school, although she is not yet sure which school it will be. While in college she has been a member of the Y W C A., and Pre-Medic Society, and the Newman Club, and she has been very interested in G. S. O. work and bowling.

Jean Blume, from Ansonia, Conn., has completed a Social Science course. She was a house president last year, a member of the Committee for the Student Union Convention, and Co-chairman of the Inter-sorority Dance. Jean is a member of Delta Phi Epsilon Sorority, and has taken

The Vermont Cynic

VOL. 61 JANUARY 26, 1943 NO. 28

The 1942 CYNIC staff ceases to exist with this issue. For pretty near a year we have attempted to be the contact between and voice of the students at U. V. M. and although we have been a trifle lax at times we have usually succeeded in doing so. The cooperation we received from Student Government, the honorary societies and other corners of campus life was excellent and we wish to extend our appreciation to them.

A year ago we set out to make the CYNIC a bit more readable and humorous. We started out fairly well but from there on until now our trend along this line has been spasmodic to say the least. We apologize for this but hope that the new staff will pick up where we left off and therefore perhaps compensate for our admitted weakness. We enjoyed this delving into the intricacies of the newspaper world, we were glad to accept the job and equally glad to get rid of it.

We of the 1942 CYNIC congratulate those of the 1943 CYNIC and wish them good luck, knowing they may well need it.

To the Editor of the CYNIC

The smoke has cleared! To some extent the debris has been carried away and one can safely assume that the results of that ravenous flame at the "Coconut Grove" have been sufficiently blanketed by editors, firemen and politicians to assure the fact that such a disastrous blaze will soon be merely another one of those quickly forgotten front page scoops.

Possibly the immediate results have been hushed up. Possibly the casualties have been laid aside; but, certainly, the ghastly impression forced so spectacularly into the average man's memory by radio, newspaper or what have you, will long remain an ever vivid picture.

It seems to me that with this lesson still fresh in mind it would be an excellent time to profit by example and become a little more conscious of our own potential danger, namely, that venerable edifice the so-called "Old Mill."

Just what is the story on our elderly companion? Surely we are not the first generation to observe the fact that Old College could become a roaring inferno on the drop of a cigarette butt. Surely our predecessors were not blind men. Surely, our fire inspectors and honorable fire chiefs are not entirely lacking in a sense of duty. Then again, maybe they just don't wa——. Oh, don't take me wrong. Emily Post says that pointing a finger is a gross breach of etiquette and as you well know, all Vermont students are noted for the fact that next to the Bible, Emily is their most cherished possession.

But all kidding aside, truthfully, I'm looking for information and would like an answer.

Surely our elders must appreciate the fact that there is a law saying that all outside doors of public buildings must open outward. And, all buildings housing larger numbers of students than can be conveniently evacuated by inside stairs must be provided with outside fire escapes. The Old Mill certainly fills the bill! What's the answer?

Our University of Vermont was saved from eminent disaster by team-work and coordination. Then why should one more day pass with some of those very men and women, who gave in our forward movement, living in danger. One of the very buildings we fought for is in danger. The people that use it are in danger and the very life of everyone is at stake. We fought for our school tooth and nail, let's not lose it now through gross negligence.

The least we could do is to hinge the doors to swing outward and I'm sure it wouldn't tax the authorities' ingenuity to arrange a simple bell system for warning. Fire escapes don't have to be elaborate either.

Again I say, what's the story?

This is one solution. Again, I wonder just what good it will do?

Respectfully,
ROBERT GOSS '44

PHI DELTA THETA

Betty Farnsworth was crowned the "Sweetheart of Vermont Alpha of Phi Delta Theta" at our Christmas formal, December 18.

It is our pleasure to announce that Jack (Boomer) Williams and Bill (King of the dance) Murray, have hung their pins on Julie Fletcher and Betty Farnsworth, respectively.

Bill Benoit is wearing the mailman out with daily despatches to and from New London.

It looks like Lew Codding is trying to open a second front at the Warner House! How about that, Cuddles?

From all appearances Bob "Mouth" Pulleyn is going into the sheep and lumber business! How about that, Queenie?

"Hot man" Nutter, the old sage, acted as host to a number of his friends who came to New York over the vacation. Sight-seeing tours led by the ever-so-recent-alumnus consisted entirely of Greenwich Village and Joe King's Fraternity House.

Brother Tuholski still doesn't know what happened that week.

We have confidential reports that the S. A. E.'s have placed an order with Ward Amidon, Balfour jewelry salesman, for 12 jeweled radiators with the S. A. E. crest on them.

The Alpha Chis are mourning the loss of Shirley Hall to the Home Management House. (Phone 2074).

In order that each girl living in the house, may at some time during the year, have the privilege of living in one of the rooms facing the Kappa Sig House, the Alpha Chis have instituted a new system rotating roommates.

Barbara Hall spent the week-end at home. (He's in the army now.)

PI BETA PHI

Several of the girls went home this past week-end; Ginny Rose to Bellows Falls, Connie Bray to Bradford, Mary Lib Metcalf to Waterbury, and Alma Gaylord to Northfield.

Caroline Trask '41, is back visiting at the house.

At least 39 colleges and professional schools have closed their doors or merged with other institutions since spring.

Russ West Paces League Scoring with 29 Markers

[illegible] Saturday encounter, the Independ- [illegible] their winning ways by [illegible] the Kappa Sigma outfit, 32-25. [illegible] paced the winners by garner- [illegible] points, to cop individual scoring [illegible] both clubs.

A [illegible] Delta Psi team overcame a [illegible] lag to eke out a narrow win [illegible] spired Sigma Phi five, by a [illegible] 20-18. The game itself was [illegible] numerous fouls and football [illegible] both sides being equally guilty. [illegible] Little stole the spotlight, playing [illegible] offensive and defensive game [illegible] winners.

[illegible] another close game the SAE's [illegible] up a close win over the Phi Delta [illegible] 24-23. The score from the [illegible] moments shuttled back and [illegible] as both teams sought to make a [illegible] safety. The final outcome was [illegible] until the fading minutes when [illegible] SAE's cut the net for the deciding [illegible] Roeder and Dick Grosvenor [illegible] to lead the winners while Frank [illegible] Klund, ex-Frosh star, kept the Phi [illegible] Delta in the ball game by dumping in five [illegible] and a pair of charity [illegible]

In the class "A" league, the ATO's are [illegible] present coasting on the results of four [illegible] wins to lead the league. Not so [illegible] behind are the once defeated Sigma [illegible] whose only loss was to the power- [illegible] ATO's. The SAE's, by virtue of their [illegible] over the Phi Delts have completed [illegible] 3-0 record.

[illegible] the Sigma Nu's defeat the Delta Psi [illegible] on January 30 and if the SAE's [illegible] the ATO's on February 6 the league [illegible] may be shared, temporarily by these [illegible] winning teams.

Topping the league scoring so far this [illegible] is Russ West, Sigma Nu forward who has compiled 29 points. Not far behind we find "Monk" Martin and Frank Sugrue with 24 and 28 points, respectively.

In the "B" league, the Independents and TEP's have two wins with no defeats. Both teams have shown plenty of talent and their meeting in the near future will probably be a real tussle for the winner will undoubtedly meet the winners of the "A" league for the championship of the Interfraternity League.

Cats Set to Win Over Gymnasts

Fuzzy Evans and his crew of hoopsters will go traveling this week-end to take the offerings of Springfield and Amherst Colleges on successive evenings.

The Cats will arrive in Springfield, Mass., Friday to take on the Gymnasts, and will be thirsting to avenge the 54-23 defeat that the Bay Staters pinned on them little more than a year ago in the Memorial Auditorium.

On the following evening, Amherst will provide the opposition. To date, the Amherst five has waded through five teams without mishap, although they barely nosed out a Coast Guard Quintet by a mere one point. Boasting a veteran crew the collegians will be out to make it their sixth win in as many starts.

Last winter, Vermont faced off against Springfield without the services of one Larry Killick, a factor which will make a great deal of difference when Larry starts to pound them in from all over the surface.

To date, Killick has accounted for 128 of the Green and Gold's points in eight games played. This is an average of 16 points per game. Along with Killick will be Bob Doherty who has dropped 82 markers through the strings.

Norwich Skaters Drub Cats 15-1; Kadzis Stars

The first score read 15-1, but Vermont's hockey forces put that behind them today and prepared to meet Norwich on their own ice next Friday.

It was a poor day on the ice for the Cats, and the 15-1 score was but a meagre indication of the number of shots that the invading Norwich sextet slammed towards the net.

Actually, it was Vermont's first time on the ice. Late season starting and exams held up practice for the icemen, and some of the lads hadn't even tested their blades prior to Friday's lop-sided battle.

Pete Kadzis tended the net for the Green and Gold, and heaped himself high with praise as the Horsemen skated through Vermont's defense at will to fire incessantly at the pay box by stopping well over 100 of the intended goals.

In the first period alone this former Boston Trade school iceman collected 43 saves, and in the last 20 minute stretch he got his stick in front of 31 shots.

The gentlemen from Northfield coupled the fact that Vermont lacked experience with some fast breaks and hard skating to win. A week previous they turned back M. I. T., 8-3.

Whit Switzer, assisted by Sig Sisko, banged in the lone talley for Vermont in the waning minutes of the last period.

Wright, Perkins, and Simeone accounted for 12 of the Cadets scores.

Leon Pelkey's skaters will face off against Norwich again Friday over there in hopes of knotting the count in the home and home series, and then will go on to meet an experienced Middlebury College six later in the season.

Starting lineups:

Vermont: Kadzis, g; McGill, rd; Duckworth, ld; Sysko, c; Switzer, rw; Lockwood, lw.

Norwich: Sellars, g; Collins, rd; Wharton, ld; Wright, c; Perkins, rw; Simeone, lw.

Killick Insures 54-40 Win With 27 Points

Second State Victory For Fast-Stepping Five

Non-Stop

Larry Killick, sensational Vermont forward who has split the string for 128 points

By Monty Kelley

The superb shooting and smooth floor work of Larry Killick, Bob Doherty and Company proved too much for the vaunted Middlebury Black Panthers last Saturday eve, as the Catamounts bared their fangs in the last half and clawed the hapless Midds 55-40. It was the seventh straight victory for Fuzzy Evans' charges who seem well on their way to another state title.

Despite the fact that they were in hostile territory, the U. V. M. cagers definitely proved, except for a few bad minutes in the first stanza, that they were the better ball club. Led by Larruping Larry's 27 points the Cats exhibited an attack which penetrated the Blue and White defense with ease and a defense which held the Panthers' big guns, Cad-well, McGarry, and Lapham, well down in the scoring brackets.

Middlebury started a zone defense against the Green and Gold, but as Doherty and Killick found the range, and dunked in several baskets from way out the down staters shifted to a man to man. The first half was a knock down drag out melee with the Middlebury stands going wild as the Panthers swung into the lead several times. After the Cats had scored twice, Johnny Cadwell and Bill Calkins put the Blue and White in the lead, and then boosted the advantage to five points. Things looked black for the Vermonters until they staged a savage uprising. Killick scored and put them into the van 16-15. Each club netted a foul but Cadwell cut loose, split the net and the lead again shifted to the home-towners. Just as the gun barked to end the half, Captain Doherty looped in a long one from out beyond the circle and the Catamounts went to the lockers with a slim one point margin 19-18.

As the two teams took the floor for the final half, Middlebury hopes were high, but they were soon blasted by the terrific scoring punch which Fuzz's lads unleashed. Killick continued to run wild and brought the large contingent of Vermont rooters to their feet time and again with his spectacular one-hand shots. The other Cats too, found the hoop, and set down a barrage of baskets which left the Midds trailing in the dust. Panicky, Coach Art Brown's hoopsters began firing away at the basket with much abandon but little accuracy.

The Catamounts remained cool and collected working the ball through the Middlebury defense for step shots, or hanging in longs from farther out. Substitutes came pouring into the fray and the Blue and White were able to up their total by a considerable margin before the end of the contest.

Playing most of the game without injured guard, big Earle Bishop, the Panthers were undoubtedly not at their best. In the last half the Midds shooting was miserably inaccurate and their defense was porous to the U. V. M. onslaught.

As for the Cats, despite a slow initial stanza they exhibited the usual shooting game and a slick passing offensive.

Larry Killick took top scoring honors with 27, followed by Doherty's 9. For the bill toppers, Bill Calkins, replacing Bishop, netted ten markers as did his running mate Johnny Cadwell. Freddy Lapham garnered 9, and lanky Mac McGarry got 8.

In the preliminary to the evening's main event, the Vermont Jayvees whipped the Middlebury Juniors 59-51. Bill Flanders and new arrival Dick Conrad showed the way, to make it a clean sweep for the Green and Gold.

Interfaith Council to Stage First Brotherhood Week Late Next Month

Here at the University more and more effort is being put into creating better relationships among the different faiths. One of the features of this new interfaith program will be the Brotherhood Week. The program for this observance is being arranged by the Interfaith Council and the Student Committee on Religious Life and under the general direction of the National Council of Christians and Jews.

At present, the committee is planning a Convocation to be held Thursday, February 25 at twelve noon. At this convocation there will be three speakers: a Rabbi, a Priest, and a Minister all from New Haven, Conn. That afternoon there will be an informal discussion for all students in the Student Lounge and it will be conducted by the same three speakers. In the evening there will be a meeting which will include the town people.

On the previous Tuesday President Millis and Mr. H. Seamans, New England Representative to the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will conduct an open discussion for the townspeople, faculty and students.

The Newman Club, the Hillel Foundation, Y. W. C. A., and V. C. A. will all take part, and two members from each group have been chosen to act with the Student Committee on Religious Life to arrange the program. The committee in charge of Publicity includes Phil Robinson, Jacob Katz, and Mary Germany. Students in charge of the Convocation and meetings are Penelope Easton, Jacqueline McCormick, and Seymour Baum. The students in charge of arrangements for the city meeting are Faye Lippman and Marjorie Witham.

Don't Read That Stuff Anyway Says Ed.-in-Chief Little

George "Spunk" Little is retiring from his Cynic duties after a successful year as Editor-in-Chief of our college newspaper.

When interviewed, he was reluctant to give "a long dissertation on his policies as Editor," as he termed it. "They don't read that stuff anything," said George. This is characteristic of his aim for the Cynic. When his staff started out they didn't have any special objectives, but aimed primarily to keep the students well informed on campus events. This past year especially, there have been also national events changing and influencing the students' lives, which The Cynic has kept them well informed about. This seems a commendable service objective for an editor to carry out.

"Spunk" complimented the fine work his staff has done. "They all did their share of the work," he said, "and this made the Editor's work lighter than it has been for some Editors in the past."

His college activities have included athletics, fraternity and intramural, the Interfraternity Handbook editing and Kake Walk, as well as his main interest, the Cynic, on which he served as News Editor and Assistant Sports Editor, as well as Editor-in-Chief.

George also has been a member of Key and Serpent and Boulder, and is a popular member of Delta Psi Fraternity.

Home Nursing

There will be a new Class in Home Nursing on Tuesdays from 4:20 to 5:50 starting Tuesday January 26. Mrs. Lee Sullivan will be the instructor and the classes will be held at Southwick. Sophomores may take this course as one elective with Physical Education credit. This course will also be open to Freshmen, Juniors and Seniors.

Not much outside work is required in this course and a Red Cross Certificate will be given at the end of 12 lectures and the passing of the Red Cross examination. Since there is such a serious shortage of nurses, students who are interested in that type of thing will find it very helpful to have taken such a course.

Midd. Student Body Opposes Proposed State Resolution

The Middlebury Campus
Middlebury College
Middlebury, Vermont
January 21, 1943

Editor and Chief
Vermont Cynic
University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont

Dear Editor,

You have no doubt seen the enclosed article which appeared in this morning's Free Press. It does not present us with any vital issue at the moment, but it does offer the students of Vermont colleges the opportunity to show that they are responsive to what their legislators are doing, and to what they are thinking.

We at Middlebury are expressing our disapproval of the proposed resolution. Through a newly former campus organization, the Student Action Assembly, we are trying to spread the gospel of responsiveness to and participation in the political thinking of the country. Criticism of the attitude taken by some representatives on the proposed resolution is something of a beginning. We'd like your cooperation.

Sounds idealistic, maybe. However, if this kind of criticism is tossed at the government during wartime, can't you see the latent possibilities for the post-war period. This just emphasizes that there is a latent conservatism which will exert influence after the war to obstruct any long-range, liberal planning. We'd like to see the rest of the nation consider Vermont as a part of it. As Vermonters, we think that the liberal thinking of Vermont's colleges should be expressive during these times.

Well that's the dope. We're sending letters and telegrams letting them know how we feel. So if you get the opportunity, talk it up, will you? And keep your eyes open for other opportunities to make the liberal minds become voices here in Vermont.

Sincerely,
J. Allan Robinson,
Editor, Middlebury Campus

The article follows:

Attempting to throw the weight of Vermont's legislature into the rising tide of criticism against bureaucracy in national government, Rep. Elbert E. Martin of Putney drew down the fire of Democrats and some few progressive Republicans this morning when he proposed a lengthy joint resolution which called upon Congress to appoint a joint House and Senate committee to "investigate and review the tangle of emergency legislation over the past 10 years . . ."

The resolution, after being read by the clerk, was about to be put to a vote when Rep. Benjamin O. Wales, Ind.-Dem., of Weybridge, rose to request that it be made a special order set down for 10:30 Thursday morning.

Democratic veteran James Cosgrove of St. Johnsbury described the measure as "a wordy affair." He declared that in his opinion it was not vital to the life of the republic that it be given such swift passage and pleaded that this was no time for controversy. He asked for a delay of a week before the proposal was put to a vote.

When the House voted on Wales' proposal for fixing the time of balloting at Thursday morning, the voice vote carried the measure but there were scattered but loud "noes" resounding through the hall.

The joint resolution calls upon the "new deal to combine its efforts and activities exclusively to the winning of this war."

In part it declares: "Whereas the general assembly of the State of Vermont does hereby solemnly declare its conviction that the present new deal administration in some of its attempts at social reform violates, obstructs and contravenes the rights of the states, and whereas the general assembly of the State of Vermont declares further that many decisions, rulings and methods inaugurated by the bureaus of the new deal administration are of such character as to be contrary to the Bill of Rights and the Constitution of the United States."

The measure resolves that Vermont "hereby memorialize, petition and request the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of Vermont to support and vote for a resolution in the Congress of the United States for a joint congressional committee to investigate and review the tangle of emergency legislation over the past 10 years and recommend drastic changes.

"Phi Bete -- I Don't Feel Any Different" - Bill

Bill Pierce, the Cynic's retiring Business Manager, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He doesn't feel any different since becoming a "Phi Bete" however, he said, smiling in his jolly manner.

Bill is a Math major and has had plenty of opportunity to apply ordinary, everyday "math" to the Cynic. His freshman year was the first time the Cynic hadn't gone in the hole in quite a time. Since June 1939 the debt has been cut down a thousand dollars. If the war hadn't started when it did the debt would probably be all clear, said Bill. National advertising so far for 1942-43 has amounted to only $81.91. Whereas, last year the Cynic received $377.75. The local staff, of course, has no control over the New York managed agency, which places contracts, and has been hit by the war.

The Business Manager too, is very appreciative of the conscientious work done by his staff, and also of the fine cooperation of "Spook" and the Editorial staff. On the business side, especially, there are many routine little jobs which must be done daily. But, in spite of an especially hard year, a fine job has been done.

Bill always loved his work on the Cynic and hates to get through, but feels the Cynic is being left in good hands. He already has an after graduation position at Langley Field, Va. He laughingly said he wasn't quite sure whether his work would be punching adding machines, solving differential equations, or taking readings in a wind tunnel. Some day Bill hopes to get a Doctor's degree in Math. and use it in some applied field.

In a reminiscent mood, Bill commented on the changes at U. V. M. during the past four years. For one thing, he has seen the Cynic moved from its cubby hole in the Old Mill to two spacious roms in Waterman.

His pet peeve is people asking what the fourth dimension is and completely misunderstanding this theory applied to Math. Not being able to imagine Bill especially peeved, and not knowing much about the fourth dimension either, the interview was closed leaving it at that.

The first meeting this semester of the dancing class will be held at Southwick on Wednesday, January 27, at 7.45 p.m. The Square Dance Group will meet following this at 8.30 p.m. Let' have a good turnout.

M. D. Powers Speaks; Midd. Debate Planned

An informal banquet for all U. V. M. debaters was held last Wednesday evening, January 27, on the third floor of the Waterman Building. Mr. Merrill D. Powers, debating director, gave a speech in which he stated that so far this season the University has participated in 17 debates. This is considered an appreciable number for this year since war has curtailed many debates. Present at the banquet were three former debating managers, Julius Cohen, 42, Arnie Becker, '41, Daan Zwick '43.

The formal debate with Middlebury is just around the corner. Middlebury is Vermont's traditional rival and has been beaten for the last two years. The debate will be held by the middle of February at Middlebury. We are looking forward to another triumph. Our girl debaters are also taking a crack at the Midd women. Their debate will be held some time next week.

A challenge has just been received by the debaters in the Academic college, from the word-slingers at the School of Medicine. Among the "Meds" are some of U. V. M.'s ace debaters and managers of recent years. The "Meds" will undoubtedly need these top-ranking debaters when they face the able speakers at the Academic college.

Jacob Katz has been chosen by Mr. Powers to represent Vermont in the National Intercollegiate Debates sponsored by the American Economic Foundation of New York City. The question for debate in these nationals is:

Resolved: That the United States should support, after the war, the reestablishment of competitive enterprise as our dominant economic system.

Jacob Katz will support the negative side of the question.

There are 247 United States colleges and universities to be represented. Each college or university is allowed to enter two debaters, one for the negative side and the other for the affirmative. From the total number of entrants, 16 will be entered in the semi-finals. Of these 16 top-notch debaters, four will be chosen for the finals to be held in Washington, D. C.

The Bailey Cup will soon be awarded to one of two excellent freshman debating teams still in the running. The sophomore teams have been outclassed by these freshmen and thus lost their chance to win the cup. The members of the two remaining teams are:

David Bikoff and Paul Pascal on one team and Donald Hackel and Joseph Waterman on the other.

C. P. T. Training For U. V. M. Co-Eds

11 Students Enrolled; Take Evening Lectures

Monday, January 25, marked the beginning of another of the eight week courses in Civilian Pilot Training. For the first time since these classes were begun a considerable number of women have signed up to attend the evening lectures. Previously there had been only one or two women enrolled, but at the present time there are 11 who are taking at least one of the courses offered.

Held every evening from Monday through Friday, these classes consist of an hour's lecture, supplemented with slides, no Civil Air Regulations by Professor Millington from 6 to 7 o'clock. On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, Professor Butterfield conducts a class in navigation, and on Tuesday and Thursday Professor Walbridge gives instruction in the fundamentals of physics. The former two classes are held in the Waterman Building, the latter in the Science Hall.

Many people wonder why these women bother to take such courses when they are not essential. The general opinion seems to be that, although they may not do any actual Civilian Pilot flying at the present time because of government restrictions, they are at least building up a foundation and knowledge that will be valuable in the future when and if the time comes when they will be permitted to use the planes. Then too, the number of teachers in these fields is so very limited that it is possible that those who have completed the courses may be able to get a position teaching these subjects.

The women who are now enrolled in at least one of these courses are Polly Clark '45, Pat Crowley '44, Mary Beth Davis '43, Helaine Goldberg '43, Myra Gray '44, Jean Hotchkiss '45, Peggy McElfish '44, Priscilla Perkins '44, Barbara Webb '44, Shirley Wedge '44, and Sylvia Wellwood '44.

Doctor Luccock will speak again at 7 o'clock on the same evening in the Student Lounge in Waterman Building. He will take as his subject The Seven Devils to Come After the War.

Doctor Luccock who is the holder of many honorary degrees, was ordained into the ministry in 1910. He has been a pastor, teacher and editor as well as the author of many books on religious subjects.

The public is cordially invited to attend both services.

Young Is First in Cultural Series

Will Talk on Far East And War in Pacific

James R. Young who has been chief of the International News Bureau at Tokyo for 13 years will speak at Southwick Monday evening, Feb. 1 at 8:15.

Mr. Young's talk will concern the far eastern situation and he will present an analysis of the latest developments of the war in the Pacific. This lecture is the opening attraction of a series of cultural programs being presented by Student Government. Student government was set up at U. V. M. last year to handle all of the student activities on the campus. The students responsible for promoting these programs feel a second one is already scheduled when Miss Mary MacMurrough a representative of the Abbey Players in Dublin, will present impersonations and character sketches at the University of Vermont some time in March.

Student Government urges all students to attend Mr. Young's lecture. There will be no charge for students or faculty as this is being sponsored as a campus enterprise. The public is invited to attend for a nominal fee to be donated to Russian Relief.

Student Government Board Meets Under New President

The officers and executive committeemen of the U. V. M. Student Government met on January 26 in the South Conference Room of Waterman. Natalie Spear presided. The roll call of officers and executive committeemen was read and the minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted.

Julia Fletcher reported for the Financial Committee that a third committee member would be appointed pro tempore to replace Howard Vreeland who graduated this month.

There were no further committee reports.

Then followed a general discussion on the plan to establish an organized Student War Council on the campus. It was decided that Student Government, including all the sub-committees, organize such a council and coordinate and facilitate the various war activities now going on and to help inform the student body how they can serve. A complete report will be presented at the next meeting.

It was voted that the Student Government Dance scheduled for the last Saturday in February be for the benefit of a fund to present a campus concert similar to one of the European countries. The Rep Committee is in charge of the details of the dance and the Program Fair Committee will handle the arrangements for the distribution of the money raised to the proper channels.

It was voted that a copy of the constitu...

Her other Tri Delta graduate, Peggy Elliot, departed for home in far-away California, after a bout with a Civil Service examination.

Quite a few of the girls went home for the week-end. Dottie Collins and Betty Pratt both went to Colchester. Betty Hawkinson was in St. Johnsbury, Barbie Webb stayed in St. Albans, and Dee Deane went to Shoreham.

The urge to visit their old home was felt by Peggy Palmer and Danny Geer, who wended their way to Redstone one day recently.

ALPHA XI DELTA

The mystery of the chocolates still shrouds the house. Last week a box of chocolates was discovered audaciously perched on a table in the living room. There was nothing unusual in a box of chocolates itself, but a note which accompanied it caused numerous speculations and comments. The note read as follows: "My engagement is secret. Besides I am bashful."

Rita Shea was fortunate last week-end in that her exams were scheduled early enough to allow her to go home for a few days. She was also fortunate in that her marks warranted a warm reception when she arrived there.

The Cornell and Syracuse Chapters of Alpha Xi Delta will play hostess to Margo Benoit and Sylvia Wellwood respectively. Margo visiting the former and Sylvia the latter.

U. S., British, French Chiefs In Unparalleled Conference

January 26, at 10 p.m., the people of the United States heard the broadcast of an unprecedented event in the country's history. Their President had flown across 5,000 miles of the Atlantic Ocean for a ten-day conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill. This unparalleled event witnessed, too, the first meeting of General DeGaulle and General Giraud.

In the course of the conference which may decide the fate of the world for many generations to come, several vital steps in regard to this war were decided upon. The leaders of America and Britain have come to a complete agreement on a plan to be followed in 1943 whose prime factor is the maintaining of initiative on all fronts. The two countries also recognized that peace can come only through "unconditional surrender" of Germany, Italy and Japan.

The two French generals made known their design of Free French armies fighting side by side with the Allies to bring about the liberation of France and the triumph of human liberties. Together they are negotiating for a united French movement designed to [illegible] navy and airforce back [illegible] against the Axis.

Now Vermont has traveled to Lyndon College and tamed the Hornets 48-40. Neither St. Mike's nor Lyndon met Middlebury, but a victory over Middlebury and the U. V. M. hoopsters would have wrested the favorites role from the game with the Kwasmen [illegible] Park.

Nip and Tuck Fight In Interfrat Bowling

Delts, Sigs Roll Off Today in League Game
Teams Are Separated by Only One Point

Thanks to some mighty fancy bowling by Delta Psi and Sigma Phi pin toppers, Waterman's inter fraternity bowling league is turning into one of the fastest races since the alleys were opened a year ago.

In the Delt-Kadet dropped a 5-2 game to the Sigma Nus two nights ago they might be reading comfortable in first place with a neat 38 points, but between Ed Bender, Sig Sysko, and the rest of the Sigma Nu crew rolling hard to land back upon top the Delts were able to collect 40 big doubles and singles.

Graduating cool from the ranks of the SAE kegelers the services of Ed O'Connell, ended but a bad luck in recent matches has eliminated them to next place but tonight they face the Sigs with every point which can put them in second place. A meager one point behind the Delts.

Today the Sigs and Delts were due to roll in what may well be the deciding match for league leadership. If the Sigs can make the grade and the Kappa Sigs can come through in their match with the last stepping ATO quintet, Sigma Phi will be well on its way towards possession of the league cup.

Bob Bennett the main cog in the ATO outfit is back in shape and was ready this afternoon to give the Kappa Sigs plenty to think about. Bennett's 168 score still is tops for the league to date.

But it took a female bowler to make the story for this week, and that was Jean Norris. Jean rolled an all-time alley high last Saturday of 155.

According to Howard 'Pop' Brooks, manager of the Waterman alleys U. V. M.'s women bowlers will meet the Burlington Arenas Independents tonight here. The Independents stand at present as city champions in the women's division.

Meanwhile Brooks' men's team will face off against the Burlington Coal and Ice a week from tonight in a return match the first of which the Coal and Ice took easily.

Standings in inter fraternity league:

1. Delta Psi—33
2. Sigma Phi—32
3. ATO—29
4. Sigma Nu—27
5. Tau Epsilon Phi—26
6. Faculty—24

Face Gymnasts Tonite Lord Jeffs Saturday

Springfield is Unknown Amherst Has Won Five

By Maynard Kaufman

U. V. M.'s gymnast basketball squad goes up against the [illegible] tonight at [illegible] gym. The second contest on the road trip [illegible] on the [illegible] Amherst [illegible] Lord Jeffs [illegible] Saturday.

Coach Ernie Lyons with what looks like another [illegible] aggregation [illegible] has groomed the Catamounts for these two [illegible] and with [illegible] last appearance [illegible] to answer the opening whistle [illegible] look encouraging.

The Green and Gold basketeers face an unknown quantity in the Springfield Gymnasts. The down-state school is famous for the fine ball teams which it produces but [illegible] Just [illegible] Lyons has been [illegible] to know [illegible] the potency of the club is doubtful. The fast stepping Vermonters should be able to down the Springfield quintet of Larry Killick and Capt. Bob Doherty get hot.

Amherst however is an entirely different proposition. The Lord Jeffs are really "hep" this season and not one major or minor athletic team at the Massachusetts school has dropped a single contest all year. The football eleven went undefeated through a long tough schedule decisively drubbing the best Williams aggregation in a long, long time. The basketball club has played four games and won each of them, including a one-point decision over the Coast Guard Academy. The Blue Boys have shown a smooth passing game and have scored over 100 points more than their opponents.

Amherst College, is named after a certain Lord Jeffrey Amherst who fought the Indians 200 years ago and there's a song they sing about him down there. It goes "He conquered all the enemies that came within his sight and he looked around for more when he was through." This year's Amherst athletic teams have certainly followed the old gentleman's example and it will be a terrific boost to the Catamounts stock if they can topple the Blue tomorrow.

The Vermont contingent plays at Springfield tonight and will make their headquarters at the Hotel Kimball. Saturday the lads make the short trip to Amherst for the Graduation Day game to be played in the afternoon, and will arrive back in Burlington at midnight.

Maroon Slap Icemen, 14-4

By Peter Emerson

NORTHFIELD, Jan. 29.—Vermont's hockey forces failed once too well against the roaring Norwich Hi-steamers yesterday and returned to Burlington last night with a 14-4 defeat added to their 15-1 shellacking suffered a week ago.

The Green and Gold was no match for Salvatore Simeone and company. Simeone, a product from Newton, Mass., cut loose with a barrage of five goals in the final 30 minutes of play to sew things up for the Maroon.

Actually Simeone dented through the Vermont defense in the last five minutes of play to sink his five goals which were enough in themselves to whip Team Pelkey's inexperienced icemen.

While the Bay Stater was striking pay terrestery three other Cadet skaters pushed the puck into the net for a total of eight points.

It looked like a much different story than last Friday's rout for the first two periods. The Vermont sextet held the military school to a 6-2 lead, and showed promise of banging the rubber disc through the net on numerous occasions but it wasn't Vermont's day on the ice.

Walt Switzer opened Vermont's scoring by shooting one into the strings unassisted at 4:54 of the first period, and it wasn't until Sig Sysko slammed one through at 7:14 of the second 20 minutes that the Cats scored. Switzer and Chuck Waner rounded out the Green and Gold's scoring punch in the final period.

Simeone led the afternoon's scoring pace with seven goals while Switzer banged two into the net for Vermont to lead the losers' knot spree.

The summary:

VERMONT—Kadzis, g; Lockwood, rd; Duckworth, ld; Sysko, c; Switzer, rw; Warner lw; Spares: Mellin, Anderson, Freeman.

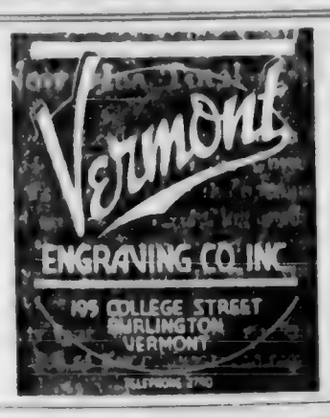
NORWICH—Sellars g; J. Wharton rd; Collins, ld; Melendy c; Wright, rw; Simeone lw; Spares: Whitney, Scholdterdick, Maley, Sweeney, McWilliams, Bontilher, Tampson, R. Wharton.

Vermont Skiers Open at Bates

At the Junior I. S. U. meet, Feb. 5 in Lewiston, Me., the U. V. M. ski team will test skill with nine other collegiate teams such as M. I. T., Maine, Colby, Syracuse, St. Lawrence and Colgate. Art Paterson, Bud Pierce, Bob Goss and Harvey Goodell will be entered for Vermont. They intend to leave early Thursday morning enabling them to have an afternoon of practice before events start on Friday. The team has lost two four event men this year, Doug Pierce, a freshman who was recently inducted into the military service, and John Hurst who enlisted last summer.

At the meet downhill and slalom racing will be held on Friday, and on Saturday jumping and cross-country. A banquet followed by a dance is usually given on the last day of the meet. Then awards are presented.

This meet is one of great importance to the Vermont team for they hope to recapture their place in the senior I. S. U. Ten college teams belong to each league, the senior division being the better. Each year the two teams which place lowest in the senior league automatically revert to the junior and the two who place highest in the latter are adopted into the former. This year Vermont hopes to recapture its place in the senior I. S. U. which it lost last year.



Delts Downed 75-61 by V.J.C.

A combination Delta Psi-ATO basketball team trekked to Montpelier Tuesday night, to engage the Vermont Junior College quintet in the hilltop campus in the capital city. Despite the fact that they met together was very limited the [illegible] lads put on a great show for the large crowd of partisans here, but emerged on the short end of a 75-61 score.

It was a well and [illegible] combination with long passes, [illegible] shots and plenty of body contact which had the fans on their feet all through the game. Big Mike Sperros took top scoring honors with 21 markers followed by Frank Lupone with 15. Dudley Dawes put up a great defensive game against the Blue and White, while Speck Little was a great favorite with the crowd. Scotty Ingerson also was at his best.

Trailing by twenty points at the half the collegians blasted back in the third and fourth quarters which all but rushed the V. J. C. club off their feet, but the lead amassed by the home towners proved too big a deficit to make up before the gun barked ending the game.

So popular were the fraternity boys and so much fun the two teams had that a return game is in the offing in the near future.

Old Mill Houses Airplane Spotters

Students Urged to Help by Observing

Airplane spotting from the Old Mill tower? Plans were completed last night by the U. S. M. C. complete roster of the observers at the Observation Post and its operation was explained. Lieutenant Colonel [illegible] to guide. Transportation has been progressing and a new plane gets here in our area every day enough to maintain the attention of those whose is protective. The vigilant enforcement of the outpost protects the civilian population, as well as the fleet of the plane.

The spotters' job is a most important one but how did appear the needs of any person's time is enough people volunteer their time. The spotter must be well acquainted with every type of airplane at our local airport and be able to recognize by quick, clear familiar types. The job of the observer is to be on constant watch for any planes but stationed at the local airport and to report this plane or planes to the central Observation Center which receives calls from a great number of similar posts. By the information given by the observer the plane can be followed and its course and reasons for its flying can be reported. This may seem unimportant to you, however with every outpost manned with keen watchers and these posts situated two or three miles apart we have our assurance with fortified to prevent danger before it is too late. We all realize how serious this war is and that an invasion is not impossible.

This is an unselfish way to protect yourself and your countrymen. The boys are fighting with all their might but they would be hard if they thought for a minute that we at home were resting to conserve during nothing for ourselves. If the army deems it necessary to man these observation posts we should at least show some cooperation. If housewives mothers, factory workers, business men, teachers and people from almost every walk of life have so far been able to spare their valuable time, it seems little to ask of us here in school to offer our services to this work. Observers are needed to make the work easier for those now engaged in it. Won't you help those who are helping you?

The tower is enclosed and there are three heaters. Spotters are needed from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. The stretch from 12-2 p.m. is usually vacant. Please contact Mrs. Bosworth at Sanders Hall.

Sophomore Hop Saturday Evening at Waterman

Dance To Be Informal Due to War Conditions

[illegible] members of the Gold Key and of [illegible] Aides, honorary organizations [illegible] sophomore men and women, are [illegible] the annual Sophomore Hop [illegible] held in Waterman cafeteria on February 6. An orchestra has been engaged by the Gold Key men to [illegible] evening's necessary mood music. [illegible] begins at 8 p.m.

[illegible]omore Aides have asked Prof. [illegible] B. T. Ladd, Miss Hazel L. [illegible] and Mr. D. M. Ellis to be the [illegible] Professor Ladd and Miss [illegible] are faculty advisors of the Gold [illegible] Sophomore Aides, respectively. [illegible] is an instructor in the History [illegible]ment.

The Sophomore Hop of previous years [illegible] one of the big formals of the [illegible] but owing to the conditions of the [illegible] year's Hop is to be informal. [illegible] annual charge of 55 cents for [illegible] and 35 cents for a stag is also [illegible] with the idea "be thrifty and [illegible] stamps."

The Sophomore Hop is the only real [illegible] for the class of '45 and, as [illegible] is to be one of the important [illegible] U. V. M.'s calendar of gala [illegible] for '43.

Prof. Long Leaves To Serve Country

Well Liked Teacher To Study War Gov't.

[illegible] Our campus is really being [illegible] by the war, for not only our men [illegible] are being inducted into military [illegible] but also our teachers— and [illegible] of the calibre of Prof. Robert F. [illegible] of the Political Science Department, [illegible] easily replaced. Professor Long [illegible] Sunday evening, January 31, for induction [illegible] the U. S. Navy with a commission [illegible] Ensign. He expects to journey to [illegible]outh College for further study in [illegible] information course of military government and from there to Columbia University for the term of one year.

The news of Professor Long's departure [illegible] received with much regret and dismay [illegible]ment by the faculty and student [illegible] alike, for he was one of our most [illegible] professors, whether in the classroom or in any informal campus activity. [illegible] the language of the student he was a "regular guy." He accomplished a lot [illegible] bringing the students together in the [illegible] sings and with his leading the [illegible] We all yelled our lungs out and [illegible] of fun doing it.

[illegible] no longer a college professor but [illegible] Naval officer and all of us on [illegible] campus know that he, like the other [illegible] men in service will prove his [illegible] in doing his bit for final victory. [illegible] the war is over we hope he'll [illegible] with us, but until then, "Good [illegible] smooth sailing."

Entrants Wanted For Cover Contest

Deadline Two Weeks; Subjects Unrestricted

Remember! All entries for the "Cover Contest" must be turned in at the University book store on or before a week from next Saturday. In case you hadn't heard the "Cover Contest" is a photographic contest sponsored by Staff and Sandal women's junior honorary society, and the Ariel board and is open to any student at the University of Vermont. Professional skill is not at all a "must" for those who would like to see their picture on the cover of the Collegiate Digest or those who just think an extra spot of cash might come in handy. Two out of every three students on campus own or at least know how to operate a camera and often the best shots are just lucky ones.

Although, as has been mentioned before, the field of subjects is unrestricted, action shots are considered the most interesting and especially those which deal with some phase of the University that is different or unique. War activities and the University's contribution to the war effort are always good although have you ever noticed how many co-ed majors and beauty queens adorn the pages of the Collegiate Digest? There is about two weeks yet before the deadline but as someone aptly remarked centuries ago—"Tempus fugit."

Cadets Called Soon

According to information received by Prof. Arthur D. Butterfield, Armed Services Representative at the University of Vermont, from the induction headquarters of the First Service Command in Boston, many of the army aviation cadets will probably be called into service within the next six weeks. These will probably be divided into two groups, one to take an immediate aviation cadet course, and the second to take a special pre-flight preparatory course until such time as flight training facilities are available.

All juniors who plan to scrub Kake Walk are asked to attend a meeting at 8 tomorrow evening at the Phi Delta Theta house.

Combined Concert; Soloists Perform

Orchestra and Vocalists Render Varied Numbers

[illegible] musical has happened since [illegible] the annual concert given by the University Orchestra under the direction of Ippocrates Papoutsakis and by the mixed glee club under the direction of Howard Bennett on January 28, at 8:15 p.m. the audience was much surprised to find out that Robert Goss '44, because of a bad throat could not sing his baritone solo of the "Ballad for Americans". William Lane '44 at a day's notice stepped into his shoes and didn't let the bucking broncos throw him.

Mr. Michael Anselmo concert master of the orchestra, played the violin solo from the "Largo from the Concerto Grosso in B flat major" by Handel.

On the program of the University Orchestra were the "Suite" by Lully, the "Largo from the Concerto Grosso in B flat major" by Handel and the "Fugue on the Chorale "Glory be to God on High" by Bach.

The patriotic pieces "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," Negro Spiritual, arranged by Burleigh, "Mother Moscow" by Tschesnokoff and the "Ballad for Americans," by Earl Robinson were sung by the mixed glee club, in addition to "Dancing and Springing," by Halser, "Vineta" by Brahms and "Nocturne" by Cui.

The "Ballad for Americans," a feature of the program, is the product of the combined labours of the poet John La Touche and the composer Earl Robinson. It is a sermon against the intolerance and persecution running rampant through the civilized world, the stirring words and music are an amalgan of sturdy lyrical democratic American spirit.

Faculty Votes Semester Hour Credit for Musicians

Choir to Enlarge Attempted Repertory; Many Vacancies in Choir and Orchestra

[illegible] the request of the College of Arts and [illegible] the council to permit one semester hour credit for each semester [illegible] regular attendance at and participation in the rehearsals and performances of the University Glee Club and University Orchestra [illegible] beginning the semester.

[illegible] members may work credit will attend rehearsals a total [illegible] Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday [illegible] from 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. in the present quarter schedule. [illegible] on Saturday mornings before concert services and on Commencement Sunday. [illegible] credit will enable a student to earn in three years six semester hours or the equivalent of one [illegible] course throughout the year. [illegible] grades will be given.

Credit will be given on the same basis for participation in the University Orchestra, the rehearsals being normally on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 8:00-9:40 for the present winter schedule, 8:15-9:45 with occasional extra rehearsals before concerts.

Students may belong to the choir and orchestra only, the Tuesday and Thursday rehearsals, but without credit. Student faculty members and townspeople who would like to sing in the augmented choir at the Christmas and Lenten Easter concerts will attend only the Thursday rehearsals as in the past.

The choir performed excellent work in Bach, Handel, Palestrina and his contemporaries, modern Russian composers and others. In the future it will also include in its repertoire the more difficult of the secular works hitherto performed by the glee clubs. The choir is directed by Howard Bennett. Morgan Nesbitt, Mus.D., is the organist. The orchestra has played works by Gluck, Haydn, Bach, Mozart, Wagner and others. It rehearses both alone at concerts and at Commencement and with the choir. The orchestra is directed by Ippocrates Papoutsakis. Michael Anselmo is the concert master.

There are a number of vacancies in both the choir and the orchestra. Anyone interested in enrolling in either organization should see the director as soon as possible, or call the Music Building 2619 and arrange [illegible] an appointment.

Young Addresses U. V. M. Students

First in Series of Cultural Programs

The first of a series of cultural programs took place Monday evening, February 1, at 8:15 o'clock in Southwick. The speaker, James R. Young, who has been chief of the International News Bureau at Tokyo for 14 years addressed the students and faculty on the Far Eastern situation and the war in the Pacific. There was no admittance fee for the students of the faculty but the public was invited to attend for a nominal fee to be donated to the Russian Relief.

Mr. Young's lecture concerned the recent developments of the war in the Pacific and an analysis of the far eastern situation based on his own experience in that region. As the initial attraction of the cultural program, this lecture assured the success of the series. Student Government has set up these programs in answer to the demand of the student body. The next program is scheduled on March 1 and Miss Maeve McMorrough, a representative of the Abbey Players in Dublin will present impersonations and character sketches.

Professor Evans, head of the Blood Plasma Drive at Vermont, pulled the winning ticket "from the hat" for the door prizes. The winners of the defense stamps were Charles Dzikowitz, PG, and Mr. [illegible] Carlson of Burlington.

Will Kake Walk Go To War?

In spite of the fact that Kake Walk week-end is only three weeks away we have not been told yet about the effect that is being made to reconcile this event with the death struggle which, at the present moment is waged all over the world. If we should venture to draw any conclusions from the preparations now in progress, it appears that Kake Walk will be run in the same way as in years past.

This year is not '42 or '41. Our nation is engaged in a total war and our youths are giving their lives in all parts of the world. We were allowed to start in time so that we must prepare ourselves to take part in this fight quite effectively. Under an accelerated program this demands almost all our time and effort. We should not spend weeks writing and rehearsing skits and preparing the tremendous number of details which for the students on the inside are synonymous with Kake Walk week-end.

Not only are we involved in this struggle but even our material wealth is. Our people receive just what they need so that the rest may be used to win the war. Fraternities will expend much money and use many materials for the properties in their skits since 25 points are still being given for properties and costumes. The least that could have been done was to rule that each group must not spend more than a few dollars for their skits.

Nothing has been said to the students in accordance with the government's plea not to use the already overburdened transportation system for non-essential travel, about refraining from bringing up visitors. Nothing has been said about economy during the open house period. We do believe that it is time to formulate a clear policy. And remember, traditions are of little value in a nation stripped for war.

We even wonder whether it is necessary to bring up a band by railroad or whether we should even spend the money on such a luxury. Only a few weeks ago the campus was full of sympathy for the starving children in Greece. Well, we have money to help the less fortunate ones.

More evidence could be presented here but we have stuck our neck out far enough. It is not Kake Walk we are against, but the lack of initiative to change and curtail it to such an extent as to bring it in line with the exigencies of the year 1943.

Let us not talk about keeping up morale. The student body has not suffered enough yet to need a pepping up. If we should stage a Kake Walk week-end at Canada-and there would not be any criticism from this corner. But we are sure that if we should approach our fighting brothers with plans for shows, we would find them too busy to take notice, because with them the winning of the war comes first, second, and last.

There is still time left to adjust our plans and we are sure that matters will be taken into hand so that we can look forward to Kake Walk with a clear conscience and with the satisfaction that we too can make sacrifices however inconveniencing they may be.

Skiers Ready For ISU Meet

Hickory Riders Trek To Bates Friday

The University of Vermont ski team leaves this Thursday morning, on the trek to Bates College in Lewiston, to open the current season in the I. S. U. meet which takes place there this week-end. Competing against such teams as M. I. T., Colgate, Syracuse, St. Lawrence, and Maine, the Green and Gold skiers will have ample opportunity to prove their mettle.

Led by versatile Capt. Art Paterson, the U. V. M. lads have an experienced team but none have had the benefit of competition so far this year. Minus Capt. Hurst and freshman Doug Pierce the squad has been strengthened considerably by the return of Brud Sutton last year's captain. In addition to these two point performers, veteran Bud Pierce, Ski Boss, and Bob Goodell, will be entered for the Catamounts.

The cross-country and slalom will be run off Friday and the downhill and jumping on Saturday. If the local lads hope to retain their place in the senior division of the East, it is important that they place well in this meet, and they will really be out for blood when they start their schussing on Friday.

The club has been holding regular practice sessions on the Centennial Field golf course running the grueling cross-country course, which swings out to the country club offering varied and difficult terrain. All the Cats are in top shape despite lack of actual meet-experience during this winter, hope to stand well up in the standings when the team scores are compiled late Saturday.

Much of the burden will rest on Capt. Paterson who will compete in all events except Bud Pierce who will enter every event but the jumping. Awards will be presented Saturday eve, at a banquet followed by a dance.

Williams College provides excellent facilities for a ski meet as there is an actual well-wooded mountain right on the campus, where the events will be held.

Japanese Course

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(ACP)—An intensive course in beginning Japanese is being given at the University of Michigan during the second semester to meet the demand for competent translators of that language needed in government service.

The Show Must Go On!

St. Mike's Wins Thriller, 52-50

While the Vermont Catamounts were conducting their raid on Massachusetts last week-end, things were also popping in this state basketball series, as Pinky Ryan's amazing Mikemen team across the river added still another triumph to their crown by defeating Norwich University 52-50.

It was the kind of a game one reads about in the pulp sports publications and seems almost unbelievable. After controlling the play during the first half, the Norwich lads tired in the second division and gave way before the vicious Purple attack. Coming from behind, the Ryan stalwarts upped their total and as the gun popped ending the struggle, the score stood tied at 39 all.

The players took a rest and started an overtime period of five minutes. With both clubs fighting to score and the crowd screaming with excitement Steblen of Norwich dunked one through the hoop and Bobo Birsky did the same for the visitors. Neither team could score again and the gun again sounded ending the period.

Another over-time was agreed upon and the rival quintets face off again. In the second extra session, Birsky again tallied and Steblen canceled it with another twin-decker. Hemsworth and Luce came through with a foul apiece and the score was still tied. Steblen then cut loose with a field goal and again the teams were dead-locked, this time 47 47.

With both quintets gasping for breath and the fans limp with excitement, still a third over time was initiated. Carl Coffey netted a free throw for the Mikes and White promptly nullified it with one of his own. Hemsworth poured in a field goal but again Steblen dunked one in. The crowd was going beserk and it looked as if the struggle was going on until morning when with seconds to go, Bobo Birsky, who is a magnificent ball player despite a paralyzed left arm, drew a bead on the hoop and flipped one in clean as the gun went off. The longest and most thrilling basketball game in Norwich or St. Michael's history was over.

Pucksters Tangle Panthers Today

The hockey team has another game today with a Middlebury sextet that has shown some resemblance of a real club recently.

This game will undoubtedly be the last for a few of the Vermont boys several of them have failed to skate just the professors and as a result, will remain on the ineligible list until further notice. However the "casualty" notices will not be issued for several days to come and all of the boys excepting "Bish" McColl will undoubtedly play.

The last time the Vermont pucksters were out they dropped a 14-4 contest to a Norwich squad who had previously taken Middlebury quite handily. However, the Catamount skaters have shown improvement with each game and they intend to make today's game a real tussle with high hopes of a first win for this season.

Sigma Phi Bowlers Really Up on Top

Kappa Sigma Pinmen Trounce A. T. O.'s 6-1

by Phil Robinson

Today's Schedule
Ind. vs. Owls
S. N. vs. K. S.

Thanks to a neat feat of bowling by a Sig crew of pin topplers, and a timely elevation from the ranks of the unfortunate by the Kappa Sig kegglars, Sigma Phi was very much in possession of first place in the interfraternity bowling league today.

The Sigs, lodged comfortably in second place a single point behind the Delts until last Friday, rose up quite like a bunch of unruly school boys to pin a stinging 7-0 defeat on the latter, and breeze six points ahead of the field.

Simultaneously, Kappa Sigma surged from its next-to-last position to trounce Bob "Kingpin" Bennett and a third place A. T. O. aggregation by a 6-1 count. The Kappa Sigs were hot all the way Friday afternoon, and once the A. T. O. five found themselves in the rear, there was absolutely nothing they could do about it.

The red-hot bowlers from Main Street were set to tieup with Sigma Nu this afternoon on the Waterman Alley. If Kappa Sigma can continue its winning ways, and garner 7 points out of this matinee affair, they'll climb rapidly to seventh place, a mere four points behind the Faculty.

On the other hand, if Sigma Nu trims the Kappa Sig team, 7-0, the SN's will be in second place, five points behind the league leading Sigs.

Sigma Nu is intent upon assuring themselves that the league cup which they took last year, will be right back in their trophy case and according to "Pop" Brooks this year's home-stretch drive looks to be far better, and tighter than last year.

The league is scheduled to roll until March 5 while March 10 has been set as the date for the twenty high scorers to face off for individual honors.

Yesterday afternoon's match between the Owls and the Kappa Sigs was of no importance as far as league leadership was concerned, but might have decided whether the Lambda Iotas stalled at the bottom of the pile or pulled themselves even up with their opponents.

Jeffs and Gymnasts Edge Evansmen by 49-46, 56-51

Two Games in 24 Hours For Hardy Hoopsters

By Monty Kelley

Battered, bruised but unbowed, Vermont's itinerant basketball warriors returned to home territory late Sunday night after a short but gruelling encounter at Massachusetts in which they dropped two heartbreaking contests; one to Springfield College, the other to Amherst.

Led by Larry Killick and Jack Cox the Cats displayed a brand of ball which earned the wholehearted respect of both of their opponents, but was not quite enough to pull either contest out of the fire. Both games were hard-fought and well played which speaks well for the condition of Fuzzy's charges, as they played twice in 24 hours.

Going into action at Springfield Friday night the Green and Gold combine was hailed as one of the best outfits to appear there so far this year. The Cats pitted the Gymnasts from the opening whistle loosing a spectacular offensive, which featured the marksmanship of Bob Doherty and Norm Beaulieu and the terrific floor work of Larry Killick. They held the lead during most of the game, although the Red and White locked the count at seven different times. With Cox leading the attack the home-towners were never far behind and at half time the score was knotted at 25 all.

As the second canto got under way the Catamounts struck back with all the furious power they could muster. The Gymnasts went reeling back under the Vermont onslaught, spearheaded by Killick, Doherty and Beaulieu. Going into the closing minutes of the game with a 45-37 advantage, the exhausting pace began to tell on the Cats, and the Red and White staged a slashing uprising which caught the visitors napping and with Cox and Thompson pouring them through the hoop, the Gymnasts went into the lead, 49-48. Tired out but gamely clawing back, the Cats went after more points with fangs bared but the inspired Springfield quintet refused to relinquish their advantage, and the final gun found the still fighting Vermonters trailing, 56-51.

After grabbing some much needed sleep the U. V. M. lads, again hit the road and whipped over to Amherst, 41 miles distant, for the Graduation Day tilt to be played Saturday afternoon.

Before a huge crowd of alumni and students, the Cats put on a thrilling and brilliant fight against the Lord Jeffs, despite the questionable tactics of some of the Blue Boys. It was a rough and ready contest with numerous fouls and none too good officiating. Hampered by the loss of the Gold Dust Twins, LaPointe and Beaulieu early in the game through personals, the valiant Cats led at the halfway marker 21-19.

For the rest of the tilt the lead see-sawed back and forth with first the Jeffs and then the Cats in the van. Finally with the accurate toe going and the stands going wild the Amherst five led 47-44. But Larry Killick in his familiar role of court hero, booted one of his famous one-hand tosses and it banged through the hoop to put the Green and Gold within one point of the Blue. Time was running out and as the teams battled for possession the clock registered zero. The game was over as far as everyone but the referee was concerned, but Hallowell the Amherst center dropped one in after the clock had registered zero, and the ref allowed it to stand as a legitimate score, showing what kind of reasoning he has but we've been able to discover.

Really tired out from their intensive schedule the Catamounts returned with no wins but plenty of glory ready to battle it out with the Michaels and the other state colleges in the state series.

Sigma Nu's Scalp Delta House Team

Main Street Hoopsters Roll Over Owl Squad

A smooth working Sigma Nu combine added another scalp to their possession Saturday afternoon, downing the Delta Psi five, 38-17.

Every member of the winning club figured in the team score. Russ West added eight more points to keep his scoring title out in front. O'Grady and Wright contributed 6 apiece to the high flying Sigma Nu team.

By virtue of this win, the Sigma Nu's have completed a 4-1 record, which if the ATO's lose to the SAE's this Saturday will enable the Sigma Nu's, the SAE's and the ATO's to share the league a trio, three ways.

An aggressive Kappa Sigma team earned two many guns for the Owl squad, steamrolling the Pearl Street Boys, 48-6. There was no doubt as to the outcome, the Kappa Sigs being out in front 23-1 at the half.

In the "B" league, the Independents had an easy afternoon drubbing the Phi Sigs, 27-9. The TEP's and the Independents are now tied with three wins apiece. On Saturday these two top flighters square off in a meeting which will decide the championship of the "B" league. The winner of this league will meet the champs of the "A" league for 1942-43.

Sophomore Societies Sponsor Saturday Hop

The Sophomore Hop will be held this Saturday night at Waterman at 8:30, not at 8:30 as announced in Tuesday's CYNIC. The admission is only 75c per couple and really, surely you'll agree it's worth it. The Galanteers are going to play and everyone knows what that means—good music and good fun. Come and forget first semester marks, gas rationing and the draft.

The chaperones will be Miss Hazel Wood, Prof. and Mrs. Ladd and Mr. Pappentsakis. It was wrongly announced in Tuesday's CYNIC that Mr. Ellis would chaperone. Sophomore aids and Gold Key are sponsoring the dance. Let's come and hop it, sophomores and everyone!

P.S. It's 35c drag.

Sororities Pledge Twelve Girls

Alpha Chi Omega Leads With Four New Pledges

At Southwick, on the afternoon of February 1, the climax to two weeks of informal rushing was reached. Twelve girls pledged sorority at that time.

Leading the list with four pledges was Alpha Chi Omega. Janet Anderson '44, East Craftsbury; Louise Bianchi '44, Woodstock, and Elizabeth Anne White '44, Pittsford, renewed their pledges, and Kathryn McGillicuddy '46, Burlington, pledged Alpha Chi.

Tri Delta placed second with three new pledges: Virginia Campbell '46, Lyndonville; Margaret Anne Hollowell '46, Newark, Md., and Anne Hoos '46, Union, N. J.

Penelope Easton '44, Craftsbury Common, and Marjorie Wallin '46, Hinsdale, Mass., both pledged Kappa Alpha Theta. Also acquiring two new pledges was Sigma Gamma, with Avis Kenyon '46, Richmond, and Earlene Webber '45, Portland, Me.

Alpha Xi Delta has one new pledge, Charlotte Lillibridge '45, of Torrington, Conn.

After the pledging ceremonies, many of the sorority girls and the new pledges attended James Young's lecture at Southwick.

Meeting Held for Sigma Xi Society

Thursday evening at 8.00 in the Waterman Building a meeting of Sigma Xi, honorary society in science, heard a talk by Dr. J. P. Maes entitled, "Remarks on Blood Circulation." He was introduced by Dr. H. B. Pierce of the Medical College. The talk was not a closed meeting but was open to all those interested in science.

Sigma Xi has no chapter on this campus, at present it is just the Club, but it hopes to establish a chapter here to stimulate interest in science.

The next events on the Sigma Xi calendar are a lecture on March 20 by Dr. Peter De Bye of Cornell, and a talk on March 22, by Doctor Peterson of the University of Minnesota. Both these talks will be open to the public.

Cover Contest's Two Prizes Draw Interest

One more reminder about the "Cover Contest" which has one more week to run its course. The details have been explained in previous issues and all contestants are urged to get their entries in on time. The two prizes are $5 and $2.50 respectively for first and second prize and a chance for the winning picture to be djsplayed on the cover of the Collegiate Digest. Don't let your interest flag. It's worth the effort.

Pres. Millis to Preside At Sunday's Vespers

Dr. Halford E. Luccock, Professor of Homiletics, Yale Divinity School will be the Vesper speaker, Sunday, February 7, at 4 o'clock.

President Millis will preside and Rev. Richard P. Weld, of Shelburne and Winooski, will be the chaplain.

Doctor Luccock speaks again in the student lounge, Waterman Building at 7.30 o'clock, Sunday evening. His subject will be "The Seven Devils That Came After The War." Doctor Luccock has been a favorite with students in past years and his address this year should be of special interest and significance for the students. The public is cordially invited to attend both the afternoon service and the evening lecture.

Dancing Classes Meet Again at Southwick

The ball-room dancing class will meet on Wednesday nights at Southwick at 7:45. All those interested are cordially invited to come and learn to dance. The class is a continuation of the one held before Christmas which, because of vacation and exams, was dropped for a time.

It is taught by Miss Hoffman who is an expert on dancing. Music is furnished by the piano played by Walter Haves.

After the regular class of ball-room dancing, there is a square dance group from 8.30 until 9.15. Those who have worked during the first part of the evening may then enjoy themselves for an equal amount of time.

Both boys and girls are urged to take advantage of these two opportunities.

Dr. Nuquist Guest Speaker at I. R. C.

Election of Officers For Next Year Held

"The Far East," was the topic chosen by Doctor Nuquist of the Political Science Department for his speech at the International Relations Club meeting last Wednesday evening February 3, at Southwick.

Doctor Nuquist's speech was concerned chiefly with China and Post War Planning. He explained the position of each of the Far East countries in our present world-crisis and the position that they should hold at the International Peace Table. He urged full consideration, political unity and social equality among nations. Doctor Nuquist also brought out the unfair treatment of aliens in this country and the result of such actions. Following the lecture was an interesting discussion.

Election of officers was then held with the retiring president, Patricia Page '44 presiding. The result were as follows:

President: Priscilla Perkins '44
Vice-president: Ruth Jordan '44
Secretary: Justine Weaver '44
Treasurer: Jean Davison '44
Council Members: Esther Gustafson '44, Sylvia Rummals '44.

All out for the Student Government convocation next Tuesday evening, 8.00 to 9.30! Remember, it's your meeting.

Gala U. V. M. Tradition Promises Week-end Of Merry Making

Cold and Chill are beginning to pass up and down the spine of the University of Vermont campus. It isn't the war. That's come to stay. It's the thought that Kake Walk, that tingling event of historic luster which pumps blood into the heart of the oldest dramatics is coming up again.

Kake Walk opens Friday night, Feb. 19 with the annual masquerade, most colorful event of the campus social season, and the crowning of Kake Walk king and queen. Clarinetist Joe Marsala and his 14-piece orchestra, featuring the swing harpist Adele Girard, will ring the music for the occasion. Fresh from spectacular stands in popular big name dance spots now at the Totem Pole ballroom in Boston, Marsala and his clan are heralded as worthy followers of the prominent bands that have preceded them on the U. V. M. Kake Walk floor.

Ushered in by the Friday night mas-querade, Kake Walk proper, with its competitive fraternity stunts and mighty Walkin' to de Kake blossoms out with all its spectacular surprises on Saturday night.

Today committees handling the different features of the two-night carnival are being appointed to act the climination and judging committees which preside over the destinies and present the numerous cups and cups to the winners.

Other attractions of the week end include the Vermont St. Lawrence basketball game Saturday afternoon, fraternity open houses Sunday afternoon and the interfraternity ice sculpture competition an innovation of recent years which is becoming one of the notable Kake Walk features.

Student Government Seeks More Suggestions

The Student Government Board reports that of late there have been fewer suggestions put into the Suggestion Box outside the cafeteria. Perhaps students have forgotten that it exists or perhaps they now believe their college is run so flawlessly that it is impossible to think of any changes or improvements. Then again some may have become discouraged when they noticed the disordered state of the box for a few days after some one carelessly and certainly inadvertently pushed his hand (or face) through it.

At any rate, the box is now again "open for business." Incidentally the custodians wish to thank some unknown benefactor for the ticket to the Flynn Theatre!

Convocation of U. V. M. Students!

WHEN: Tuesday evening, February 9, 8.00 to 9.30.

WHERE: Student Lounge South Waterman.

WHY:
- To report what action has been taken on the 43 suggestions put in the Suggestion Box.
- To hear statements from committee heads on what they've actually been doing.
- To discuss any other pertinent matters anyone may wish to bring up.
- To explain the system of Student Government elections which are to be held next month.

In an interview with Coach Sherry Fogg regarding this all important tussle your reporter was somewhat surprised to find that the likable Mr. Fogg has upset the dope, by planning to use two full teams against the invaders. Mr. Fogg believes that by use of this method, he can well make use of all the talent on his squad. Furthermore he professes that his charges stand an equal chance of upsetting the high flying Green Mountain boys

Tonight will show the results of weeks conditioning and practicing for the Jayvees, who will be out to shoot the works in hopes of a major victory

Four Man Ski Team In Bates ISU Meet

It was 7 o'clock bright and early for four Vermont skiers this morning. They were on their way to Bates College at Lewiston, Me., to face nine other colleges in the Intercollegiate Ski Union meet this week-end.

Capt. Art Patterson, Rod Pierce, Bob Goss and Harry Goodell comprised the quartet of Vermont hickory artists making the trip.

In addition to Bates and other Maine colleges, M. I. T., Syracuse, St. Lawrence and Colgate will be on hand to open tomorrows Slalom and downhill events.

Weakened by the loss of Hans Hurst and Doug Pierce to the Army, the Vermont skiers will have to ski hard if they expect to regain their senior standing in the I. S. U. which they lost by a bare fraction of a point following an unsuccessful season last winter.

The team should arrive in Lewiston early enough to get in a few hours practice before Friday's competition, while Saturday will find them entered in the grueling cross country and jumping events.

ATO-SAE Fives In P.M. Tangle

Tomorrow the basketball docket is highlighted with our deciding tussle between the powerful ATO outfit and an aspiring SAE court team. A win for the ATO's will cap the title for the Williams Street lads who have a 4-0 record at present. It will entitle them to a playoff with the winners of the "B" League.

The SAE's hopes, too, are resting on this game. If they can upset the favored ATO's they will gain a three way tie with the Sigma Nu's, the ATO's for first place in the "A" League.

Both teams have been guessing to this meeting, for it is the difference between the first and second best. Undoubtedly plenty of Sigma Nu backers will be on hand to urge the SAE's—to fire their mighty rivals—for they too, will share if the SAE's come out on top.

In the "B" League, also, tomorrow, the undefeated Independents and the unconquered TEP's square off in a game that will decide the titleholders of their league. Both teams have plenty of potent power and all indications point to a banner attraction, for a win for either club will mean a champ at the championship for 1942-43.

Vermont's hockey forces play host to Middlebury Saturday, and the Cats will be out to ring up their first win of the season, likewise avenge a 7-3 defeat that the Panthers handed them last Tuesday.

Middlebury slapped Vermont back for its third consecutive loss, but managed by virtue of the ice victory, to rack up its initial win of the season.

It looked like a possible win for the Pelkeymen in the opening chapter with Whit Switzer and Sig Sysko pairing to shove two tallies into the net, and take a 2-1 lead in the first 20 minutes.

In the fading minutes of that same period Dave Palstrom put the Middlebury skaters into the van 3-2, and the edge was enough impetus to drive the Panthers on to victory.

The Middmen could not pull into a commanding lead until well into the second stanza. Phil Dunham took Johnson's (that's pass from center and sent it slamming past Pete Kadzis. The final period saw the puck mostly in Vermont territory and the fast skating Midd wings kept the Green and Gold's defense on the run while it netted through for three more scores.

Whit Switzer again starred for Vermont setting up Sysko's two goals, and then sticking his way through the Midd defense to send the puck into the net for Vermont's final goal.

Vermont vs St. Michael's

By Manley Kelley

What promises to be one of the most thrilling [illegible] Vermont campaigns ends [illegible] will take place tonight on Davis Lower [illegible] Auditorium floor, when the [illegible] St. Michael's college basketeers [illegible] Mikemen [illegible] at 8 P. M.

[illegible] meeting [illegible] Cats [illegible] thing sustained at [illegible] Mikemen outfit pocket the [illegible] and [illegible] set [illegible] [illegible] Cats have [illegible] [illegible] had [illegible] the river in a [illegible] battle at Winooski Park in which the Mikes [illegible] all the deposits' predictions. [illegible] these two [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] the U. V. M. quintet [illegible] hungry than we [illegible] [illegible].

In spite [illegible] pre-season [illegible] beginning Pinky Ryan's [illegible] have developed into a [illegible] combination. Knocking off the [illegible] Bowed Cats before a frenzied crowd of partial student rooters early in the season, the Mikemen [illegible] their winning ways by upsetting Norwich last week-end in a [illegible] which required three overtime periods before a decision was reached.

Featuring a lightning fast quick break ing attack the Purple five have proved themselves a dangerous foe in the clinches. With snappy pass at rapid fire tactics, they can vary their attack to fit the situation.

In the Mikemen's star studded lineup are the great Bobo Bosko, Springfield high school's mainstay of last year and tournament all stater, Carl Coffey and Ken Akey members of the Cathedral high club which took the '42 Northern League crown, and big Ed Hemsworth who has stepped consistently in scores parts this season. With these performers as a nucleus, wily Pinky Ryan has moulded as good a team as has emerged from the parochial school in many a moon.

The question is: How will the Purple firebrands stand up against the cold and calculated assault of Doherty, Killick and company?

It will be the deliberate artistry of the Cats against the fiery, slashing play of the Mikes. As a team the Vermont five is more experienced and mature than the Ryanmen, but experience alone plays match a will to win.

Probable line-ups for this evening's tussle:

Vermont	St. Michael's
Killick r.f.	Hemsworth r.f.
Kaufman l.f.	Brennan l.f. (Akey)
Beaulieu c.	Linehan c. (Bosko)
LaPointe r.g.	Carr r.g.
Doherty l.g.	Coffey l.g.

Despite the [illegible] Cats should stand to win a ball game this evening. If Killick, Doherty and Beaulieu, the three leading point getters to date, have a good night the fining power of the visitors should be outmatched.

At any rate, basketball fans have a treat in store for them tonight. U. V. M. has got to take this one if they want to annex another state championship. Plenty is at stake and both teams know it. One will [illegible] the [illegible] tussle [illegible] teams and the result should make the turnstiles click merrily this

Evans will be counting on Capt. Bob Doherty to flip plenty of leather against the Hilltoppers tonight

Scoring Leader

Larry Killick, forecourt star whose 162 points establishes him as the state's leading college scorer.

Statistics 'Give' 162 Points to Killick

While Larry Killick has been the center of basketball attention in these parts for his sensational playing, the remainder of Fuzzy Evans' men have not been letting the grass grow under their feet as the following statistics will indicate.

Capt. Bob Doherty, one of the best guards that the Cats have ever possessed follows Larry in the scoring department with 107 points manufactured from 36 field goals and seven foul shots. Bob rarely gets close enough to the basket to be fouled while in the act of shooting, but lets fly from deep, which may account for the fact that he has dumped in only seven points by the free throw route all season.

The standings:

Player	G.	Gls.	Fls.	TP.
Killick	10	75	12	162
Doherty	10	36	7	107

U. V. M. Has $500 Goal; Many American Schools Contribute to Drive

What will be Vermont's part in forwarding the interests of world wide education during this particularly trying period. The answer rests entirely in the student response to the "tag days" February 10 and 11, sponsored by the W. S. S. F. U. V. M. students have been asked to support many important and worthwhile causes during the last few years but none so vital and personal as that presented by the World Student Service Fund. By this fund, the spark of education is kept alive in war-torn countries in furnishing food, books and other necessary materials to students of all nationalities. The money benefits Japanese-American students in U. S. A., Canadian, Russian, Chinese, African, Greek, Polish and students in all other countries with the bulk of the money reaching the students since the overhead expenses of the fund are only 14 percent.

Here on the campus the Y. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. which are in charge of the drive have set a goal of $500 which if reached would be .0016 percent of the total goal of the country. Such colleges as Smith and Oberlin have contributed $6,000 and $10,000 respectively and Vermont students should be interested enough in the progress of education to attain at once their own comparatively small goal.

Therefore tomorrow until one o'clock and Thursday will see tags on sale in the University cafeteria with the usual price being 25 cents although anything under a quarter will be appreciated and everything over will be especially welcome. Y. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. hope and expect that the response will be large and enthusiastic.

Suddenness of Orders Is Surprise to Many

Mingled Emotions Sweep Campus

[illegible] The University of Vermont campus last night turned into a confused [illegible] house.

What had long been expected came to-day had finally happened. The first group of army reserves to be called to active duty have been called up.

In the afternoon mail the students had received their orders to report at Camp Devens, large Massachusetts induction center, on February 19.

Immediately the Waterman Gymnasium was plunged into turmoil. Long distance telephone lines were clogged with countless querying calls. The office of Prof. A. D. Butterfield, center of campus recruiting activities, was swamped with students, wondering if they had been called or not. The University of Vermont had at last gone to war.

Mingled emotions swept over the campus as the news percolated to each and every part of the great military machine, exhilarated by orders which had removed them from the ranks of civilians.

Kake Walk, Masquerade, fraternity skits, ice sculptures, all the things which a few hours before had seemed so important faded into insignificance. One thing was big. This was it. This was WAR.

Fifty-five sons of Vermont were to trade the ROTC Blue for the olive drab of the United States Army. Action was what everyone had been waiting for, and since it seems were going to get it. College boys they were no more. They were in the army now, and we really mean it.

No more sport coats, no more saturday night hops, no more late nights and lazy mornings. No more sleeping till noon after a big party or Sunday afternoon strolls with your girl. No more tea dances or movie dates or afternoon movies, or cramming for mid-years.

But there were no regrets. This was war and they all wanted to be a part of it. The call had come and they had answered. It was the way they wanted it to be.

Health Council Will Hold Dance

Hey gang! Heads up and get your best [illegible] ready, the good time to dance [illegible] Health Council is having its annual [illegible] the Interfrat Hideaway Co. in the Waterman Gymnasium and you can dance [illegible] to the pounding efforts of the Commodores.

Remember girls, you may be your [illegible] escort, but big moment don't forget [illegible] by getting up and asking [illegible] will be quite from our midst. [illegible] be your best behaviour boys, and [illegible] gentlemen, you may get to [illegible]

In the afternoon mail the students had received their orders to report at Camp Devens, sign Monday-to-induction center, on February 19.

Immediately the Waterman Conference was plunged into turmoil. Incoming telephone lines were clogged with countless querying calls. The office of Prof. A. D. Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of the Cynic:

For months people in the Community Club [illegible] coming to realize [illegible] to two points: 1. We don't want to spend a lot of money unnecessarily.

2. We want Kake Walk to be played and [illegible] to it.

However in the interest we gave to the Activities Department for the Uniform Assembly Program, I don't really worry much but we must find out who is to get this fee. Some say it is necessary to [illegible] in the Gymnasium [illegible] to [illegible] and I am [illegible] necessary particular planning periods [illegible] successful and to attract the [illegible]

I suggest this as a solution [illegible] the Kake Walk.

To the Editor of the Cynic:

"Will Kake Walk Go to War" the editorial in last Tuesday's Cynic expresses my hope the sentiments of at least a part of the student body. J. K. is wrong to the right. This year is not 1941 or '42. This year is not out of sports. In the student body would consider turning to keep up their sports spirit about the best way to train Kake Walk won't help them.

It seems inconsistent to us that so much money should be spent in the usual way on a week-end revel just because it is a tradition at U. V. M. when the money is needed so badly to win the war. Why not lay aside a certain percent of the money the war bonds to be used for the Kake Walk in the future years? And then when the war is over and Kake Walk time comes again in a bigger and better form. can put yourself on the back and say, "We cut down on Kake Walk expenses in 1943 to help win the war. Well, the [illegible] and Kake Walk is once again going under the skies."

Just remember—this Saturday is the deadline so get on the ball! It will [illegible] be worth your while.

To the Editor of the Cynic:

I am in complete agreement with the editorial in last Tuesday in which [illegible] reasons for missing Kake Walk go to war. I believe that in keeping with the times it is necessary to do [illegible] not merely because it is a fashion, but because it is our duty. In these times we are obliged to conserve in every way we can. Kake Walk is our big fling at [illegible] it is an extravaganza. To hold it this year would be in direct contradiction [illegible] war effort in many ways. For [illegible] would be an unpatriotic [illegible] waste of [illegible] be an absurd [illegible] Kake [illegible] would otherwise be detrimental to [illegible]. Under ordinary circumstances [illegible] get by fairly well. But now, under our accelerated program, the [illegible] cannot help but be even more telling. Although there are some in school who [illegible] a zeal for their work [illegible] the war and prospects of being called into service, there are others who have been given the privilege of staying to complete an essential course. To them their work has become a more serious job than ever before. It is their duty to know their stuff and know it well. Indeed, it is too bad that the war has taken most of the fun out of college but war is no picnic, especially a time for play. We have managed to get along on the entertainment afforded thus far during the year and I do not think we should go beyond these bounds. The people of this country will never know the sacrifices and hardships endured by the people of England, or Russia or China. To those who may oppose such a move as this, I say, we are all fighting for the same cause, so don't you think the least we can do is to cut down in such things as will retard our war effort? I know what you will say. You will say "I am going into the service soon and I have a right to one last fling." Well, look at it this way: Other fellows in other countries have gone to war and made no ceremony about it and still the people on the home front have continued to make sacrifices. And besides, everything we do in line with our war effort here at home helps our boys who are already on the front line. Who of you will dare deny them every possible advantage they so rightly deserve; they who are already making greater sacrifices than most of those at home will ever be called on to make? Furthermore, I do not believe that tradition should enter into the question. For instance, late reports say that the Kentucky Derby will probably not be run this year, and if at all it will be strictly limited to a minimum of the usual affair it has been in the past. If so the Derby, why not Kake Walk?

Therefore, for these reasons, I think it is constructive that we make Kake Walk go to war. I suggest that we limit our festivities to a dance to be held Kake Walk week-end with music furnished by a local orchestra. In order to brighten up this [illegible] of Kake Walk, it might be well to make it a formal affair.

During the past week I have talked with several fellow students on the points I have attempted to bring out in this letter. Some agree, others do not. Many were reluctant to give in to their better judgment; but finally did admit that something on the order of what I have suggested would be the right thing to do. I believe this subject is pertinent enough to demand immediate student action to settle it one way or the other. I hope such action will be taken.

Sincerely yours,
H. K. Drury, Jr.

Vermont Leads Saints In State Hoop Fight

Greenies Blitz JV Five In Slipshod Clash 43-26

G. M. J. C. Romps Freely Against Fogg Five

By Bob Ker

A certain Mr. Crotty bandaged ankle and all simply couldn't be stopped Friday night as a Green Mountain Junior College five trounced a game but outclassed Vermont Jayvee team 43-26.

Crotty, a tall rangy court wizard, played a sterling game despite an injured ankle which supposedly should have hampered his style. Crotty scored 24 points, to lead his team to an easy win. Besides taking scoring honors—the versatile fellow played a magnificent floor game.

The U. V. M. Reserves played valiantly but were outclassed in every department. Coach Fogg used two complete teams against the invaders, but it was to no avail. The G. M. J. C. squad toiled endlessly, dumping twin counters in from every angle. Leading 18-6 at the half, the boys from Poultney, Vt., had little difficulty in keeping their lead in the second half.

The "Kittens" were the twentieth team to fall before the undefeated G. M. J. C. hoop quintet. The Vermont lads couldn't hit the hoop with any consistency in the first half and by the time they had warmed up to their task in the second half, the gap was too great. The "Kittens" showed some new faces, namely ex-sports editor Bill Roeder, a basketballer of no little fame and Vin Welch, ex-varsity teamster. Coach Fogg shifted too teams quite often during the first half in an effort to find a weak spot and to tire the flying G. M. J. C. boys. "Irv" Goldstein with nine points, was the only Vermont player to score consistently. Dick Conrad and Al Weess played outstanding floor games, defensively and offensively, both setting up potential scoring plays.

Evansmen Face Tough Norwich Quintet Tonite

Fresh from an important win over St. Michael's College, Vermont's basketeers will hit the road tonight, taking on Norwich away from home.

Once beaten by the Cats, Norwich looms as a tough customer tonight. And it is no secret that the Cadets are always sharp competition on their own floor.

In their first meeting with the soldiers, Fuzzy Evans' crew took a very decided win, but since that date, the Horsemen have been driving hard in state college circles, dropping a close one to the Mikemen, and edging a fighting Middlebury quintet by a single point.

Barely ahead of St. Mike's, by virtue of Friday's victory, for state supremacy, Vermont will be forced to add every game to the books on the right side of the ledger if she hopes to annex the Green Mountain crown again.

Call it what you will the winter's date (or kettle) fight has worked it self into a rough and tough one.

It's not beyond the realm of possibility that the Cats and the Mikemen will end up in a tie for leadership and tonight's meeting with Norwich will be a very important event, indeed.

The one hope that Vermont has left is that the Horsemen or Middlebury will knock the Evansmen out of the picture.

It is not exactly out of the question that the Panthers might do that very thing, although they wilted rapidly in the second period against the Cats.

Middlebury can be very hot, and again, very cold. Especially on their own floor where they feel at home, the Middmen have the makings of a potent basketball crew.

It remains to be seen what Norwich may do to the Saints in their second meeting. The Maroon has come a long way since Vermont, and it took three overtime periods for St. Michael's to pound out a narrow two point win over the Kadets.

Although both Middlebury and Norwich stand below the Beavers and Cats, they well may afford the stumbling blocks for either's title aspirations.

As a result of the week-end's work by Vermont's ski forces, the Green and Gold may once again be seen in Class A competition.

Over at Bates, the Cat boardmen did a bang up job in Class B competition, in fact, such a good job that Dartmouth may venture forth with an invitation to their annual affair.

Vermont led the race in Maine until Saturday's jumping competition, and then they were squeezed out by a mere three points.

Perhaps at last, Vermont is back on its feet in a competition that rightfully is its own. Vermont is a college that should be turning out some of the best ski teams in the country, comparable to anything that Norwich or Middlebury turns out each year, but whereas the accent has been put on skiing in these latter mentioned colleges, that same sport has rather gone by the board here at Vermont, and made to shift for itself, more or less.

We're not advocating the shut down or even the curtailing of basketball, which invariably some persons would like to infer from this note, but what we would like to see is a ski team that can come home dragging firsts and seconds, instead of eighth, ninth, or tenth placings.

Somewhat belatedly, that seems to be what this season's ski club is doing, but the true test will come when the lads hit up against some tough running in the form of Dartmouth, University of New Hampshire, and the like.

Ramblings and Ruminations: This is the department of apologies. This operator made the mistake of tabbing Vin Welch, Mike Spylios, and Tom Clairmont as dropped from the squad. With profuse excuses, what we meant was that they turned in their uniforms on their own free will, and, in fact, Vin found himself a commanding place in the week-end's game with G. M. J. C.

At last a rather fateful hockey season has come to a close. . . . Saturday's tilt with the Middmen resulted in a much closer battle, and from the outside looking in, it looked as though the Cats, with enough practice and experience, might weave themselves into a fairly potent club on skates.

Cats Shell Basket In 48-36 Purple Upset

Killick, Doherty Pace Scoring for Evansmen

By Monty Kelley

...ont's raging Catamounts ... sweet revenge last ... when they ... a second ... keeping, and turned back a game but outclassed St. Michael's quintet 48-36 before a howling, capacity crowd at the Memorial Auditorium.

... performance as many ... Killick, Doherty and Lanzoni... Cats trailed at halftime but they switched on the pressure in the second heat and as the fans went wild swung into the lead and outdistanced the tiring Mikes for the remainder of the contest. The Green and Gold hoopsters were pretty ragged in the opening minutes but soon settled down into their accustomed style of play.

Despite this the Cats could not seem to buy a basket until the middle of the opening session, and it was not until after the half time recess that they really got going.

Both clubs were nervous and tense at the opening whistle. Neither could get scoring plays under way, and were bombarding the hoop with wild heaves. Finally Ken Akey broke the ice with a neat two-hander for the Saints, and Norm Beaulieu countered with a free toss for Vermont after being fouled by Linehan. Still unable to calm down, the teams surged up and down the court missing numerous lay-ups and easy shots.

Akey again came through with a beautiful one hand heave and Hemsworth matched him with a follow-up giving the visitors a 6-1 margin. Larry Killick fouled Frank Cain who dunked it, but only a few seconds later Larry made it up with a set shot. Linehan scored for the Purple and Bob Doherty countered on a long, arching heave from the back court.

Hemsworth put in another and the Mikemen led 11-5. Vermont showered the hoop with a fusilade of shots, but just couldn't slip one through. At last Chick LaPointe tallied on a long set shot, and Akey again came back with a one-handed flip. Killick curled in a nifty from the side, followed by a hoop by LaPointe who stole the ball and dribbled down the court for a lay-up. Two goals by Cain and Coffey increased the Mike's lead. Henderson whipped in a short one and just as the gun banged ending the half Killick hit LaPointe with a superb pass from midcourt, and Chick looped it for the score. The Mikemen led the favored Vermonters 19-15.

The second canto started with the fireworks that everyone knew were coming. Linehan popped one for the Mikes but the Cats came back clawing. Doherty tapped in a follow-up, a minute later taking a heave from Milt Kaufman and laying it in. As the U. V. M. fans whooped it up, Milt cut away from his guard and

New Chesterfield Campaign Started

A tribute to American war workers in the great industries like the railroads, the telephone, and aviation, will be the feature of a new series of advertisements for Chesterfield cigarettes. The new series will run in newspapers coast-to-coast and Hawaii and Alaska starting the first week in February.

The first advertisement in the new series pays tribute to the railroad workers of the country. Its caption "They Deliver the Goods" described the grand job the railroads are doing in keeping the trains rolling and seeing to it that troops, supplies and essential traffic get the right of way.

The ad says Chesterfields, too, "deliver the goods . . . . they give smokers what they want because of their right combination (blend) of the world's best cigarette tobaccos."

Similarly, another ad in the series shows a picture of a transport pilot and tells how America's 700,000 aviation workers make and deliver planes and other necessities to our fighting men all over the world.

The ad points out how important cigarettes are to men in the service and says, "That's why billions of milder, better-tasting Chesterfields are being shipped by train and truck and ship and plane to every corner of the globe."

Each ad carries prominently a strong reminder to "Back up the man in uniform. Buy War Bonds . . . Write Letters." When a similar reminder was featured in a Chesterfield ad early in January this year, the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, who make Chesterfields, received a lot of favorable comment about it from the Treasury Department, from the general public and particularly from men in uniform, who like nothing better than to get letters from their relatives and friends back home.

There will be a meeting of the Senior Class Friday, February 12, at 4.20 p.m. in 27 Science Hall.

to be "U. S. V. for U. S. A." Its concerns will be with America. Already the boys want to get back, to forget the war. The idea, "Lafayette, we're still here," is re-echoed again and again. What we need is a republican with good sense, who can talk of the world after this war. It's a terrible thing to quit when we are only starting. Such appeals to the ignorant as the pamphlet, "American Women Against Communism," are only a small indication of the real threat of Isolationism to the United States after this war.

The third devil is the desire for Normalcy—the status quo. Our former way of life was one of the causes of the war. We'll be going back to the international rivalry and economic domination which ruled us before this war.

The fourth devil is Devastation—hunger and sickness. Our mission after this war will be ministering to the world to save us all from the devil of devastation. We should be governed not by the idea "Our own people first, but by the idea that we should help the world.

The [illegible] devil is Depression. This is always a result of the war, it's bound to come unless we think and act in new ways. We must put on the market a large number of goods. We must continue to buy a great amount of products. We are sick of government control. We must keep on under [illegible].

The sixth devil is the [illegible] Military Power. Wh[illegible] it. Lloyd George very [illegible] if the British Army [illegible] would fortify the [illegible] Some one asked simply, "[illegible] food?" A person with [illegible] imagination is necessary [illegible] of armament.

The seventh devil is [illegible] we have bonuses after [illegible] After the last war, [illegible] the Army veterans [illegible]

The only thing to prevent [illegible] for people to keep [illegible] are in the war, we must [illegible] of it possible. You hear [illegible] over the radio, "Buy [illegible] soldiers." What we [illegible] "Back up the soldiers [illegible] from being forever in debt."

Rescinded Orders Are Rescinded ! !

Interfaith Week To Be Sponsored Week of Feb. 25

Student Convocation Will Launch Program of National Scope

[illegible] as far as we know, the last week of [illegible] has been designated as Inter-[illegible] Week. Just after Kake Walk on [illegible] 25, the high point of the week [illegible] reached when the entire student [illegible] attends a convocation in the gym-[illegible] at noon. At this time a service [illegible] held bringing together students of [illegible] groups on the U. V. M. Campus. [illegible] New England branch of the National [illegible] Conference of Jews and Christians has [illegible] sent out a priest, a rabbi, and a protes-[illegible] minister to preside over the service. [illegible] representatives are respectively: [illegible] Father Ralph Kelley, priest of St. [illegible] Roman Catholic Church, Rabbi [illegible] Siskin of Congregation Mishkin [illegible] and the Rev. Harold Jones of the [illegible] South Congregational Church. All [illegible] are members of New Haven re-[illegible] organizations.

[illegible]rhood, or Brotherhood Week is not [illegible] a project, but is a nation-wide pro-[illegible] under the sponsorship of the Na-[illegible] Conference of Christians and Jews. [illegible] organization was founded in 1928 by [illegible] Evans Hughes and other dis-[illegible] Americans who were interested [illegible] creating a closer bond between the [illegible] faiths of the country. In addition [illegible] being carried on in college campuses [illegible] the country, this program is also [illegible] used in service camps and is a part [illegible] community projects.

[illegible] ideals, purposes and methods of the [illegible] were outlined in detail and [illegible] read to members of the student body, [illegible] Religious Life Committee, and repre-[illegible] tatives of the three service clubs in [illegible].

[illegible] following the convocation on Thursday, [illegible] will be an informal campus forum [illegible] the Student Lounge. At this time, [illegible] may be asked of the speakers [illegible] discussions will take place. On the [illegible] night of the same day, the trio of New [illegible] speakers will be present at one of [illegible] city's municipal auditoriums. Also [illegible] there will be representatives of Bur-[illegible] in the form of a committee com-[illegible] of Louis Lisman and Clarke Gra-[illegible], attorneys, and Dr. Oliver Sisson, [illegible] pastor of Burlington's Baptist Church.

[illegible] the observance of this Brotherhood [illegible] is highly commended by President [illegible] Roosevelt, who says, "The perpetuation [illegible] democracy depends on the practice of [illegible] brotherhood of man. . . . People of [illegible] every nation, every race, every creed, are [illegible] to live together on this basis." The [illegible] Interfaith movement has adopted [illegible] slogan, "Victory for Brotherhood."

King and Queen

Listen to your favorite candidate for King and Queen next Wednesday evening at 9.30 over WCAX.

Campaigns will be climaxed by radio speeches given by each candidate for King and Queen at that time. Each candidate will voice his or her aims and platform during their speech.

This Rescinding Stuff

The announcement late yesterday came with stunning surprise to a campus which had just recovered from the orders released last Monday afternoon. In many quarters it was first received with disbelief and then, upon verification of the news, this feeling changed to one of disgust. Many of the boys had made elaborate plans Monday night for finishing up duties at school, arranging the trip home, planning to see the girl friend. Books were raffled off, notes burned.

Tuesday a.m., all this went up in smoke.

Now the Monday night ordeal will have to be repeated, and will the rescinded orders that were rescinded be rescinded again or have Washington and Boston finally got the thing settled? In a country supposedly geared to high speed for efficient running of this war such shifting and indecision concerning military matters does not set at all well with the people.

There's not much we can say to you 55 men who have been called and recalled. It would be trite to wish you good luck. Yet we do want you to know our feeling. We're sorry you have to miss Kake Walk, especially after the opportunity to attend it and take part in it was once regranted you. We would like to leave this one message wtih you: "It is our sincere hope that after this BIG MESS is over all of you will return to Vermont, return to become again an integral part of your University, of its functions, its activities, its very life."

Girls' Opportunity Saturday Evening

Health Council Dance
Do you know where?
In Waterman!
Hope you'll be there

Yes, the Health Council Dance is in the Waterman Building on February 13 and the girls will have an opportunity to make the date. It is from 8.00 to 12.00 and it is informal. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor Page and Dean Simpson will chaperone.

The money from the tickets sold will go into the Health Council Loan Fund which is maintained by the organization for those girls who wish to use this source of loan for medical care and to meet other expenses which this loan may serve. The money which has accumulated through the Health Council tag days and through other efforts has been used by those girls who have used to new glasses, physical examinations and other medical care. This money is loaned to individuals in sums up to ten dollars and may be paid back within three years.

Though the Loan Fund is one of the Health Council's principal objectives in maintaining good health it also wants us to maintain health- living conditions. This year it has tried to assist in advising dealing with colds, nutrion and mental health. Miss Cummings has encouraged the training of Home Nursing in the dormitories and college houses, and through discussions with Health Council representatives in the dormitories and their house directors, the work of the organization has been able to progress.

Tues. Convocation Very Successful

Spirited Discussion Highlights of Evening

The U. V. M. Student Government got its first vote of confidence from the student body on Tuesday evening, February 9, at a convocation attended by a large number of very interested voters of the campus. This meeting of the 11-month-old body took place in the South Lounge of the Waterman Building under the chairmanship of the new Student Government president, Natalie Spear.

With an announced program of ambitious magnitude, the Student Government Convocation instilled the support which it received, covering fully every phase of the four point schedule which had been set as the theme of the meeting, reports were given on the activity room needed by students in the suggestion Box, committee heads gave complete reports on all activities up to the minute, including plans for future work, the coming elections were explained fully and the students discussed several matters of interest to the campus at large.

The highlight of the evening was the somewhat spirited discussion on the merits of a proposed "cut system" for U. V. M. Various suggestions ranging from a student agency to handle dissatisfaction with courses and the present "cut" arrangements to a standardized plan whereby each course would have a specified number of absences were talked over on the floor of the meeting. A vote of sentiment indicated approximately two-thirds in favor of adopting a regular system, while about one-third of those present definitely opposed the scheme.

The stress on student cooperation received its due when some 40 odd suggestions made by students were read and action taken on them explained. These "helpful hints to government" included an agonized appeal for peanut butter in the cafeteria by "The Starving Soul" and an equally heart-rending admonition to "please stop holding Home Ec. class in

Same Fifty-five Enlisted Reserve Students Get Orders to Report at Devons Next Friday

By Phil Robinson

Fifty-five of Vermont's army reservists were back in the Army today—for sure—they think.

Orders to the effect that the half hundred and five men students are to report to Camp Devens on February 19 came through late yesterday afternoon, countermanding previous orders stating that the ERC would remain in school to the end of the semester.

[illegible] the campus was gripped this time. Losing rather comfortably on the fact that they would be in school yet a few more months the Army's sudden reversal of its policy drew everyone up short.

Students collected [illegible] the halls through the corridors spreading the word while others made attempts to reach parents and inform them of the news. The campus was generally in an uproar.

According to the announcement a complete transcript of military and scholastic records must be obtained and carried by the men to Devens.

Just what effect this latest order may have on the Kake Walk proceedings was unable to be learned as this reporter filed his copy, but one thing was pretty certain although unofficial Kake Walk would be additional no little.

Many of the reservists wondered just what was in store for them next. Would their orders be rescinded again. Was this the real thing at last.

Monday's statement that the reserves were to report had been just fairly digested when the order came through that cancellation had been effected insofar as the school had started its second semester prior to January 27.

For today this looked like the real thing, giving the students but a week and one day before they have to report to Camp Devens. [illegible] Corps Area induction center.

An Open Letter

[illegible] president of Student Government wrote letters to a check the security and enrollment list to confirm it as those students left the campus and withdrew from college. In being a workable but a very permanent subject, a subject which [illegible] at the closing open mike held last Tuesday evening. After Dot Chadwick [illegible] and ushered the University receives [illegible] letter to the [illegible] presented in this letter to the [illegible] student mass meeting.

To the Editor of the Cynic:

We are convinced there is a war going on! We are doing our part to help [illegible] are very much willing [illegible] with the slogan "Our work and be ready [illegible] and "In there fighting." So [illegible] our organization has a part to play. Each and every [illegible] do his part!

Student Government is embarking on several new activities and [illegible] Each [illegible] has been investigating the services [illegible] and [illegible] Each [illegible] is available. The exact number employed in these enterprises [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] but it is a great deal. Last year's campaign [illegible] "Serving" week of the campaign students may offer their services for any [illegible] following:

1. Selling War Bonds and Stamps. The Sophomore Aides have been used, but they need assistance.
2. Home Nursing and First Aid Courses.
3. Airplane Spotters. Spotters are practically "among the missing." Those that are serving in this capacity have been very faithful but more are needed.
4. Civilian Pilot Training.
5. Girls' Service Organization [the "G.S.O."].
6. Civilian Pilot Training.

Plan to use plan for "sign-up" week. Let's make it 100 per cent successful. What's for it?

During the "sign-up" week there also will be conducted a "lights out" campaign and a salvage campaign. Surely the girls must have old lip-stick tubes or powder cans which can be salvaged and the fellows probably have as much [illegible] as they claim the girls have! There has been a misunderstanding about the "lights out" campaign. It doesn't mean a curfew. It means that when you aren't using your lights put it out! Each person should be a "light" policeman. For example, if you are the last one to leave a classroom, snap off the lights. Be always on the alert to save electricity in this way. The campaign should not last only the one week. Consider the week as a practice period and continue the habit for the duration.

Student Government has really just started lining up a war program we think Vermont should follow. We have yet to hear reports from other universities. We may send delegates to Student War Service rallies at neighboring colleges. We need to work fast; time is valuable and we have been painfully slow on the campus in getting in a concentrated and coordinated war effort program. Naturally what the University can accomplish is up to its students. I hope—I know—they will "come through" and do their part in our all-out war effort campaign.

Sincerely yours,

NATALIE SPEAR,
President, U. V. M. Students.

Championship Games Opens Monday Afternoon

Uncorking a real scoring punch, a revamped ATO club threw everything at the [illegible] and poured enough through the nets to win hands down over the crumbling SAE's 51-25.

The SAE's showed definite effects of missing Tom Keeler from playing Jayvee ball and Howie Vreeland, who graduated late in January. The Eskimo boys gave everything but the inexperience of several players like a lack of ample conditioned to spell defeat for the aspiring Summit Street squad.

Angelina Cedar Brook Sugar, with only a few days left before leaving for active duty, topped high scoring honors for both teams, tossing in 23 points to feature for the ATO's. Ellis with 8 doubletons combined with Sugar to be the bulwark of the ATO offensive.

For the SAE's Dick Grosevnor had a gala evening amassing 15 points. Grosevnor was outstanding for the SAE's, playing great ball defensively and offensively.

Tomorrow the Sigma Phi's will tussle with the Phi Delts in a regular league game, while the Owls take on the Phi Sigs, in a class "B" game.

The championship play-off will begin Monday, February 15 at 5.50 o'clock with the Independents and the ATO champions respectively of leagues "A" and "B," squaring off in a 2 out of 3 series.

Powerful Boston Five Has Impressive Record

Virtually Last Contest For Reservist LaPointe

By MONTY KELLEY

With the State [illegible] safely [illegible] for the most [illegible] another year Fuzzy Evans' high riding Catamounts fresh from a decisive win over the Norwich Kaydets, move out of collegiate circles tomorrow night as they clash with Boston Coast Guard on the Memorial Auditorium hardwood.

The Cats have well proved that they are one of the best small college outfits in New England, and it will be interesting to see how they stand up against the [illegible] at the convenience [illegible] we are should really take advantage of this golden opportunity to see how the Green and Gold will hold up under the big guns of the Coast Guardsmen.

The Tar-Gu combine boasts a fancy, experienced [illegible] most of whose members are former high school, college, or semi-pro flashes. They have played a [illegible] tough schedule of some 16 odd games against various university and service teams, winning all but three which speaks very well for their prowess. Such clubs as M. I. T., Salem Air Station, Camp Devens, New Hampshire, Harvard Q. M. C. and Fort Banks have been sunk by the depth charges of the Blue and Gold.

All the visiting operatives are exceptional basketballers, as their record attests, and it should be a real treat to see them in action.

As for the Catamounts, after taking the measure of both their arch-rivals, St. Michaels and Norwich, in the last two tussels, they are ready for anything that the Guardsmen can offer. The Cats have scoring punch, drive, and a will to win, which will make it plenty tough sledding for the invaders if they expect an easy victory over the college lads.

With all his starters, Larry Killick, Bob Doherty, Norm Beaulieau, Chick LaPointe, and Milt Kaufman, in shape to answer the opening whistle, and his host of capable reserves on hand, Evans feels optimistic about the Vermonter's chances to knock off the fast stepping service boys.

The Guardsmen carry a squad of ten players, two complete teams, which can be shuttled in and out of the game at will. While the Cats barely nosed out M. I. T. in an early season duel, they took the measure of the same quintet to the decisive tune of 81-52.

Of course at this stage of the game past records mean nothing, but this does give some indication that despite the Cats top-shape and recent winning streak, they may have some trouble with the sea-going, hoop artists.

The clubs face off at 8 tomorrow night, under the Memorial lights.

There will be a special convocation Saturday noon in the Chapel. President Millis will address the student body. The subject of his speech will be "The War and Its Possible Effects on the University." Attendance is required.

Allen House Goes To Town

Kake Walk Campaigning Occurs at Soph. Hop

Last Saturday night the combined forces of Gold Key and Sophomore Aides held their annual Sophomore Hop.

The dance was very informally planned and the attenders seemed to appreciate that fact and enjoy themselves even more. The Catamounts as usual did a fine job.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. B. Ladd and Mr. I. Pappoutsakis.

Keynote of the affair were the contesting posters marking the beginning of the campaign for Kake Walk King. This undeclared war resulted in the appearance of another poster after intermission.

Aggie Students Have Sleigh Ride Tonight

The collegiate chapter of F. F. A. is sponsoring a sleigh ride tonight (Friday) which is open to all agricultural students. This ride will start at Morrill Hall at 7.30 p.m. and end at Southwick where refreshments and dancing will be enjoyed. Bob Sinclair is in charge of the event and the price will be 35c per couple. Mr. Granger and Miss Montgomery will chaperone.

Modern Romans Dine Bounteously

Classical Club Members Recline While Eating

"Tibi gratias ago," was echoed at each of the three low tables at the sixth annual banquet of the Goodrich Classical Club, at Southwick last Thursday evening, February 11, as the pretty young serva carried bowls of perfumed aqua and brought trays laden with delicious food prepared in the Roman cuisine. A friendly atmosphere prevailed among the faculty members and students as they graciously reclined in their colorful togas and Roman dresses on couches á la exercise mats, resting on pillows and daintily picking up morsels with their digital silverware.

Each guest had a place card with his Roman name on the back, either directly or indirectly translated from his English name. Pax and Felicia created an atmosphere of peace and good will by removing sandals and bringing food.

Prof. L. M. Prindle invoked the gods to be propitious to the boys who were absent and the pretty girls present. Samuel Ziskind '43 was the magister arbitri and Walter Maurer '43, the magister bibendi. After each oration a toast was enjoyed.

Paul Pascal '46 and David Bikoff '46 were initiated during the solemn ceremony conducted by Margaret Fake. One way in which Miss Fake tested their qualification of intelligence for membership was by requesting them to recite in turn the Greek alphabet forwards and backwards. Backwards required one minute; forward less. They were both welcomed into the club by the president, Walter Maurer. After they had each given a five minute talk on some phase of Latin grammar they then quizzed the members.

"The Dying Comedy" was enacted by Mary Perry '44, Margaret Fake '44 and Ruth True '44 to the amusement of all the guests.

Everyone joined in singing songs in Latin, including "Three Blind Mice" "John Peel," My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," and "Good Night Ladies."

The serva replaced the guests' shoes and the three-hour banquet was over.

Re-recinded Order Calls Fifty-five Men to Devens Fri.

Almost Half of Number Are Freshmen; Other Classes Suffer Also

We have already begun to realize the effect of the orders issued by the army which were rescinded and later the re-rescinding order rescinded. Those boys who live away from Burlington have already left to spend some time at home, and a few of those still in Burlington are still attending their classes. Of the 55 who have received their orders, nine of these are seniors. They are Warner Black, Wendell N. Harvey, Robert E. Hennessey, Allen T. Jones, Ralph M. Kilburn, George E. Little, Jr., William Murray, Harris E. Thurber, and Reginald S. White.

There are three juniors: Julius L. Goldberg, Walter H. Hayes, Jr., and William T. Lane. The sophomores who will report at Devens on February 19 are Bernard Abrams, Henry V. Atherton, Howard S. Bryden, Torrey C. Carpenter, Richard R. Conrad, Frank O. Eklund, Arthur G. Holden, Robert N. Hunziker, Ralph R. LaPointe, John A. McLaughlin, Jr., Philip E. Robinson, Donald C. Ryan, Karl W. Switzer, Richard M. Waters, Fred C. Webster, Alan C. Weis, David B. Wheeler, and Leo B. Spear.

Almost half of those boys called are freshman. They are Robert B. Abbott, Francis D. Auger, Richard R. Audette, Kenneth A. Benson, Neil I. Burrington, Lawrence U. Dale, Herbert A. Durfee, Louis S. Fusco, Jr., Robert M. Hall, Robert L. Hallett, Maurice F. Kelley, Stanley A. King, William A. Kilbourn, John B. Kubin, Raymond R. Massucco, Allen W. Sawyer, Franklin C. Scribner, William B. Boulder Society Elect

In a special meeting of the Boulder Society, men's senior honorary organization on this campus, held Sunday afternoon, February 14, the following men were elected into the society.

Robert C. Doherty and William J. Benoit.

Attention!

A great many absences incurred because of illness, for which blue cards have been issued, have not been cleared through the health office.

Every woman student who has been absent due to illness is requested to report at the health office the day she returns to classes in order to have her absence promptly checked and excused.

Miss Pollard will be in Health Office for that purpose on Tuesday Thursday and Saturday from 10-11 as well as at the usual consulting hour from 11.30-12.30.

It is also possible to report during the hour for men from 1-2. The office is then open at 2:30 when classes end.

Please see to it that your absence is excused by reporting promptly to the Health Service.

Co-eds Dance With Choice Dates Sat.

Novel Decorations And Clever Posters

The second girl-drag dance of the year, the Health Council Dance, held in the Waterman Building last Saturday at eight, was a great success. Music was furnished by the Catamounts in their own smooth, inimitable style. The chaperoning was done by Mr. and Mrs. Proctor Page and Dean Mary Jean Simpson.

This was the last chance for dancing for many. People knew it, took advantage of it, and helped make up the goodly number that attended. A surprise of the evening for the girls was the twenty-five cent refund on the tickets, all due to the game.

Keynote of the evening was the abundance of campaign posters stuck on all available wall space. Quite a few people wore their hearts on their sleeves for Chips, and just as many their hearts on their wrists for Betty. Others proudly displayed real corks for Corky Hallowell, a new candidate, and still others symbolic spears for Nat. Betty Smith's picture on her heart was most effective.

Many spent the evening gazing just as if they weren't nearsighted at the clever posters. "Corky's up!" "Vote for Betty Smith," "All for Paul and Paul for All," a large picture of Chips framed in a lace-trimmed red heart, "Vote and grin, get Beaulieu in," "Hit the bullseye with Spear."

Noticed among the dancers were Betty Smith, Chips Cudworth, and Corky, all gorgeous as ever. Paul and Norm were there too. People got a closer look at the candidates en masse and also another inspection of the Kake Walk sprit.

The dance, of course ended promptly at 12.00 and the girls dragged home their men. Students who supported this dance were giving their money for their own benefit, because as everyone knows, the Health Council is for students and

Colby Wills Books To Campus Library

Col. Elbridge Colby, for several years with the U. V. M. Military Department, has recently given all of his private library, consisting of many military books, to the Billings Library.

Colonel Colby was an assistant professor of Military Science and Tactics here at the University from 1933 to 1938. At present he is stationed at Washington, D. C. He has formerly given books occasionally to the library.

The collection includes books about the Civil War, biographies of several Civil War generals, material on World War I and some modern books of World War II, which are about military science and the new Army. These books are being catalogued and will be displayed as soon as possible. They should be of great interest to everyone.

Honor Movement strongest and Constitutional Convention postponed their campaign. Chips Cudworth and Corky Hallowell ran for the [illegible] Kaked out Marsala's [illegible] on the Walk.

Democrats Bernard Davis and Whitey will run for no dance and promise to have on hand Tuesday evening, February 19, a well-known Vermont band.

"We have decided to [illegible] Paul [illegible] and use the best band in the Green Mountains to swing out at Ver-[illegible]," said a voice screamed, the only one not to [illegible] in the committee.

Alma Gaylord [illegible] that despite priorities, decorations will be as colorful as they have been in the past. Cotton Bale [illegible] are expected to be extremely [illegible] and may even do a bit of walking on the side lines.

We sincerely hope that every student will take this opportunity to see his king and queen crowned and ruling over the festivities says Davis, director of Kake Walk.

Tickets have been reduced to $1.65 and it is hoped that the students will come in costume although formal dress is also in order.

"We are keeping the name of the band a secret," Bob White mysteriously tells us.

Mr. and Mrs. Proctor H. Page, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kelley of Montpelier and Professor and Mrs. Witham will chaperone the Masquerade.

Choir, Orchestra To Receive Credit

Equivalent to One Three-Hour Course

The faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences has voted to grant one semester hour credit for each semester of satisfactory attendance at and participation in the rehearsals and performances of the University Choir and University Orchestra, beginning this semester.

Choir members who wish credit will attend 3 rehearsals a week, normally on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings from 7.00-8.00 p.m. (on the present winter schedule 7.15-8.15) on occasional Sunday afternoons, before vesper services and on Baccalaureate Sunday. This credit will enable a student to earn a three year six semester hour [illegible] on the [illegible]. No grades will be given.

Credit will be given on the same basis for participation in the University Orchestra, two one hour and a half rehearsals being normally held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 8:00-9:30 p.m. (on the present winter schedule 8.15-9.45) with occasional extra rehearsals before concerts.

Students may register in the choir and attend all the Tuesday and Thursday rehearsals but without credit. Students, faculty members and townspeople who want only to sing in the organized choir at the Universalist and Unitarian Church services will attend with the understanding that it is to the good.

The choir participates in several works by Bach, Handel, Palestrina and the contemporary composers, Harvey Gaul composer and others. In the future it is hoped to include in its repertoire the great works of the greatest choral composers ever created by the [illegible] minds. The choir is directed by Howard Hanson, Morgan Sexton Music and is the [illegible]. The orchestra has played works by Haydn, Gluck, Handel, Mozart, Wagner and others. It plays

Your King and Queen Candidates

Marble Palace Candidate

From the marble palace the campaign headquarters of our candidate of course the platform of Paul, the best man on hall Walgren. When it came time for candidates of the 1943 Kake Walk to put up for campaign and election by the student body and who is more logical than Paul Walgren, senior this year, has West Hartford as his home town. Tall and dignified when he entered this school three years ago he began to carve his niche in the university hall of fame as soon as he stepped on the campus. Taller and more dignified after three years of aging, both on the hill and down the hill, we present the platform of the man who will win by more than his nose. The platform itself is built sturdy and substantial in order that it may uphold our six foot three of king-sized first caliber material. Outstanding among the worthy knights aspiring for the coveted throne is Paul the Knight who is most worthy of all to rule the nights become. Filled with festivity, hilarity, and the carnival spirit this week-end of week-ends must have a man among men to rule. Consider carefully our man's platform and then cast your vote as you will. If you invest with your self after careful consideration of our platform and our king vote but one way—the right way is for Paul, the new and righteous of the ball. We guarantee not to promise anything we can not fulfill.

United Nation victory before next Kake Walk obtained by the University of Vermont Enlisted Reserve Corps ball and, there's victory for all.

Steak dinners six nights a week to coeds in the college dorms.

Free beer for all the boys every Saturday afternoon at the Sugar House.

Movie house basketball games so the girls can admire Norm Beaulieu in his football trunks.

Limit cuts to 35 a semester.

Every agricultural student shall be given a forty acre farm upon graduation.

The engineers shall immediately be given a present of Rand House.

Dates will be rationed so that each of every coed will receive no more than one a week. These will, however, be increased

By 2a. m. each Saturday night for those nights the morning after today.

Immediate reconstruction of Commons Cafeteria into a night club with a new name band each week and a floor show made up entirely of Ziegfeld girls.

Movies in fun this Kake Walk week-end and from the right way. Drown your sorrows and come with us to the happy isle of Paul where gaiety and the right will rule over all.

Happiness

Happiness is a state of mind denoting good luck, prosperity, or well being. Its direct opposite is the state of mind one is said to be in after misfortune, adversity, disaster, misery, distress, anguish, woe, etc. During the writing of an English paper it is like a small boy whistling merrily on a beautiful June day as he saunters homeward after the last day of school, and is not like a certain R O T C outfit (no names, no tots) returning from tomorrow morning's 7:30 outing.

Betty the Girl Engineer!!

First and foremost our candidate would like to remind the loyal voters and supporters of the regal race that we are out to win. We are out to win the contest. We appreciate the support of those who have already pledged their votes to us, but we are not resting on our laurels. We are out to get votes from those who have not yet pledged their support to us. We are out to get votes from those who have already pledged their support to our opponents. We are out to get votes from those who have not yet pledged their support to anyone. We are out to get votes from those who have already pledged their support to us. We are out to get votes from those who have not yet pledged their support to anyone. We are out to get votes from those who have already pledged their support to our opponents. We are out to get votes from those who have not yet pledged their support to anyone.

thought there is no one whom he would like to see crowned better than one or the other of them.

1. Of course the first plank in our platform concerns the immediate suspension of hostilities all over the globe an act which will automatically return to circulation such forgotten articles as meat, butter, ice cream and genuine cokes as well as to bring back that state of peace when a guy with a convertible could really get somewhere.

2. This, too, entails a suitable punishment for Hitler which we would handle by turning him over to the U. V. M football team for dummy practice.

3. As for new University improvements we would first suggest a series of elevators to be installed in the Science Hall as a relief to those students who now come crawling into the lethargium on the fourth floor on their hands and knees, glassy-eyed and panting like bull dogs.

4. Also some doors that swing outward for the Old Mill. Which does not mean dear faculty, that we so in the Old Mill any resemblance to a night club.

5. Until we get the little odds and ends of the war situation cleaned up we would recommend that an arrangement be made with the Fort to send in a carload of soldiers every Saturday night as a sort of masculine U S O. After all morale among the women is also vital.

6. And then how about Kake Walk four times a year? Oh, Good Heavens! No! What are we saying? We couldn't be so unkind. Let's keep better than that.

7. We promise that there will be established a circular conveyor belt equipped with juke joints running about the soda fountain and out through the mess cafeteria so that the regular mess diners may doze and read while waiting for their cheese sandwiches and chocolate milk.

8. One of the first things we shall accomplish, when our candidate is elected to fix up the S A E house and a double floor of gin for each guest so that the wandering brothers will have no to be together under one roof.

9. Also we promise that this will positively be the last time that that wretched Sugar House will be mentioned in a Kake Walk platform.

10. Another item is a more convenient so that of coordinating between and office in Washington so that when orders are sent out to the I E C they will either be final or not sent at all thus abolishing the necessity for reservists to hit the beetle four or five times a day. At this rate never is there will be able to get their classes.

11. The need is essential for the next We promise a continuous menu of cocoa and cream puffs to be served at all college dormitories three times a day and for those who don't eat at the dormitories the ceiling price on all student lunches will be lowered to 25 cents.

12. In regard to the educational set-up we suggest not only that the team be monetarily rewarded for its services but also that the students be paid a small sum for attending certain classes or possibly all of them.

13. Along with this we recommend that the students receive the grade cards and start grading the professors. Thanks will

Chips For Your Queen

How do you do, how do you do, how do you do—
Just as all civilized
How long the time we wasted for love
The house calisthenics
A maybe long we couldn't a kiss we'd placed
On all
And as you ask a question a answer is given
Yes, I do!
The time is far far below the level to
The west
With wily kissed another attendant
The court
To get to town to gamble we shouldn't
Take a chance
Where that we are found it beyond to
A glance

And "Chips" to us is far too much to waste on any hand.
So now's the time to stop your work and listen to our band.
The movie stars will all admit that they have met their match.
And what is more they've sent their word that she is quite a catch.
The generals in the front, the privates in the rank,
The drivers of the jeep and the bakers in the tank,
The admirals on the bridge, and the gobs upon the deck,
Shout "Only Chips will save the ship of State from wreck."
Maxine and there all together claims that she is best
Who could then be paid better to rule our Kake Walk test.
But this was not enough, so we went to see the WAACs
And Major Hobby nodded "There's nothing that she lacks."
The WAVES were all counted and the SPARs could handle wire
The Marines cried out and said that is what such talents are
Our patronage goes their duty just one Congress thing or Hell
Have passed the napper bonnet to and follow at her call
And now just one more request is granted and all positions are vacant
We close by as our candidate we hereof "Chips" Ordsworth.

For Men Only

Mademoiselle here's the U. V. M scene
Where lovely CHIPS OLDWORTH is elected queen
Your sweetest creations,
Ah, give and Limousin
Your dates will drink cokes
And tell smoker jokes

One player will suffice
Don't worry to look nice

dormitory, not be punished by being asked to grade the entire class.

14. We don't want to harp on a trite subject but we do think we have a solution to the Cafeteria-Chapel hour problem. Every Wednesday wall off all doors to the cafeteria with stone masonry and closed only the one path that leads to the chapel.

And lastly, we promise to furnish outlets and outlets of old newspapers for the girls to sleep on in Battery Park when the Army takes over their dormitories.

Norm for King

What more could the fairest gentlemen want than these qualities?

Picture him robed in the satin and ermine that every Kake Walk king must wear. What lucky Kake Walk queen would not like the opportunity to match up to the throne with this handsome and well liked candidate for King.

Need more be said other than

Vote for Norm

Here it comes students the announcement you have been waiting for. NORM BEAULIEU officially pronounces his candidacy for Kake Walk King. Now quietly and unassumingly comes to the fore the man who by all standards of perspicuity and ingenuity barely exerts enough as the Dyed chosen for these great honors behind the very symbol of Kake Walk.

NORM BEAULIEU is well known to us. It was his character sing and endearing ways we are great secret and we count it to announced that his campaign would be executed on grounds of utmost importance of backbreaking consistency to the post. In short not as they rather term the all but behind campaign platforms of the past. Norm assures his pals, from pledge to the throne, goodness.

I, NORM BEAULIEU, do pledge and swear that my campaign will be a good one, will understand and appreciated. I pledge that it will be conducted in such a manner as to reflect credit on the

I pledge myself wholeheartedly indeed to the principles pertinent of our regime. I do not feel that it will reflect in bad grace favor such seeming at worst my principles, pledges my most profound attention efforts. I DO assure you this.

And beginning next month, there will be no one in the land more sleepy than he not more so than the regime pledges to show that same.

I pledge myself to spare no pains in performing my functions.

Hard-earned victories will spend a week at all of the girls' dorms.

And be there a gentleman. Maybe in regime there's been concern and deterrent the same occasion. Let get together and pull for the best candidate who ever the end happen. Let's make the "Let's make it a night to remember" pronounce, say loudly and strongly—NORM BEAULIEU FOR KING.

A noted chemist H. B. Cross spoke Wednesday night at the meeting of the Mansfield Building. His subject was "Recent Developments in the Petroleum Industry." He has done a great deal of work in this field and is noted for such things as the material used to waterproof army tents.

Preceding the speech there was a dinner for members of the American Chemical Society.

C. enrollment [illegible] college and high school women's time [illegible] be required as enrollees in the Corps will [illegible] be placed on a reserve status [illegible] duty. Upon graduation or [illegible] they will be called to active duty [illegible] the required period.

[illegible] W. A. A. C. [illegible] a quota of [illegible] about 7,000 to be taken during the [illegible] month. Young girls particularly [illegible] a specific plan of action. The [illegible] to be a tremendous number and [illegible] we must fill our quota.

Plans are now [illegible] training centers [illegible] at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, a second at Daytona Beach, Fla., while the third is being established at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. Many graduates of W. A. A. C. training schools will be placed in the field serving the country in professional capacities. The women are [illegible] those jobs and will in this manner [illegible] be replaced by enlisted men [illegible] South America. The Army does not [illegible] a woman's job just [illegible] do a man's [illegible] and quality. The need [illegible] mechanics, radio [illegible] operators, [illegible] navigators, [illegible] radio riggers, weather observers, radio mechanics and operators [illegible] Recently there has been a need for interpreters, cryptographers, and communication workers. Women who can speak Spanish, Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, Russian, French, German and Italian are needed for immediate service.

In Burlington the place to enlist is the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, State [illegible] Main Street. Francis C. Healy [illegible] in charge of W. A. A. C. recruiting.

Thus did Col. Oveta [illegible] to a group of W. A. A. [illegible] Des Moines.

Life in the WAAC

Some questions and answers of interest to every patriotic college woman

First of all, is the WAAC really needed?

Emphatically yes! Already the President has authorized the Corps to expand from 25,000 to 150,000. The Air Forces and Signal Corps have asked for thousands of WAAC members to help with vital duties. Both Ground Forces and Services of Supply are asking for thousands more. Members of the WAAC may be assigned to duty with the Army anywhere — some are already in Africa and England.

Can the WAAC really help win the war?

The whole idea of the WAAC is to replace trained soldiers needed at the front. If American women pitch in now to help our Army (as women in Britain, Russia and China do), we can hasten Victory — and peace.

What can my college education contribute?

College training is important equipment for many WAAC duties too long to list. Cryptography, drafting, meteorology, laboratory work, Link trainer and glider instructing, for example. If you are a senior you may enroll at once and be placed on inactive duty until the school year ends. See your WAAC faculty adviser for more details.

But can I live comfortably on WAAC pay?

There are few civilian jobs in which you could earn clear income, as WAAC enrolled members do, of $50 to $138 a month — with all equipment from your toothbrush to clothing, food, quarters, medical and dental care provided. WAAC officers earn from $150 to $333.33 a month.

The drilling sounds so strenuous—!

Nonsense! The most beautiful women in America today are the girls in khaki! Some calisthenics and drilling are vital to general good health, discipline and tuned-up reflexes. After a few weeks at Fort Des Moines, Daytona Beach or the new Fort Oglethorpe training center you'll feel better than ever in your life.

Maybe I wouldn't like the work?

People are happiest doing what they do well. Every effort is made to place you where your service will count most toward final Victory. You may have some latent talent that will fill a particular need for work interesting and new to women — such as repairing the famous secret bombsight, rigging parachutes, operating the fascinating new electronic devices — or driving an Army jeep over foreign terrain.

Then I have a chance to learn something new?

Yes, indeed. And the list of WAAC duties grows constantly. The training and experience you get in the WAAC may equip you for many stimulating new careers opening up for women.

What are my chances of promotion?

Excellent. The Corps is expanding rapidly and needs new officers, both commissioned and noncommissioned. Those who join now have the best chances. All new officers now come up through the ranks. If qualified, you may obtain a commission in 12 weeks after beginning basic training.

What is the age range and other requirements?

Very simple. You may join if you are a U. S. citizen, aged 21 to 44, inclusive, at least 5 feet tall and not over 6 feet, in good health — regardless of race, color or creed. But the Army needs you now — don't delay. Total War won't wait!

Linguists needed. If you speak and write Spanish, Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, Russian, French, German or Italian, see your local Army recruiting office now! You are needed for interpreting, cryptography, communications.

FINAL EDITION

By Bob Ker

[illegible] a few short hours before [illegible] this reporter wishes to express thanks and appreciation to all who have aided, criticized and [illegible] the scribblings and pettings of [illegible] writer.

This morning we put our final [illegible] to bed and on Friday we [illegible] this world of the press box [illegible] hanging typewriter, the stubby pencil, scraps of paper and scribbled notes for the more orderly life and surroundings of an Army barracks. We trade the pushed-back hat, the open shirt with necktie knot down [illegible] the second button and the rolled-up sleeves for the trim olive drab uniform of the United States Army.

Zero Hour

We've written our last copy, set up our final dummy, slaved over our last headline, and heard the last gripe from Francis when the copy's late. Our world of ominous deadlines now suddenly becomes one of zero hours.

In leaving just a word of thanks to you, the reading public, for your kind appreciation of our work, your comments and your criticisms. Thanks also to the U. V. M. athletic teams for winning consistently and so allowing us the enjoyable task of writing into CYNIC annals three more state championships.

Our stay's been short but we've enjoyed it all. It's been sad, happy eventful; it's ranged all the way from the tragic news of sudden death and joyful news of beating Norwich to silly incidents of a water boy somersaulting off the football field with a full bucket, things that have made this reporter's life interesting and enjoyable. It's all been great fun.

THE

by

PHIL ROBINSON

It has been fun these past few weeks, editing the page and now and then finding space and time to hang out a column of questionable merit . . . but such things are of the past. Such things are a page out of the books, and now this operator must turn to a new page, and face new adventures.

First off—thanks to all. Thanks to you Bob Ker, Monty Kelley, and Bill Styles. Thanks for a fine job of writing, thanks for a fine job of digging in when the copy ran low.

And then again, our hats are off to Bob Cronin of the Burlington Daily News and Whitey Killick of the Free Press. Your help and hints have been a boon to this page, and we certainly hope that who ever our successors may be that you will continue to drop a lot of assistance their way.

And finally, our appreciation to the athletic department for all the help that they have given in these short weeks while at the helm.

It has been great to watch the fortunes of Vermont teams these three semesters. Especially this fall was the enjoyment complete when the Green and Gold surged to a 14-10 win over a cocky Norwich eleven.

To cap the climax, Vermont hit Middlebury with a bang the following week-end to sew up state football honors. Such things are things that will long be remembered.

The basketball season has brought no end of interest to this writer. And herewith we depart from the regular pattern to drop our offering before one Larry Killick. This is a court artist, the likes of which have yet to be matched at Vermont, we think. But even with such a sensational player as Larry, there have been the antics of a Beaulieu and a Doherty and a Kaufman, and a LaPointe, plus George Henderson and Reno (Stick Man) Conti, Shep Sheppard, Al Johnstone, Red Murphy and Dick Breen. Ralph will be leaving with the rest of us.

There are always memoirs. It seems just yesterday that we watched Larry Gardner's nine at Centennial. And a year ago we started to talk of track on these pages, and the greats at U. V. M., among them the greatest, Bert Mott. And the days will tick by and soon track season will be here and the sports writers will wonder just what to say.

There have been a hundred and one other odd things that we can recall. Bowling, hockey, skiing, et al.

Perhaps just because we are leaving the realm of college sports for a while, we should not talk thus, but Vermont grows on you the longer you stay. There are always those who will tell you that the Catamounts hail from a "cow college"—well, let 'em say it, but we can always come back and say that we matched wits with the best of colleges on the football, baseball, basketball, etc., fronts.

These are the things that we like to remember about Vermont!

Farewell To Sports

By Monty Kelley

There was a book by Paul Gallico published a few years ago entitled "Farewell to Sports" and inasmuch as this will be the last copy filed by yours truly [illegible] the duration, we thought it would be an apt title for this our swan song, as far as the pursuit [illegible]

My colleague Bob Ker, Bill Styles and Bobby Ker, as well as myself are passing from the University of Vermont scene with the same end when the next edition goes to press will be matched at Camp Devens. With this mass exodus of journalistic talent the term gloom on the sport page of this edition will probably resemble an obituary sheet so I will bid my adieus with a minimum of emotion and a maximum of brevity.

Needless to say, I've enjoyed my somewhat brief sojourn on the sports staff of this paper, reporting the news as I've seen it, although I'm afraid at times inadequately.

We've seen the underdog Catamounts rise a power to be feared in state football ranks and we'll long remember that cold November Saturday last fall when they rose up to smite the mighty Norwich Horsemen and annex the Green Mountain crown.

Yes, there are a lot of things to remember. Things that gave you a thrill right down to your toes and things that grabbed at your heart and made you feel sick. Little things and big things like pep rallies, and football hops and the way Chuck LaPointe fat the line. Things like helping make up the page and writing your story a half hour before the paper goes to press. Things that as you look back on them mean so much but at the time seemed to mean so little. Inconsequential things that are really so important.

The University has had a banner year in the fields of sport, there is no doubt on that score. The state football title, cross-country title, and the basketball crown have been annexed by the Cats. It's a good year to go out on.

We're saying goodby to a lot of things, things that mean more to us than mere words can express.

So that's it. Our farewell to sports. Not quite as well expressed as we'd like it to be but it will have to do.

There's just nothing left to say except thanks for your indulgence, your kindness, and your well-wishes.

Until we meet again, so long.

Jay-Vee Quintet Plays In Prelim

Sherm Fogg's none too fortunate junior varsity five should rack up a victory this evening in the opening feature of the double bill.

Winooski High School, resting comfortably in the Northern League interscholastic cellar will provide the opposition for the reserves.

Slated to appear at 7 o'clock, Sherm was not sure early this morning who would play. The recent ERC orders have pulled some men from his squad.

Flanders, Harrington, Lanna, Cruz and Cochrane look like the starting five but are subject to a lot of change before the evening is out.

Against G. M. J. C. the Jayvees looked considerably improved over their showing a week ago on the Memorial Auditorium surface. Although the Greenies tagged them for a 64-40 victory, Fogg's midwestern style game showed signs of clicking.

The JV aggregation may well unfold this brand of play against the Onion City lads tonight in hopes of chalking up a win.

Harvard University will receive $750,000 from the estate of an attorney-philanthropist who died recently for "training young men for the federal service of the government of the United States."

Coast Guard Sink Cats 53-32

By Bill Styles

[illegible] M. [illegible] had a salty taste of what happens when the fleet-[illegible] as the Boston Coast Guard basketball team, pulling about every trick known to the [illegible] and displaying some of the flashiest ball seen in these parts for many a year, decisively beat the Green and Gold into a helpless 53-32 submission. A large crowd turned out for the Lipoint battle and although they didn't see their own darlings of the coast pull through with a victory they more than got their money's worth watching the superb shooting, passing and ball-handling of the Coast Guard. To top it all off the Cats themselves were performing at their season's worst, making the sailor team look just that much more like national champs.

For the first few minutes it was a close game. With Lu Belanger ringing in the opening score for the Guardsmen, he and Doherty alternated two baskets to bring the score to 4-4, Perry and La Pointe scored for their respective teams making it 6-6 but LaPointes basket ended the Cat's first period scoring, while the Coast Guard ran theirs out to 11-6. In the second period the Cats were outscored 17-10 and left the floor at the half on the short end of a 28-16 score.

The third period was the ball game as the Coast Guardsmen turned the contest into a rout, banging through 17 points to two lone foul shots for the Cats. It was in this canto that the sailors opened their bag of tricks, putting on a grand offensive show while Vermont slumped badly, missing passes and baskets by the dozen.

Both teams shoved in their reserves in the final quarter, with the Green and Gold holding the Coast Guard's to one basket for about a quarter of the time. Fuzzy Evans called his first team back to duty in the closing minutes of the game and managed to outscore the Boston contingent for the first time in the game, leading 14-8.

The Coast Guard scoring was fairly well divided between the players but Wemzel and Belanger managed to walk off with 11 points and the scoring honors. Larry Killick was close on their heels with four baskets and two foul shots for a ten point total.

Doctor Brainerd Former Midd. Pres. Writes on Violets

A new book, just published by the University of California Press at Berkeley should be of interest to all flower lovers but particularly to those living in Vermont.

The title of the book is "Wild Violets of North America," and the author is Viola Brainerd Baird who, in bringing out the book, is completing a work begun by her father, Dr. Ezra Brainerd, for many years president of Middlebury College, who was an acknowledged authority on the subject and first published his findings in a bulletin brought out by the Experiment Station at the University of Vermont, which ran to 1,000 copies, and for which Prof. George P. Burns of the botany department wrote the foreword. This bulletin, beautifully illustrated in color by F. Schuyler Matthews of Cambridge, Mass., was the basis from which Mrs. Baird's book was done.

In her preface the author, among other acknowledgments, expresses appreciation for the critical help given her by Dr. Alexander Gershoy of the botany department who is carrying on Dr. Brainerd's work with Violets at Vermont, and to Professor Burns who lent the illustrations from the bulletin for use in the book.

Dean emeritus Joseph L. Hills, of the Agricultural College at the University, well remembers the days when Dr. Brainerd was working on the beginnings of this book. "Botany, and particularly violets, were always Dr. Brainerd's hobby," says Dean Hills, "and after his retirement as president he came to devote even more time to their study."

His daughter, to whom he gave the significant name of Viola, was closely associated with him in the work. They gathered widely, collecting varieties in Canada and many other states. Moving to Berkeley, Mrs. Baird established a violet garden there and after her father's death, carried out the idea of putting their complicated findings in a book as a tribute to his memory. The result, according to the critics, is suited to the most scientific work yet so written that any amateur can use it. Mrs. Baird was able to add to the color plates already made for the University bulletin so that the book contains reproductions in color of every variety of violet.

"One cannot think of Dr. Brainerd without thinking of violets," says Dean Hills reminiscently. "The connection was so universally recognized that at his funeral service the casket was completely covered by the masses of his favorite flower. The dear pansies. I shall never forget that fragrance of violets," he adds softly.

Orchids Are Growing Despite Cold Weather In U. V. M. Greenhouse

What! Orchids on the U. V. M. campus? Yes, indeed. Several dozen plants, representing many different varieties, have been blooming in the greenhouse at intervals throughout the winter. These exotic plants are the gifts of Dr. Oliver N. Eastman, longtime Burlington practitioner and graduate of U. V. M. For many years Dr. Eastman has pursued the hobby of growing orchids and has maintained a private greenhouse for this purpose. Owing to the fact that he could no longer heat his greenhouse, he has generously contributed his collection to the University.

The orchids have responded to the care given them by the Botany Department and greenhouse staff, and in the words of Dr. Marvin "seem quite happy here". There are several very attractive blooms at this time. Why not drop in and see them?

Miss Van der Lugt To Speak at I. R. C.

I. R. C. is happy to announce that Miss Van der Lugt, an outstanding Dutch psychologist now with the University is to speak at the meeting this Wednesday, February 17, at 8:00 p.m. She will speak on the differences on life and thought in Europe and America. Everyone is urged to come and take advantage of the unusual opportunity of hearing such a person as she.

Dr. H. E. Luccock Speaker at Vesper Service Feb. 7

Sunday, February 7, Dr. Halford E. Luccock spoke at the Vespers service. Dr. Luccock, Professor of Homiletics at Yale Divinity School, gave a very interesting speech.

The main point of the speech centered on the two types of people in the world: The Creators and Restorers, and the merits of each.

Those who attended, noticed a change in the service. The service has been enriched by the addition of responses and prayers. It has been printed on cards, so that everyone attending may follow the service more easily.

This was the next to the last Vespers scheduled for this year. The last service will be on March 21, with Dr. Charles R. Brown of New Haven as speaker.

Saturday, February 20, is a University holiday. No classes will be held on that day.

Classes will meet as usual Monday, February 22.

E. Swift, Secretary.

Doctor Brainerd Former Midd. Pres. Writes on Violets

A new book, just published by the University of California Press at Berkeley, should be of interest to all flower lovers, but particularly to those living in Vermont

The title of the book is "Wild Violets of North America," and the author is Viola Brainerd Baird who, in bringing out the book, is completing a work begun by her father, Dr. Ezra Brainerd, for many years president of Middlebury College, who was an acknowledged authority on the subject and first published his findings in a bulletin brought out by the Experiment Station at the University of Vermont, which ran to 1,000 copies, and for which Prof. George P. Burns of the botany department wrote the foreword. This bulletin, beautifully illustrated in color by F. Schuyler Matthews of Cambridge, Mass., was the basis from which Mrs. Baird's book was done.

In her preface the author, among other acknowledgments, expresses appreciation for the critical help given her by Dr. Alexander Gershoy of the botany department who is carrying on Dr. Brainerd's work with Violets at Vermont, and to Professor Burns who lent the illustrations from the bulletin for use in the book.

Dean emeritus Joseph L. Hills, of the Agricultural College at the University, well remembers the days when Dr. Brainerd was working on the beginnings of this book. "Botany, and particularly violets, were always Dr. Brainerd's hobby," says Dean Hills, "and after his retirement as president he came to devote even more time to their study."

His daughter, to whom he gave the significant name of Viola, was closely associated with him in the work. They traveled widely, collecting varieties in California and many other states. Moving to Berkeley, Mrs. Baird established a violet garden there and, after her father's death, conceived the idea of putting their completed findings in a book as a tribute to his memory. The result, according to the critics, is suited to the most scientific work, yet so written that an amateur can use it. Mrs. Baird was able to add to the color plates already made for the University Bulletin, so that the book contains reproductions in color of every variety of violet.

"One cannot think of Dr. Brainerd without thinking of violets," says Dean Hills reminiscently. "The connection was so universally recognized that at his funeral service the casket was completely covered by the masses of his favorite bloom." The dean pauses. "I shall never forget that fragrance of violets," he adds softly.

Orchids Are Growing Despite Cold Weather In U. V. M. Greenhouse

What! Orchids on the U. V. M. campus? Yes, indeed. Several dozen plants, representing many different varieties, have been blooming in the greenhouse at intervals throughout the winter. These exotic plants are the gifts of Dr. Oliver N. Eastman, longtime Burlington practitioner and graduate of U. V. M. For many years Dr. Eastman has pursued the hobby of growing orchids and has maintained a private greenhouse for this purpose. Owing to the fact that he could no longer heat his greenhouse, he has generously contributed his collection to the University.

The orchids have responded to the care given them by the Botany Department and greenhouse staff, and in the words of Dr. Marvin "seem quite happy here". There are several very attractive blooms at this time. Why not drop in and see them?

Dr. H. E. Luccock Speaker at Vesper Service Feb. 7

Sunday, February 7, Dr. Halford E. Luccock spoke at the Vespers service. Dr. Luccock, Professor of Homiletics at Yale Divinity School, gave a very interesting speech.

The main point of the speech centered on the two types of people in the world: The Creators and Restorers, and the merits of each.

Those who attended, noticed a change in the service. The service has been enriched by the addition of responses and prayers. It has been printed on cards, so that everyone attending may follow the service more easily.

This was the next to the last Vespers scheduled for this year. The last service will be on March 21, with Dr. Charles R. Brown of New Haven as speaker.

Saturday, February 20, is a University holiday. No classes will be held on that day.

Classes will meet as usual Monday, February 22.

History of Kake Walk Dates Back to 1893's Minstrel Show

To persons outside of Vermont, Kake Walking means a dance of the Southern negroes, but to all of us it has come to mean the winter carnival of U. V. M.

Fifty years ago in 1893, Vermont had its first Kake Walk. It was a very different sort of Kake Walk than the present entertainment has come to be. It was a simple private affair and was given in the club hall. Later as the event became better established it was held in the armory and the public was admitted. The early Kake Walks consisted largely of minstrel jokes, take offs of timely topics and satires on personalities of the faculty. The prize for the winning Kake Walkers at their dance came from the kitchen of Marshall Hash House—a cake a dozen eggs, from the cook.

In 1904 the event took place in the gymnasium where it was held upon Feb. 22. Most around the middle of the kake walking would become organized as to the point it is enjoying today, but in the present day it commences a degree of zest and gaiety that is unsurpassed in history. It is said in the Kake Walk tradition that the march of the various representatives were created. In keeping with the development and changes each year the girls were made more difficult to compete with and in time styles were made and regulations set for each time. Time wasn't and will continue [illegible] eliminated. In 1908 the first [illegible] the Prince Cup was presented to [illegible] time to the awarding of the cakes. At present two cups are given for the best walking and the best stunt for cakes are distributed one of the many honors recipients being the national K. O. T. C. [illegible] which swings out on the walkers with the many unforgettable tunes of "Coon Coon Coon."

Phi Delt Fraternity Defending Champion

The cold of the past week has given our ice sculptors a chance to really get going. Ice carvings of huge dimensions grace the lawns of the various fraternity and sorority houses and a few of the dorms.

Redstone however gave up when the Army decided to move in.

The Alpha Xis under Ginger Hunt '45 have a sitting Catamount with a crown on its head.

The Pi Phis under Nancy MacNamara '45, have a catamount kake walking.

The Tri Delts under Lester Brington '45 have developed a jeep with a kake walker and a kake on top of it.

Kay Brown '44 has carved a queenly figure in her group depicting also two kake walkers paying homage to the queen.

The Delts under Dean Zwick '45 have two walkers classled out of ice.

Sanders Hall working cooperatively has produced a nightmare. "Did you ever see a Kake Walking?" "C'est la guerre."

The Alpha Chi's say "Mr. Five by Five Goes to Kake Walk." Rosalind Hughes '44 was the sculptor.

Enid Miller '44 had the help of several Peace Sgt.'s in producing a Kake Walker a Vermont man ready to leave and his destination announced. "Tojo Dooms-day America Must March On."

Phi Delts Take First Prize In "Walking Fo' The Kake"

"C'est la Guerre" Wins Cup for Sigma Nu

Kake Walkers, stunts, sculptors, directors, King and Queen, and Joe and the "kakes" for all. With Prof. Leon Dean as "kake-presenter," the three directors, Bill Benoit, Bob White, and Dudley Davis, were given the first three "kakes." They had previously acted as an excellent master of ceremonies. Then King Beaulieu presented Queen "Chips" with a cake and received one himself. From then on Professor Dean gave "kakes and cups" to all the prize-winners. Sigma Phi led the ice sculpturing with Delta Psi receiving honorable mention.

For the stunts Sigma Nu was first with "C'est la Guerre." "Round the Day with O. P. A." by the Kappa Sigs won second place. Besides the cakes given to each of these fraternities, the Sigma Nus won the Briggs Cup and the Kappa Sigs the Southwick Cup.

Finally the great event, the "kakes" for the walkers were given out. Phi Delta Theta's Bob Lockwood and Jack Williams carried off first prize and the Boulder Cup, while Delta Psi's represented by Houghton Pearl and Randall Mershon were second. The Deltas received the Hayes and Carney Cup.

No Kake Walk could seem quite right without "Joe" Lechnyr and the R. O. T. C. band. To show them how high they stand in the estimation of everyone they, too, received a cake. Proving once more how fine he is, Joe offered to share the band "kake" with the Kappa Alpha Theta girls, who didn't receive one, although their sculpture was judged best of the girls, Redstone taking second.

It is possible to name prizes and winners. It is possible to tell what the history of "Kake Walk" is. It is not possible to describe Kake Walk. Kake Walk is Vermont, and in spite of the sadness at losing many of the boys, it was a festival. Beginning Friday night with Masquerade, Kake Walk week-end is in full swing. For the first time in many years there was no "name band" to play for Masquerade, but it seemed to be enjoyed just the same. There was dancing from 9.00 till 2.00 with all kinds of costumes going around the dance floor. Then, the King and Queen entered and were crowned. The prizes for the best costumes were chosen with two "gunny sacks" Julie Fletcher and Jack Williams) taking first prize. The second prize winners were Top-hat and his girl-friend (unquote). The Gremlin Family was third, Gramma and Baby.

Kake Walk itself began with the entrance of the King and Queen, Norm Beaulieu and Chips Cudworth. The Stunts, Kake Walking, Parade of Walkers, and Presentation of Prizes followed. With a few more music from the band Kake Walk was over. However, the ushers were not quite finished. They spent the next half hour changing from very black to white (or a dull gray).

The directors were named for next year's Kake Walk, if and when.

Schools to Be Center For Ration Registering

If any student has in his possession Ration Book No. 1, he may register at the Burlington High School, the Hunt School or the Ira Allen School on the afternoon of February 25, or any time February 26 and February 27 and obtain his Ration Book No. 2. If however, the student's Ration Book No. 1 is at his home, some member of his family should register as his agent and there obtain his Ration Book No. 2.

School Is Proud Of Its Dorm Girls

They Meet Situation With Vermont Spirit

Never before has the campus of U. V. M. felt so keenly the effects of war as in the past week. Scarcely had it bidden farewell to its sons answering their calls to the colors, than orders were received from the army to provide living quarters for a regiment of soldiers. Equipment had to be transported from Southwick and the girls on Redstone campus were requested to be out of their dormitories by Tuesday.

The school is proud of the girls' reaction. Faced with the pressing problem of packing wardrobe trunks, dismantling and cleaning their rooms and keeping up on their studies on the side, they have risen above the situation and everything is well under control. On the surface, all would appear to be in a state of confusion. The girls seem to be everywhere at once in constant search of available boxes and trunks, hatboxes, tennis racquets and blankets line the corridors waiting to be tripped over. The humorous aspect of it all appeals to the girls' senses of humor. The thought of their receiving mail addressed to fraternity houses is after all something to write home about. Still, beneath this surface which reflects the cheerful, laughing faces of our girls lies something deeper, the sorrow of those who must leave something of which they have become a part and which is to them a home.

Middlebury Team Debates at U. V. M.

The Women's Debating team of the University met Middlebury College in a non-decision debate Tuesday, Feb. 16, in the Waterman Building. Jane Klein and Joyce Mickey of Middlebury upheld the affirmative of the topic—Resolved: That Women's Education in Colleges Should Not Be Drastically Reduced." Speakers for the negative side of the issue were Elaine Bailey '45, and Faye Lippman '43 of the University of Vermont. Doris Rindler '44 was chairman of the debate. Accompanying the Middlebury team was Professor Perkins, coach of debating at Middlebury.

Other debates scheduled in the near future for U. V. M.'s women's teams include Skidmore, St. Lawrence University and New York Teacher's College, as well as New York University whose team will visit the Vermont campus on March 13.

The final debate in the men's interclass competition between freshmen and sophomores was held Tuesday evening, Feb. 9. Two freshman teams having won decisions over the spohomore teams, met for a play-off. The affirmative freshman team, which included David Bikoff and Paul Pascal, won a 2-1 decision over the opposing negative team consisting of Joseph Waterman and Donald Hackel, on the question whether every able-bodied male citizen in the United States should be required to have one year of full-time military training before attaining the age of 21. The judges for the contest were Prof. Leon W. Dean, Kenneth G. Raymond and Merrill D. Powers.

There will be a Special Convocation Thursday, February 25; Wednesday, February 24, the usual Chapel Service will be omitted and classes will meet at the same hours as on other weekdays.

Sigma Phi Builds Winning Sculpture

Winners of the Donald J. Nutter Cup for the best ice sculpture were the lads over at Sigma Phi with their blue-lighted Kake Walkers and loving cup. Second prize went to Delta Psi for their cold glassy figures doing the traditional walk. In the women's division, Kappa Alpha Theta won first prize and Redstone Dormitory was awarded honorable mention. The enthroned Queen and her courtier on bended knee brought considerable acclaim to the Theta's and Kay Brown '44. The old-fashioned sleigh in front of Redstone, fashioned in snow and inscribed with the legend "Kake Walk or Bust," was built under the leadership of Fran and Margo Donahue '45.

The scultpures this year were remarkably well done. The Alpha Chi's contribution was a personable young man in gay apparel and much excess avoirdupois, called "Mr. Five by Five Goes to Kake Walk." The jeep carrying a Kake which the Tri Delts built brought a modern note.

Alpha Xi Delta under Ginger Hunt '45 had a tricky little catamount with crown correctly cocked. Pi Beta Phi had a catamount actually doing the Kake Walk.

Phi Delta Theta had a King on a throne with two pages kneeling before him.

Here today and gone tomorrow, these many works of art (and others which may have been omitted) have now disintegrated into grey misshapen masses. Soon but a puddle will remain to tell the story of many a masterpiece in snow.

Dr. Van Der Lugt Speaks at Meeting

Wednesday evening, Feb. 17, at 8.00 there was a meeting of the International Relations Club at the Southwick Building. It has been the plan for the club to have a guest speaker at each meeting, and the tradition was well kept Wednesday evening. Dr. Marie Van der Lugt, who was guest speaker, is the new instructor in psychology here at the University, and this was her first public appearance as a speaker. Doctor Van der Lugt chose to speak on a subject with which she is very familiar, and likewise a very popular one with audiences; namely, that of the differences in our way of life with that of Holland an other European countries. She cited many illustrative examples; such as customs of families and households, various classes of society, etc. All of these topics are interesting questions of which the majority of the American people are very curious and most interested to learn.

It is sad to reflect that this meeting of the International Relations Club was the last to be held in Southwick, since the army is moving on the campus and taking it over. As to the place of other meetings, it hasn't been decided but a notice will be posted.

Brotherhood Week Will Unite Students of All Faiths

Opens with Convocation Thursday at Noon

The observance of Brotherhood Week on the U. V. M. campus at the noon convocation on Thursday and the open forum at 4:00 is directly in line with the expressed desire and purpose of the Student Government Executive Committee when it urged unity and cooperation as the thing to be desired among the religious groups on the campus. During the year an Inter-Faith Council has been formed by regularly elected representatives of the different faith groups and this Council in cooperation with the Student Government Committee on Religious Life is sponsoring the coming to the campus of a trio of clergymen—one a Catholic priest, one a Jewish rabbi, and the other a Protestant minister. This trio comes under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, an organization having three co-chairmen: Arthur H. Compton, of the University of Chicago; Carlton J. H. Hayes, ambassador to Spain, and Roger W. Straus, of New York City. The purpose of this National Conference as expressed in its by-laws is "To promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in the United States, and to analyse, moderate and finally eliminate intergroup prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations, with a view to the establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of brotherhood and justice shall become the standards of human relationships." The appearance on the same platform of these three representatives of different faiths is a demonstration that those who differ deeply in religious beliefs may work together in the American way towards mutual goals such as the Golden Rule, peace, social justice, religious liberty, freedom of speech, assembly, and press as provided in the Bill of Rights.

At the noon convocation Thursday which will be held in the Student Lounge, these three speakers will each make their

Fraternity Houses To Quarter Girls

Men Leave Cheerfully After Last Big Weekend

Three men's fraternity houses at the University of Vermont are about to undergo a revolutionary change. Because the Redstone women's campus, whose three dormitories have housed 80 of the University's co-eds, together with their three house mothers is being taken over as headquarters for the first 500 men sent here by the army for specialized training, it has been necessary to find new quarters for the girls, and the obvious answer is these buildings which have so long been dedicated to the stronger sex. Fraternities have been so much depleted by the calling of members into the services that finding outside accommodations for those men still remaining represents less of a problem than would have been true a few months ago.

Today the Delta Psi and Sigma Phi fraternities are evacuating their homes in preparation for a move-in by the girls from Redstone and Robinson Hall respectively on Monday. The Kappa Sigma house will be the next to be taken over by the feminine gender, when the Slade Hall girls move in there, sometime in the immediate future.

With only a few days' notice, the four buildings on the Redstone campus, which include the three dormitories and the Southwick Memorial Building, are being stripped of their elaborate furnishings, to make way for the more monastic fittings suitable for an army barracks, and along with finding homes for exiled women and men students, refuges must be found for literally hundreds of orphan chairs, tables, couches, dressing tables, and all the paraphernalia which has made the buildings such an attractive part of the University campus.

Little change will be necessary for the buildings themselves, beyond the installing of additional bathing facilities to accommodate the vastly increased number of occupants.

The students are taking the crowding and inconvenience of this move with splendid spirit, says Dean of Women Mary Jean Simpson. Some of the girls have even offered to help with the scrubbing and cleaning inevitable to such a move, if necessary. Dean Simpson mentions having expressed regret to one fraternity member at having to turn him out. "But why?" he asked, shrugging. "After all, this is the first time we, as a group, have been really touched by the war."

In addition to the girls from Robinson Hall, provision is also being made for moving the women's infirmary to the Sigma Phi house.

Canterbury Club Will Hold Service Sunday

Canterbury Club will conduct its second monthly service at All Saint's Chapel, at the junction of South Union St. and South Winooski Ave., Sunday, February 28, at 8 p.m. Hon. Porky Flynn will read the service and President Millis will speak. Rosemary Thayer '44 is general chairman of the arrangements and the choir is being directed by Mr. Pappoutsakis.

Members of all the other college groups are invited to attend this service, as well as the people of the neighborhood and any members of the faculty and student body who may be interested.

Army Air Corps Arrives Today

Five hundred army air corps men are scheduled to arrive on the Vermont campus this week with 500 more due to arrive later this month. This news was released by military authorities last Thursday with the arrival of three commissioned officers and three non-commissioned officers who set up permanent quarters in the Waterman Building.

The uniformed men are being sent to U. V. M. for academic study and basic military training prior to pre-flight training. Their academic studies will include courses in mathematics, physics, English, history and geography. Indoctrination military tactics and physical training will also be given during the five months' course. A few hours of flying may also be included.

Preparation for the arrival of the first contingent of the air corps personnel progressed well, reported the officers who expressed themselves pleased at the "splendid cooperation met on every hand." All men in uniform on the University campus, and that includes those in the Northeast Airlines school, will be fed in the Waterman cafeteria which President Millis stated would be turned over to their exclusive use.

Coming of the soldiers to the U. V. M. campus will not seriously interfere with the regular schedules said President Millis.

M. campus at the noon convocation on Thursday and the open forum at 4:00 p. m. directly in line with the expressed desire and purpose of the Student Government Executive Committee when it urged unity and cooperation as the thing to be desired among the religious groups on the campus. During the year an Inter-Faith Council has been formed by regularly elected representatives of the different faith groups and this Council in cooperation with the Student Government Committee on Religious Life is sponsoring the coming to the campus of a trio of clergymen: one a Catholic priest, one a Jewish rabbi, and the other a Protestant minister. This trio comes under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, an organization having three co-chairmen: Arthur H. Compton, of the University of Chicago; Carlton J. H. Hayes, ambassador to Spain; and Roger W. Straus of New York City. The purpose of this National Conference as expressed in its by-laws is "To promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews in the United States, and to analyze, moderate and finally eliminate intergroup prejudices which obstruct and distort religious, business, social and political relations, with a view to the establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of brotherhood and justice shall become the standards of human relationships." The appearance on the same platform of these three representatives of different faiths is a demonstration that those who differ deeply in religious beliefs may work together in the American way towards mutual goals such as the Golden Rule, peace, social justice, religious liberty, freedom of speech, assembly, and press as provided in the Bill of Rights.

At the noon convocation Thursday which will be held in the Student Lounge, these three speakers will each make their

Fraternity Houses To Quarter Girls

Men Leave Cheerfully After Last Big Weekend

Three men's fraternity houses at the University of Vermont are about to undergo a revolutionary change. Because the Redstone women's campus, whose three dormitories have housed 80 of the University's co-eds, together with their three house mothers is being taken over as headquarters for the first 500 men sent here by the army for specialized training it has been necessary to find new quarters for the girls, and the obvious answer is these buildings which have so long been dedicated to the stronger sex. Fraternities have been so much depleted by the calling of members into the services that finding outside accommodations for those men still remaining represents less of a problem than would have been true a few months ago.

Today the Delta Psi and Sigma Phi fraternities are evacuating their homes in preparation for a move-in by the girls from Redstone and Robinson Hall respectively on Monday. The Kappa Sigma house will be the next to be taken over by the feminine gender, when the Slade Hall girls move in there, sometime in the immediate future.

With only a few days' notice, the four buildings on the Redstone campus, which include the three dormitories and the Southwick Memorial Building, are being stripped of their elaborate furnishings, to make way for the more monastic fittings suitable for an army barracks, and along with finding homes for exiled women and men students, refuges must be found for literally hundreds of orphan chairs, tables, couches, dressing tables, and all the paraphernalia which has made the buildings such an attractive part of the University campus.

Little change will be necessary for the buildings themselves, beyond the installing of additional bathing facilities to accommodate the vastly increased number of occupants.

The students are taking the crowding and inconvenience of this move with splendid spirit, says Dean of Women Mary Jean Simpson. Some of the girls have even offered to help with the scrubbing and cleaning inevitable to such a move, if necessary. Dean Simpson mentions having expressed regret to one fraternity member at having to turn him out. "But why?" he asked shrugging. "After all, this is the first time we, as a group, have been really touched by the war."

In addition to the girls from Robinson Hall, provision is also being made for moving the women's infirmary to the Sigma Phi house.

Canterbury Club Will Hold Service Sunday

Canterbury Club will conduct its second monthly service at All Saint's Chapel, at the junction of South Union St. and South Winooski Ave., Sunday, February 28, at 8 p.m. Hon. Porky Flynn will read the service and President Millis will speak. Rosemary Thayer '44 is general chairman of the arrangements and the choir is being directed by Mr. Papproutsakis.

Members of all the other college groups are invited to attend this service, as well as the people of the neighborhood and any members of the faculty and student body who may be interested.

Army Air Corps Arrives Today

Five hundred army air corps men are scheduled to arrive on the Vermont campus this week with 500 more due to arrive later this month. This news was released by military authorities last Thursday with the arrival of three commissioned officers and three non-commissioned officers who set up permanent quarters in the Waterman Building.

The commissioned men are being sent to U. V. M. for academic study and basic military training prior to pre-flight training. Their academic studies will include courses in mathematics, physics, English, history and geography. Indoctrination military tactics and physical training will also be given during the five months' course. A few hours of flying may also be included.

Preparation for the arrival of the first contingent of the air corps personnel progressed well, reported the officers who expressed themselves pleased at the "splendid cooperation met on every hand." All men in uniform on the University campus, and that includes those in the Northeast Airlines school, will be fed in the Waterman cafeteria which President Millis stated would be turned over to their exclusive use.

Coming of the soldiers to the U. V. M. campus will not seriously interfere with the regular schedules said President Millis.

Protestant, Catholic, Jew!

[illegible] the students of the campus will gather this Thursday to pay tribute to the ideal that have been in many [illegible] establishing a humane and just social principle.

It is here indeed worth while [illegible] Long ago on Palestine, a man arose whose [illegible] teachings of love and good will among men [illegible] that his message has remained so, that mankind has [illegible] Have gone [illegible] to different beings who walked in the weights of their sister even unto [illegible].

Today, more than ever, we should realize the basic equality and [illegible] of all members of humanity. Be it the pedlar approaching a farm or the people who journey here, he is a human. Protestant, or Jew.

We have not gone far in the last 2,000 years. To be sure, churches, cathedrals, and synagogues have been built all over the world but the people who have worshipped in them, very seldom realized the message of the founders of their religions and the people stayed prejudiced, ready to fight one another.

Jesus on the cross remains a symbol. We are still reaching, still listening half heartedly to the truth he died for. There can be no peace among men until we resolve to fight not one another but rather the prejudices that have kept us separated throughout the ages.

Our creeds are not so different. They were born out of one single desire—the freedom and brotherhood of man. Our beliefs are not so different. We all fight for justice, equality, and human understanding. Our heritage is bound to the same small planet on which fate has told us to exist. Our goals are all similar, to make this country, this world a better place to live in.

Let us therefore unite this week in the true spirit of brotherhood and learn about one another so that we can wipe out many of our prejudices and go on from there together as one nation, one humanity indivisible. Only then the Christian martyrs nailed to the cross or the Jewish heroes burnt alive in their synagogues will not have died in vain; only then the world will be able to look forward to happiness and good will among man.

Airmen Take Over Redstone Campus

Evacuation of Redstone campus! Kake Walk! This year they came simultaneously. Trying to pack a suitcase and take a little while off to go to the Masquerade is not so easy. Ask any of the former residents of Redstone campus.

Although we've realized that this was coming, it seemed quite far in the offing. With the word of the arrival of 500 or more men on Feb. 23, most of whom would have to be housed on Redstone campus, the problem of housing the coeds arose. This meant rooms for 80 girls and three house directors had to be found before the passing of the week.

The only immediate available places were the fraternity houses. The fraternity houses were most cooperative. After a last Kake Walk week-end in their houses the boys have turned over the fraternity houses to the coeds in distress. Delta Psi is to be occupied by the Redstone evacuees.

Robinson girls will be moved to Sigma Phi where the infirmary will be located for the duration. Kappa Sigma has turned over their house for the residents of Slade Hall. Some sorority girls in these houses will have to move to sororities.

Southwick, too, must be vacated. Last week girls spent their last gym class in Southwick. Even though the distance used to cause a grumble once in a while, they were rather sad to hold class there for the last time. However, we must do our part. Every article in this building had to be inventoried. The contents will be put in the girls' lounges in Waterman, the president's office, Mr. Page's office and in the office of the Dean of Women. The grand piano is to be transported to the Ira Allen Chapel. There will be no furniture storage with the exception of rugs and hangings. Every possible care is being taken.

The Southwick ballroom and gymnasium and the Robinson dining room will be turned over to the army to be used as barracks for the men. For the duration all the Redstone girls will be fed in Waterman. The banquet hall and faculty lounge will be opened up so that 150 girls can be fed at the same time.

The war is actually being brought home to the campus. We realize now that this is only the beginning of sacrifice. A war cannot be won unless every person fights for that victory. Since all of us cannot tote a gun it is our duty to make it easier for those who must. This is the first time that the whole campus has been called upon to do its part. We have shown that we can do our part when it is required. This is only a sample of what we'll do in the future. The spirit of both boys and girls has been excellent and the cooperation is greatly appreciated by those in charge of the evacuation.

After Christie had made two fouls and Hannon a hoop, Vermont sent in its second five as did the Larries. Phifer and Hawkins dropped three quick baskets which caused Coach Evans to put the first stringers back at once. Cioffi's set shot brought the Scarlet to within four points. The Larries' coach gave his first club a short breather during which time Killick, Joa, and Beaulieu each made foul shots. Larry Killick's one-hander wasn't enough to hold the rush of three baskets by Hannon, Varsoki, and O'Conner and the St. Lawrence club was behind by only one point, 44-43

After tying it up, the Larries' rush fell just short as the Catamounts managed to hold till the gun sounded. Murphy and Killick coming through with the much-needed points. The St. Lawrence team outscored the Cats 31-18 in the second canto as they began to hit the stride which they have shown all season.

Killick and Kaufman were good for 17 and 10 points respectively, with Beaulieu and Doherty also chipping in 7 points each. Varsoki and O'Conner were outstanding for St. Lawrence.

The Cats play their last game next Wednesday when they meet a team from Fort Ethan Allen.

Kittens to Tangle With Tank Busters In Final Contest

Ranks are Depleted But Several Stars Are Still on Hand

Fighting to end a season which up to now has been highly successful in a blaze of glory the Vermont J. V. on Wednesday will dribble away with the Tank Busters from Fort Ethan Allen.

The Tank Busters have been moving along at a stiff clip for the team which has proven itself to be the best specialist team at the Fort has taken into camp. The Fort varsity team which on December 10 gave Fuzzy Evans boys a rough tussle, ...ds to lose in the final half by about 15 points.

The lineup of the Tank Busters is studded with many men who formerly starred on well known high school and college teams, and their attack, featuring speed and deception, is well balanced and coordinated.

Although all pepped up and in fine fettle after a rousing victory over Winooski the Kittens, if they are going to come out on top in this game, will be forced to go to the limit of their ability. After losing several boys to the E. R. C. two weeks ago, the rapidly diminishing ranks of Sherry Fogg's men were further depleted by the loss of Al Wees and Irv Goldstein. The absence of the steady, dependable Wees, and the fast moving Goldstein, greatly decrease the offensive and defensive power of the Kittens. The team, however, still has the flashy Bill Flanders and Mickey Cochran, and Joe Pribula, who constantly played hide and seek with the Winooski guards, should cause the Tank Busters trouble.

Time alone will tell whether the Tank Busters will be able to penetrate the Green and Gold armor plate. Whatever the outcome of the game is however, the J. V. will wind up a successful season for themselves and Sherry Fogg.

Individual Scoring Shows Good Team

Vermont's Green and Gold basketeers have proven themselves this year to be of high spark and caliber. A good team has to know how to lose and how to win and the Cats have these two qualities for they showed it when they beat Middlebury after having been trounced soundly by the Boston Coast Guard team.

Incidentally, our recent win over Middlebury clinched another State basketball championship to Vermont.

Following is a summary of just who is throwing them in the bucket for Vermont and how much.

Basketball Team to End Season vs. 71st Artillery

Hoopsters' Last Game Is Tomorrow Evening

By LLOYD SHERAR

His Last Game

CAPTAIN BOB DOHERTY

Rounding back with a bang the sharp shooting Catamounts will attempt to make it three victories in a row on Wednesday when they play the 71st Field Artillery team at Memorial Auditorium.

The Cats, playing without Chuck LaPointe showed Plattsburg wonder-boys a pair of heels as they went to town against St. Lawrence on Saturday afternoon and boys should click well tomorrow with the added experience. Don Red Murphy who filled in for LaPointe did a creditable job and should again set the world on fire against the Fort.

Fort Ethan Allen who they played to Catamounts in December showed that they really had something on the ball and they gave Fuzzy Evans boys a right tough time before being subdued 57-36. Led by Jerry Otskey who when he played professional ball was a one man team to terrorize the Fort should come back with a gleam in their eye and murder in their heart and go all out to defeat the Catamounts. Having been keeping in trim by playing other corps teams, the boys who man those big guns should be in fine fettle on Wednesday, and all spectators will see an excellent game. Besides Otskey, who scored 17 points against Vermont last time, there is speedy and tricky Sullivan at right guard. Dangerously fast and always on the alert, Sullivan dropped five baskets in the last time, and if he is hot may mean the difference between victory and defeat. The other members of the Fort's starting team will probably be Morin, Sweezey and Schroeder with Everson, Montanez and Kirby filling in.

The Cats will be led as usual, by ever dangerous, western shot expert Larry Killick. If Mr. Killick has one of his nights, together with Milt Kaufman, Norm Beaulieu, and Bob Doherty, the Catamounts can be expected to ride high. If little Milt is up to his usual tactics there will be many a stolen ball, and if Bob Doherty has those blinkers trained, the nets will swish time and time again. King Norm is always out there in the center of the floor dropping them in, in full view of the crowd.

The starting lineup for Vermont will probably be the big "Four," Killick, Kaufman, Beaulieu, and Doherty, and either Henderson, Murphy, or one of the others filling in for the army-bound Ralph LaPointe.

Protestant, Catholic, Jew!

The students of this campus will gather this Thursday to pay tribute to the heroes that have lent of work for constructive in establishing a humane brotherhood between mankind.

We have talked much about humanity. Long ago in Palestine, a man went about the country preaching neighborly love and good will among men. But his message has remained an ideal, an ideal for which thousands have given their lives without being convinced by the greatness of their cause even after they died.

Today, more than ever, we should realize the basic equality and affinity of all members of humanity, be it the peddler approaching a farm or the people who portray him, be it a Catholic, Protestant or Jew.

We have not gone far in the last 2000 years. To be sure, churches, cathedrals, and synagogues have been built all over the world but the people who have worshipped in them very seldom realized the message of the founder of their religion and the people stayed prejudiced, ready to fight one another.

Our creeds are not so different. They were born out of one single desire: the freedom and brotherhood of man. Our beliefs are not so different. We all fight for justice, equality, and human understanding. Our heritage is bound to the same small planet on which fate has told us to exist. Our goals are all similar, to make this country, this world a better place to live in.

Let us therefore unite this week in the true spirit of brotherhood and learn about one another so that we can wipe out many of our prejudices and go on from there together as one nation, one humanity indivisible. Only then the Christian martyrs nailed to the cross or the Jewish heroes burnt alive in their synagogues will not have died in vain; only then the world will be able to look forward to happiness and good will among man.

Students who are interested in securing summer positions are invited to register at the University Employment Bureau, Room No. 151, Waterman Building. Requests for applicants are commencing to come in from Hotels, Camps, and Clubs. Indications are that the summer resort season will open earlier this year.

All seniors of the Arts College who are called into the service prior to the end of the semester are asked to report that fact to Dean Swift in writing. Airmen Take Over Redstone Campus

Evacuation of Redstone campus! Kake Walk! This year they came simultaneously. Trying to pack a suitcase and take a little while off to go to the Masquerade is not so easy. Ask any of the former residents of Redstone campus.

Although we've realized that this was coming, it seemed quite far in the offing. With the word of the arrival of 500 or more men on Feb. 23, most of whom would have to be housed on Redstone campus, the problem of housing the coeds arose. This meant rooms for 80 girls and three house directors had to be found before the passing of the week.

The only immediate available places were the fraternity houses. The fraternity houses were most cooperative. After a last Kake Walk week-end in their houses the boys have turned over the fraternity houses to the coeds in distress. Delta Psi is to be occupied by the Redstone evacuees.

Robinson girls will be moved to Sigma Phi where the infirmary will be located for the duration. Kappa Sigma has turned over their house for the residents of Slade Hall. Some sorority girls in these houses will have to move to sororities.

Southwick, too, must be vacated. Last week girls spent their last gym class in Southwick. Even though the distance used to cause a grumble once in a while, they were rather sad to hold class there for the last time. However, we must do our part. Every article in this building had to be inventoried. The contents will be put in the girls' lounges in Waterman, the president's office, Mr. Page's office and in the office of the Dean of Women. The grand piano is to be transported to the Ira Allen Chapel. There will be no furniture storage with the exception of rugs and hangings. Every possible care is being taken.

The Southwick ballroom and gymnasium and the Robinson dining room will be turned over to the army to be used as barracks for the men. For the duration all the Redstone girls will be fed in Waterman. The banquet hall and faculty lounge will be opened up so that 150 girls can be fed at the same time.

The war is actually being brought home to the campus. We realize now that this is only the beginning of sacrifice. A war cannot be won unless every person fights for that victory. Since all of us cannot tote a gun it is our duty to make it easier for those who must. This is the first time that the whole campus has been called upon to do its part. We have shown that we can do our part when it is required. This is only a sample of what we'll do in the future. The spirit of both boys and girls has been excellent and the cooperation is greatly appreciated by those in charge of the evacuation.

It was the evening [illegible] several of the Colegrove [illegible] present. Edith unsealed the envelope when she looked inside she found the letters from her mother and grandmother which she had suspected but [illegible] from her grandmother, who had been living for 12 years.

There was a letter to be opened from her sister Ruth, who had been seven years old when she had written it.

There was also a look at Edith's baby in her father's letter, and an amusing account of his trials in taking care of Edith on her second birthday, who was evidently a very active one, from the account.

A number of newspaper clippings were also found in the letter. Pictures of the new city hall and junior high school were interesting not only as old news but as indicating the prosperity of the "Roaring Years" that preceded 1929.

Edith also read an account of the New England flood of that year, forgotten by many of us from other states. During the storm which accompanied the flood the Winooski bridge cracked from its pier almost killing a bus load of people.

All in all it was quite a novel way to write a birthday letter, don't you think?

Cats Take Close One From St. Lawrence

Kake Walk Crowd Thrilled As Evansmen Forced to Limit By Rival's 2nd Half Barrage

Score Tied at 45-45 Few Seconds Before End; Killick and Doherty Come Through in Pinch

[illegible] high riding Catamounts [illegible] a bad scare last Saturday [illegible] were forced to their [illegible] of a second half scoring [illegible] Scarlet of St. Lawrence [illegible] they emerged with a [illegible]. The game, played before [illegible] Kake Walk crowd, was [illegible] it held the audience on the [illegible] cats throughout the second [illegible] four minutes to go, Varsoki [illegible] dropped a foul shot to tie [illegible] all. The crowd was in a [illegible] their excited shouts were [illegible] each team struggled to make [illegible] winning point. First Murphy [illegible] cased through fouls and the [illegible] a tie at 45-45. Then Larry [illegible] through with a follow-up to [illegible] Cats in the lead as the fans rose [illegible] feet. The timekeeper raised the [illegible] both teams fought furiously for [illegible] of the ball. Doherty was fouled [illegible] going to shoot. He made the first [illegible] to bring the totals to 48-45. Then the Cats took the ball out on the side instead [illegible] for the second foul shot and they [illegible] Larries from the ball until the [illegible] ended.

Murphy Does Good Job

[illegible]'s high scoring forward, Larry [illegible] and his running mate, Milt Kaufman, spearheaded their team's attack. However the high note of the game was [illegible] job by Don Murphy, replacement [illegible] Ralph LaPointe now in the army. The [illegible] chipped in three points and played [illegible] excellent floor game being especially [illegible] on recovering the ball from the [illegible] defensive basket.

[illegible] play was fast from the start. Killick opened the scoring with two foul [illegible] and Kaufman followed them with a [illegible] in under. Hannon drove through [illegible] tally and the score was 4-2 for Ver[illegible]. Norm Beaulieu popped a one-[illegible]er from ten feet out and another on [illegible] shot. It was Killick to Beaulieu [illegible] Killick for a lay-up to give the Ver[illegible] a 10-3 margin.

[illegible]arsoki standing under the hoop alone [illegible] the next counter for the St. Law[illegible] quintet. He followed it with a foul [illegible]. Christie got loose for a lay-up. [illegible] and Murphy swished long shots. [illegible] made a two-hand toss but [illegible] retaliated with a set shot from [illegible] corner.

[illegible] the Green and Gold dropped a [illegible] shots. Doherty made a short [illegible]. Killick dribbled through, faking [illegible] Larries out of position for a lay-up. [illegible] followed this with a left-hand shot [illegible] out across the bucket. Kaufman [illegible] a two-hand jump shot to put the [illegible], in the lead, 24-10.

Half Ends 34-16

St. Lawrence put in a fresh five. [illegible] had in two fouls and then found [illegible] with a long pass for two more [illegible]. The Scarlet quickly shoved their [illegible] in again and Varsoki came [illegible] with two long ones. Doherty [illegible] a set shot just before Fuzzy sent [illegible] and five. Immediately George [illegible] scored in under. O'Conner made [illegible] a tussle under the hoop and [illegible] a pass into Johnston's hands [illegible]. The half ended with Ver[illegible] before by a tune of 34 to 16.

[illegible] back in the second canto the [illegible] began to click in their usual man[illegible] clubs had their first fives on [illegible]. Wicke opened with a set shot. [illegible] passed to Kaufman, who had [illegible] the floor ahead of his man, [illegible] spotted O'Conner, standing near [illegible] circle jumped and turned to drop [illegible] hand shot.

[illegible] team was having trouble [illegible] the ball off the back board for [illegible] shots. The St. Lawrence team [illegible] had the range. Hannon arched a hook shot but Killick countered with a left hand overhead shot. O'Conner moved through for a basket, while Murphy made one of his innumerous interceptions and passed to Killick who flipped it to Beaulieu to bring the score 40-24

After Christie had made two fouls and Hannon a hoop, Vermont sent in its second five as did the Larries. Phifer and Hawkins dropped three quick baskets which caused Coach Evans to put the first stringers back at once. Cioffi's set shot brought the Scarlet to within four points. The Larries' coach gave his first club a short breather during which time Killick, Joa, and Beaulieu each made foul shots Larry Killick's one-hander wasn't enough to hold the rush of three baskets by Hannon, Varsoki, and O'Conner and the St. Lawrence club was behind by only one point, 44-43.

After tying it up, the Larries' rush fell just short as the Catamounts managed to hold till the gun sounded. Murphy and Killick coming through with the much-needed points. The St. Lawrence team outscored the Cats 31-18 in the second canto as they began to hit the stride which they have shown all season.

Killick and Kaufman were good for 17 and 10 points respectively, with Beaulieu and Doherty also chipping in 7 points each. Varsoki and O'Conner were outstanding for St. Lawrence.

The Cats play their last game next Wednesday when they meet a team from Fort Ethan Allen.

Kittens to Tangle With Tank Busters In Final Contest

Ranks are Depleted But Several Stars Are Still on Hand

Fighting to end a season which up to now has been highly successful in a blaze of glory the Vermont J. V. on Wednesday will dribble along with the Tank Busters from Fort Ethan Allen.

The Tank Busters have been pressing along at a stiff clip for the team which has proven itself to be the best specialist team at the Fort has taken into camp the Fort varsity team which on December 10 gave Fuzzy Evans' boys a rough tussle only to lose in the final half by about 15 points.

The lineup of the Tank Busters is studded with many men who formerly starred on well-known high school and college teams, and their attack, featuring speed and deception is well balanced and coordinated.

Although all pepped up, and in fine fettle after a rousing victory over Winooski, the Kittens, if they are going to come out on top in this game, will be forced to go to the limit of their ability. After losing several boys to the E. R. C. two weeks ago, the rapidly diminishing ranks of Sherry Fogg's men were further depleted by the loss of Al Wees and Irv Goldstein. The absence of the steady, dependable Wees, and the fast moving Goldstein, greatly decrease the offensive and defensive power of the Kittens. The team, however, still has the flashy Bill Flanders and Mickey Cochran, and Joe Pribula, who constantly played hide and seek with the Winooski guards, should cause the Tank Busters trouble.

Time alone will tell whether the Tank Busters will be able to penetrate the Green and Gold armor plate. Whatever the outcome of the game is however, the J. V. will wind up a successful season for themselves and Sherry Fogg

Vermont's Green and Gold basketeers have proven themselves this year to be of high spark and caliber. A good team has to know how to lose and how to win and the Cats have these two qualities for they showed it when they beat Middlebury after having been trounced soundly by the Boston Coast Guard team.

Incidentally, our recent win over Middlebury clinched another State basketball championship to Vermont.

Basketball Team to End Season vs. 71st Artillery

Hoopsters' Last Game Is Tomorrow Evening

By LLOYD SPIEGEL

Bounding back with a bang the sharp shooting Catamounts will attempt to make it three victories in a row on Wednesday when they play the 71st Field Artillery team at Memorial Auditorium.

The Cats, playing without Chuck LaPointe showed tremendous worthy of praise as they went to town against St Lawrence on Saturday afternoon and they should click well tomorrow with the add of experience Don "Red" Murphy who filled in for LaPointe did a creditable job and should ready set the world on fire against the Fort

Fort Ethan Allen when they paraded the Catamounts in December showed that they really had something on the ball and they gave Fuzzy Evans boys a right mate before being subdued 57-36 Led by Jerry Otskey, who when he played professional ball was a one-man holy terror the Fort should come back with a gleam in their eye and murder in their heart, and go all out to defeat the Catamounts. Having been keeping in trim by playing other corps teams, the boys who man those big guns should be in fine fettle on Wednesday, and all spectators will see an excellent game. Besides Otskey, who scored 17 points against Vermont last time, there is speedy and tricky Sullivan at right guard. Dangerously fast and always on the alert, Sullivan dropped five baskets in the last time, and if he is hot may mean the difference between victory and defeat. The other members of the Fort's starting team will probably be Morin, Sweezey and Schroeder with Everson, Montanez and Kirby filling in.

The Cats will be led as usual, by ever dangerous, western shot expert Larry Killick. If Mr. Killick has one of his nights together with Milt Kaufman, Norm Beaulieu, and Bob Doherty, the Catamounts can be expected to ride high. If little Milt is up to his usual tactics there will be many a stolen ball, and if Bob Doherty has those blinkers trained, the nets will swish time and time again. King Norm is always out there in the center of the floor dropping them in, in full view of the crowd.

The starting lineup for Vermont will probably be the big "Four," Killick, Kaufman, Beaulieu, and Doherty, and either Henderson, Murphy, or one of the others filling in for the army-bound Ralph LaPointe.

Redstone Campus Move Belongings As Vt. Goes "War"

Physical Ed. Dept. At Southwick Also Must Be Relocated

[illegible] the light on Redstone campus this week-end. For all attitudes in the entire Cynic staff at least while people all have had the confidence of moving all their belongings to the lower end of the U. V. M. campus. But underneath the excitement there was a sadness at leaving, although every one was more than willing to give her part in the war effort.

Such went with the Physical Education Department. Moving out for their establishment in downtown and the packing and moving of all equipment. The rubber-shoes that the air force had carried and was taking over in Mineha left little time for thinking.

Miss Cummings said that she was sorry to leave. Southwick was a beautiful building and particularly planned for gym work and girls use. But Miss Cummings stated that of course she was ready to do her part and make any arrangements necessary for carrying out U. V. M.'s part in the war.

Miss Crowe felt much the same way. She said that moving from Southwick was a little harder blow to Miss Cummings who had worked so hard to get the building "for girls only" into its present well-equipped shape and now lose it. Miss Crowe, Miss Cummings, Miss Hoffman and the Redstone campus girls thought that moving out was too bad although they wouldn't want to sit tight on available ground while the army looked around for housing space.

The Physical Education Department may have to change the gym program, but in any event, they promise an interesting one. Just where classes will be held is still not known. President Millis is looking for a space for the gym department. Information will be posted on the V. Bulletin board Tuesday noon about Wednesday gym classes if possible.

All the gym equipment and furniture has been moved from Southwick to a new structure, Physical Education office in room 157 Waterman Building. Here the gym department is centrally located and here it will be ready to answer the many questions if the needs of U. V. M. needs. All the athletic equipment has been stored in two rooms on the second floor of Waterman Building where it will be easily accessible to any girl who wants to use it.

Moving has been a sudden blow to those connected with Southwick as well as the people on Redstone campus to say nothing of the men who had to empty their fraternity houses for a women's army of occupation. The gym department has weathered the storm nicely and will try to present a program as nearly like their present one as possible. The freshman girls about Mom all will continue their splendid work in preparation for Field Day.

Watch the "Y" bulletin board for announcements as to the when and where of future gym classes. Information will be posted as soon as the Physical Education Department knows definitely where it will teach.

Dr. Debye Will Speak At Sigma Xi Meeting

Doctor Peter Debye, professor of chemistry at Cornell University, will be the Sigma Xi speaker on March 22 at 8:00 p.m. in the student lounge of Waterman Building at the University of Vermont.

The title of Doctor Debye's lecture is "The Magnetic Approach to Absolute Zero." In the Scientific Monthly, quarterly publication of the Sigma Xi society, an explanatory footnote adds concerning this lecture, "The principles of magnetic cooling. Its application to temperatures ranging from 3 to 0.03 degrees absolute starting with liquid helium. What process is then reaching the absolute zero? Order and disorder in the atoms, cooling equivalent to increasing order. How to measure the temperature near the absolute zero. Irreversible phenomena. Can magnetic cooling be applied to the nucleus?"

Sigma Xi is a national society devoted to the promotion of research in science. The Vermont chapter announces that Doctor Debye's lecture will be open to any of the public who are interested.

Brotherhood Week Opening Thursday

individual presentation of an aspect of the slogan of the Conference for this year, namely "Victory Through Brotherhood." At the afternoon forum at 4 o'clock the same speakers will be prepared to answer questions from the floor and continue any aspects of the noon discussion which the audience wishes to have dealt with.

A Burlington Inter-Faith Council has been formed and is sponsoring a dinner at the Hotel Vermont for speakers and committee Thursday evening as well as a city-wide meeting to be held in the City Hall auditorium at 8:00. The city service clubs, women's clubs, fraternal organizations and all religious groups are cooperating to make the evening meeting a success. The city Inter-Faith Council also has representatives of both students and faculty from the University.

The team, representing the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths, is sent out by the National Conference of Christians and Jews which has New England headquarters in New Haven. The slogan of this National Conference is "For justice, amity, understanding, and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews."

Father Keeley, the Catholic member of the team, was born in 1908 in Hartford, Conn. He received his education at the Catholic University of America and at Yale University and was ordained to the priesthood in 1934. From that time he has been assistant at St. Joseph's parish in New Haven, and for the last four years has been Professor of Religion at Albertus Magnus College, also in New Haven.

Rabbi Sisskin is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, and received his preparatory schooling in England. In 1921 he came to America and attended the Universities of Chicago and Cincinnati, receiving his B.A. from the latter. In 1929 he was ordained at Hebrew Union College and since 1929 has occupied the pulpit of Congregation Mishkan Israel of New Haven. In 1941 he received his Ph. D. from Yale U., an honorary, and last year was appointed visiting fellow in the Department of Anthropology at that University.

The Rev. Harold G. Jones grew up in Dedham and in Boston, Mass. He graduated from Boston University in 1923 and from Yale University School in 1925. He has also studied at Chicago University. He has served as pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church in Fargo, N. D. and of the Mount Vernon Congregational Church in Boston. Since 1929 he has been minister of Plymouth Congregational Church—the largest Congregational Church in New Haven. He served in the U. S. Army in the first World War. He is a member of the New Haven Defense Council—chairman of unity and amity committee.

Glenn Wessels, noted artist and teacher, has been appointed assistant professor of fine arts at Washington State College.

Art Center Open To Student Body

Art, according to Prof. Elizabeth M. Colburn, head of that department at the University of Vermont, is "On the Alert" to meet the present need of the world for play, and the new Art Center at the University is ready to take its part in that program.

Says Professor Colburn, "Facilities are available in the Art Center's work shops for work along the line of any creative hobby, and the faculty is eager to help and advise with hobbies of all varieties.

"No," Miss Colburn adds, "you don't have to be 'arty' to have a hobby, as we know from the collectors of everything from stamps to buttons. Whatever the interest, the Art Center staff will cooperate with any creator or collector, to help him follow it in the most satisfactory way."

President Roosevelt has stressed this great need of leisure time activities for building and strengthening morale, developing confidence, skill and ability to appreciate. And the magazine section of the New York Times for Feb. 7 carried a page depicting the activities in a "Canteen for Artists" now being carried on in New York's Greenwich Village.

Hobby courses, at Lawrence University from which Pres. John S. Millis came to Vermont, were a decided success, and President Millis as well as the Art Center staff is anxious to meet the needs and enthusiasms of students and faculty, and also of the men sent to this campus for special military training.

Ideas for spare time hobbies include pottery modeling, stenciling, color printing, wood carving, painted wood, toys, photography, color photography, posters, cartoons, lithography, etching, painting.

While only 2 per cent of the total United States population is college trained, this group comprises 86 per cent of listings in the 1940-41 "Who's Who in America."

Teach Men Virtue States Dykhuizen In A. A. V. P. Talk

Philosophy Professor Mentions the Society of a Post-War World

He gave suggestions [illegible] a post-war philosophy of education to 30 professors after a dinner [illegible] at 6:30.

[illegible] an attempt to achieve an even [illegible] efficiency in carrying on the practical affairs of life will take place. This [illegible] for a continuation on the part of [illegible] education, of specialization, research and training in the technical and [illegible] skills.

Professor Dykhuizen believes that the root of the tensions, the conflicts and the antagonisms which characterize society everywhere is the fact that our institutions of higher learning have tended to neglect to teach men social virtue.

"Our great task, in short, is to teach men social virtue," emphatically states the philosophy professor.

"In training students to be able research men, engineers, surgeons and musicians, higher education in recent years seems to have overlooked the importance of training men in the most important skill of all—the skill to be good. This is precisely what higher education in the future must do if the mass democracy of the twentieth century is to be successful. This means that instructors should give the subject-matter of a course a moral and social as

Literary Society Membership Drive

On March first and second, Bluestockings, literary women's literary society, will accept literature in competition for pledging membership in the organization.

Persons interested in being considered by Bluestockings should hand in two pieces of work under a pen name, their real names written in a sealed envelope accompanying the work.

Preferable, both contributions of the candidate should not be of the same type. One essay, short story, poem, etc., is important.

A box will be in the Y Room of the [illegible] for the purpose of accepting the manuscripts.

The manuscripts will be considered at the next meeting of the club, which will [illegible] at 8 p.m. on March 9 in Room [illegible] Waterman Building.

U. V. M.'s Enrollment Decreased by Eighty

U. V. M.'s enrollment of 919 undergraduates for the second semester has been decreased by about 80 students, the Registrar's office estimated. This number is not final, however, as more boys will be leaving intermittently from now on.

League of Writers Meeting Tomorrow

President is Hoping for Large Attendance

The League of Vermont Writers, or as many as can overcome the travel situation, will gather on Saturday, Feb. 27, at 10 a.m. in Waterman Building at the University of Vermont to exchange experiences, discuss the present state of the markets, and gain stimulus from a day of shop talk. In the past it had been customary to divide this annual mid-winter meeting into clinics, for the discussion of the various phases of the writing game. But war, which has made so many changes in our regular living, has also changed the character of this meeting. This year it has been decided by those in charge that because of probably diminished numbers, the meeting will be in the form of one large round table, at which all the various forms of writing will have their turn. There will be discussions of importance to poets, novelists, short story writers, and for those who deal in non-fiction articles.

It is hoped that enough Vermont professional, selling authors will be present to lend zip and umph and the encouragement of success stories to make the day worth while to beginning writers. The group psychology which results from gathering of people who do the same job and have the same interests is in itself beneficial, and there will be, as usual in these meetings, an opportunity for criticism of scripts. If you are "stuck" on a story or an article, bring it along and let's all help each other, say the officers in charge of the meeting.

Because the Waterman cafeteria is being turned over to 500 army selectees arriving this week at the University, the luncheon which usually accompanies this meeting will not be available. "But this doesn't discourage us," says Prof. Leon W. Dean, president of the league, and Mrs. Electa Ladd, secretary. They urge that every member who can possibly do so stick a sandwich in his or her pocket and come along.

"And bring a friend," Professor Dean adds. "We want everyone in the state interested in writing, whether members or not."

Thetas Take 1st Prize In Recent "Contest"

Due to circumstances beyond control the results of Ariel-Staff and Sandal "Cover Contest" were unable to be announced at Kake Wlak night as planned. However, the winners are as follows: First prize to the Kappa Alpha Thetas, second prize to Mildred Mack '43 and honorable mention to the Pi Beta Phi House. The pictures were judged on the basis of photographical merit and subject and have been sent into the Collegiate Digest for approval. The committee of judges was as follows: Priscilla Perkins '44, chairman; L. Killick '44, Shirley Buckingham '44, and Professors B. F. Ladd and P. A. Moody.

Herbert R. Pierce Made New Trustee

U. V. M. Man's Election Final One in Program

At the meeting of trustees of the University of Vermont, held on Saturday, Feb. 20, in connection with the Kake Walk festivities, Herbert R. Pierce of Montpelier, of the class of 1910, was elected to the board in place of Dr. Frank F. Farmer of St. Johnsbury, whose resignation, received at the December meeting, was accepted at this time.

Mr. Pierce's appointment is the third and final one in completion of the six-year program which provides for the election of members to the board for terms of six years, the elections to take place in the even years, when the legislature does not meet and elect its trustees, thus staggering the elections. Mr. Pierce's term will expire Feb. 1, 1948.

Herbert Robbe Pierce was born in Bellows Falls, Nov. 10, 1888. After graduating from the University of Vermont he studied law at George Washington University. He began business with the Robinson Paper Co. of Bellows Falls, and later became secretary to Senator William P. Dillingham. In 1916 he became associated with the National Life Insurance Co. at Montpelier, where he now holds the positions of vice-president and secretary.

In World War I, Mr. Pierce spent 22 months in the U. S. navy with rank of lieutenant, junior grade.

Children's Books Shown in Library

The attention of the students, especially those interested in elementary education, is called to the exhibition of children's books in the library. These books are the loan of the Vermont Free Public Library Commission. They represent the better books published this year for children of all ages, ranging from picture books for little tots to simplified books on technical material for teen age youngsters.

Aside from the usual amount of fiction there are a number of biographies, stories of other lands, and scientific books. Among the biographies, "The Man Who Dared to Care," the story of James Oglethorpe, "Decatur of the Old Navy," "Sir Wilfred Grenfell," "Dancing Star, the Story of Anna Pavlova," and "A Recruit for Abe Lincoln" are noteworthy. The growing interest in our sister countries is demonstrated by "Canada and Her Story," "In Mexico They Say," and "Kembi, Jungle Indian," one of the children of the American series. "Horns and Antlers," a delightful book by Wilfred S. Bronson, tells about North American deer and antelopes. One of the outstanding books in the technical field is the "Model Aircraft Handbook" by William Winter, which contains many detailed scale drawings. "All About Broadcasting" is filled with excellent photographs illustrating the subject matter. A new illustrated edition of "Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare" can not be overlooked.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Henceforth my place of business is the Memorial Room, main floor Waterman. The hours are 2.15 to 5.15 p.m. on Tuesdays, and Wednesdays from 11 to 12 a.m.

Rev. Richard Weld Recites Negro Poems

Bluestockings Society heard a powerful argument for the equality of the negro race with the white when they met Tuesday evening in the South Conference Room of the Waterman Building. Rev. Richard Weld of Shelburne recited some of his favorite poems by colored people. Few of the poems could have been detected as written by a colored person.

After hearing a number of poems, the members entered into a discussion of the relative equality of races and the possibility of removing barriers by intermarriage. Mrs. Weld also was present and contributed to the discussion.

Rev. Weld was graduated from Wesleyan and Yale Divinity School only a few years ago. His family has for several generations been active in advancing negro education. He himself has many friends among the negroes and Japanese.

Faith Prior '43, president of Bluestockings, announced that manuscripts may be submitted by students interested in becoming members. The box will be placed in the Book Store for the next two weeks.

Faculty Members To Do Their Part

Profs Do Double Duty For 500 New Selectees

Faculty at the University of Vermont are dusting off long unused textbooks and refreshing their minds on subjects once familiar but in which they have not recently specialized, in order to carry their different shares in the all out war demands occasioned by the arrival of the 500 army student selectees assigned to the University. One of the heaviest loads of the army scholastic program will be carried by the physics department. Besides three hours of lecture courses for each of the five sections, numbering 100 students each, the army requirements include three two-hour laboratory periods for each student, making a total of nine hours a week for each of the 500 men.

Prof. N. S. Walbridge, acting head of the physics department, has his staff set up for the program and plans to use the members of his department for the 15 lecture hours. The laboratory periods will be handled by drafting qualified faculty from other departments and by using student assistants. This subject has been the most difficult to arrange because of the heavy hour requirements.

Since the University has never had a separate geography department the 13 sections in this subject, consisting of 40 men each, to be held three times each week, will be under the direction of Prof. Elbridge C. Jacobs, head of the geology department. Besides the members of his own staff, Professor Jacobs is recruiting members of the economics department to assist in handling this course.

Prof. James E. Bullard and Dean Elijah Swift, heads of the mathematics departments in the engineering and arts colleges respectively, will direct the mathematical end of the program. Due to the large number of senior engineers graduated in the January commencement, several of the faculty of the engineering

Secretary's Report Reveals Busy Meeting

The regular meeting of the officers and executive committee of the University of Vermont Student Government was called to order at 4:15 in the South Conference Room of Waterman by the president, Natalie Spear. The roll call was read and the minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted.

There were no committee reports of any of the regular subcommittees.

The plans for the War Council on the campus will be drawn up in further detailed form after consultation with members of the Middlebury War Council and will be presented at the next meeting.

The officers and executive committee voted that Beryl Cheney '45 serve as the third member, pro tempore, of the Finance Committee with Julie Fletcher and Bob White until the next election.

Committee Draws Up Slate

It was pointed out that on the first Monday in March the nominating committee consisting of Deans Simpson, Swift, Eckhard and Carrigan and three members each from Boulder and Mortar Board societies will draw up the slate for the new officers. Elections will take place later that week. After the results of these elections have been announced the nominations for the 10 members of the executive committee will be made by petition of 50 or more students to the above nominating committee. The members of the executive committee which will serve for next year will be four present juniors, four sophomores and two freshmen.

Then followed a discussion of the election each year of an assistant or subtreasurer to the treasurer of Student Government to assist in the work of the treasurer and the finance committee and who would be expected to serve as treasurer the following year. This would involve an amendment to the constitution of Student Government. The amendment will be placed before the student body at the time of the election of the executive committee.

Student Meeting Place Discussed

The problem was brought up concerning the fact that when the army takes over the facilities of the Redstone campus and the Waterman cafeteria, there will be no student meeting place which will afford relaxation. It was suggested that Julie Fletcher investigate the possibilities of setting up such a campus lounge in the Waterman Building.

A letter was read from the March of Youth Incorporated of Washington, D. C., which requested Student Government reaction and opinion on extending suffrage to 18, 19 and 20 year olds. The officers and executive committee discussed the question and voted unanimously against the proposal. The reaction will be sent to the investigating committee.

Suggestions Brought Up

Two suggestions received in the Student Government suggestion box were then discussed. The problem of drinking fountains and drinking cups in the Waterman Building will be investigated by Houghton Pearl for a report at the next meeting.

It was also suggested that there is a need for a placement test similar to the one given in English to be given in freshman hygiene so that girls who have had

Summer Term Plans

Amid the preoccupations of present world and campus situations the University of Vermont nevertheless considers the welfare of its own students a problem of great importance. Evidence of this is seen in the proposed summer plans of the accelerated program. Although complete plans for a summer term have not yet been formulated, an accelerated program similar to that of last year will be attempted. In a letter to the CYNIC Dean Swift asks that students desiring to attend the summer term obtain and fill out an appropriate blank by this Saturday. Because this is a pertinent matter affecting either directly or indirectly a number of U. V. M. students we are taking the liberty of printing his letter below.

To the Editor of the CYNIC

As yet the University has been unable to formulate complete and final plans for the Summer Term. As announced, the Senate voted to adopt a three-term year with a Summer Term commencing June 7 and ending September 22, 1943. The work of this term will be primarily for men who have just graduated from high school and wish to get a year's college work before entering the service of the armed forces. The courses to be given will be those primarily for Engineers, Pre-Medical students, and scientists, namely Chemistry, Biology, Mathematics, English, and language with possibly one or more alternate courses.

The Summer Quarter last year and the accelerated program was designed primarily for men who wish to complete their training in specialized curricula or fulfill requirements for graduation at as early a date as possible. Since we now expect that at the end of the semester most of the men over 18 will be called into the Reserves or inducted into the Army with the possibility that they will be sent to some college for further specialized training, it does not appear as if there would be any great necessity for offering courses for upperclassmen.

The University, however, recognizes an obligation to continue the accelerated program where the students have counted on being able to take work in the Summer Quarter and insofar as conditions warrant and the demand for courses justifies giving them will endeavor to make suitable course offerings for the Summer Term.

I have prepared a questionnaire which I am asking all to fill out who would like to attend the Summer Term. These blanks may be obtained from my secretary. Please be careful to give courses desired or courses that you would be willing to take as substitutes if necessary and also your reason for wishing to attend the Summer Term.

Students wishing to attend the Summer Term must fill out this blank by Saturday, Feb. 27.

To the Editor of the CYNIC

Due to the landing of the air corps at U. V. M. we, the students, must take off from many of our habitual haunts. The Physics Department tells us that all that goes up must come down, so we now are looking for places to come down. One of the hardest haunts to leave is the cafeteria which supplies our gastric needs, and for which there is at present no substitute. My suggestion is that the "old coffee corner" in the Old Mill be opened again to facilitate the students landing, and to help us stay awake during the accelerated spring months.

GEORGE B. RUBLE '45

To the Editor of the CYNIC

Once upon a time, long, long ago, when I was in the fourth grade, the teacher held a penmanship paper up in front of the class. It was a beautiful paper; the circles and lines were in perfect rhythm and shading. And right in the middle of the paper was an ink spot. "What's the first thing you see when you look at this paper?" the teacher asked. She was right, of course. The perfect background faded into the distance, and the blot appeared all out of perspective.

Kake Walk, 1943, reminds me somewhat of that lesson. Working against unusual and trying circumstances, the Directors of Kake Walk gave us a memorable weekend where many of us had believed none could exist. But there's one thing that will be remembered long after other details have faded. That's the gruesome silence while the audience waited for a cake to appear for the winner of the women's ice sculpture. That was one of the worst faux pas I've ever seen made public, and responsibility for it should be laid directly on the desk of the Directors. In addition, I think the campus in general would be interested in a brief history of the incident. I take my information from "usually r e l i a b l e sources."

1. The Directors did not intend to make any award for the winning entry in the women's ice sculpture contest. Apparently they believe that the female contingent should find adequate reward in the joy of creation and the privilege of blowing on cold hands. They maintained, and I quote, "The women will make entries whether we give an award or not, so why give one?"
2. Under verbal pressure from those directly concerned with management of the contest, the Directors finally capitulated to the extent of promising something resembling a cup-cake in size.
3. The Directors had no intention of providing the promised award.
4. The Directors apparently didn't even have the foresight or courtesy to make the matter clear, either to the winner or to Professor Dean, thereby putting them both in a position which could only have been painfully embarrassing.
5. To add to the general discomfort of both participants and audience, the Directors passed up their last chance of redeeming themselves in the public eye by sitting passively in the corner, nibbling frosting from their own thoughtfully provided individual and basic ice pictures. At least we have some gentlemen left at Vermont, in the persons of Joe and the boys of the band.

It isn't the fact that the Thetas had no chance either to have their cake or eat it that makes us sore, fellows. Probably their waistlines are in no more crying need of extra calories than those of the rest of us. It's just the ubiquitous "principle of the thing." We object to misrepresentation, we object to broken promises, we object to having you put U. V. M. on the spot, and in front of guests, too! It was a distinctly unpleasant incident, and I for one, applaud Professor Dean's choice of words when he called the Directors "crumbly."

Aside from this blot on the paper, thanks to the Directors for a great weekend. Too bad I wasn't absent, with measles, that day in the fourth grade!

Rescinded orders seem to be the order of the day. First the Delts were to go to the A. T. O. House, then to the Owl House. Now the fact is reasonably settled that they are to live at the first choice.

Monk Martin was a guest over the weekend. He is working in Rutland awaiting his call to the marines. Phil Chesarone, co-captain of the past season's football team, was also a visitor.

SIGMA NU

The Sigma Nu House will henceforth be known as Kappa Sigma Nu. About ten Kappa Sigs are making their new home at the Williams St. fraternity. Red Delano who graduated at midyears was a weekend guest. He is now working as resident engineer at Curtis-Wright in Buffalo.

DELTA PSI

The boys made good use of the house over the weekend getting the last licks in before leaving. By now most of the Delta Psis have moved into the A. T. O. House. Although they took their cook with them, they left the maid behind, so from now on they will be making their own beds.

Lyman Gallup '41, a top sergeant at Camp Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith III, and Herb Small '42 were also guests. Lyman Gallup was a track star when he was at Vermont. Chas. Smith and Herb Small walked for the Kake last year.

Ned Crown '46, versatile cheerleader, is leaving Thursday for the army.

PHI DELTA THETA

Lt. John Spasyk and Bob Foster '42 returned to U. V. M. for the weekend.

Dave Tuholski, Larry Lyerlie, Lou Cutting and Don Nutter are to leave for the air corps this week.

PHI SIGMA DELTA

Mal Mickler ex-'45 was a guest over the weekend. Jimmy Baum '43 was visited by his brother, Jerry, Syracuse '45 and his sister, Gloria. Another brother-sister combination were guests of Joe Margolis '44. They were Bill, Middlebury '45 and Maxine Margolis. Numerous other friends and relatives were also here.

Norm Seltzer and Lennie Paul left Sunday night for the air corps.

The boys found it hard to get up Monday morning due to circumstances within their control.

The Phi Sigs as a whole want to welcome the 650 soldiers who will wander helplessly onto the hill. However, the boys feel confident that the capable women of Vermont will soon have the situation well in hand.

Jimmy Baum has his hand in a sling after dropping the handkerchief so strenuously during the Kake Walking.

Gil Manheim, who never wasted energy, began work at 5.30 Monday morning.

Bernie Glass, Phi Sig alumnus now at Boston University Law, has casually let it be heard that he will do the Mendelssohn March as soon as he gets in V-I. That will be [illegible] abouts.

The Phi Sigs did [illegible] their pledges off easy [illegible] of an appropriate way during Hell Week. The [illegible] pledges sell war stamps [illegible] pus and also down town [illegible] that 145 dollars worth was sold. Of course [illegible] through other ordeals [illegible]

Cats Shell Fort Team In Final Contest

[illegible]'s team was by far one of the [illegible] operating machines it has to [illegible] against us and the game was [illegible] enjoyed by those who witnessed [illegible].

[illegible] many of the Green and Golders it [illegible] last court contest for a long time [illegible] victory over the Fort brings [illegible] curtain on another successful [illegible] season.

[illegible] drew first blood by tossing in a [illegible] from way out and Bob concluded Vermont's offensive efforts by sinking a [illegible] seconds before the final gun.

The game began with both teams trying [illegible] some futile long shots. Then came Kaufman's long shot. Doherty followed [illegible] a bucket while the Fort's Canale [illegible] in a long one from center court. [illegible] quick goals by Killick and Vermont [illegible] 8-2. Loane of the Fort tossed in a [illegible] pivot shot and the score was 8-4. [illegible] under by Beaulieu made the score [illegible] and Vermont from here put on a [illegible] pace which found it on the [illegible] end of a 17-10 score at the first [illegible].

In the second quarter the Fort tried in [illegible] to halt Vermont's scoring but the Cats surged ahead to a 30-20 advantage.

Second Stringers Go In

Coach Evans used his second stringers [illegible]. They made a good account for themselves, tossing 8 points through the [illegible] and holding their opponents to only [illegible] points.

The second half opened with each team starting fast and matching each other [illegible] for shot.

Killick, Beaulieu and Doherty tossed [illegible] three buckets for the Cats and the Fort's Kiley and Canale tossed in 2 and [illegible] points respectively. Kaufman countered [illegible] a short set shot to keep the match [illegible]. The third period ended with goals by Kaufman and Doherty to make the score 46-35.

The final period packed excitement [illegible] as for a moment it seemed that the Fort men would snatch victory from the [illegible]. As it was, they threatened every [illegible] the way with Canale and Kiley [illegible] leading their attack. With four minutes to go Loane was bowled over by [illegible] Doherty and was forced to leave the game. Swezey replaced him and [illegible] tried to make up the loss of [illegible] by tossing two consecutive baskets. His efforts, however, were in vain, for the Cats continued their blistering pace, pouring points through the hoop right up to the final gun.

Loane and Canale shone offensively for the Fort and kept the Army men in the game.

Bowling Matches Become Exciting

Two more games in the hard-fought intertraternity bowling league were played off last Tuesday evening. The important match between Tau Epsilon Phi and Sigma Phi was played off first and proved to be an exciting contest. Both teams bowled well, but the TEP's were not to be denied and they soon forged ahead to win by a score of 7-0. TEP bowler Herbie Robinson ran away with a high single tally of 119.

On the other side of the alleys, a match between Phi Sigma Delta and Delta Psi was played off. Even though veteran Phi Sig Herman Thomas took single honors with a score of 113, good bowling by Delts Henderson and Boardman soon proved too much for their opponents. The Phi Sigs had a 20-odd pin lead at first, but they soon fell behind as the Delts laid in two or three strikes at crucial moments to triumph by a score of 5-2.

To date, February 24, the standings are:

Individual Scoring For Full Season

With the end of the season comes the time for scoring totals and averages. The Cats enjoyed an excellent year, posting an average of 47.56 points per game. Individually, Larry Killick set an outstanding pace as he hit the strings for a 15.13 average, as well as displaying the best passing game seen in these parts in many a year, if not the best. One other Vermonter hit the double figures in the average column, this being Capt. Bob Doherty, who arched his high looping shots through for a 10.15 average in the 16 games the team played.

Following are the totals for the various Cats for the complete season:

Director Post Deplores Lack of Sport Interest

Intramural sports will be dropped unless more interest is shown, it was announced Wednesday by Director Archie Post. Already the ski meet has been called off because of bad weather and very little enthusiasm. The gym will be used by the aviation cadets from 8-11 in the morning and 1-6 during the afternoon, but if enough students show a desire an intramural track meet can be held in the near future. All interested in entering such a meet please contact Coach Post. This may be the only chance to take part in competitive sports outside of regular gym classes.

Interfraternity basketball has been concluded with the Independents crowned champions. Only one game of the two out of three was played as the A. T. O's, winners of the other league, lost most of their men to the service. However, the Independents won this clash and earned the new cup to be given this year.

N. H. University Wins Ski Carnival

Experienced Competition Is Too Much for Cats

By PHIL SYLBERT

Last Saturday, Feb. 20, at the annual Middlebury Carnival the University of New Hampshire carried off honors for the second successive year.

Vermont was well represented by Capt. Art Paterson, Harvey Goodell, Bud Pierce, Bob Goss, and Brud Sutton. However, the usual powerful New Hampshire, Dartmouth, and Norwich teams managed to put the Catamounts where they could do no harm. Although Norwich held an early margin following the morning's slalom events, New Hampshire proved too strong even for Dartmouth, and they amassed a winning score of 575.92 by the end of the second day. The Wildcats romped off with firsts in cross-country, jump and combined jump and cross country, and a second and third in the downhill and slalom events respectively.

The thrilling ski jump, always the highlight of these winter games, drew a large crowd. Sawyer of Norwich won this event in very fine style indeed. It was interesting to note that nearly all the jumpers retained good form even though the day was warm and the snow quite heavy and wet. In fact, there were not more than a dozen spills, attesting once more to the skill of the participants.

Although the Vermonters had done well against Bates two weeks previous to the carnival, the experienced competition offered by the various colleges present proved too much for them. Paterson, Sutton, and Goodell fell way behind in the slalom, but improved slightly in the downhill and other events.

It may be mentioned that the scoring was largely compiled on a team basis, a factor which explains why New Hampshire came out on top, beating the green from Dartmouth by a good ten point margin.

Dr. Ladd to Speak

After hearing many interesting talks concerning the various religions in existence today, including a very helpful talk given last Sunday at the Cathedral by Father Joy, Collegium has decided that it would be a good idea to find out something about our own faith. And so this Sunday at 7.00 Doctor Ladd will speak on some of the aspects of Congregationalism. Everyone is cordially invited to the talk and to the social hour which follows.

Before it had its first building a century and a quarter ago, Alleghany College had a 10,000-volume library, then second only to Harvard's in this country.

Vermont Kittens Pile Up Win Over Independent Team

Sherry Fogg's Players Really Start Clicking In 2nd Half of Game

A powerful Independent team champ game of intertraternity competition succumbed to the Vermont Kittens 60-18 Wednesday night at Memorial Auditorium.

Sherry's boys started out with the finesse and skilful ball handling that they have shown in previous games and it wasn't until the second half that they really clicked as a team.

The first quarter passed with each team "feeling" out the other as the 4-3 score indicates. Fitzsimmons and Corey tossed in ringers for the Independents while the Jayvees had only Pribula's goal and Flanders' foul to show on the right side of the ledger.

The next period was practically scoreless as far as the Independents were concerned for only one basket was made in their cause by Fitzsimmons. Meanwhile the Kittens scored 8 to put them into a 11-6 lead at half time.

The third and final quarters found both teams hitting their stride, but the Independents' best was apparently not good enough for they fell helplessly to the tune of 30-18.

Flanders and Pribula starred offensively for the Jayvees, each tossing 13 and 11 points respectively through the hoop.

For the Independents Corey paced his team with 9 points and Fitzsimmons was a close second with 8.

U. V. M. Freshman Writes Vividly of His First Shave

By Downright Richard Pate

I awoke one day the merest one morning in May [illegible] I made a discovery that revolutionized my life. For a moment I stood and believed what my eyes showed me. I looked closer and pinched myself. I knew that I [illegible] yet be mistaken. I was right. The turning point of my life was at hand. I was the proud owner of a "manly hair" mustache and all of four hairs on my chin. There were four I know because I counted them. Four hairs. I was grateful as my expanding chest swelling with pride snapped button after button from my much too small shirt. Then dawned upon me the realization of the fact that I must shave. Without a moment's hesitation I started to soap my face. After the "bristles" had been softened thoroughly I scraped the razor in a veteran like manner and proceeded to remove the "beard." Slowly, cautiously I drew the razor across my face stopping at intervals to inspect my progress. Having completed the task of removing all four hairs, I continued on to my mustache. In the act of removing the hair from my upper lip I soon discovered that I was removing at small spurts as I was previously. At the loss of the great many I had wanted around, but four times. And the last I brought on the first time. Drying my self I saw water clearing below. I applied a few my invisible shaving lotion. Ah! but it felt good. To counterbalance the [illegible] I applied the Gentlemen's Facial Powder for "After Shaving." Smelling strong about as a perfumery, I made my appearance at the breakfast table. Dad caught the scent of his lotion and asked if I had used it on my hair. On my hair? Or rather not. Then in as manner as possible I told him what I had done.

"After all," I remarked, even though there wasn't much to shave it didn't look right for my men to go around with unshaven faces."

Dad smiled and agreed, thereby causing another of my buttons to go sailing through space.

I was warned about the "five o'clock shadow." But to my dismay I found that it came for me but once a month, and always the same four hairs. That did not bother me though, for I had had my first shave.

Dean Hills' Party Coming March 19

Student Committees In Charge of Affair

A custom which is already becoming a tradition on the campus of the University of Vermont is Dean Hills' Maple Sugar Party to be held this year on Friday evening, March 19, in the gymnasium.

The purpose of the sugar party is to honor the Dean Hills Fund which was established in 1937 in honor of 50 years of service to the University by Dr. Joseph L. Hills, now dean emeritus of the agricultural college. The fund is to provide scholarships to help needy agricultural students.

The evening's program is in charge of student committees from the agricultural school and home economics department, and will consist of the traditional sugar on snow, doughnuts, pickles and—if possible coffee—to be followed by group singing, an entertainment not yet announced, and dancing.

As usual, Dean Hills will be the honor guest. "My function is only to lend my name and presence," he says modestly.

Leonard Harrington Elected Sports Editor

At a recent meeting of the senior staff of the Cynic Leonard Harrington was elected to the position of Sports Editor. He will fill the place left vacant by Private Phil Johnson of the U. S. army. Working under Editor Harrington will be Jerry Jaworsky, Bob Ward, Lloyd Spiegel and Phil Seibert. All of these men have had experience covering sports for other papers than the Cynic.

Public Is Urged To Use Library

Individuals doing research work on their state or on their family trees, or clubs desiring to arrange unusual programs having to do with Vermont, past or present, will find the Wilbur Library in the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont a helpful source of material which the library is eager to place at the disposal of the public, according to librarian Doris P. Harvey.

Mrs. Harvey wishes the public would make more use of the library. "There seems to be a mistaken impression that it is merely an archive for the storing of valuable books and records, instead of a place where people may come and browse," she says.

The library collection includes a wide variety of Vermontiana, consisting of manuscripts, ancient diaries, letters and books, old and rare, or current, all of them open to inspection, and some of which may even be taken from the library, according to Mrs. Harvey. Recently a Williams College professor came in, looking for "different" material for a town history which he was preparing. Having found what he wanted, he then turned his attention to the diaries, with the result that he changed his plans and remained in town two days longer than he had intended in order to examine them.

"What a beautiful room!" exclaimed the wife of a faculty member recently. "I wish I had known before that there was such a place as the Wilbur Room where one could relax and read."

Students too are often amazed that the library is open for their use. "Are we really allowed to browse and study here?" one of them asked the other day.

Mrs. Harvey is anxious that everyone, general public, faculty and students, understand that they are welcome at any time, from nine to 12 in the morning and from two to five in the afternoon, and that she will be glad to assist by mail anyone who wishes help with research problems and is unable to come to the library.

Sophomore Aides Busy Doin' Things

The Sophomore Aides have taken over the selling of defense stamps. Every Tuesday and Thursday the stamps will be on sale on the main floor or down at the entrance to the cafeteria in the Waterman Building.

Are you buying your share of defense stamps? A ten or twenty-five cent investment benefits you and someone in the services. Forego a milkshake or a package of cigarettes and buy at least one stamp every Tuesday and Thursday.

U. V. M. alumni in the services are going to be kept informed of the events and status of their Alma Mater. The Sophomore Aides have assumed the task which promises enjoyment for all concerned.

The Sophomore Aides, with an eye to money matters, sold candy at the Kake Walk. They had one left over which was sold to the dorms to sweeten up the girls after the exasperating task of mopping.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Mrs. Dodge at the Theta House was awakened early Tuesday morning by a series of graduated shrieks proceeding in logical sequence from one room to the next. "It must be Janet Dike Reed," said she to herself. And sure enough it was. (The girls were doing the shrieking—not Janet.)

There will be a tea for the alumnae next week Thursday from 4-5:30.

The Thetas are still looking for a piece of kake.

Marge Anthony's cactus is doing much better now.

DELTA PHI EPSILON

Two girls were pledged into the sorority last Sunday morning, both of the class of '45. They are Florence Hecht and Thelma Jacobs.

Ellie Berg is eagerly anticipating a visit one of these days from down Baltimore way.

Lucille Goldstein and others are getting a big kick out of the aghast silence which greets them when they now answer the phone with "Delta Psi House."

A new process of reclaiming hundreds of tons of vital defense metals now wasted as scrap has been reported by Dr. John Wulff of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

105 mm Anti-Tank Gun Displayed for R. O. T. C.

A 105 mm anti-tank gun was on display last week for the benefit of the R. O. T. C. students. The gun was brought down from Fort Ethan Allen on its own trailer and was demonstrated by some army men from the fort. The gun has a five-inch barrel and its 105 mm. shell will pierce a piece of armor plate five inches thick at 1,000 yards. Its accuracy is a target 30 inches wide at 1,000 yards. It is mounted on a swivel and is therefore easily turned in any direction, thus increasing its effectiveness. This gun has its own anti-aircraft gun mounted next to it. It has a speed of about 50 miles per hour, and is extremely mobile over rough terrain. This gun has been in constant use in North Africa, and has proved its worth many times. Because of its mobility it is very well suited for desert warfare, and has had great success in its encounters with German and Italian tanks.

college have lighter schedules than usual and will therefore be able to assist the two mathematics departments as will certain experienced faculty from other departments. The mathematics classes will be in 17 sections of 30 men each and will meet four times each week.

Professor Pope in English and Professor Evans in history plan to pack the schedules of their own department faculties as full as possible, but they too will find it necessary to call upon other departments to some extent. There will be 20 sections of 25 men each in English History will be divided into 13 sections, each of which will have 40 men. Each class in both of the departments will meet three times each week.

Upon the completion of the five months course this group of men, all of them at present ranked as privates, will be sent on to more advanced training centers for flight training as pilots, bombardiers, or navigators.

well as an intellectual or historical orientation, and that they should not treat the courses as mere frameworks on which to hang ethical or social sermonizations.

"Finally," says Professor Dykhuizen, "the post-war world will witness an increasing amount of leisure for the great proportion of people as the result of greater efficiency in carrying on the work of society. The duty which this situation places on higher education is to cultivate the tastes and sensitivities of students so as to enable them to derive the highest value from their leisure. Education in the past has opened the door and introduced students to great works in literature, art, music, etc., but somehow it has not succeeded in developing in the student an enduring interest in these things. Our colleges and universities must do this if the ugliness of the trappings of our industrialized society are to give way to beauty and if the mediocre tastes of the masses are to be replaced by more elevated ones.

"The key to the successful performance of its tasks is for higher education to recognize that the student is not a passive receptacle needing to be filled with material from the outside but an active and dynamic creature capable of developing interests, attitudes and habits," asserts Professor Dykhuizen. "Higher education, to be significant, must provide the student with experience designed to yield these."

A lengthy and spirited discussion followed the address.

Princeton University in the last academic year gave $170,895 in scholarship grants, the largest sum in the university's history.

Music Lovers Meet Sunday Afternoon

Burlington Society Gives First Concert

True lovers of music found respite from stormy weather Sunday afternoon at the first of two consecutive concerts of the Burlington Chamber Music Society which was given at the house of Professor and Mrs. H. G. Bennett.

The atmosphere of the occasion was at once gracious and informal, thanks to the charm of Mrs. Bennett who announced the various pieces and commented upon several of them. She explained, first of all, that the society, formed by various residents of Burlington, was handicapped by the loss of members.

The first number on the program was a Trio for Flute, Violin and Piano by Bach which was characteristic of that composer. Until one became used to the size of the room, the vibrations of the flute were disturbing, but the piece was sympathetically played by Mrs. Bennett at the piano, Mrs. MacNamara on the flute and Mr. Anselmo on the violin.

Next came three pieces for the piano by Brahms, played by Mrs. Bennett. She spoke of the composer with real affection and mentioned that although he was reticent as an individual, he was also highly intense and passionate, which feeling is reflected in his music. He had the real love of nature of which we "transplants" in a new country are apt to be less aware. She played Romanza in G major which was warm, rich and constrained, Intermezzo in C major which was "puckish" and full of contrasts, and Rapture in E flat major. This last was very effective, especially the second part which was brilliantly played with great force.

After this, a Sonata for two flutes by Kuhlau (a friend of Beethoven) was played, using a violin in place of the second flute, played by Mrs. MacNamara and Mr. Anselmo. This was, on the whole, tight in character and was daintily played. The two instruments played well together and were well balanced, but the piece was rather exhaustive and its technicalities, rather difficult to follow.

Last, was a Sonata in A major by Grilla with Professor Bennett at the piano and Mr. Anselmo on the violin. "Exciting" is the only word for it from the brilliant

Army Brings Great Strain to Various Departments Here

Physics Department Drafts Students As Lab. Instructors

There are many departments in the University that are undergoing drastic changes for the new army program. New instructors have been obtained and students have been acquired for help in the laboratory courses. This new program went into effect Monday, March 1, and will continue for five months for this unit.

Army Program

The Math department has had to acquire more instructors than any other department to take care of the army courses. The courses require 80 hours for this unit of men for a period of five months and requires each member of the department to take on one section of army students in addition to their usual load. The courses included in the program are Arithmetic Review, Algebra, Plane and Solid Geometry and Spherical Trigonometry. The set-up comprises 17 sections which are in session from 8.00 in the morning until 6.00 in the evening on all days except Saturday. The only student course that had been dropped is Math V-I which so closely assimilated that of the Army Air Forces College Training Program, that it seemed unnecessary to keep up the course. Also, the personnel of that class dwindled from 10 to 2 because of the induction of several of our men students into the service. In order to take care of student courses, many classes were interchanged among the instructors in order to better the schedule; thus, some of the students are now in different sections. No advanced courses will be dropped, such as Calculus, but will remain on the same schedules previous to entrance of the army into U. V. M. All the Math classes for the army will be held in the Old Mill, as well as numerous other classes, since it has the largest classrooms and black

TWO VERMONT MEN PROMOTED IN CORPS

Maxwell Field, Ala., Feb. 25—From the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt., two young men have reported to the Army Air Forces Pre-Flight School for Pilots at Maxwell Field, Alabama, from the Nashville Army Air Center (AAFCC), Nashville, Tenn., to begin the second phase of their training as pilots in the U. S. Army Air Forces' expanding program.

These cadets are receiving nine weeks of intensive physical, military and academic instruction at Maxwell Field, preparatory to beginning their actual flight training at one of the many primary flying schools located in the Army Air Forces Southeast Training Center.

These men are Cadet John Winston Goodrich, 72 Barre St., Montpelier, Vt., attended the University '40-'42 as a student of mechanical engineering; he received civilian pilot training here in '42. He was accepted as an aviation cadet in the Army Air Forces January 7, 1943. Cadet Richard Warren Pope, 38 Greenwood Road, Wellesley Hills, Mass., attended the University '40-'42, and was accepted as an aviation cadet in 1942. These cadets began their pre-flight course at Maxwell Field, Alabama, on January 31, 1943.

Nan Lagerstedt To Give Performance Thursday

Character Sketches to Be Presented For Benefit of Greek War Relief

Next Thursday night the Women's Honorary Societies will present an interesting and unusual program for the benefit of the Greek Relief Fund. It will be an opportunity for the students of U. V. M. to experience fine entertainment for the price of an afternoon movie and at the same time help a worthy and necessary cause. While we are going through the inconveniences of rationing to ensure equal distribution of the food we have, the Greek people are suffering from want and starvation. There is no rationing in Greece for there is no food in Greece to be rationed. The Germans have taken it to feed their war machine leaving the Greeks to die. But you all know of the horror and despair in the conquered countries, and you should know of a way to do your part however small it may be. One contribution you can make is to support this event Thursday night in the City Hall Auditorium. Mayor Burns, recognizing the great cause and recognizing also the sudden curtailment of activities on the campus for the presentation of such an event, has made special arrangements for the use of the auditorium.

Let's keep together! What if South Wick and Waterman Building are given over to our government? Let's prove that we stay together, a united group, and can put over as a bang up success a student activity such as this. Remember, it's your chance to help too.

To those people who have been fortunate enough to have seen her before, and to those who are at all interested in character sketches this event is a big event in the City Hall Auditorium. Nan Lagerstedt will give one of her inimitable character portrayals under the auspices of the

The effect of Nan Lagerstedt's portrayals is due to the flashing wit, clever satire, and warm sympathy she reads into her lines. She depends on no make up or scenery beyond a small item like a scarf. She has often been called a "one woman theatre" and that in our minds is exactly what she is. Her sketches are on the order of Cornelia Otis Skinner's.

This portrayal promises to be an "A Number 1" performance and we of U. V. M. are extremely lucky to get the opportunity to see it and for only 28 cents too.

Religious Leaders At Convocation

Interfaith Council Sponsors Meeting

In commemoration of the tenth anniversary of Brotherhood Week, the Interfaith Council made possible the presence of Rabbi Siskin, Father Kelley and Reverend Jones at three meetings on Thursday, February 25.

A special convocation was held in the Student Lounge at which the three speakers presented by Professor Dykhuizen emphasized the need for unity among the three faiths against Totalitarianism. After each of the speakers had given his speech, he was asked a question by his colleagues.

At 4.00 p.m. in the Student Lounge a forum was held at which time Rabbi Siskin, Father Kelley and Reverend Jones answered questions addressed to them from the floor.

After a dinner at the Hotel Vermont given by the Burlington Interfaith Council the men from New Haven were presented at the City Hall Auditorium at which time they again spoke of Brotherhood and the need for a united front of religions.

Women's Athletics To Go on as Usual

Department Decides Their New Schedule

Despite the many drastic changes of the past few weeks, the various clubs of the Women's Athletic Association will carry on in as near the usual manner as possible. This was decided at a meeting of the Women's Physical Education Department held Saturday morning.

Basketball Club will be held Tuesdays at 7.30 and Badminton Club will meet Thursdays at 7.30, both at the Taft School. Archery Club will hold forth at the Y. M. C. A. from 3 to 4 on Fridays. Square Dancing Club will also be held at the "Y," Thursday evenings. The boys at the USO will participate and all girls are cordially invited to attend. Bowling Club will meet as usual. The facilities for table tennis will also be available and Miss Crowe and Miss Hoffman will give desired instruction on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. The Modern Dance Workshop will continue despite the fact that Lilac Day has been cancelled.

Rifle Club also reports "business as usual." As for Ski Club ask the weatherman, and don't give up hope.

The Physical Education Department has opened an office in Room 117, Waterman, and all conflicts in the new gym schedule should be reported there at once.

Promotions on Business Staff are Announced

The CYNIC wishes to announce the promotion of three members of its business staff. Shirley Needham '45 is to be the new business manager, replacing W. Pierce '43. Marjorie Robin '45 replaces Lilla Blumberg ex'44 as advertising manager. New office manager is Barbara Fiske '45, taking the place of Shirley Needham '45.

Vermont Writers Club Hold Meeting To Discuss Plans

Saturday's meeting of Vermont Writers proved quite fruitful and enlightening in regard to discussion and plans for the future. It was agreed that Mrs. Lilian Ainsworth will have charge of the summer session of the League of Vermont Writers. Presiding over the round table discussion was Prof. Leon W. Dean whose latest book, "Old Wolf," was published last fall by Farrar and Rinehart.

A successful plot formula was sketched by Laura Lourkin whose short story "Escape Postponed" appeared in the American Magazine.

Sincere attention was accorded Mrs. Catherine Starbird as she read a collection of original poems and to "Bud" Minor with his poems and demonstration of an amazing memory feat.

Mrs. Ainsworth compared news and fiction writing; and Mrs. Blanche Gile, owner and editor of Hill Trails, offered helpful criticism on Mrs. Julia Munro Greene's latest short story.

Business NOT As Usual

To the music of the R. O. T. C. band the first of the Army Air Corps Cadets arrived on campus Saturday. We are proud to welcome them to U. V. M., and proud to know our college is taking a vital part in the American war effort.

Life has gone on at U. V. M. in pretty much the same manner up until recently. We read our newspapers and listened to news broadcast about America's part in the war effort after December 7, 1941. Our program was accelerated, some of our activities were cut down, friends and relatives gradually went into the service and rationing appeared on the horizon.

The news that the Yanks were fighting "over there" and the news of their progress brought the war a little closer. But it was all just a little remote from our college life. We still had our cakes (or some substitute) in the cafeteria: Saturday night dances, sorority and fraternity formals, and football and basketball games were still a part of our "business as usual." True, we bought a few Defense Stamps, were walking instead of riding, had to go without a few things, and gradually felt more and more the effects of rationing. But it didn't affect us too much, it was a good topic for conversation and we didn't hesitate to complain about things. Now and then we discussed what we could do but didn't do too much.

Then the war really came to U. V. M. The Army Reserve was called and members of other branches of the service were being called; boys were enlisting. Next, it was announced that the Army was taking over a good share of our campus. At this point it was noticeable that the U. V. M. student body wasn't quite sure just what attitude it would take. We are just a little inclined to "gripe" about these fast-moving events which are leaving us "paddling our own canoes." We are beginning to realize though, that it's our war, and we must play our part in it, and we are just a little doubtful about taking this "griping" attitude.

These recent events are a challenge to us. Let's throw the complaints out altogether and forget the attempts for "business as usual." Here's our chance to make the most of the time we can't waste in the cafeteria and show some of the old U. V. M.-American fight. There is lots to be done—we can get busy on that War Council, do our bit for the U. S. O., get out those knitting needles for the Red Cross, and even a little extra studying wouldn't hurt most of us.

Don't let Hitler get away with saying Americans are soft. Our boys in the service are disproving that. It's up to us who are left in college to disprove it for ourselves. We're proud to be Americans. Let's show we're worthy of being called Americans by going "all out for the U. S. A." right here on our own campus.

Chemical Engineer Makes an Analysis

ELEMENT—Woman

OCCURRENCE: Found wherever man exists. Seldom in the free state, with few exceptions in the combined state.

PHYSICAL PROPERTIES: All colors, sizes, shapes and ages. Usually in disguised condition. Face covered with a film of a composite material. Boohoos at nothing and may freeze at any moment; however, melts when properly treated. Very bitter if not well used.

CHEMICAL PROPERTIES: Very active, possesses a great affinity for gold, silver, precious stones, or anything of value. Undissolved by liquids, but activity greatly stimulated when treated with spirits solution. Violent reaction when left alone. Sometimes yields to pressure. Turns green when placed beside a more handsome specimen. Ages very rapidly, usually getting into a permanently enlarged state. Fresh variety has great magnetic attraction.

CAUTION: Highly explosive when in inexperienced hands.

ALPHA XI DELTA

Margo Benoit '43 went to Leominster, Mass., to visit her parents and friends last weekend.

Raymond Brown, formerly of Yale, now of the U. S. Army, visited Mary Strauch '44 last weekend.

Sylvia Wellwood '44 was hostess at her home in Springfield to Barbara Dunbar '43 of St. Albans.

Roy Sanderson of Winstead, Conn., recently visited his sister Ruby.

Charles Parker, accompanied by a friend, Boogie Rising of Goffstown, N. H., visited his sister Polly not long ago.

Ruby Sanderson '45 celebrated one of her birthdays Feb. 25. The girls in Alpha Xi Delta honored her with an angel cake which they themselves made. A certain Sigma Phi fellow was a guest at the party.

"Old Black Magic" is charged with having attracted a prowler around the grounds recently. Police investigation revealed nothing.

SIGMA GAMMA

Dorothy Thornton and Margaret Fake are not on speaking terms this week.

The reason for Hazel Osgood's weariness lately is evident. She has been intermediary for the above mentioned parties.

Sigma Gamma hopes that in the rush and confusion of moving, a fraternity house or other will be left vacant. They would like a roof over their heads.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The following girls are now full fledged members of Delta Delta Delta Sorority: Ruth Schoppe '46, Polly White '46, Betty Anderson '45, Margaret Batchelder '45, Barbara Kirby '45 and Joan Eldredge '43.

Betty Hawkinson '44 visited friends in Montreal recently.

Phyllis Taylor '44, who moved to the Tri Delta House when the army came, went to Montpelier last week-end as a guest of Sylvia Runnals '44.

Jean Brehmer '40, a teacher of English in Montpelier, visited the chapter house over the week-end.

Dee Delano '44 and Barbara Webb '44 have been sick with the grippe.

The pledges are redecorating the hall furniture.

Book Reviews

The Billings Library receives many new and fascinating books each month. It is well worth one's time to come in and browse among these acquisitions.

Among the many new books, four are chosen for review here. If these interest you, why don't you come in to see the others, which are equally interesting and informative?

The Army Life

By PRIVATE E. J. KAHN, JR.

This book is an account of the impact of army life upon a soldier who was as amazed as anyone else when he first saw himself in uniform. Since the author never knew what was going to befall him next, this strain of mild surprise is present throughout the book and gives it its unusual objectivity.

Back in those pre-war days, Private Kahn was a promising young New Yorker writer. The Selective Service Act, while doing a lot of other things to him, also helped him fulfill his ambition of writing by supplying him with the material for this book.

A Time for Greatness

By HERBERT AGAR

Here is a book which challenges you. It challenges your faith in democracy. It questions your knowledge and faith in our traditional mode of life. It asks you to face the problem is before America, and to take prompt and stern action to preserve the American way of life.

A Treasure of British Humor

Edited by MORRIS BISHOP

Here are selections from the seventh century to the present day. There are enough old favorites to please the exacting and many new things from favorite authors that the editor discovered for himself. There are over a hundred contributors who still have the power to make the world laugh. This book is ideal to give everyone a good tonic of laughter.

Bombs Bursting in Air

By GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

This is the story of the influence of air power on international relations. In this work, America's top-ranking military critic probes beneath all the hysteria and propaganda to present a sane, authoritative analysis of air power and its potentialities in the world today. Bombs Bursting in Air discusses the strength and limitations of air power, and the elements of air superiority in terms of men, planes, replacements and operating bases.

You Can

If you think you are beaten, you are,
  If you think you dare not, you don't;
If you'd like to win but think you can't,
  It's almost certain you won't.
If you think you'll lose, you've lost,
  For out in the world we find
Success begins with a fellow's will,
  It is all in the state of mind.
If you think you're outclassed, you are;
  You've got to think high to rise.
You've got to be sure of yourself before
  You can ever win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
  To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
  Is the man who THINKS HE CAN.

Dr. Freeman Says Research Much Needed

Berkeley, Calif.—(ACP)—Research in educational problems has been woefully neglected and is in need of more attention, says Dr. Frank N. Freeman, dean of the school of education of the University of California.

Doctor Freeman said there are two general fields in which educational research is needed. In one are problems of organization and administration of school; in another category are problems in psychology, economics, political science, sociology and even in biology, physics and chemistry.

Nan Lagerstedt is coming to the City Hall Auditorium next Thursday night, March 4, at 8.15 p.m. to present some of her inimitable character sketches. General admission 50 cents and student admission 28 cents.

Athletic Dept. Hears from Former Star Lettermen

"Tell the fellows to forget the cuts and get in just as much phys. ed. and general exercise as they can, because when they hit this man's army they'll be seeing plenty of the same and in much larger doses than they're used to. Being in condition should make that bitter pill much easier to swallow."

The above is the theme of practically every letter received by the Athletic Department from their prodigies of the past, the boys who cavorted for Vermont on the gridiron, diamond, basketball court, and cinder path not so long ago. Most of the letters are from former U. V. M'ers now in the Armed Forces, and their names should bring to mind old and somewhat happier days.

For instance there's one from Lt. Clarence Akley '42, star pitcher on last year's baseball team and an ace trackman. Ake, who was elated to hear that Fuzzy's footballers had vanquished Norwich (and who wasn't?), told of his duties with the infantry at Camp McCoy in Wisconsin (where he commands an anti-tank platoon), and finished off like this, "We lived on canned rations for two days, and although they will keep a man alive, they don't give a fellow that rich, satisfying feeling he gets after a meal at the Kappa Sig house." If Ake only knew.

Lt. H. E. Rice, who when last heard from was with the parachute battalion at New River, N. C., addressed a few words to Fuzzy Evans. Misty had this to say, "Don't forget, Fuzz, that if you're not in shape, you had better go in the army or else you will be rather tired—that is, of course, if you join the marines. We need some good men, anyway, and could knock off your stomach in about three weeks. If we can't knock off your stomach in three weeks, you won't have to worry, anyway, because you would be dead." Misty, class of '42, will be remembered by all as a great blocking back and captain of the '42 eleven.

Norm Strassburg '41, an athletic instructor in the coast guard stationed at Portland, Me., and another standout footballer, sends his regards to all and says he's conducting infantry drill, rifle drill, morse and semaphore code practice, boat drill, jujitsu, calisthenics, athletics, etc. Norm reports that he likes the set-up and is pleased to be in Portland.

Waino Suojanen '42, not an athlete but manager of last year's frosh trackmen, and now a student at Harvard business school and a member of an advanced R. O. T. unit says he's getting lots of calisthenics, too. "We get 4½ hours of calisthentics (and they are rugged) every week. Tell Roy (referring to the departed Roy Wietz) that I've changed my mind about phys. ed. being compulsory. It is needed badly. I now look and feel like a soldier."

There's a lot more to be said about the old gang of Green and Gold athletes now in the service. Perhaps we'll get the chance to pass on a little more info at a later date. Meanwhile, thanks are in order for Larry Gardner, Archie Post, and the rest of the athletic department for digging up the dope on the fellows.

Clarence Akley summed up the feelings of them all in a few words. "Give my regards to everyone, Larry (Gardner), and pass on this little bit of advice—enjoy and appreciate the University of Vermont while you can, because you will never find another place like it."

The Legend of Sleepy Haller

The day was bright with sunshine,
The birds sang in the trees.
The flowers nodded to and fro
As wafted by the breeze.

Although the day was lovely
For basking in the sun,
Several poor sad students
Sat in Economics One.

The professor had his class notes,
His voice was deep and full.
The air was filled with statements—
The statements full of bull.

The students started nodding—
First one, then two, then more.
The professor didn't mind it
If he couldn't hear them snore.

He rambled on and on and on.
The bull was getting deep
The pupils all were hoping
He would talk himself to sleep.

Oh ye European countries
Suffer sword and tax and gun;
Think only that you're lucky
Not having Economics One.

Commando-like Course For Texas Univ. Women

Austin, Texas, (ACP)—A commando-like course in physical training for women at the University of Texas has been set up and new equipment installed to furnish an "obstacle course."

The women's war-conditioning course is designed to build up physical strength so that women students will be prepared for whatever war jobs lie ahead, Miss Leah Gregg, associate professor of physical training, explained.

The obstacle course includes a window climbing ladder, two balance beams, a series of parallel bars, and a high fence climb. In addition to this, students in the war conditioning classes are required to do regular track work and calisthenics.

Dr. Clark to Publish Edition of Shelley

Austin, Texas—(ACP)—Further light will be thrown on the life and writings of the English romanticist, Shelley, by publication of research work now in progress at the University of Texas.

Dr. D. L. Clark, professor of English, has ready for publication a new edition of a journal of Shelley and has nearly completed a three-volume bibliography on the poet. Publication may be delayed until the war is over.

Notice ! !

The Physical Education Department wishes it made clear that men's physical education classes will continue to be held until the finish of the semester. However, as all of these classes must be held at 11 a.m. and 1 2a.m., everyone taking physical education must arrange his schedule with the department to fit those hours or see Archie Post personally. This should be done at once!

The Locker Room . . .

By Len Harrington

The new (and green) sports staff will attempt to carry on in the footsteps of the now army-clad former group. Of course with times so uncertain no promises can be made, but we hope that through our efforts something in the sports line will find its way into the CYNIC in spite of the dearth of that type of activity on the campus at present. We would be overjoyed to receive any suggestions to what type of sports news (if any) the readers would like to see.

Before the basketball season crawls into hiberation again (this time for the duration) it seems fitting that a few more words be said on the wonderful coordination possessed by Larry Killick. It is something few people have and it really fascinates a person to watch him in action. We have seen it demonstrated on the basketball court and around the keystone sack as he moves around with more ease and agility than the average athlete. Larry Gardner once said that Killick's coordination was the best he had seen during his life in sports and Coach Gardner certainly has come into contact with many of the top athletes.

On the hardwood floor especially, this tall, slender ballplayer displays his ability to perfection as he loops passes that fool even his own teammates or fakes by two or three opponents to dribble under for a basket.

This writer believes that Killick is one of the best one-hand passers in the country, amateur or professional. With no discredit to the Vermont team's ability, there are many who would like to see Larry in action with a club of such finesse as the Boston Coast Guard team displayed here. Perhaps he will have the chance some day. He deserves it!

The talk goes that in the eastern colleges that with sports out or limited, intramurals will be stressed. We wonder if this would be possible here. It seems very doubtful, what with the Physical Education Department putting in hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and the students also increasing their hours. Perhaps the students themselves, if they wanted some sort of physical competition, might run an intramural track meet. Coach Post even indicated that he would help if enough show interest at once. Upperclassmen certainly want some kind of exercise.

Ramblings

All that remains of the basketball season are a few major tournaments. The Invitation Tourney at Madison Square Garden on March 18 should be a good one as it will show most of the best in the country. Arizona, Wyoming, Washington, and Washington State are pretty sure to represent the West, but the eastern teams haven't been chosen as yet.

Gil Dobbs, Earl Mitchell, Frank Dixon, and Don Burnham sure are running some merry races on the boards of late. Burnham, by the way, was beaten here three years ago by the Webster brothers, Vermont's famous cross-country combine, over the four and one half mile distance.

The girls have to hold their Physical Education classes in the Taft School on Williams St. now.

The calling of John Corliss by the E. R. C. means another Vermont sports captain in the service. John was elected co-captain of cross-country along with Mart McLaren at the end of the season last fall. McLaren is to graduate in the summer and wouldn't have been here even if there had been a season.

Three U. V. M. Cagers Are Chosen For Positions on All-State Team

Three University of Vermont cagers were chosen for places on the All-State College basketball team by a poll of the state college coaches, it was announced Monday. Heading this trio is Larry Killick, who was unanimously voted as most valuable player. Captain Bob Doherty, high scoring guard, was given a rear court post, also by unanimous vote. Norm Beaulieu and Bob Linehan, the Michaelmen's pivot-man, were tied for the center berth, and both were placed on the first team.

Others on the first five are Kenneth Akey of St. Michael's at forward and Herbert Dean of Norwich, at guard.

Speedy Milt Kaufman, Green and Gold forward, earned a position on the second team.

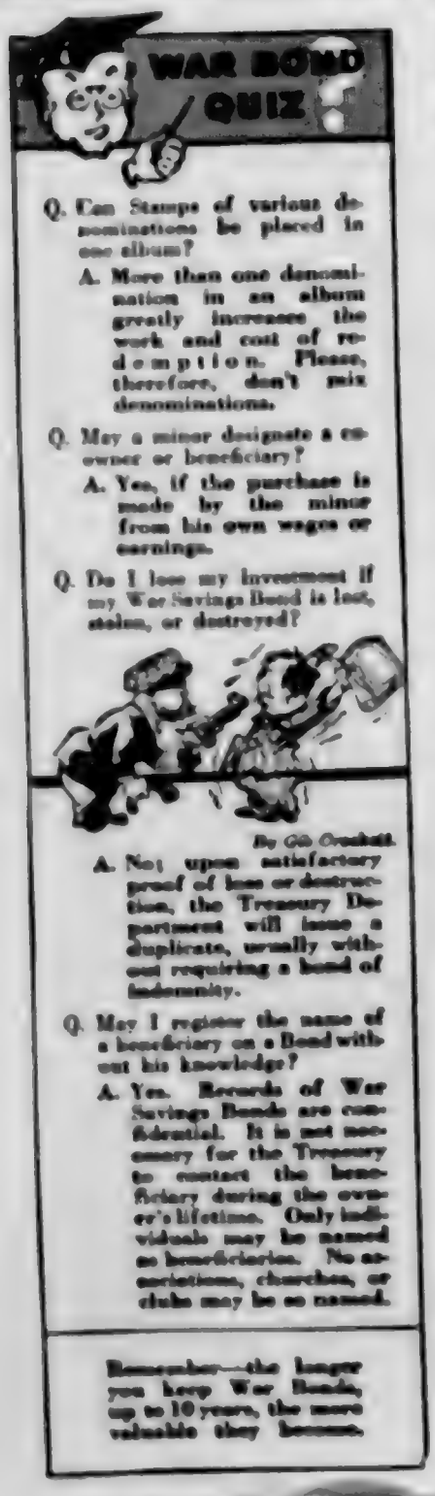
Shirley Needham Appointed New Cynic Business Manager

[illegible] Shirley Needham's first meeting [illegible] the news [illegible] that she was to be [illegible] business manager of the Cynic. "Darn" she exclaimed, "I forgot to realize the possibilities was pointed toward [illegible] to learn the mysteries of the whole business staff. Up to this time I have had nearly everything to do with the paper except [illegible] the workings but now the many pressing problems of the other departments must be considered."

Shirley is a sophomore at the University, a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, and previously the first representative to be elected to business manager. She steps into the shoes of Juliana Goldberg (who, according to Shirley, left the books in very good order) and who is now a member of the U. S. Army.

She also gives full credit to the 1942-43 business manager, Bill Pierce, as well as to the present staff which have already demonstrated their ability to function efficiently in their respective lines.



"My job is a general supervision of the various staff members and particularly an O. K. on all financial transactions with which the Cynic is involved. One of the highlights of my new job," she concluded with a twinkle in her eye, "is that I have in my possession the only key to a locked compartment in the Cynic office, the mysteries of which are revealed only to a chosen few."

Among her numerous other activities on the campus are: Member of Sophomore Aides, secretary of Student Union, member of executive committee of Student Government, as well as participant in various clubs. This fall she was presented the Omicron Nu cup for having the highest average for freshman girls in the Home Economics course.

Chapel Hour Changed

Chapel Hour will be changed from 10.30 Wednesday morning to 7.15 p.m. Wednesday evening.

Newman Club will also meet at this time. Hillel Sabbath Club will be held on Friday evening at a place to be announced later.

News from the Deans Office

Every student interested in Retailing this year who would like an interview with Filene's representative leave his name at Dean Simpson's Office as soon as possible.

Announcement of two fellowships for study in personnel administration at Radcliffe College have been received at the Dean's Office.

More information may be obtained there.

The Army Aviation Training Unit Program has made it impossible to change hours Wednesday and thus give time for a chapel service in the morning. There will, however, be a mid-week Chapel Service in the University Chapel every Wednesday evening for the balance of the semester from 7.15 p.m. to 7.40 p.m.

At recent elections of the senior class, William Roeder was elected chairman of Senior Week and Jack Williams was elected financial chairman.

Applications for waitress positions in the University's dining hall for 1943-1944 should be made by Friday, March 19. Blanks may be obtained in the office of the Dean of Women by any undergraduate in good academic standing.

Applications for residence in the University's cooperative houses for the year 1943-1944 should be made by Friday, March 12. Blanks may be obtained in the Office of the Dean of Women by any undergraduate in good academic standing. These cooperative houses include Allen House, Claggett House, Dresser Cottage, and Sanders Hall.

Religious Life

"Because of the Army's strict schedule of classes, chapel services must be held at 7.15 Wednesday evenings instead of at the usual morning hour," Reverend P. A. Hall announced today. Dr. C. A. Adams of the Vermont Congregational Conference will be this week's speaker.

The Newman Club will probably hold its meeting during the same hour Wednesday evening. Plans are under way for Friday evening services for the Jewish students.

The airmen are invited to attend any of these meetings.

About Restrictions

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Present restrictions on college students really aren't too bad, asserts Doctor Frederick C. Waite, professor emeritus of histology at Western Reserve University.

When the college still was young, he said, students couldn't use tobacco, liquor or cider "which was over a week old."

"They were instructed to touch their hats when passing an instructor, but to tip them to women and professors," he said.

"Playing of dice, cards and checkers was prohibited, but chess was permitted. And students were not alowed to shoot deer on the campus."

Nan Logerstedt is coming to the City Hall Auditorium next Thursday night, March 4, at 8.15 p.m. to present some of her inimitable character sketches. General admission 50 cents and student admission 28 cents.

Wilbur Library Is Open for Research

Staff Eager to Offer Resources to Public

Individuals doing research work on their estate or on their family trees, or clubs desiring to arrange unusual programs having to do with Vermont past or present, will find the Wilbur Library in the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont a helpful source of material which the library is eager to place at the disposal of the public, according to librarian Doris P. Harvey.

Mrs. Harvey wishes the public would make more use of the library. "There seems to be a mistaken impression that it is merely an archive for the storing of valuable books and records, instead of a place where people may come and browse," she says.

The library collection includes a wide variety of Vermontiana, consisting of manuscripts, ancient diaries, letters and books, old and rare, or current, all of them open to inspection, and some of which may even be taken from the library, according to Mrs. Harvey. Recently a Williams College professor came in, looking for "different" material for a town history which he was preparing. Having found what he wanted, he then turned his attention to the diaries, with the result that he changed his plans and remained in town two days longer than he had intended in order to examine them.

"What a beautiful room!" exclaimed the wife of a faculty member recently. "I wish I had known before that there was such a place as the Wilbur Room where one could relax and read."

Students too are often amazed that the library is open for their use. "Are we really allowed to browse and study here?" one of them asked the other day.

Mrs. Harvey is anxious that everyone, general public, faculty and students, understand that they are welcome at any time, from 9 to 12 in the morning and from 2 to 5 in the afternoon, and that she will be glad to assist by mail anyone who wishes help with research problems and is unable to come to the library.

Bookstore to Remain Open Longer Hours

Don't worry students! You can still use the bookstore. The University Book Store announces that it will serve its regular college trade just as it always has even though it now will serve the army too. The only change will be in longer hours, the store will be open from 8.45 in the morning until 7.30 at night. True, the staff will be busier than ever with the added trade of the army students but you can still purchase your pencils and papers there.

Aggie Club

There will be a meeting early this week of the chairmen of the various committees for Dean Hills' Sugar Party which will be held March 19.

Junior Week Elections To be Held on Friday

Elections of Junior Week Officers are to be held all day Friday, March 5, in Waterman.

The slate is as follows:

Chairman of Junior Week: Paul Walgren, Bart Barry.

Financial Chairman of Junior Week: S. R. Pullevn, Larry Killick, John Corliss.

German Department Giving New Course

Just try to get some news out of the German Department! I approached "Benny" Ladd for said news and got a slip, "I don't like to pass the buck, but have you seen Professor Carpenter?" Well, I saw him and here's the little news I got.

Professor Ladd is at present teaching English to the army men and, after April 1, Professor Carpenter will add this subject to his field.

If you remember, last semester a new course was offered in German—a military German, I believe it was, for advanced students. Since the second semester started another new course is being given —this time, a German for all military students—advanced or not.

Three March of Time Features Presented

On February 24 at 2 o'clock three features were presented in the "March of Time" series at the Fleming Museum. The first showed preparations for the invasion of Africa; the second concerned navy routine and training necessary for a recruit to become a seaman; and the third represented fighting and commando tactics employed in the South Pacific area.

These pictures were brought to the University through Clarence DeRochemont '46, who has a relative, Mr. Louis DeRochemont, working for the March of Time in New York.

beginning with the violin to the great climax at the end. One felt that the players were truly enjoying themselves and the music reflected their love of what they were playing.

This last Sonata and the Brahms Rapture were, to us, the most outstanding pieces of the afternoon; but the entire concert was a most pleasant event for the music lovers of Burlington.

The Vermont Cynic

VOL. 61 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1943 NUMBER 39

Jake Katz Elected New Editor-in-Chief of Cynic

Replaces Fort Devens Bound John Corliss

The army in its sweep of men from the campus has not passed over the Cynic staff. This week we are losing our very competent Editor-in-Chief, John Corliss and to take his place is the Associate Editor, Jake Katz.

Jake is in his third year at Vermont and also his third year in the United States. Previously he had lived in Czechoslovakia. In Jake's own modest and unassuming manner we were able to learn but a few of his activities and his views in regard to his work with the Cynic. He has stepped into the new position with all the interest and conscientiousness that he has shown throughout his previous positions on the paper. In his freshman year he established Cynic, was made a reporter, and then moved up to News Editor, Associate Editor and finally Editor-in-Chief.

Jake is usually hurrying across campus in his business-like way chasing up Cynic news or making a Botany lab. on time. He is a Botany Major having changed his course last year from the Agricultural course. Among his many activities, Jake did confess that he enjoyed debating next to his work on the Cynic. He is a member of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity and one of their representatives on the Interfraternity Council. Jake has worked with the Student Religious Life Committee and was on one of the committees of the Brotherhood Week program held here last week.

Although Jake has been here in this country for barely three years, he has made amazing strides towards mastering the English language and yet in doing math. he much prefers his German. Jake was on the Dean's list his first year and last year he attained Magna Cum Laude.

We can be confident that the new editor will maintain the high standards set by his predecessor, John Corliss, and we wish him luck in its future success.

Elliott Merrick Now in Washington

Elliott Merrick, on military leave from the University of Vermont where he is an instructor in the English department, has been appointed to the staff of the Office of War Information and is now stationed in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Merrick, who spent the autumn on his farm in Craftsbury, is the author of several successful novels, of which "Northern Nurse" is the most recent. Others are, "True North", "Frost and Fire" and "From This Hill Look Down".

In Washington, Mr. Merrick writes, his official title is Senior Defense Information Writer for the Division of Publications and Graphics, and his immediate superior is Henry Pringle, well known to readers of national smooth paper magazines, and winner of a Pulitzer prize for a biography of Theodore Roosevelt.

According to Mr. Merrick, the staff of the O.W.I. is made up of men and women of varying cosmopolitan backgrounds and includes writers and staff members from most of the leading American periodicals and syndicates, such as "Life", "Time", "The New Yorker", AP, and UP. In the next office he found Struthers Burton author of "The Art of Bundling" and of articles for Esquire magazine. He was also for several years instructor in English at the University. Mr. Merrick, "I feel that the work of the O.W.I. is very useful and I hope to become a valuable part of it."

Mrs. Merrick and the children are remaining in Craftsbury.

Sigma Gamma Leads Campus in Marks

Phi Sigma Delta First Among Fraternities

Sigma Gamma Sorority led all Greek letter Fraternities in scholarship for the first semester with an 84.13 average. Dela Phi Epsilon and Alpha Chi Omega took a close second and third respectively.

Phi Sigma Delta Fraternity again led the men fraternities on the campus with a 78.72 average.

The group averages reveal the strange truth that fraternity men and women do much better scholastically than non-fraternity members.

The non-fraternity women must be the socialites on the campus since their low average can only be explained in terms of dates. Further and more conclusions can be drawn by other morbid souls.

Army Cadets Happy In New Environment

The 591 Army men who arrived at U. V. M. last Saturday, February 27, are now well situated in their new living quarters. Somewhat over a 100 men are lodged in Converse Hall while the rest are stationed on Redstone campus in Robinson Hall, Slade, Redstone, and Southwick.

Coming from Atlantic City, New Jersey, last Friday night in a special 15 car troop train, the soldiers, accompanied by the U. V. M. R. O. T. C. Band, marched up Main Street from the station and thence to their barracks. It was with agreeable surprise that the men inspected their new residences. Having been stationed for some time in huge and elaborate —but drafty—hotels, colds were prominent among the ranks. However, present quarters seem to promise better prospects.

One factor very noticeable to the older residents of Converse Hall is the thorough cleanliness of the newer members. Upon examination, it was discovered that in Atlantic City a daily inspection was made by officers wearing white gloves. These men searched every room trying to find the slightest traces of dust. As a result, the pre-flight cadets have maintained their good habits, and spotless cleanliness may be observed at all times.

Student Government Brings Monologuist

Miss Macve McMurrough member of the Abbey Players in Dublin, Ireland, will be the guest artist in the second of a series of cultural programs arranged this year by the student government at the University of Vermont.

The program, consisting of character sketches and monologues, will be held on Monday evening, March 15, at 8.15 o'clock in the student lounge in Waterman Building at the University, and will be open to the public at a nominal fee.

There will be no charge for students, and by special permission from the office of Dean of Women Mary Jean Simpson, freshman women will be allowed to attend.

Honoraries Meet Draw Up Slate

New Officers Will Be Chosen by Student Body

Attention, students of U. V. M. Student Government nominations are ready for you to approve and vote. At a meeting Thursday evening, Dean Swift, College of Arts and Sciences and Dean Mary Jean Simpson met with the officers of Student Government and the Executive Committee to draw up the slate for officers of the new year. After much deliberation and thoughtful consideration, the following students were nominated, who by their individual merit in service to the University were deemed worthy of such responsible and honored positions:

President: Bob White, Bob Pulleyn.

Vice-pres: Julia Fletcher, Pat Maxfield, Malcolm Eddy.

Treasurer: Beryl Cheney, Mary Perry.

Secretary: Vesta Stevens, Barbara Burnham.

Nominations for Student Government are based on service, leadership, scholarship, and school spirit and to those who best typify these qualities go the reward. A feature on these persons nominated for Student Government, their past activities, personality, etc., will be printed in the next issue of the Cynic.

Too much can not be said in praise of the retiring officers of Student Government. To Natalie Spear, President, who pinch hit so admirably for Joe Corbett, and who, in addition to her other offices, did such a wonderful job in taking over the leadership of Student Government. To Julie Fletcher and Marilyn Eimer is extended much appreciation for the cooperation and good service they typified in office of Treasurer and Secretary, respectively. And last, but not least, to the Executive Committee and additional committees, though working behind the scenes, worked hard and gladly to accomplish the success of Student Government.

Time has flown swiftly in the past year, for it seemed just yesterday that Student Government was inaugurated on this campus, this election marks the first anniversary of the rule of Student Government, and though her rule has been short, it can be said with honesty and pride, that Student Government has survived the storms of criticism which accompany the problems of organization and adjustment, and has come through with flying colors.

The Student Government is a democratic government; it is our government. It is an attempt to better ourselves, our university, our state, our government, even the world itself. Most organizations function because of the efforts of a few—student government must not. This principle may be applied to elections also—if only a few vote, the results will not be satis-

Alison Carr Takes Position on Staff

Four Scrubs Promoted To Reporters at Meeting

Wednesday afternoon in the South Conference Room of the Waterman Building the Cynic Staff bade "Godspeed" to John Corliss, retiring editor-in-chief of the Cynic. John had been editor for a mere five weeks, but in that time has shown what the Vermont Cynic can really be as a college newspaper. In his few words of farewell, John expressed his appreciation for the cooperation of the staff.

The meeting was then turned over to Jake Katz '44, the new editor-in-chief. Jake spoke of the hard work the staff would encounter during the remaining nine weeks of activity. Because of the accelerated program and the depleted staff, each member will have to do his best work and more of it in order to keep the Cynic up to the high standard set by John Corliss. The Cynic will continue to be published twice a week in spite of the abbreviated social schedule. Everyone is urged to send to the Cynic any news stories, oddities or features heard around the campus which might be of interest to the general student and, of course, to the Army Air Force.

The Cynic also wishes to announce several promotions on the staff. Alison Carr '44 has been appointed news Rewrite Editor to replace Jake Katz. Alison has been very active on the campus as chairman of the G. S. O. committee, on the Young Woman's Christian Association and a member of the honorary society, Staff and Sandal.

Four scrubs have been promoted to the position of news reporters. They are: Janice Commanday '46, Elizabeth Naese '46, Pat Paterson '46 and Marjorie Nutting '45.

Cafeteria Is Now Army's Mess Hall

Staff Serves Twice As Many as Formerly

The students of U. V. M. are no longer permitted to use their favorite hangout, the Waterman Cafeteria, for studying, eating, or for social conversational gatherings. Under the direction of Miss Helen Underwood, the entire three sections of the Cafeteria have been converted into an army mess hall to fill the requirements of the newly arrived air crew students and the Northeast student fliers. This is a tremendous task for Miss Underwood and her staff which, incidentally, has been doubled. Instead of serving 1,000 meals a day, they are providing 2,400.

The University girls who, heretofore ate in dormitories, are being fed in auxiliary dining rooms which are located in the upstairs part of the Waterman Building.

According to army regulations not even the Northeast students or instructors are allowed to eat with the soldiers or to be served from the same counter. This necessitates some extra work, but it is being met with capable efficiency.

For the most part Vermont students miss their gathering place, but if giving it up helps somewhat, they are glad to make this contribution. They welcome the soldiers and hope they enjoy old U. V. M. haunts.

President Millis Speaks To Students in Chapel

At the Student Union Mass Meeting on Wednesday night, March 3, at the Ira Allen Chapel, President Millis, Dean Mary Jean Simpson, President of Student Union Janet Hackwell, Natalie Spear, and Phyllis Savage were speakers. The candidates for Student Union of next year were introduced, and all members present voted for members of Honor Societies.

In his brief talk to the girls President Millis stressed two points. He expressed his gratitude to the girls for the good sportsmanship they had displayed when in the presence of and after meeting. He also said that there will be courses for girls at the University next year. In fact, all the subjects given this year will be had next year. Some courses, such as classical literature, advanced English, and advanced History courses, will be given only in alternate years as they are now. At some time before school closes there will be a registration at which each student will give his choice of subjects for the coming year. If, because of the small number requesting them, certain subjects cannot be given, the students desiring them will be notified early enough to allow them to make adjustments.

Dean Simpson Introduced

Both pride and sadness were clearly visible in the faces of the students when Janet Hackwell introduced Dean Simpson, because Janet told the girls something most of them had not known. When the governor of our state went to New York to meet Madame Chiang he was allowed to choose the one other person from Vermont he deemed most worthy of the honor of meeting this noted woman. His choice was Dean Simpson. Because of her illness Dean Simpson could not go, and the student body is more than sorry that she had to miss such an opportunity. Miss Simpson first thanked all of those who had sent her flowers, cards, and so forth when she was ill. She then "got down to business" and spoke of the changes necessary because of the girls' new dining rooms and the accelerated program. They are briefly: (1) The game room across from the lounge on top floor of Waterman is to be fixed for the use of seniors and faculty. (2) The students should be very careful of the furniture in these rooms as most of it is good furniture taken out of Southwick; (3) There will be regular hostesses, senior girls, in the new dining room; (4) The lounge on the same floor of Waterman as the cafeteria is to be fixed up for girls and boys; (5) There must be fewer week-ends taken by students because the professors cannot complete the required courses with so many students absent Saturdays and Mondays. She closed her talk by explaining about the voting for Honor Societies. The members are chosen by Leadership, Service and College Spirit and Scholarship. Freshmen vote for Sophomore

Mortar Board Will Hold Spring Dance

In spite of the innovations at U. V. M.—in spite of numerous changes in many schedules—in spite of everything, Mortar Board has decided to hold its spring dance as usual. Girls, this may be your last chance to ask him to go to a Mortar Board dance with you—who knows? Although the place has not as yet been chosen the other plans have been made. The informal dance will be held March 13, with Tom Keighley and his Catamounts playing.

Outlook---

In times like these it is only too inappropriate to state editorial policies and announce plans for the future. History is written today with a speed that has never been known to mankind in past centuries. Again and again we are forced to adjust ourselves to new conditions, cope with ever-increasing problems, reaffirm our belief in old values and constants which often appear precarious when the going is the toughest. It is hard to find the courage to carry on in such an atmosphere, but the work of the people before us must be continued as long as it is humanly possible.

John Corliss had to leave after he had just laid the foundation for a better CYNIC and we shall take over at this point and try to carry the burden a little further. we shall do it to the best of our abilities—that is all that the staff can promise in this ever-changing world.

For the future we just know one thing. The CYNIC will be published as long as one course will be taught at this University. Next fall the CYNIC will appear only once a week. In days to come the CYNIC may be a mimeographed handbill, but there will be a newspaper.

In the darkness of these days we must never lose sight of the future. After the war we shall have to rebuild a new university, publish a better paper. For this period of reconstruction we must salvage as many of our present gains as possible. If we will not fail in this task, then we can look forward to a decent and happy life after the war, together with all those who have left us and are leaving us day after day. Towards this future we must be building constantly, even in times of war.

So Long---

Well, next Monday I shall be trekking o'er the well-worn path to merrie Fort Devens. And it doesn't seem as though the orders are going to be rescinded this time!

I should like to take just a few lines in these columns to express my thanks for the swell cooperation of the CYNIC staff and for the real support of the students in general in getting out the paper twice a week. It has been a lot of fun along with the work. I should like also to extend congratulations to my successor Jacob Katz; I shall look forward to receiving future copies of the CYNIC.

When the war is finally finished and all of us "boys in khaki" return to the campus, I expect we shall find at old U. V. M. the same spirit and tradition which we now, with regret, must leave. Until then, so long!

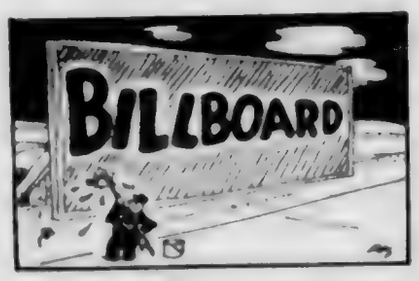
Dear Sir

Having read the article about us in the February 26 issue of THE VERMONT CYNIC, I would like to make a few corrections. First, we are not draftees or selectees. Every last one of us is an enlisted man. Also, we are privates only temporarily. When we enlisted, we were told that we would be sent to cadet schools and would be classified as cadets. Since then, the system has been changed, and we are privates as long as we stay here only.

We wish to cordially thank the University directors, the professors, the student body, and especially the cafeteria personnel for the treatment we have received thus far. The quality of the food and the manner in which it is prepared is quite different from that at Atlantic City. Although we are disappointed in not going to pre-flight school immediately, we like it here. I believe that under the circumstances, we could not have wished for a better school and town to be stationed at.



ONE OF THE PRIVATES.

Those students who complete a semester on May 2, but who plan to enroll during the first quadrimester on June 7, should be eligible for the program continuously between May 2 and June 30, as the vacation would not be considered a break in the academic year in view of the accelerated program and since our funds are established on the basis of school attendance from July 1 through June 30, regardless of the number of semester or academic years involved.

John Corliss Reminisces On Cats, Dogs, Mice and Hobo Days

"I'm really glad to go," said John Corliss, editor-in-chief of the CYNIC, late Wednesday afternoon as he was preparing to leave for St. Albans, his home town.

In the midst of telephone calls, last minute advice and collected crowds in the CYNIC office, the retiring editor, whose pet aversion is getting haircuts and whose favorite pastime is dozing in class, managed to whip up a few answers to the interviewing reporter.

"That sober-faced photo they put in Tuesday's CYNIC was taken in 1939 when I used to just 'laze' around and get fat. Those were the days!

"Bet the fifty-five will be surprised when we four latest E. R. C.'ers come rolling into Devens," he added with a chuckle. "It's going to seem funny going to bed at night and getting up in the morning!"

Here's what John, a native Kansan says about Vermont. "I think Vermont's really a great place, but I've always wanted to go back to Kansas for a long visit. Don't get me started telling "Western" stories; I had a lot of incredible adventures that no one in the family seems to remember except me. . . . I'll never forget the cute gal I used to go around with when I was in the fourth grade . . ."

When asked about new campus institutions, the junior with his blue eyes serious, was silent a moment then answered, "I think one of the greatest things that has happened on this campus is the formation of Student Government. In a couple of years when it is more completely understood and appreciated by the student body, I think it will be valuable to this University.

Do you expect to get [illegible] University? asked the reporter. "I'm going to miss Fraleigh [illegible] Dr. Moody's mice and [illegible] Masquerades.

IT has been estimated that 63,000 telephone calls are necessary in the building of one 10,000-ton cargo ship. And America is sending these vessels down the ways by the hundreds.

We cannot build additional facilities because materials for telephone equipment are going into war weapons. Yet today the men and women of the Bell System are handling more telephone calls than ever before—about 90 million conversations a day. It's an important wartime job. It will continue to be done well.

Aviation Cadets Take Over Gym

Stiff Program to Begin After Week's Quarantine

Unknown to many of the men students on the U. V. M. campus, numerous changes are being wrought in their Physical Education department. As is already known, all afternoon gym classes have been switched to the morning in order to fully accommodate hundreds of air corps men. These new arrivals will start their classes immediately following their two weeks quarantine.

For this reason the department asks all male students to bear with them as nothing can be done to relieve the congestion in the new morning sections. The physical education instructors are having a hard enough time working from early in the morning to late in the evening.

It is interesting to note that the department is planning to open additional showers and has already begun work. They will be located in the former medical room as soon as arrangements have been made to clean it and install hot water facilities. In addition, the hitherto unused floor space under the gym floor will undergo a renovating job. All old chairs, lumber, and general dirt will be cleaned out and a temporary floor laid to increase locker and dressing room space.

Classes for the new army men will be the scene of mass calisthenics of an intensive nature, and this will be followed by basketball, bar work and other such body building activities.

Archie Post chairman of the department, again wishes to emphasize the fact that regular gym classes are being held daily and attendance will continue to be checked.

"Dark Horse" Delta Psi New Bowling Champions

Delts Come From Behind With a Rush To Nip Sigma Phi Team by Half a Point

By Lloyd Spigel

Come hither all you bowling fans and gather round and hear. Rejoice, at last you can hear that long awaited news. What fraternity is the champion of U. V. M.? Is it last year's champs, the vaunted Sigma Nus or the tournament leader from the start, the doughty Sigma Phis. Well, I'll tell you. It seems that somewhere, some place there is always a dark horse who doesn't give a darn for what people think or say and is always upsetting the dope. Let's give them a hand bowling enthusiasts of Vermont, for here they are, the dark horse champs of Vermont, the Delts of Delta Psi.

Starting out strong, the veteran team of Delta Psi always seemed to be one step in back of the high flying Sigma Phis. Gradually creeping up the Delt's hardwood rollers pulled up to the Sig Phis three games from the end of the tournament. In their last game against T. E. P. the Delts went to town with a bang and really walloped the boys from Wilson St. Lead by Soule who took high singles and doubles with 129 and 225 respectively the Delts averaged better than 100 per man and when the totals were found it was seen that the poor T. E. P's could have used a sixth man for they were down 100 pins even. The final score was 944 to 1,044. Mr. Lively, Five Pattie continuing his bowling par excellence, wound up strong with three spares in a row, for a big 118. Fred Boardman, starting the second string off with a bang and ending with a bang, also rolled a high 120 for the Delts. The only bright spots in the veil of T. E. P. darkness was the stellar bowling of Buddy Lippmann, and Goldman's bid for a Sherry Fogg finish by winding up with two strikes.

In the other match on that program the high flying A. T. O.'s took the measure of the last place Owls of Lambda Iota. Led by the holder of the school bowling record of 164, Bob Bennett, the pride of Orleans and Converse Hall, the boys who lives across from the Taft School took a lesson from their new housemates, the Delts, and dubbed the Owls to the tune of 89 pins. Bob Bennett took high singles and doubles.

Last year's champs, the Sigma Nus, who were still very much in the tournament until the last day, really went to town on the poor much abused faculty. It seems that the Sigma Nus haven't heard about the faculty being overworked because of the arrival of the army, or they believe in the old slogan, "A rest for the weary." For they took the measure of our Profs in the form of 100 pins. The Sig Nus going over the top of 900 twice totaled 1,138 with 388 and 350. Led by Big Swede, who with four spares and a strike on his first five boxes looked a cinch to break Bob Bennett's school record, Sig Nu won handily. Swede took high singles and doubles with 136 and 248. Ed Brayden with 114 and 133 for a total of 247 was right behind him. Lucey Evans and Sherry Fogg stood out for the Faculty.

The Sig Phis who led the league all season went out in a blaze of glory. Like a dying meteor the Sigs flashed a big total but of light as they swamped the Independents. Led by Paul Sutton who took high singles and doubles with 128 and 256 the Sigs were all over the floor as they saw that the Independents did not get started. "Hot Potato" Luke Hanlon, the Sigs one man tornado, who splits them when they're sure he'll strike the splints all his legs and arms as he went to town to the amazement of all concerned. Luke was the most consistent Sig bowler and he averaged about 105. Independents were packed in cheese all day and only Lyle showed any spark of life. They averaged about 90 per man and had a total of 947.

Although the bowling tournament is over there is still an important phase in the individual standings to be decided. The top 20 bowlers will fight it out for the individual championship of U. V. M. The boys who look to be in the top five when the final scores are announced are Bennett of A. T. O., Brayden of Sigma Nu, Soule of Delta Psi, Thomas of Phi Sigma Delta, and Lippmann of T. E. P. May the best man, or some dark horse, win. Let's give a parting cheer to the new champs the Delts of Delta Psi and to the outgoing champs the Sigma Nus. To the other fraternities, as they say in Brooklyn, U. S. A., "Wait 'til next year, you're home."

New Captaincy of Hoopsters Uncertain

Thurber's Vote Lacking To Decide Election

Vermont's basketball captain for the 43-44 season, if the Cats have one, which looks improbable at the present time, has not been decided as yet. Athletic Director Larry Gardner stated today that the votes of the entire squad except that of Harris Thurber, this year's team manager and a member of the first contingent of E. R. Cs to leave the campus were in, and that when permission is given by the proper authorities they will be counted. If it's a landslide for one of the undergraduate members of the year's successful squad, the captaincy will be awarded to him. On the other hand if the decision is close and a single vote will decide the issue, Thurber's ballot will have to be presented.

Bob Doherty, captain of this year's high flying Evans men along with forward Milt Kaufman will leave on the graduation route in May. Ralph LaPointe, another member of this year's starting five has already departed for the army. That leaves Larry Kellick and Norm Brannen as principal contenders for Doherty's vacated berth.

Voting for varsity basketball manager also has been completed and the names of the new captain and manager will be announced simultaneously. Letter winners will be made known in the near future, and all of the ten or 11 full season members of the squad are in line for these awards.

Notice ! !

The Physical Education Department wishes it made clear that men's physical education classes will continue to be held until the finish of the semester. However, as all of these classes must be held at 11 a.m. and 1 2o.m., everyone taking physical education must arrange his schedule with the department to fit these hours or see Archie Post personally. This should be done at once!

U. V. M. Rifle Team To Meet Norwich

It was announced today by Lieutenant Dwyer, coach of the rifle team, that the cadets would journey to Northfield to engage in their 4 round match with the Norwich team tomorrow afternoon. In a previous match the Cats came off with a 1456-1407 win. Those making the point [illegible] by Captain Weaver Miller, Cadets Dacey Holden Bullock, Zamczek, and Soule. Prospects for a double win over the Cadets this year appear good as Lieutenant Dwyer reports that all of the team members are steadily improving.

A Phi Bet Key Opened the Sigma Phi House to the Girls From Robinson

Girls Move to "Wartime Robinson"

The only key to the Sigma Phi House is the one plastered on the front door bearing the Greek letters Phi Beta Kappa. Also inherited by the former residents of Robinson Hall is a plaque resting on the mantel piece which reads as follows:

The following courtesies will be very much appreciated by the brothers of the Sigma Phi:

We are glad to loan you the use of our house as we realize it is a time of national crisis.

But—

Please do not have your mail addressed to "Sigma Phi Place"; 420 College St. is sufficient and much more fitting.

Never answer the phone with "Sigma Phi Place." Use "Wartime Robinson Hall" or some such appropriate nomenclature.

Above all this is our home, not just a plain men's dorm. Several of our brothers know no other home. Please treat it well. We have always taken pride in our shoveled walks and our nice lawns. We hope you will accept our challenge.

Good luck! We hope you enjoy this house and leave it so it may be enjoyed in the years to come.

Removed from the Salle de bain on the first floor to the unsecluded landing of the second floor, the telephone buzzes constantly with calls from the new inhabitants of "Barracks No.5X5," formerly known as Robinson Hall.

And so to the freshmen we, of 420 College St., in turn pass along our best wishes for a pleasant stay in our late home.

Amendment on Treasury Up for Vote Thursday

At next Thursday's election of officers of Student Government the following proposed amendment will be up for a vote:

"That a sub-treasurer be elected at the regular election of Student Government who will step into the office of treasurer at the time of the next election."

Aides, sophomores for Staff and Sandal, and the whole women's student body for Mortar Board. The final selections are made by the members of these bodies with the approval of the faculty.

Because both the president and the chief justice of the Student Union are very important, Student Union is doing something new in regard to these offices, and nominating only two candidates for these positions. Barbara Hall and Patricia Crowley, two outstanding women on campus, will be nominated for the presidency. The loser will become the chief justice. The other candidates are: Vice-president, J. Fletcher, S. Runnals, 2nd vice-president, S. Needham and Beryl Cheney; secretary, P. Donnelly, R. Schuppe, L. Shutler; treasurer, V. Campbell, O. Schoelles, M. J. Dunsmore; social chairman, E. Gustafson, A. Gaylord, S. Buckingham; House chairman, P. McCormick; asst. house chairman, M. Melby, K. Hennessey, C. Hughes; scholarship chairman, M. Anthony, C. Pratt, R. Warren, R. Everyone is asked to take special note of these people as election will be held Monday, March 8, in the Waterman Building. Every girl is urged to come and vote.

During the course of the meeting Natalie Spear spoke on Nan Lagerstolt, explaining the fact that going to hear her monologues would not only be good entertainment but would be for a good purpose, Greek War Relief.

Phyllis Savage also spoke on the opportunities the girls have for playing ping pong, etc., at the bowling alleys. Miss Hoffman will be there two afternoons a week to instruct students who want instruction. These two afternoons the alleys will be reserved just for the girls.

factory to the majority and there will be plenty of grumbles and gripes. That principle is what we, as future leaders of the world's destiny, must practice, now. If we are allowed to stay in college throughout the war, it is obligatory on our part to get the most out of our education, to contribute our part to our University's livelihood, and to keep up student morale. We can do that on this campus by backing Student Government 100 percent.

War and Government

It is lamentable that the war and the troubled times that it brings had to be the beginning of Student Government, but you can be sure it won't mark her end. The thought comes to our minds that it seemed that just as Student Government really started rolling, the war had to come along and snatch the men students away and put the very life of this University on a temporary basis. Student Government's advance has been hindered, there's no doubt of it, but that's no indication that it's going to die out completely. As long as we are students at U. V. M., and as long as this University remains on the map, our Student government has got to continue to help keep us bonded together in a unified student body, and we as her student-citizens have a duty to keep her rolling. This election is your first chance to participate collectively and individually in the function of Student Government, so it's your duty to get out there and vote for new officers and to see to it that the most capable and best fitted people are put into office. If you don't approve of the nominations as they stand; if you know of some one better fitted, you may petition new nominations. A petition signed by 150 students may procure additional nominations for the four major offices; while a petition signed by 50 students will O. K. additional nominations for the Executive Committee.

Must Continue

No doubt, the question will arise: "There's no use in electing new officers for Student Government, when there won't be any University this fall and even if there is there won't be enough students to warrant a Student Government." There's only one way to answer that—hope for the best, and in the meantime, plan for the future. President Millis has assured the student body that there will most certainly be a University next fall, as things stand now. And if your University is to continue, why shouldn't there be student activity continued in the form of Student Government? President Millis is greatly interested in the progress of Student Government, wants it to continue, and wants the students to take an active interest in it. Let's give him a vote of confidence by taking advantage of this opportunity of electing future officers. The nominations are ready; all you have to do is vote and take the responsibility on yourselves of electing the best people for the jobs.

EVERYBODY VOTE FOR STUDENT GOVERNMENT!

"Blues in Berlin"

War brings many songs. Some of them survive; others do not. Not a new song, but a new turn cooked up by students at Chicago Teachers College parodies the popular "Blues in the Night." The new version, called "Blues in Berlin" was printed in the Chicago newspaper, The Tempo.

My fuehrer done tol' me,
When I was in Munich,
My fuehrer done tol' me,
Hans—
A Russian will fall back, and give you the east front,
But when the winter snows come,
A Russian's a two-face,
A worrisome thing, who leaves you to sing
The blues in Berlin.

See the bombs a-fallin'
Hear the blitzes callin'
Goering! Oh, where is the luftwaffe?
We ain't got no booties,
All we got is cooties.
Goebbels! Oh, typhus and black plague.
Die wehrmacht! Die wehrmacht!
A clickity-clack, and soon we'll be back.
With the blues in Berlin.

From Smolensk to Mozhaisk,
From Kiev to Lubin,
Wherever the panzers go.
I've taken some big towns,
And made me some big talk,
But there is one thing I know,
A Russian's a two-face,
A worrisome thing, who leaves you to sing
The blues in Berlin.

The newly elected officials will meet with the retiring executives on the Tuesday following the election. To aid intelligent voting, personal interviews with the candidates are included in today's CYNIC.

Executive Committee

Petitions should be started now to nominate the 10 members of the Executive Committee. Four present juniors, four sophomores and two freshmen are needed to serve for next year. At least 100 student signatures are required for nomination.

The lists are to be submitted next week to the nominating committee consisting of Deans Carrigan, Eckhard, Simpson and Swift and three members each from the Boulder and Mortar Board societies. Further details will be announced in Friday's CYNIC.

Fr. Joyce Speaks To Newman Club

The Newman Club will hold its next to last meeting on Tuesday evening, March 9 in the Waterman Student Lounge at 8.00. Our own chaplain, Father Robert [illegible] Joyce, will address the club on an extremely practical subject of "The Catholic Attitude." There will be ample opportunity for questions and discussion, so it is hoped everyone will take advantage of the opportunity and be there Tuesday night.

We have lost a great many of our male members because of their induction into the service, so we're asking those people who haven't been attending regularly to please come and give Father Joyce the satisfaction of knowing that we still have a large membership and that we are still interested.

All other students, parents and friends are entirely welcome, and if the birdmen are out of quarantine, we would be glad to see them.

Dr. Hazzleton E. Simmons, president of the University of Akron, is the new president of the Association of Urban Universities.

Freshman Debaters Beat Middlebury

Women to Meet N.Y.U. Against Tax Question

On Thursday afternoon, March 4, the Vermont Freshman Debating team met the Middlebury Freshman on the question: Resolved: "That every able-bodied male citizen should have one year of military training before reaching the age of 21. This to be a permanent peace-time policy." For the Vermont team, which upheld the affirmative, were David Bikoff and Paul Pascal. Middlebury was represented by Norman Sweet and Philip Hull. The critic judge, Atty. Frederick Wakefield, Jr., decided in favor of the U. V. M. team. There will be a return debate at Middlebury on March 18 on the question: Resolved, "That the United States should form a permanent alliance with Russia at the close of the present war."

The Women's Varsity will carry on a debate with N. Y. U. here on March 12. The subject is Resolved: "That the United Nations should establish a permanent Federal Union with power to tax and regulate international commerce, to maintain a police force, to settle disputes, and to enforce such settlements and to provide for admission of other nations which accept the principles of the Union." In this debate, the Vermont women will uphold the negative.

The Famous Corner Will Be Busy Again

Negotiations have been completed for Howard Johnson's Restaurant of Burlington to open a branch establishment in the former Coffee Corner and University Book Store in the Old Mill building.

It is necessary to make some changes preparatory to opening for business. The opening date will be announced shortly.

Artists Exhibit At Fleming Museum

Paintings and Pastels Among Work Shown

The thirteenth annual Exhibition of Northern Vermont Artists is now open to the public at the Fleming Museum. After an opening preview and tea given by the Fleming Museum Art Association, the display was opened on March 5 and will remain until March 30.

Among the works on exhibit are those of several new artists. One of these new artists is a private at Fort Ethan Allen. Becoming interested in painting at the U. S. O. Craft Center, Private Heideman painted two pastels, which are on exhibit now. There are also paintings by several artists who have not submitted any works in the last few years.

The exhibition will be open from 2 to 5 in the afternoon daily.

The staff at the Museum expressed their regret that none of the students at the University had entered any paintings.

Walgren Will Head Junior Week

Definite Plans Not Yet Made

When and if there is a Junior Week this year, those in charge will be Paul Walgren '44 as chairman and Larry Killick '44 as business manager. These two were selected by the vote of the junior class last Friday. Because of the uncertainty of all activities at this time, it is unknown whether the juniors will have their fling as in years past but they have taken preparatory steps by putting it in the hands of two capable men.

Other years Junior Week has included a play preceded by a colorful "Peerade," and a gala Junior Prom. Chairman Walgren will have to consult authorities before going ahead with any definite plans. If a week cannot be found in the busy schedule there will probably be at least a dance. Said Chairman Walgren, "We will do our best to have a Junior Week this year."

War Program Cuts Lilac Day Tradition

The celebration of Lilac Day, one of the most beautiful traditions of the women of Vermont, is being temporarily discontinued this year. The girls in Modern Dance Workshop, who stage this affair, feel that because of the accelerated program and earlier graduation they will not have the time which must be spent in the preparation and planning of Lilac Day.

Lilac Day arose from a plan of Pearl Randall Wasson, the first Dean of Women. She wished to increase the beauties of Redstone by a magnificent hedge of lilacs, and that the planting of each lilac be accompanied by a traditional celebration. Under the guidance of Staff and Sandal Lilac Day has grown in perfection and [illegible]. This will be the first time since its inauguration that Lilac Day has not been observed.

Spring Campus Sing Will Be Staged Wed. Night at 8.00

Trio of Swingerettes To Render Their Latest Selections

These bright green and yellow posters are announcing another campus sing. Since so many college activities have been curtailed it was feared that these "hums" might have to be given up too but it is believed that the spirit from group singing does more to keep up the morale than any other activity on campus. The students have requested that Alfred Amee '43, stage another. Because of the shortage of room this gathering will be held inside the main entrance of the Waterman Building at 8.00 Wednesday evening directly after the various student religious services.

Working against such handicaps as the awkward space, and lack of leadership with the absence of former crowd-drawers, Professor Millikan and Professor Long, Alfred Amee is confident that the sing will be as popular as ever. When asked for a statement he said, "In spite of the handicaps which all organizations have to face and now that the soldiers have taken over so much of the campus I hope that the sing will be as popular as others have been in the past. And I feel confident that any inconveniences or shortcomings in the program will be overlooked and by the cooperation of the students we will have as much fun as ever."

Amee has been primarily responsible for the success of these sings in the past two years since their introduction by Professor Ladd. And now in spite of his busy schedule which includes practice teaching two English classes every afternoon, and his duties as assistant librarian he has consented to get the "hum" under way.

Taking the place of the ever popular "Fire Eaters" several members of which have left for the armed forces will be those smooth sounding swingerettes, Betty Farnsworth, Mary Lib Metcalf, and Trit Johnson who delighted their listeners at Masquerade. The trio will be featured to render selections while the ordinary warblers rest their larynxes.

Drill Instructions For B. H. S. Seniors

Another program that has been introduced to the campus under the auspices of the Military Department is the Pre-Induction Course for high school seniors. The course, which is entirely voluntary, was organized by Mr. Pearl, principal of Burlington High. The boys meet four times a week—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, from 1.20 to 2.20 p.m. Now they are receiving drill instruction under Harry F. Howe, a senior R. O. T. C. member. Their program will include stripping down the automatic rifle, general orders for sentinel duty, and detail stripping of the Garrand rifle and the automatic pistol. Sergeant Lauda commented favorably on their efficiency. He also added that when they were inducted into the service they would be well ahead of the others who had received no preliminary instruction and would therefore stand very good chances of promotion.

The Vermont Cynic

The Official Student Newspaper of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College

VOL. 61 MARCH 9, 1943 NO. 60

An Open Letter to Educators

The students of this generation have been born into a difficult and very complex world. The old certainties are gone; old values are in the melting pot. In such a mental climate it is the duty of the educator to convey to the students the spirit of free inquiry, of the fearless search for truth.

Yet, up to this time, we have operated under the theory that people must be kept in ignorance. Even in this country, we still have Rapp Couderts and Lees to uphold the reactionary dogma—that people must be insulated against doctrines and new ideas. The textbooks of the universities are still being raked through for all so-called "revolutionary" material.

There was a time when the scientist had to brave the inquisition. Today science has reached the point where it is almost unimpeded in its search for new knowledge. Why can the social scientist, the political scientist, the historian not work in the same atmosphere? Granted that these are not fields where immutable laws can be established, man still has the right to exploration in these fields as well as in botany or chemistry. The world still awaits its emancipation from the reactionary in the field of human relations and social organization. In "The Keys of the Kingdom" by Cronin, Father Chisholm says, "There are many ways to Heaven. I have never maintained that mine is the only road." There are many ways to happiness here on earth, let us not make any hard and fast rules about it.

In this sense it is the duty of the educator to truly live up to his purpose and flinch not from a critical examination of all ideas. The true educator has no ties of party or creed—he has only one pact of allegiance—with the truth. That is why our future very much depends on education.

At the present moment thousands of soldiers are entering our universities to take courses in scientific as well as historical fields. Educators must make it a point to allow them as well as the remaining civilian students "To choose between the mighty opposites," the clashing doctrines, that have arisen all over the world. We must be confident that our values will prove strong enough to brave the discussions. And if they should not, then new and better ideals will take the place of our old values and we shall benefit the more. But if, and we sincerely believe so, our old ideals will arise more strongly out of all these inquiries and discussions, then our soldiers will spread them with all their personal conviction wherever they may be, and we will be able to look forward to another liberty inspired army propagating liberty, equality, fraternity.

Do You Know Your Candidates?

Bob Pulleyn

Bob Pulleyn is a Junior in the University and hails from New York City. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and has been very active in his three years at the University and has many honors to his credit: Business Manager and President of Inter-Fraternity Council, Varsity Football, Freshman and two years of Varsity Track, Advanced Military, Manager of 1943 Kake Walk and Newman Club.

Bob has many favorite likes including Tommy Dorsey, Harry James, Private Bob Eastman (whom many know as the sensational piano player from Fort Ethan Allen), Athletics, Vermont Publications, and of course, Student Government and numerous places about town. When asked the origin of his nickname "Mouth," Bob replied with an embarrassed smile, "We'll forget about that."

As to his ideas concerning Student Government he stated:

"Student Government has gone a long way since the beginning of last year. I believe it could go still further by making the students better informed as to just what's going on in Student Government. In the past the student legislative authority has been too widely distributed among the various societies and organizations among students. I believe the work of committees should be given directly to honorary societies and other more important organizations on campus."

Bob White

In the personage of Robert F. White the U. V. M. student body has a very capable candidate for president of Student Government. His enthusiastic spirit for Vermont is shown by the way he undertakes his various positions.

Bob came to U. V. M. from Needham, Mass., and has been an outstanding man on the campus for the past three years. His accomplishments are many, likewise his friends. He has been active in hockey and was elected to Gold Key and Key and Serpent, sophomore and junior honorary societies. This year he is president of the Junior Class, treasurer of the Newman Club, Chairman of the Finance Committee of Student Government and one of the Kake Walk directors. Since his appointment as Editor-in-Chief of the 1944 Ariel he has worked earnestly to produce a year-book which everyone is looking forward to. He is a physics major and is teaching that subject to a few classes of pilots stationed here. He is a member of the Naval Reserve V-7 which requires a college degree. Bob will receive notice in the coming issue of Who's Who in American Colleges.

When confronted for an interview about his nomination, congenial Bob said that "Student Government should have more power. It could be one of the best things that ever hit U. V. M. if it were pushed. It ought to be the main factor on campus if it could be made to click. This is the time of trial for an organization of this kind and if it produces now it will prove its worth."

Malcolm Eddy

Malcolm Eddy is a nominee for election as vice-president of Student Government. He is a mechanical engineer of the class of '45, but under the accelerated program he may be graduated in '44. He is an active member of the Delta Psi Fraternity.

Mr. Eddy has taken part in many activities on the campus. He was co-business manager of the Freshman Handbook and was on the Freshman Orientation Committee of Student Government. He is vice-president of A. S. M. E. and is active in the V. C. A.

The R. O. T. C. also claims part of his time. In the band he is a staff sergeant, the drum major and plays a euphonium in concert. His chances for not being called into the service are as good as any other fellow's as he is in the Navy V-7.

Mr. Eddy is a resident of Burlington and a graduate of Edmunds High.

Julie Fletcher

Our other candidate for vice-president is Julie Fletcher, an active member of the junior class and of Pi Beta Phi. She takes a part in almost every activity on campus; among these the more important are personnel editor of the Cynic, member of the House Committee of Student Union, House President of Sanders Hall and for the past year treasurer of Student Government.

Even with all these activities, Julie still finds time for skiing, her favorite sport. With the snow and the weather as it is now, she can probably be found any afternoon behind the Country Club where she coaches beginners in skiing.

In accordance with the Student Government constitution, a committee made up of Deans Simpson, Swift, Eckhard, and Carrigan and three members each from Mortar Board and Boulder, has drawn up the slate of Student Government officers for next year.

It is also a part of the constitution that the qualifications of the candidates be placed before the students before the time of the election so that this information will be of assistance in their choice of candidates.

Patricia Maxfield

After noticing the card bearing the inscription Miss Patricia Shannon Maxfield on the door of Room No. 5, your reporter knocked lightly, and upon hearing a low "Come in," discovered Pat comfortably tucked in bed—the favorite Sunday morning haunt of most coeds.

Pat, a member of Alpha Xi Delta, hails from New Hartford, Conn., where she finished her high school career with top honors. She is enrolled here in the chemistry curriculum. Last summer Pat attended the summer session and plans to again this year which means she will be graduated with the class of '44.

Among campus activities in which Pat participates are WAA, Health Council and Y. W. cabinet. She is also House President at McCormick's. Bowling or golfing are first on Pat's sports list. Reading also rates high among her favorite pastimes.

Beryl Cheney

Beryl Cheney '45 is a candidate for treasurer on Student Government. Beryl comes from Rutland, and she is a member of Sophomore Aides, the W. A. A. Council, Y. W. C. A., and she is treasurer of Student Union. For the last month Beryl has been assistant to Julia Fletcher, present treasurer of Student Government.

When asked about Student Government, Beryl said, "I think it is one of the best things that has come to this campus and that we can really get it to work." Miss Cheney is a graduate of Randolph (Vt.), High School and is majoring in mathematics.

Mary Perry

Redstone's Cheerful Cherub is up for treasurer! That's right, it's Mary Perry from Barre. Careful to hide her burning intellect under a petulantly naive manner, Mary has been active in such honorary organizations as Bluestockings, Staff and Sandal, Classical Club. She is a news editor of the Cynic and a member of Alpha Chi Omega. Mary's new residence is the basement of the Alpha Chi House, as befits a member who comes begging to the door on a mid-semester evening.

Vesta Stevens

"What a wonderful surprise!" was Vesta Stevens' answer to this inquiring reporter when asked about her nomination for the office of secretary of Student Government. She was rather taken back when she found she was being interviewed for the Cynic and every word she said would be used. She rallied quickly though and said she was a member of Bluestockings, the Goodrich Classical Club, and the Religious Life Committee. Quiet a few activities in any man's language, but they are a mere drop in the bucket to this enterprising sophomore.

When asked about her personal interests she replied, "Mine are much the same as any other U. V. M. coed. I'm not awfully sporty in that I don't go out for one W. A. A. club after another, but I'm crazy about archery and hiking."

Vesta was secretary of her high school student government which she said "started and functioned much the way ours has here." That high school job was certainly excellent training for the office for which she is now nominated. A native of Connecticut, she views Vermont [illegible] home as all of us up here [illegible].

Vesta, a slight, brown [illegible] plenty of energy and [illegible] one dish they never serve [illegible] Allen House is parsnip [illegible] never appear on that [illegible] she can still fight. This [illegible] ly agrees with her on [illegible] business. Who wouldn't!

As a last thought Vesta [illegible] viewer that she was [illegible] field, Vt., next week-end [illegible] ference in connection with [illegible] Life Committee. All [illegible] say is—that gal sure does [illegible]

Bobby Burnham

Barbara Burnham, [illegible] secretary of Student Government [illegible] only state "I have nothing [illegible] interviewed yesterday by [illegible]

"Bobby" hails from [illegible] now resides at Elmwood Hall. She [illegible] active member of Pi Beta Phi, secretary of W. A. A. and a competent participator in many sports clubs. She has been on the Dean's List every one of her [illegible] semesters here and is a member of Sophomore Aides.

Although she is now enrolled in the secretarial course she admits that were she a little older, she would join the Marines.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

We have been exchanging papers [illegible] quite some time now, and every time I read the Cynic the same question is called to my attention. The full name of your school is the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College, yet you refer to the students as U. V. M. students. The question that has been plaguing me is: What does the "M" stand for?

I read your paper thoroughly and enjoy every bit of it. I especially like the make up, probably because it is somewhat like ours. I wish you continued success.

Yours truly,
D. H. Vance,
Editor, The Carroll News,
Cleveland, Ohio.

To the Editor of the Cynic:

A service flag in its glory of red, white and blue and unfortunately gold, is a living symbol of our companions who are giving "that last measure of devotion." Our flag, dedicated with pomp at a special convocation, has ceased to mean a great thing to many of us now because it no longer tells a true story. Our friends and companions have been leaving in large numbers since Christmas vacation, and yet, the numbers on the flag remain the same. Don't they count? The numbers on the flag should be kept up to date. I am sure that some campus group or perhaps even a rotation of groups could be found to pay homage, where homage is due, by changing a number or two when necessary. It is not much to ask but it means a great deal to us whose sons we have left. I think I express the opinion of many when I say that some campus group should attend to this matter.

George B. Ewell

The Hillel organization announces that Rev. R. A. Hall, professor of Religion and head of the Religious Life Committee will speak on "Protestantism" during the meeting, tonight at 8 in the South Conference Room of the Waterman Building. The entire student body is invited to attend.

A representative of Kendall Mills will be on campus Friday, March 12, to interview girls for positions as supervisors in their New England and Chicago Mills. These jobs have a future and anyone interested should make an appointment by Wednesday, March 10, in the office of the Dean of Women.

Students who have changed their Burlington address since the opening of the semester should register the change of address in writing both at the office of their Dean and at the Registrar's office.

It is important that the correct address be on file at both places in order that the offices may be able to get in touch with students without delay.

The Locker Room . . .

[illegible] Saturday night will be the last time for top milers of the country to [illegible] in an indoor track when they meet at New York in the K. of C.'s 24th [illegible] in Madison Square Garden. Appearing in the Columbia mile will be [illegible] of N. Y. U., the national A. A. U. champion; Gilbert Dodds of Boston A. A.; [illegible] Mitchell, Indiana; Jim Rafferty, N. Y. A. C., national A. A. Most of the outstanding runners and field men in the East will be gathered there and [illegible] the best clashes of the year should be seen as the athletes should be at their [illegible] by this time.

One outstanding feature of this year's board races is the entry into the field of good [illegible] runners of a Negro, thus disproving the old argument that a Negro is no good [illegible] that requires endurance. Many have thought that the Negro [illegible] the endurance to last in the longer races but Dixon has certainly proven [illegible] One explanation for the lack of Negroes as outstanding distance men was [illegible] by Arthur Sampson last week in the Boston Herald when he said that when [illegible] could win three or four of the short events very few coaches would waste him [illegible] mile. This could quite likely be true as there has no doubt been many a Negro [illegible] could have been a good distance runner if he had trained for the event.

Ramblings

Leo Durocher was rejected last week by the Army for a perforated ear drum. He was classed 4F and so will probably be able to return to baseball. Said the Lip after hearing the decision "I was in perfect shape otherwise. You will probably see me at work this summer now."

Joe (Muscles) Medwick has signed a contract with the Dodgers and he promises a comeback." He has never hit less than .300 in all of his 11 major league seasons by the way, although some claim that he had to be left out of the line-up during the hot pennant race with the Cardinals last year to assure his average.

To turn to the local scene it seems possible that one good thing that may come of the Army using the gym is that we may gain some added improvements which can be used after the war such as, bigger shower rooms and more locker space.

Top 20 Bowlers To Meet Wednesday

Sigma Nu's Last Win Falls Short of Delts

Although the winner of the bowling league has already been determined, the bowling alleys were the scene of two more matches last Friday evening at 5 p.m. The Sigma Nus as they won out by a 7-0 side, while Kappa Sigma played the SAEs for the second match.

The first match was a runaway for the Sigma Nus as they won out by a 7-10 score. Sig Boyden easily swept both singles and doubles with respective scores of 134 and 238. TEP bowler Herb Robinson was the nearest to him for single honors with 116 pins to his credit. Incidentally, a total of four strikes was rolled up by these two teams during their match.

Though of no consequence, the Kappa Sigma-Sigma Alpha Epsilon match was one of the most thrilling we have seen this season. The Kappa Sigs went ahead in the first round by over a dozen pins. Determined, the SAE's bowlers rolled up four consecutive spares in the very first frame of the second game. The afternoon's total of strikes was swelled by four more during this contest. The end of the match drew to a close with the two teams neck and neck. However, the Kappa Sigs barely nosed out their hard-fighting opponents by a mere two pins to win the match, even though two SAEs had copped single and double honors. Bill Roeder and "Shorty" Farrington of the latter team were tied with high singles, each having knocked down the same amount of pins. Farrington was just able to take double honors again by two pins. The final score proved to be 5-2, Kappa Sigma.

Two more postponed matches remain on this year's calendar, the SAEs and the ATOs each having a match left to play. Whether these contests will be played or not is doubtful as they cannot possibly affect the Delta Psis, who have won already.

The top twenty bowlers of the league will appear at 7.30 on March 10 and a play-off will result to determine the number one bowler on the campus. A list of these twenty is not prepared as yet, but Friday's issue of the CYNIC will carry a complete résumé of names and results.

U. V. M. Rifle Team Leads In New England Matches

Still Undefeated in Actual Competition; Miller and Weaver Best Shots in New England

Burning up ranges, boring those bulls-eyes home, the University of Vermont rifle is today the leading team in the East, and one of the best in the whole country. Our boys to date have not lost a match in actual competition, and only one because of forfeit, during mid years when it could not be postponed.

Not caring who their opponents are, the team has scorched through Yale, Connecticut Norwich, Maine, Northeastern, Coast Guard, Wentworth, Dayton University and Ripon College. Their only loss was to R P I.

The Norwich Kaydets, bitterest rivals, have been trimmed badly by our sharp shooters in their two encounters, and the boys have kept up the victory string which was started in the fall by our football warriors, for we haven't lost an athletic contest to Norwich since then and we won't in the future.

Lieutenant Thayer, the coach of the rifle team, has been working extremely hard over the riflemen, and both he and they have been giving up much of their valuable time. A great deal of credit should be given to the lieutenant for his fine team of marksmen.

No team has ever gotten any place without team work and team play, and our boys, taking on where last year's team left off, have combined those necessary qualities into a combination that hasn't yet been beaten, and if we know the caliber of U. V. M. athletes, will not be beaten in actual competition. Last year's rifle team left a pair of shoes which the best squad would find difficult to fill; however, this year's team is following in their victorious footsteps, and by the size of their boot prints seem to be breaking out of those shoes and threatening to outdo any past Vermont team.

Roaring through New England like a hell-bent thunderbolt the team ran up in quick succession three New England Rifle League matches. During mid-years, a match which was unable to be postponed was forfeited and after mid-years the team, not deterred by what had past, recovered their merry pace and has since added three more victories to its ever increasing total to forge to the front as the undisputed leader of the New England Rifle League.

The rifle team is captained by L. A. Weaver and between Mr. Weaver and F. W. Miller U. V. M. has the two leading scorers in the East. Mr. Miller is the holder of the season's highest score, a 291 out of a possible 300, shot against "Old Eli" from down New Haven way. In accomplishing this almost insurmountable feat Mr. Miller shot a 100 prone, a 98 kneeling, and a 93 standing which is shooting that is shooting in any man's language. Not to be outdone, Captain Weaver in the same match shot a 99, 96 and a 93 for a total of 288 which is the second highest score of the year. The other team members, Crossley, Burritt and Holden, also shot well above average and the team attained a new season record for complete teams, a 1,413 from a possible 1,500. Crossley and Burritt are also shooting well above average, and they are fourth and seventeenth respectively in the New England Rifle League Individual Standings.

Since "Kake Walk," Yale, Connecticut and Norwich have fallen to the trigger squeezing Vermont marvels, and all have felt the wrath of a determined group of marksmen for they have been knocked off their perches by shooting, the like of which they have never seen before.

Although the team is way out in front and has never been defeated in actual competition the road is still long and weary until final victory is achieved. The team still has to shoot against the Mass. Institute of Technology whose team, while its shooting hasn't been in the class of Vermont's and they are only in fourth place in the league competition is undefeated. However, at this moment the team is in the midst of the grand battle royal that is going on in the First Service Command competition in the Hearst Trophy Tournament and the New England Rifle League. If the boys continue to shoot as they have done in the past, as we all know they will, they will come out victorious in all three tournaments and will have adjudged themselves well worthy of continuing and carrying forth into battle the time-honored traditions of U. V. M.'s stellar rifle teams. Here's a lot of luck, fellows.

"Kappa Sigma Nu" Holds an Informal

Sigma Nu and Kappa Sigma fraternities combined forces Saturday night to give an enjoyable informal dance at Sigma Nu lodge. Professor and Mrs. Ladd chaperoned. A lighted Star of Sigma Nu gave an imposing atmosphere to the festivities.

Sigma Nu foresees the possibility of having a dance every Saturday night.

Janet Hartung Upsets Military Department

The women's rifle team which meets Monday and Wednesday under Sergeant Parker and Tuesday and Thursday with Sergeant Landa has an important announcement to make. For the first time in quite a few years, Sergeant Landa could not remember the exact number, a perfect score of 100 was made on March 2.

This feat was accomplished by Janet Hartung '46, who is majoring in the agricultural curriculum. She had received no instruction in riflery before entering U. V. M. However, she had practiced some at home by shooting at a target. When interviewed she said, generously enough, that she attributed the score solely to Sergeant Landa's able instruction.

Air Crew Students Now in Training

The 630 aircrew students who arrived at the University of Vermont from Atlantic City on Saturday will, according to instructions received from the Army Air Force Southeast Training Service at Maxwell Field, Ala., be reclassified into five groups, of which one group will be graduated from the course at the end of each four weeks.

During the present week the men will all follow the same program, but beginning with the second week of the course, those men who rate highest in the army classification list will be graded as senior students, the next high as juniors, and so on through the list, depending on individual preparation and abilities. The upper classes will be designated for faster progress, and certain of the elementary work will be eliminated from their training.

Besides these classifications, each student has been given a number, and these are subdivided into groups of five, which will be considered the unit of organization. These numbers indicate the class schedule for each man, his barracks assignment and any other facts about his daily program.

The students express themselves as greatly pleased with the conditions at Vermont, according to Capt. Allen F. Ernst, commanding officer of the detachment. They mention especially the good food being served them in the cafeteria in Waterman Building where their mess is located.

French Club Speaker

Attention Le Cercle Français! Dr. Wadi Sawabini formerly of Beirut, Syria, will speak in French at the home of Professor and Mrs. R. F. Duane, 4 Cedar Lane, Wednesday evening, 7.30. Slides of Beirut will be shown. It is hoped that all members will be present.

Soldiers Have Sunday Services in Chapel

For the first two weeks of the arrival of the air crew, the men are having the benefit of Sunday services in the Chapel. February 28 at 9 a.m. Mass was held for the Catholics with the Rev. Joseph Joy of the Cathedral officiating. At 10:00 the Protestant service was conducted by Professor Hall. At 11 a Jewish service under Mr. Katchen of the Hebrew Free School. March 7 the Catholics again congregated under the Reverend Joy, the Protestants under the Rev. Max Webster and the Jewish boys under a medical student, Julius Cohen. After the quarantine period the boys will attend services in town.

Youngest Member Of Seven Jenkses Graduates in May

Phi Beta Kappas University Singers; Also Kake Walkers

On May 2 1943, a U. V. M. tradition of 36 years will be broken. On that day Betty Jenks graduates from the University. She is the youngest of the seven children of Mrs. Lucille Jenks and the late Floyd R. Jenks. The eldest member of the family entered U. V. M. as a freshman in 1929 and since that time one or more of the members of that versatile family have been members of the student body at Vermont.

Floyd R. Jenks, father of these seven children, was a graduate of Purdue University. Mr. Jenks came to U. V. M. as a professor of Agricultural Education in 1913. He continued the position of Assistant Dean in the College of Agriculture and held it until his death in 1929.

Major F. was graduated with a B.S. degree in 1927. At Vermont he was a member of Pi Delta Rho and Phi Beta Kappa. He received his Master's degree in 1934 and his Doctor's degree in 1938 from Cornell University. He was a member of Delta Psi fraternity. Major is at present the head of the History Department and Assistant Coordinator of Civilian Training War Service at Penn College, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Robert S. received his Ph.B. degree in 1932 and was graduated from the University of Vermont Medical College in 1935. Before the war Doctor Jenks resided in Batavia, N. Y. He is now a captain in the Medical Corps and assistant to chief surgeon in a base hospital somewhere in Northern Africa. He was a member of Delta Psi Fraternity.

David W. '34 received a B.S. in Electrical Engineering. He was an honor student, a member of Phi Beta Kappa and A. I. E. E. and the recipient of the Atwater Kent Prize. He, too, was a member of Delta Psi. David is now associated with the Research Laboratory on Vacuum Tubes for General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y.

Marjorie Jenks Robins, R.N., was graduated from Vermont in 1935 with a Ph.B. degree. She graduated from the Lenox Hill Hospital School of Nursing in 1938. While at the University Mrs. Robins was a member of Bluestockings, W. A. A. and Pi Beta Phi sorority.

William L. followed in his father's footsteps. In 1937 he received a B.S. in Agriculture. He was a member of Alpha Zeta, Agricultural honorary society, and Delta Psi. His wife is the former Janet Collins, U. V. M. '38. Mr. and Mrs. Jenks are now living in Palmer, Mass., where he is Assistant Manager of the Swift and Co. plant.

Paul C., the youngest boy, received a B.S. in 1940 and will graduate this month from Medical School. He was a member of Gold Key, John Dewey Club and Phi Beta Kappa. Paul plans to intern at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Elizabeth, better known to us as Betty, will receive her B.S. in Education in May of this year. At Vermont, Betty has been a member of W. A. A., Y. W. C. A., Le Cercle Français, Archery Club, Bowling Club, and a participant in Lilac Day. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Betty is a math. major and plans to teach after graduation.

All of the boys have Kake Walked for the fraternity and have met with considerable success in that event. The history of the Delta Psi Kake Walking gives evidence of that.

The Jenks family has always been musically inclined. All of the boys played in the R. O. T. C. band. All of them were members of the Choir and Glee Club and took part in the operas when they were given at the University. When they were all together they entertained Burlington and University circles with their family orchestra. They seem to have inherited their musical talent from their mother, Mrs. Lucille Jenks. An accomplished musician, Mrs. Jenks has had charge of the Burlington Junior High School Band as well as teaching mathematics at B. H. S. since 1930.

We feel sure that Betty, the baby of the family, will make her mark in the world as have the other members of this unique family. As the years go by, their fame will bring reflected glory to U. V. M., which is proud to have been the Alma Mater of the Jenks family.

Mortar Board Projects for 1942

What does Mortar Board do? What happens to the money the girls take in at their dances and other functions? These are questions often asked by the more curious on the campus.

Each Mortar Board group has one main project for the year in which they invest the majority of their earnings for that year. Last year's group, lamenting the lack of furniture in the Waterman Building, determined to do something about the situation. Under Gratia Pearl Paterson, the girls made plans to furnish a powder room on the ground floor. They bought a couch, a dressing table and bench, and a mirror. They started to make a skirt for the dressing table and drapes to match. These could not be finished last year and so were completed by this year's Mortar Board. The furnishings have been complete for several months now and everyone who has seen the room and agree that Mortar Board is justly proud of this project.

Goodrich Classical Club

The Goodrich Classical Club will meet at the home of Professor and Mrs. Lester M. Prindle this Thursday evening at 7.45. Professor Prindle will give a talk on Rome which will be accompanied by lantern slides.

Collegium Will Meet Again to Read Plays

Collegium will carry on! So much interest was manifested in Sunday night's program at the College Street Church, that new impetus was given to the group, despite the loss of many of its members to the armed services. An amusing and instructive play was read by six of the members.

Next Sunday at 7.30 p.m. (note change of time) in the basement of the College St. Church, another play will be read aloud. Try-outs are not necessary. Anyone interested is cordially invited to attend. We are sure you will enjoy it.

Women's Honorary Societies Meet

There will be a meeting of the Sophomore Aides in the North Conference Room of the Waterman Building on Tuesday, March 9, at 4.15.

The members of Mortar Board met with Miss Simpson on February 28. Important impending business was discussed.

Staff and Sanlal met last Thursday. The business of another Faculty-Student supper was discussed. Plans are being carried out for a supper on Sunday, March 14, to be held in the Student Lounge from 5 to 6 p.m.

Faculty-Student suppers which were formerly held at Southwick have been a big success. It is hoped that a large number will be present on Sunday.

University of Texas bureau of business research reports payrolls in the quarrying industry are 55 per cent higher than a year ago.

Yale's Dean Brown To Speak Sunday

Dean-emeritus Charles Reynolds Brown of the Yale Divinity School will be the vespers speaker in the Ira Allen Chapel at the University of Vermont on Sunday afternoon, March 14 at 4 o'clock.

Dean Brown, who was for 15 years pastor of the First Congregational Church in Oakland, Calif., before coming to Yale in 1911, has been lecturer on religious subjects at Leland Stanford, Yale, Cornell, Columbia, Harvard, North Carolina and Southern Methodist Universities and at the Pacific School of Religion, and is the author of many religious books and articles, besides being pastor and dean.

He was born in Bethany, West Va., Oct. 1, 1862, received his A.B. and A.M. from the University of Iowa, and is the holder of degrees from universities and colleges in many parts of the country. He gave the baccalaureate address at Vermont in 1926, and has many times been the speaker at the vespers services.

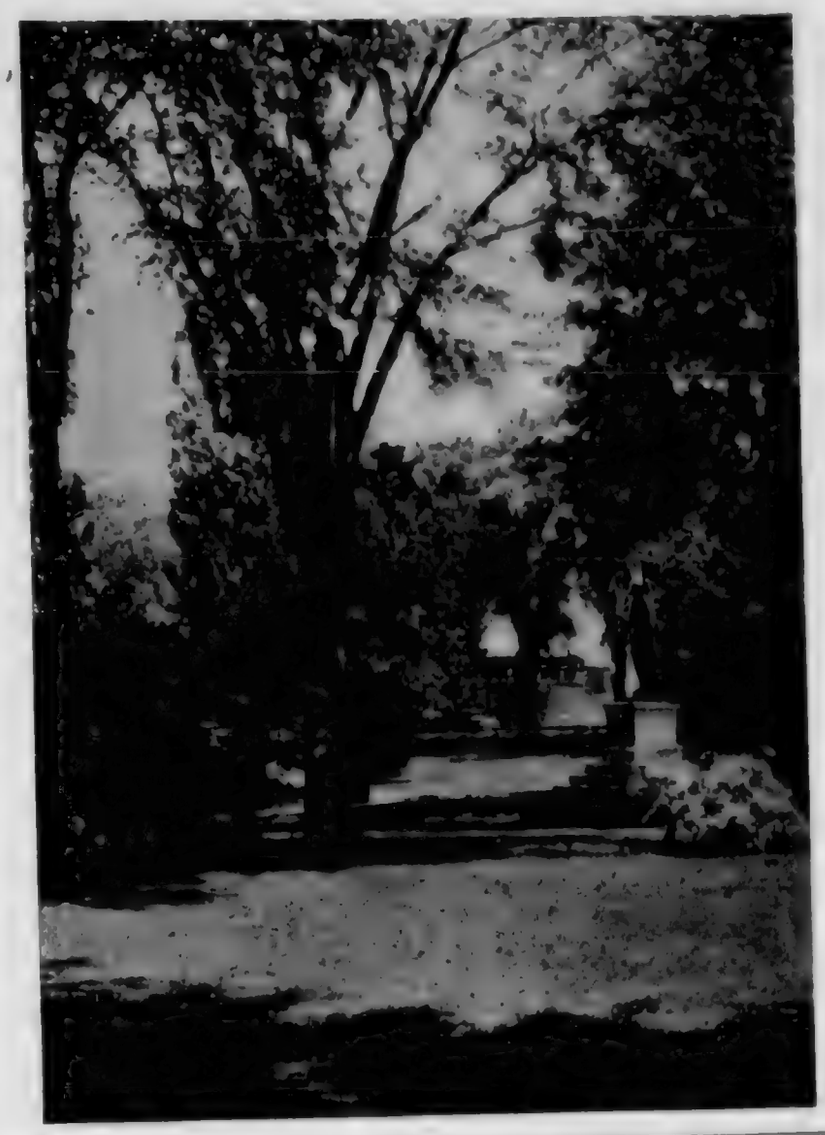
Victrola Dance To Be Held Sat. In Student Lounge



Will Be First Dance In Waterman Building Since Army Arrival

Once more we are going to have a chance to dance in the Waterman Building something we haven't done since the arrival of the army of occupation. Student Government has made complete arrangements for a Vic Dance on Saturday, March 13. The dance will be held in the Student Lounge which now is always open for the use of U. V. M. students.

The Vic Dance Saturday night will take the place of the postponed Pep Dance. The Pep Committee had planned the dance for Brotherhood Week, February 21, but when the air corps suddenly landed they found they had no place to hold it. Now with the Student Lounge open for our use we can have dances once more on Saturday night.

Since Mortar Board has been postponed until March 20 and since the Pep Dance had also been postponed, Saturday night's dance will do a double-duty pinch-hitting job. It looks like fun! Help support your Student Government and have fun dancing at the same time. This is a good old-fashioned Razz Dazz and everyone is more than welcome—including the new air men and girls who want to come stag. All it costs is fifty cents.

Students Ask for More Campus Sings

Amee, Eastman and Trio Do An Excellent Job

Under the direction of Alfred Amee '43 another successful campus sing was held Wednesday evening. This "hum" was held in the main corridor of the Waterman Building as the Army has taken over most of the other available space.

The singers, who were not as great in number as in the past, sang lustily for the first three-quarters of an hour and were then relieved by the popular songerettes, that trio who made such a hit at Masquerade, made up of Betty Farnsworth, Mary Lib Metcalf, and Trit Johnson. Their accompanist Bob Eastman, versatile piano player from Fort Ethan Allen delighted his listeners with a sensational rendition of "The Alligator Crawl" and several other selections. To top off the enjoyable evening Fran Donahue served doughnuts to the warblers.

Famous Concert Pianist Will Give Recital Here

On Sunday, March 21, the world-famous Ibero-American concert pianist, Senor Nin-Culmell will give a concert of Spanish music at the Ira Allen Chapel at 3 p.m.

Senor Nine-Culmell comes free of charge to the students who will be the guests of the University Glee Clubs as the Glee Clubs will not be using their money for a hall. All men in uniform will be admitted free also.

Further details of Senor Nin-Culmell's life and his program will appear in next week's Cynic. This will be the first of a series of concerts.

Shelburne College was so named because a large part of the area it serves is covered by streams that make up the Shelburne River.

Dean Considers Summer Program

Definite Information Will Be Released Soon

Incoming freshmen primarily will reap the benefits of this year's summer semester at the University of Vermont according to the special committee appointed to formulate the summer program. Already definite plans have been made to offer Engineering, Pre-Medical, Chemistry as well as courses for Science majors. Later the administration hopes to present a suitable program for those taking a chemistry curriculum along with the Pre-Medical students who have completed two or more semesters.

Although as is natural, war-time courses will predominate this summer, the committee is working on a list of courses which they hope will meet the wishes of the majority of the students and these will be recommended to President Millis. Already a number of students have filled out questionnaires indicating their desire to attend the summer semester as well as indicating the courses in which they are interested. At present there is not very much definite information regarding the scientific courses because of the indefinite plans of faculty members.

There will be an announcement in the near future regarding the program for the summer term. The 350 more soldiers who are expected to arrive the latter part of this month may necessitate changes in this program.

Faculty and Students To be Friendly Sunday

Don't forget the Faculty-Student Supper, Sunday from 5-6:00. It will be held in the Student Lounge, and everyone is urged to come and enjoy a friendly get-together of faculty and students. Pat Crowley heads the committee and Julie Fletcher is helping her make arrangements. Just 15 cents will be charged.

Newman Club Hears Reverend Joyce

There was a meeting of the Newman Club last Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Student Lounge of the Waterman Building. Helena Anderson '43, president, presided at the meeting.

The meeting was opened by a prayer led by Reverend Joyce of Northfield. Following the prayer the minutes of the last meeting were read by Ita Casey '44, secretary, and approved. Announcements were made concerning the coming elections. The nominating committee consists of M. Witham '43, H. Anderson '43, and M. Germain '43.

Father Joyce was the speaker of the evening. His topic was the "Catholic Attitude." He explained the standing of the Church and Democracy. He also stressed the authority vested in religion and gave proof of his statement—"Moral Law is beyond human reach."

After the speech a short and interesting discussion followed.

Student Government Offers Cultural Program

Maeve MacMurrough In Characterizations To Appear March 21

Here's good news for the students of U. V. M., just another piece of evidence that your Student Government is really working for you. After the brilliant success of their first cultural program when they presented Jimmy Young, war correspondent from China, we can really look forward eagerly to next Monday night when they bring us Maeve MacMurrough in Characterizations.

Maeve MacMurrough was born and studied dramatics in Ireland, and later toured with the original company of world famed Irish Players, with whom she played leading parts. As a young girl she delighted her friends by reproducing the Irish characters she met in her daily life. She decided to devote her time to studying and reproducing various types of Irish peasant folk, and after meeting marked success in Ireland and England is now delighting her American audiences.

Miss MacMurrough's sketches are unique as monologues; they are miniatures of living characters both Irish and English. "The Missionary," "The Irish Village Postoffice" and "An English Village Meeting" will illustrate the versatility of Maeve MacMurrough's program. She achieves these results with the aid of no make-up and no change of costume beyond the addition of a hat, a pair of glasses, or a shawl.

This second cultural program will be in the Student Lounge of the Waterman at 8:15 p.m. on Monday night, March 15. Sororities and fraternities are again cooperating by having early meetings so its members can attend. Student Union is making it a free night for freshman women attending. Admission is free to students and faculty. Any proceeds which are received will go to the Russian War Relief. Let's all be present Monday night and show our appreciation to Student Government for giving us this opportunity.

Book Store Gets Candy Shipment

"Mm—m—sniff—sniff—candy!" This was the echo in the bookstore and cafeteria corridor Wednesday afternoon as the first candy shipment in two weeks shone spic and span in neat rows in the Book store candy case.

For days the case has been filled with nabs, potato chips, fig newtons, cheese popcorn, peanuts, cough drops and more peanuts. An occasional box of some brand of precious candy attracts people for a few minutes until the substitutes pinch hit again.

A secretary on the first floor of Waterman arrived a few minutes after the case had been filled. When asked how she knew it was there, she responded, "I can just smell it."

"We can allow only one bar per customer," states Miss Myrle Nichols as she smilingly hands out the now almost luxurious confection.

"Maple Flavored Brownies made in Burlington of Pure Vermont Maple Sugar" are substituting for chocolate bars, and "Whiz" is a new marshmallow and peanut flavored bar which occasionally appears in the case.

Student patriotism was evidenced when one boy appeared at the candy-filled case and asked, "What, no nabs?"

Mortar Board Date Set for March 27

Mortar Board has been postponed girls, but when it comes it will be bigger and better than ever before. Scheduled for this Saturday, the dance has been set off for two weeks to give the girls an opportunity to meet the air corps men and have a much increased field from which to choose in selecting their date for this dance. Therefore a "razz dazz" will be held next Saturday evening, March 20, which the air corps men will be able to attend and Mortar Board will be held the following Saturday, March 27.

Because of the ever decreasing number of eligible males on campus the members of Mortar Board (as well as all the other coeds) believe that their dance will be much more successful if the bird-men can be present. The military officials are most willing that the soldiers go to both the "razz dazz" and Mortar Board but medical authorities say that they are not yet able to be out of quarantine so birdmen and coeds must wait another week to get together.

Student Government Carries On

Never before in the history of this University has the campus changed so radically and quickly as in the last few months. Organizations and traditions that always seemed to be a vital part of college life disintegrated, and out of the debris there is slowly emerging a college at war.

We do not mourn these changes, they were born out of the necessity for total war. Yet, we cannot help looking into the future—to the days when accelerated programs will only be remembered in the hour-exam files of fraternity houses, when the footsteps of marching soldiers will have become a distant, very distant echo. It will be the future for a courageous generation and we shall look in the shattered mass of the past for any sign of life, for a starting point from where new trails of progress can be blazed.

Yesterday the campus voted for the new officers of Student Government. This vote was not merely meant to fill an office with the best-fitted person, but rather expressed the students' conviction that a task, so well begun, should not pass into oblivion. That this desire of perpetuation was strongly felt, speaks very well of the tremendous effort the outgoing officers of Student Government have exerted to find a place for a self-governing body on the campus. Now new officers must take it upon themselves to see that the interest kindled will persist throughout the year to come. A difficult undertaking, but the officers were elected for just that task.

Many of the duties of Student Government have lost their meaning for the duration. New obligations, new responsibilities have arisen and they must be dealt with efficiently. The organization of a Student War Council, to integrate all existing and establish new activities that symbolize the student body's contribution to total war, should be one of the first duties of the executive committee.

Ways and means must also be found to adjust the needs of the students to the gradual decrease of space on the campus. Some kind of recreational facilities should be provided to allow the continuance of social relaxation instead of aimless walks through April blizzards or Spring rains. We are sure that a student lounge will solve half the problem—nobody asks for privileges any more, only for necessities.

We feel confident that the students will cooperate. The spirit and cheerfulness that were so apparent at Wednesday's improvised Campus sing will carry us safely over the many rough spots ahead. What the future has in store nobody knows but we hope that the new officers of Student Government will be successful in maintaining the continuity of at least a few of our campus traditions for the war-time students to come.

Dear Sir:

The Delts of Delta Psi did not leave a long list of instructions to us, the refugees from Redstone. They left us a grand home (and a good one too). We just want them to know that we will treat Delta Psi Hall with as much care as we did our cherished Redstone. It is the general consensus of opinion from the basement to the ballroom that "The best boys of all lent us Delta Psi Hall."

Legislature Wants New Amendment

Solons Asked to Choose Majority of Trustees

University of Vermont would not get its special $200,000 state appropriation for the next two years without strings attached, if an amendment proposed by the house education committee is adopted, it appeared today.

The bill was reported favorably with amendment on the house calendar as the legislature reconvened tonight, and referred to the appropriations committee. The original bill called for appropriations of $50,000 next year and $150,000 the following year.

Approval of two-thirds of the University trustees chosen by the legislature would be required before any of the money could be used, under the proposed amendment, and then only such amounts as they find are actually needed. In other words, if they did not find need for the entire amount of the appropriation, it would not be available.

A certificate of their approval would have to be filed with the state auditor of accounts before money could be extended from the fund.

"Cafeteria" Now In Student Lounge

For the past few weeks, one has often seen groups of students wandering aimlessly through the halls of the Old Mill or the Waterman Building searching for a place to "light" and spend a free hour between classes. Since the army took over the cafeteria, there has been no place of any size in which to spend free time. Finally some thoughtful contrived the idea of furnishing the room, originally made for a student lounge anyway, with furniture taken from Southwick.

On the morning of March tenth the students who gathered around the tables just outside the doors of the new "mess hall," were pleasantly surprised when they were politely invited into the Student Lounge at the south end of the Waterman Building on the ground floor. They found the room attractively furnished with sofas, tables, chairs, a desk, the nickelodeon, and last but not least, a charming "love seat" at one end of the room. The fireplace also added to the homey atmosphere.

One studious girl whose pen had just run dry, was overheard saying, "now all we need is a bottle of ink for the desk."

Let's keep our lounge as attractive as it is now and we'll have something to be proud of.

"The Old Order Changeth" Delta Psi Fraternity Turns Pink

Redstone

Occupies

Peaceful

Delta Psi Home

Should any uninformed Delta Psi alum walk through the sacred portals of his old haunt at 61 Summit Street he would have no few surprises in store for him. It would not take him long to sense that something was funny. Those two vases of daffodils on the reception room table would certainly arouse his suspicions, and if he should, by chance, slide back the door into the old dining hall he would no doubt be astounded to see three neat pastel-spreaded beds where the table used to be, knick-knacks and perfume bottles in the china closets, and skirts and dresses in the butler's pantry. Alarmed he would probably dash to the card room and the music room to assure himself that this was all a horrid nightmare (or the evil effects of last night's little celebration) but there again would be the telltale evidences of feminine occupation. Now in utter dismay he would dash from room to room—but nowhere would he find the sport coat slung over the back of a chair, the Esquire artistry on the walls or any of the other old familiar objects. Ruffled curtains, bedspreads and mirrors everywhere—women!—what was his old fraternity coming to.

But of course this could not happen to any good Delta Psi alum because all Delta Psi Brothers, alums and others, read the papers, or at least have heard vague rumors to the effect that there is a war going on, and that "The best girls of all moved to Delta Psi Hall" when Redstone Hall, along with the rest of Redstone Campus, was taken over by the Army Air Corps.

In a whirl of excitement and confusion the girls left Redstone on the Monday after Kake Walk. They were sorry to leave, but they cheerfully packed their trunks and junk (mostly junk) and headed for Summit Street. Perhaps the three things which impressed them most about their new home were (1) its immensity, (2) its nearness to the campus and (3) that automatic [illegible] the boys left for them. At last they have settled down and can now find their way around with comparative ease. They agree unanimously in their opinion of Delta Psi Hall. Helaine Goldberg, House President, best expressed their feelings when she said, "I think it was just swell of the Delts to lend us such a wonderful home, and I do hope that the Army Air Corps men will be as happy in Redstone Hall as we have always been."

Army Air Cadets' Press Department Releases News From the Barracks

Owing to the fact that the various Press Departments have not as yet been established in any of the Redstone campus barracks, the news items concerning the activities over there are relatively scarce. (Maybe just being quarantined behind four walls is enough to keep any one from making news!) But anyway they tell us that:

1. Fifty-nine "jeeps" from Boston (pronounced it Bah-stan but that's the Joisey accent for you!) arrived last week—a "jeep" is to be construed as a newcomer. It seems that the boys had been in the Army only a few days before getting to U. V. M. and the first group had been in twenty days—making the Boston boys veterans. See?—

2. Just because they are quarantined doesn't mean that the soldier boys don't have parties—they do have G. I. parties—What's a G. I. party?—you take G. I. soap, G. I. [illegible] mops and G. I. pails—get down on your G. D. knees and scrub the floor.

(Vermont was never like that!)

3. The residents of 3rd floor Redstone wish it to be known that there are no handsome Irishmen with dark curly hair and blue eyes" (Quote Pvt. Mc[illegible] sounds good—doesn't it?)

4. Robinson Hall barracks [illegible] think they are being treated swell at U. V. M. and hope this treatment continues after the quarantine. One even went so far as to say he hoped to be stationed here for [illegible] ing—after this basic work is over.

Petitions Must Be In by Next Week

To nominate a candidate for the Executive Committee of Student Government, a petition of at least 100 student signatures must be placed in the office of either Dean Simpson or Dean Swift before 5 p.m., Thursday, March 18.

Four juniors, four sophomores and two freshmen in good scholastic standing are needed to serve on this council together with the four officers elected Thursday. Those men and women who were nominated but not elected for the offices, positions are still elgibile for committee membership by means of petition nomination.

The fourteen members of the Executive Committee meet together at least once a month during the college year. Their duties are as follows:

1. To bring to the attention of the student body all matters pertaining to the welfare of the U. V. M. Student Government.

2. To discuss matters of common concern with the administration.

3. To act as an apportioning committee for the Student Activities Fund.

4. To elect, to advise, and to direct their sub-committees.

5. To elect a student court.

6. To make all rules and regulations necessary for the execution of the duties mentioned above.

[illegible] are two string averages for [illegible] season

The bowling quickly got underway with [illegible] men toward the bottom of the list [illegible] first. The first eight men quickly [illegible] their three games in the following [illegible] Grosvenor, Page, Baxendale, Robinson, Fowler, Harvey, Sutton, and Doherty. None of these first rounders showed exceptional promise, but Page averaged higher than the others with a [illegible] of 345 for three games. This was [illegible] as John Hooks rolled up a 357 average including a third round score of 141, which later proved to be high [illegible].

However, Archie Post of the faculty [illegible] ahead soon after with a 362 tally. He was the most consistent of the bowlers, [illegible] knocked down about 120 pins in [illegible] of his three games. On the adjoining alley, Herman Thomas bowled a [illegible] 110 for his first game. However, [illegible] second game mark of 125 began to [illegible] expectant murmurs from the onlookers. As the last game proceeded, Thomas' form visibly improved and he [illegible] 136 pins to make a total of 371.

Five more bowlers followed Thomas but none were able to approach his score. However, the evening was not ended till the last pin had been knocked down. All attention in "Pop" Brooks' domain centered on the final round, in which participants were the three high scorers of the year; namely, Irish, Boyden, and Fogg. There were high hopes for Ed Boyden's chances as he had been head and shoulders above any other bowler during the league matches. Unfortunately, a combination of some bad luck and the pressure on him hurt Ed's chances and he only knocked down 323 pins. Sherry Fogg and Irish did no better, probably as a result of the same circumstances.

In third place came John Hooks, Archie Post came in second, and Herman Thomas was the grand winner of the evening. Archie had bowled well all year and Hooks had had his good moments. Although Thomas had bowled consistently over 100 for his Phi Sigma Delta team, he was more or less a dark horse before the playoffs began. Said Thomas when queried as to his victory, "I was bowling better than usual, but I was really lucky to get such a high score."

In past years a small cup has been awarded to the winner, but this year's award has not yet been decided. The evening's points were garnered in the following order:

Grosvenor	286
Baxendale	329
Robinson	342
Fowler	283
Harvey	327
Sutton	274
Doherty	314
Hooks	357
West, W.	312
Browne	293
Boardman	318
Thomas	371
Mr. Post	362
Prof. Rooney	306
Thompson	326
Irish	320
Col. Fogg	309
Boyden	323

Vermont Wins Five State Championships In Last Year of Sports For the Duration

By LLOYD SPIEGEL

As the books are closed on another athletic year U. V. M. can look back with pride on stellar achievements in the field of sports. Out of 61 contests played during the past year, our athletes won 35, lost 25 and tied one for an average of .583. Starting last spring with our baseball team, the Catamount athletes rode the crest of a victory wave which found them the champions of Vermont colleges in three sports, baseball, basketball, and football.

The baseball team found themselves in the national eye last spring, for on their Southern trip, after beating Lehigh, and losing thrillers to the Army at West Point, and the Navy at Annapolis, they tangled with Villanova. The boy who was doing the chucking for the Philadelphia school was very hot, and as the innings progressed it was seen that he was pitching a no-hitter. The game ended with him pitching a no-hitter, but with Vermont winning. As it often happens, when a pitcher has a lot of stuff, ths hurler was wild; on four walks, an error, and a long fly ball the U. V. M. batters garnered two runs, which were enough to provide the margin of victory; for Carlson, the pitcher for Vermont, was very hard to get to, and the Villanova boys scored only once. The New York papers carried a big story on the game, for when a no-hitter is pitched there is a big story, and one that is pitched and lost is a sensational story. Winding up their successful trip South, the Catamounts returned North, where they walloped Middlebury twice, lost one and won two from St. Michael's, and trimmed Fort Ethan Allen twice. The team, which starred Carlson, Clairmont, Margolis, Killick, and Sysko, wound up a swell season with seven victories and four defeats.

Fine Football Team

The football team, although starting off slowly, gathered speed as they went along, and wound up the season with four victories and three defeats. After being swamped in the opener by Rhode Island State, the Catamounts started to gain their stride. Rutgers, much to her surprise, down to the last moments of the fourth quarter, found herself on the wrong side of the score, and it was only through sheer weight of numbers that here she was able to win. Finding their winning stride, the boys swamped Mass. State and Trinity, only to suffer a relapse and lose to Union. At the last home game, with our greatest rival, Norwich, the Catamounts combined those sparks of greatness that they had shown during the year, and upset Norwich in one of the greatest games that had ever been seen on the hill. With the Beaulieu-La Pointe combination working to perfection, and our line, sparked by Walgren and Eddy, stopping Norwich's great back, Domina, cold, the Catamounts rode roughly over the Kaydets, and the crowd was many times brought cheering to its feet. The team ended a great season by trouncing Middlebury.

The basketball team, sparked by Larry Killick, had one of its most successful seasons, and won 10 games while only losing six. Although starting off on the wrong foot by losing to Hartwick, the boys immediately bounced back with three victories in a row over 71st H. Q. Fort Ethan Allen. Williams and Tufts Victories over Norwich and Middlebury were sandwiched between losses to Providence and St. Mike's, and Amherst and Springfield. The team ended the season in a blaze of glory by defeating St. Mike's, Middlebury, Norwich, St. Lawrence, 180th F. A., Fort Ethan Allen, and only losing to the expert Coast Guard aggregation.

The hockey team wasn't as lucky as the other teams for they happened to come up against two of the best teams in the East but they sure did display a superior brand of stick handling, and went down fighting in the best Vermont tradition in their defeats to Norwich and Middlebury.

Excellent Rifle Team

The rifle team, coached by Lieutenant Thayer, and led by L. A. Weaver, is one of the best teams in the country, and the best in the East. To date it is leading the New England Rifle League and looks like a cinch to capture a place in the Hearst tournament, if not first place. In F. Miller, the team has the best shot among New England college students, and his high N. E. R. L. mark of 291 is something for all riflemen to shoot for. Mr. Miller is the individual competition leader in New England with an average of 285.2. In second place, closely following Mr. Miller is Captain Weaver with an average of 284.6. Also in the first 20 are Crossley and Burritt. The team has defeated Norwich twice, and Yale, Conn., Northeastern, Maine, Coast Guard, Wentworth, Dayton and Ripon once. The team has the splendid record of six victories and only one defeat, and is completing one of its most successful seasons.

The cross-country team, although running for the first time in three years without the fleet-footed Webster brothers, showed that they still were up there on top. After losing the first match to a powerful Union squad, the boys found their legs and ran Bowdoin, Williams and Middlebury into the ground in quick succession. In the N. E. I. C. A. A. competing against the best the East has to offer, the boys really did themselves proud, and came in sixth with 167 points. The team finished an excellent season with three wins, and one loss.

Tennis Team

The tennis team, after getting badly beaten in their first match with Middlebury, came back stronger than ever, and with Captain West and Wendy Harvey leading the way, went to work on St. Mike's and defeated them badly in two matches. The team wound up in glory with two victories and one defeat.

The J. V. football team, although well coached and manned, never seemed able to get started, and lost their three games with Bellows Free Academy, Green Mountain Junior College, and Middlebury. The team played well and most of the games were lost on long runs and passes.

The J. V. basketball team had one of its best seasons, and it won six games while only losing three. Although losing many men to the armed services, the team kept going strongly and finished well. Cathedral and Winooski were beaten before the team first tasted defeat at the hands of Burlington High. The team ended the season by sandwiching two defeats by Green Mountain between victories over V. J. C., Middlebury, Winooski, and the Vermont Independents.

Our Frosh baseball team, studded with outstanding athletes, went to town over their competition, and although they only won two, lost one, and tied one they were much better than the record indicates. Starting off with a fourteen inning 11 to 11 tie with Burlington High, the Kittens lost to Green Mountain, and then beat V. J. C. and Green Mountain again.

Literary Bluestockings To Increase Ranks Soon

Bluestockings is going to elect new members again—soon! The girls have already received some manuscripts but they hope to receive quite a few more before they make their final selections. If you are interested hand your manuscripts to Lucy Bluestockings member or leave it in the box in the Cynic by March 20. At least two manuscripts are required. If you have submitted only one manuscript at a previous time, you may submit another now. If your manuscripts have not been favorably reviewed do not be discouraged. It certainly will not do any harm to try again.

Barbara Hall Pres. Of Student Union To Do "Level Best"

Chief Justice Crowley Looks Forward to Work With Other Executives

After getting over the first surprise and excitement at seeing themselves in Student Union offices each of the eleven newly elected executives made resolutions to do her "level best" to make this year's Student Union government the strongest ever.

"Janet Hackwell and the girls working with her have set us such a marvelous example, we just can't let them down" the three girls who elected us officers is the unanimous attitude.

President Barbara Hall said, "I'm really looking forward to working with Pat Crowley on Student Union." "The feeling is mutual" replies Chief Justice Pat.

Part of Shirley Needham's job as Second Vice President is to arrange the fire drills those early morning wet wash cloth (yawn) and where-in the world (yawn) is-my-notebook affairs that beset the dorm living women. Shirley promises reformation. "Never again shall a girl be aroused from slumber to drill at 3.30 a.m., if I can help it!" declared Shirley. "I won't stir them from their beds a minute before—well, gee—I guess golly, wouldn't 4.30 be fair enough?"

Truly magnanimous, Shirley!

Social Chairman Alma Gaylord realizes what a big job she has, what with the airmen coming and the U. V. M. boys growing scarcer and scarcer.

The task of Frances Witham, Town Representative, is to gather and bring before Student Union the problems of the girls who live off campus.

As Scholarship Chairman, Ruth Jordan is aiming to devise ways to boost that 78.40 average of "all women."

Vice President Sylvia Runnals, Secretary Ruth Schoppe, Treasurer Virginia Campbell and House Chairman Pat McCormick, assisted by Christine Hughes all say that they're going to do their very best.

President Barbara Hall expressed the feeling of all of them when she said, "It's going to be hard work, it's going to take a lot of time, but with such a grand bunch to work with, it will be a wonderful experience."

Canterbury Club Will Hear Convention Report

Canterbury Club will hold a meeting this Sunday at 7.30 in the rectory. Virginia Benedict '46 and Kathryn Marcott '45 will report on the convention which they attended in Andover, Mass. last week-end. There will also be an outside speaker.

A corporate communion was held yesterday morning and will be held every Thursday morning during Lent at seven. Cars will pick up students at ten minutes of seven at the Redstone Gatehouse, at the Medical Building corner and at the corners of South Willard and Main streets and South Willard and Pearl Streets.

Colorado University has added 500 seats in its fieldhouse, bringing capacity to 5,000.

Chemistry Dept. Donates Chemicals To University's New Thrift Shop

U. V. M. coeds. Stop, Look and Inspect! Would you like a new spring dress to brighten up your last year's coat on Easter morning? Would you like a tricky feminine-looking hat to wear in the snapshot you're going to have taken for "him" in the service? Or how about a smart looking suit in which to step out this spring? This isn't wishful thinking. Even with the clothes rationing you can have smart clothes and you will have them if you stop to look in the Thrift Shop located just off the corridor in the left wing on the first floor of Waterman.

Dean Simpson realizes that clothes help keep up the feminine morale, and in this day and age with rationing tickets and shortage of materials, it is a problem. The Thrift Shop was her idea and with such able helpers as Mrs. C. E. Braun, Mrs. D. B. Carroll and Mrs. P. A. Fraleigh, the Thrift Shop was launched in the Waterman Building approximately three months ago.

The shop contains a sewing machine and a flatiron and ironing board which a student may use any time by obtaining the key from either Miss Bristol or Miss Everett in the Dean's office.

These implements have been provided in case a girl wants to remake an article. The Chemistry Department donated a bottle of carbon tetra-chloride for removing spots. The mirror behind the door comes from the Roberts House Barn. Dr. Yvonne Turk of Burlington furnished the cutting table in the shop and Miss Simpson the sewing machine.

Some of the clothes are entirely new; others have been worn but are in good condition; still others may require mending or remaking. The lowest priced article is five cents and the highest is one dollar and fifty cents.

A gray tweed suit, size 14, in good condition is holding its own at the end of the rack. It sells for one dollar.

A brand new purple rayon dress hangs demurely beside a black rayon crepe dress from Bonwit Teller. The latter, although not new, is in very good condition.

Evening dresses of light blue mousseline-de-soie, taffeta of a magenta shade, a real black taffeta so seldom seen now, and gold net, formal and not [illegible] half of the rack.

A navy blue coat, size [illegible] style, would make a nice spring [illegible] someone.

Hats of maroon-colored [illegible] and Co., black with [illegible] Jordan Marsh, black felt [illegible] ford Hollidge, Boston. [illegible] soft affair from Altman's [illegible] suitable for spring, from [illegible] a black velvet Knox fill [illegible] beaver felt has a foreign [illegible] following inscription [illegible] Arnhem."

Three pairs of brand new [illegible] galoshes stand on the closet [illegible] a pair of unworn white rubbers [illegible] slippers, gold, white and silver [illegible] low heels and high heels [illegible] in many styles fill several shelves. [illegible] kerchiefs, sweaters, red yellow green [illegible] rust add color to the assortment. [illegible] knitted brown dress sells for 5 cents; white moire taffeta blouse [illegible] stripped dubonnet blouse and an extra blouse from Best's lie side by side. They sell for 15 cents each.

Housemothers and faculty wives have been keeping the Thrift Shop open from 2.30 until 4.30 every Friday afternoon. If business increases, they will gladly open oftener.

"We're still enthusiastic about it," says Mrs. Braun, "if students would only come to see what we have. We're not out to make money. We want to help students have just as many clothes and just as smart clothes even with the restrictions and limitations on buying them."

The ladies of the faculty gave the Mortar Board donated $5. The Thrift Shop was established. Much has been given to it since then.

"Won't you drop in and see the assortments?" asks Mrs. Braun.

Plenty of Sugar At Friday's Party

Dean's Annual Event To Be Held as Usual

Come one, come all to Dean Hills' Sugar Party Friday night, March 19 in the gym. The party will begin promptly at 8.00, so if you want to start "sugarin' off" with the rest, be there promptly.

Doughnuts and pickles will be served as always with the sugar on snow.

There are many of you students in upper classes who have never been to this annual event; you don't want to leave U. V. M. without going to the Sugar Party, which is as much of a tradition now as Kake Walk. All you freshmen who want a unique experience and swell time, come to the gym with the rest of the crowd.

Dean Hills, a favorite personage with the Agriculture College and other students as well, will be the guest of honor, as always. The entertainment is not fully decided as yet, but it is certain that it will not be as elaborate as other years. The main feature will be dancing for everyone, young and old, from 9.00 or 9.30 'til 12.00.

All the various committees have been working tooth and nail to make this year's Sugar Party the best of them all.

If you want food and fun, be one of the crowd and make your way to the gym on Friday evening.

Sigs Entertained By Robinson Girls

A bunch of dejected looking gentlemen known as Sigs approached their former abode last Saturday afternoon. They had been invited to tea; that is what the invitation said. Now you know as well as the next one, all of the horrible thoughts that are always connected with tea. But it was not so, was it Mrs. Towne and her Robinson Girls. They gave the former occupants so good a time that they stayed a half hour overtime and almost made the gracious coeds and their equally gracious house-mother late to dinner at the Waterman.

What did they do? Well, informed sources won't let everything out, but we do know that Mary Ashe '45 has given up eating between meals for Lent, so she couldn't enjoy the tea with SUGAR and lemons, and CANDY and the very delicious sandwiches. Anyway she did have fun dancing and so did everyone else. The afternoon ended with a rousing Sig song.

That the Sigs were appreciative is evidenced by the number of telephone calls that evening for dates. P.S. some of them only got rain checks!

There will be a chapel service Wednesday at 2.15. The speaker will be Miss Sadie Gregory, secretary of the New England Student Christian Movement. Combined with the Chapel Service will be a Y. W. C. A. mass meeting

Cercle Francais Has Informal Talk With W. Sawabini

Films and Questions On Beirut, Syria's American University

The monthly meeting of Le Cercle Français was held at the home of Professor Doane Wednesday evening. The guest speaker of the evening was Dr. Wadi Sawabini, a graduate of the American University of Beirut, Syria.

During the informal French speech interspersed by questions of the audience, Doctor Sawabini presented films of student life at his alma mater. The students come from all countries in the Near East and many were seen in their costumes. The striking feature at this college is the harmony which exists between students of different races and creeds. They instruct one another in their native tongue, thus promoting brotherhood and increasing mutual interests. This demonstrates the striking ability of human beings to live with one another.

Originally founded for Protestant students, students of various beliefs are expected to keep their own religion with no attempts being made to change them.

Sports here are as important as at American colleges. They may ski in the morning on the nearby mountains. Afternoon swimming may be enjoyed in the warm waters of the Mediterranean. The campus extends for one mile along the Mediterranean. There are approximately five hundred students enrolled here. Harvard and the University of Michigan hold exchange fellowships with the University of Bierut.

The college was founded by Mr. Bliss, a native of Jericho, Vt. The president, Mr. Dodge, is a brother of the manufacturer of Dodge cars. Many scholars and statesmen have graduated from the University of Beirut. The present prime ministers of Egypt, Iran, and Syria are graduates of the University. Indeed it was the prime minister of Iran, who influenced Syria to ally itself with the United Nations. Many American students attend the University of Beirut in preparation for diplomatic posts.

Medical Technology Courses Offered

A new course for medical technologists is being offered by the University of Vermont, according to an announcement made today by Pres. John S. Millis. The course is being offered jointly by the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Medicine, and students will be accepted for it this year.

Students taking the course will be required to spend three years in the College of Arts and Sciences, taking approximately the normal pre-medical program, and, if successful, will then be admitted to the College of Medicine for a training period of twelve months under the supervision of the Department of Pathology.

Upon completion of the three years and twelve months of work students will be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science and will be prepared to take the qualifying examinations as registered medical technologists.

The number of students admitted to the program will be limited in that probably the maximum enrollment in the College of Medicine will be restricted to four students at one time. The program will begin this year with the acceptance of preparatory students, and, if there are qualified students who have finished the first three years, the first class will be admitted to the College of Medicine in July

Nin-Culmell to Give Spring Concert at Ira Allen Chapel

Appearance of Cuban-Born Composer - Pianist Made Possible by Glee Club and Orchestra

NIN-CULMELL

At the head of an impressive list of concert programs planned for the spring months the music department at the University of Vermont is bringing Joaquin Nin-Culmell, Cuban-born composer and pianist, to Sunday, March 21, at 4 p.m. in the Ira Allen Chapel.

Long before the subject of inter-American relations began to absorb the public consciousness, Joaquin Nin Culmell was a self-appointed ambassador of good will to the land of music believing that a knowledge and understanding of Ibero-American music might be a means of promoting better relations between the Americas.

The son of Rosa Culmell the Franco-Danish singer born in Cuba and of the Cuban-born Spanish pianist and editor, Joaquin Nin, Nin-Culmell says that he was born with a tuning fork in his mouth rather than the traditional silver spoon. To add to his musical inheritance the unforgettable Venezuelan pianist, Teresa Carreno, became his godmother at baptism. Nin Culmell's earliest musical recollections are the rehearsals of a Bach Concerto held in his home when he was three years old. Before he was six years of age he had begun furiously to improvise at the piano and called it very grandly "composing."

Cosmopolitan Figure

In August 1914 Nin Culmell came to New York and, besides the regular subjects of the curriculum, learned to play baseball, football, tennis, and basketball. Ten years later he left for Europe to begin the serious study of music. Now he feels equally at home in America, in England (where his compositions are edited by the Oxford University Press) and, of course in many of the Latin countries.

Of his work with Manuel de Falla in Spain, Nin-Culmell writes, "The lessons with Falla in Granada, the silent walks with him through the Alhambra, the copying of his music for some orchestral performance and the intimacy with the

Yale's Dean Brown At Chapel Vespers

Traces World Religion From Asia to Europe

Dean-emeritus Charles Reynolds Brown of the Yale Divinity School spoke at Vespers Sunday afternoon in Ira Allen Chapel. He was for fifteen years pastor of the First Congregational Church in Oakland, Calif., before he came to Yale in 1911. He has lectured at Leland Stanford, Yale, Columbia, Harvard, North Carolina and Southern Methodist Universities and at the Pacific School of Religion. He is also the author of many religious books. He holds degrees from the University of Iowa as well as from many others in the country. He delivered the baccalaureate address at U. V. M. in 1926 and has since then been a frequent speaker at Vesper Services.

Dean Brown in his sermon yesterday asserted that the five religions of the world, Buddhism, Judaism, Hinduism, Moslemism, and Christianity all arose in Asia. From there Christianity was brought to the shores of Italy by a wandering preacher who in a vision saw that it was his duty to do so. Since that time Europe has created leading literature and has become materially as well culturally wealthy.

He stated that Christianity has given great victories to Europe. It has had a profound influence on art, literature, architecture, music and poetry. Europe has become the seat of a mighty civilization. Dean Brown feels that the discouraging aspect of the present generation

Tutors Are Available At Inexpensive Rates

One of Mortar Board's services to the campus, which are not as well known as they should be, is the Tutorial Board. Janet Hackwell is in charge this year, and has a list of those who tutor and the subjects in which they tutor. By calling her any student may find out immediately where he can get help. Mortar Board also gives financial aid, as the student pays the tutor 15 cents an hour, and Mortar Board pays the other 15 cents. The Tutorial Board was established for the purpose of improving scholarship on the campus and Mortar Board wishes that more students would take advantage of their offer. It should prove especially valuable to those who are going to take make up exams this ...

Med. Commencement Will Be March 31

Second Graduation at Med. School This Year

Commencement exercises at the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont are scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, March 31, at four o'clock in the Ira Allen Chapel at the University. Pres. John [illegible] Millis will deliver the commencement address.

Because of the new war-accelerated program, this commencement, which comes in the University's 152nd year of existence, will follow only nine months after the previous one, which occurred in June, 1942. There are 31 members in the present senior class in medicine.

This medical commencement is the second graduation to be held at the University during the current year. The accelerated program resulted in a commencement in January, at which 44 students, 28 of them engineers, were graduated. The regular academic commencement will occur on Sunday, May 2nd, and the fourth one of the year, for students who will by then have attended both summer quarters, is scheduled for some time in August. Another class will be graduated from the College of Medicine next December, making a total of five commencements at the University in 1943.

The Medical Alumni Dinner, which by tradition precedes the medical commencement, will be held at the Ethan Allen Club at 6.30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 30

The Vermont Cynic

The Official Student Newspaper of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College

VOL. 61 MARCH 16, 1943 NO. 42

What We Expect From U. V. M.

We are willing to give up our dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses. We gladly swap the Cafeteria for the Student Lounge. We do not mind running down-town for meals, or all the many other inconveniences that must be imposed upon students when a university takes up its duties as a significant factor in the war effort. If the administration should see the need for sending all students home tomorrow, because they interfere with the training of the soldiers who soon will fight for the right of free teaching all over the world, we surely shall grumble but we would go. There are greater things at stake.

Yet, there is one thing we must demand as long as a single course is offered for credit at this or any university, and that is an education. If advance courses must be completed earlier in the semester to make room for the army program, then ways must be found to accelerate those studies according to their merits, so that the objectives of the courses can still be met. If lectures must be given before a hundred or more students, they must be adjusted so that students can make the best of them in spite of all difficulties. At any time it is much better to discontinue a course, even in the middle of a semester, than to give credit where credit is not due.

Examinations must keep their old standards. There has been the tendency of late to make examinations easier because "students are so troubled." If the students of today are incapable of pursuing their studies properly, then they should not be allowed to waste their time in the safe halls of the universities because jobs are waiting for them all over the country. There is no time today to give way to intellectual despair or an unproductive feeling of insecurity. The nation needs every one of its citizens.

It is true, that on this campus we have been saved in most of our courses from the tendency of "letting up," and President Millis very well brought forth the administration's and faculty's point of view when he said, that at a time when every person can fulfill a useful task only the deserving student must be allowed to stay in college. We neither want to make an issue of the few slight changes for the worse that have arisen in the last few weeks—they probably could not have been avoided—but we wish to express that hope that we remain for the duration at least on the educational level on which we stand right now.

Some people may not agree with us. There are many here who did not come to college with the purpose of studying hard, whose motives were quite different. We do not want to condemn their attitude; there are many things that can be gained out of college life. Yet, the majority of the students intend to go out into the world with their college degree and build their own and the country's future with the education received. We owe it to them to put a meaning into the grades earned; the meaning that they are fit to go ahead and not that they would have received worse marks had it not been known how "the war situation prevents people from studying."

Now is not the time to lower standards; such a process would be incontrollable and only lead into the abyss of pseudo-education. It would confront us immediately, or what would be worse, later with the tragic realization that a college diploma of these days is merely a piece of paper—a symbol of a lost education.

Are Sororities a War-time Luxury?

"Sororities can be of no use to the war effort and should not be allowed to continue throughout the duration of the war," stated a leading Tufts College senior and sorority woman. She and others, members of other sororities on the campus voiced this opinion and thereupon acted upon their resolution to withdraw their membership.

Monday nights are nights that can well be spent in advancing war work instead of idly sitting in meeting doing nothing, and sorority dues amount to thousands of dollars which might be better spent." Thus declared these girls, who in face of strong opposition, hold weekly gatherings doing constructive war work in bandage-rolling and first aid.

It is the great bulk of national sororities throughout the United States that stand firm in their beliefs and reply that one of the most constructive jobs that needs doing is being done now, and by the widespread Greek organizations—that job of training women's minds and intellects for a far broader use and application following graduation from college. It is from these fundamental, highly selective, supervised regarded and chosen groups that some of the finest college women emerge, equipped with the stability of mind and social integrity worthy of the four years of group and sorority living and cooperation. Definite projects in U. S. O. work, enlightening and worthwhile discussions, and coordinated war work are all part of the new programs adopted by women in all sororities.

The continuation of these programs and ideals are necessary for the education of those who will have to deal with a post war world. That is the problem that sororities face today. Is this then, a war-time luxury to be done away with at the time when they are most needed?

ALMA GAYLORD '44

To the Editor of the CYNIC

It is with infinite grief that both D and D must oppose, in any way whatsoever, the staff of the Billings Library. In our estimation, it is totally competent and has expressed a concern over the needs of the student body. However, there is a situation which has arisen and which we consider harmful to the best interests of the student body.

The library's stock of modern American poetry volumes is, at present, locked within Professor Aiken's reserved section, far from the reach of interested students. They may be removed from the library for overnight only and must be called for at the ninth hour in the evening or thereabouts. This situation is intended to be permanent; at least, so one of the librarians tells us.

Now, let's put my colleague D in the position of one of the students in this University. He is not a literary critic nor is he the kind who reads systematically, all the new poets and their volumes. Instead, he possesses, far down inside, a homely love for a certain kind of poetry. He dislikes Omar and Jeffers and Houseman, but holds an ardent affection for Robert Frost. He likes the way he talks of nature. He feels that he and Robert Frost think very much alike.

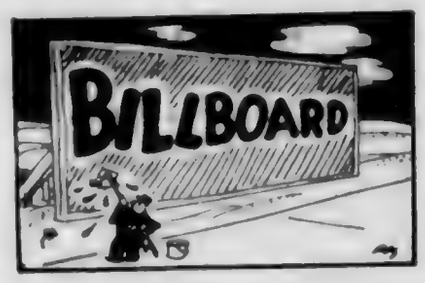
Let us suppose he should suddenly feel a desire to reread about the birches, for which both Frost and he have a mutual respect. Let us go further, suppose he should care to take out a volume of Frost's verse in the hopes that sometime during the forthcoming week he might have a free moment in which to indulge. Remember, D is not the kind of a fellow who sits down with a volume of poetry and reads from cover to cover in one evening. He is a more crude yet sincere poet. The poetry in his soul is limited to certain immediate things such as flowers and birches and singing streams and soft, velvety earth.

Can the library meet the needs of such a poet? It cannot. True, he can walk to the library late at night and take out a volume and sit down to courageously read some poetry, but if he wants to really enjoy it he must repeat the process every night, until the book has been completed at the proper pace. Surely the library is not encouraging the subtle development of sensitivity which I maintain is poetry's function as regards D.

If either D or I could see the necessity of hiding these books in virtually inaccessible regions in an effort to discourage the most sincere of poets, then we would, of course have no right in protesting. The only assumption is that there remains some consistent demand for these volumes but if this is the case, we feel that the library should purchase duplicates of these relatively few books, and permit them to be removed for seven or four or even two day periods. But I cannot feel the demand to be so great.

We should appreciate a response from the head librarian if we are at all in error. We shall feel pleased to offer our apologies to this competent staff.

Sincerely,
D. AND D.



U. S. Army Health

The presence of an Army Unit has made heavy demands on the time of the doctors taking charge of our present Health Service. In the future illness excuses will not be issued by Dr. Harwood and his staff. Men students who have been ill should apply to their respective Deans for illness excuses: women students to the Dean of Women.

For the College of Arts, Professor Gifford will take charge of the issuing of excuses and none will be issued except by him. He will be in the office of the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences from two to three every afternoon except Saturday and Sunday.

This does not mean that our present Health Service will be discontinued. Students who are ill may apply at the office of the Health Service as heretofore for treatment or advice and Doctor Harwood will be available as has been the case up to the present in all cases involving illness.

E. SWIFT,
Secretary.

Home Ec. Club Has Talk on South America

The guest speaker of the evening at the monthly meeting of the Home Economics Club at the Brick Barn was Mrs. Hugh Williams. During her talk on "Life in South America," Mrs. Williams compared the food, clothes, and habits of the people there with those in the United States. She is well qualified to speak on this subject as she and her husband have spent five years there teaching. Mrs. Williams also sang some Spanish songs, which everyone enjoyed. During the serving of refreshments, there was a round table discussion on what had been said.

Daily Physical Education Program Keeps Army Air Cadets in Top Shape

The soldiers have ... at 9 and 10 every morning. ...student physical education classes ... at 11 and 12, and the Air Corps ... at it again all afternoon, with ... at 2, 3, and 4. With 650 cadets ... five periods every day, it means ... 100 have to be taken care of ... each session. And they are well ... of.

Something New

Here's the novel and useful idea that ... worked out to check up on the ... of every one of the newcomers. ... person has been issued a card with ... exercises listed on it. Then, after com-...pleting that certain feat (like running a lap around the track) he lists his time, dis-...tance, whatever his achievement may be, on the card. After the first week of this, the best record attained by each man will be noted and filed, later to be compared with the record made by the same person before he leaves. All in all, it's just a checkup to see how much steam he's picked up along the way. This is what each cadet does every day at this time. (1) Bar snap (snapping himself forward under a bar with a swinging motion—dis-tance covered is measured). (2) Squat and balance. (3) Back jump (again the distance is measured). (4) Dips. (5) One lap on the track (this is a sprint and the time is checked). (6) Jump and reach. (7) Pullups. (8) Rope climb (and this is a honey, going up a twenty or twenty-five-foot rope hand over hand, try it some time). (9) Fence vault. (10) Standing broad jump. (11) Bear Walk. (12) Standing hop, step, and jump.

As if this weren't enough for anybody for one day, the basketballs come out, and the birdmen, purely on a voluntary basis, proceed to drill a few through the strings.

A set of swinging rings also has consider-able appeal to their "Tarzanian" instincts. So, with this in progress at practically all hours of the day, the gym is pretty much of a hubbub of activity at any and all times, what with a basketball game in progress at one end of the floor, some one scurrying up the rope down at the other end, a couple dozen pounding around the track, and half a hundred more indulging in incidental exercises everywhere.

Only the Beginning

This is only the beginning, though. Archie Post gives out with the info that the calisthenics must be progressive, and that, of course, means that they must be-come progressively tougher. With this only the beginning, the end should be a sight to see.

But they like it. One fellow was spotted on the floor during at least two periods, and maybe three of them, last Tuesday afternoon. Evidently he was a basketball enthusiast, for he had a hot court game going on most of the time and was flipping through some mighty neat left-handed one-handers. Enthusiasm ran high, everybody seemed to be enjoying himself, and there were no 'cuts,' although it seemed to be run on a rather voluntary basis. Perhaps this was because the Air Corps consider "goldbricking" to be the cardinal sin.

Some of the remarks heard around: "What kind of a basketball team did Ver-mont have this year?" "Any more games left on the schedule?" (Evidently the wintry weather confused the boys.) "Ah, this isn't so tough. In fact it's a snap compared to our basic training at Atlantic City. After that we can stand anything. This is comparatively simple."

Just the same, we'd be willing to bet that that choice array of morning-after blisters, floor-burns, etc., wasn't strictly G. I.

National Play-Writing Contest Inaugurated

A national playwriting contest, which has been inaugurated by the Women's Section of the War Savings Staff of the U. S. Treasury, will have "The Human Drama Behind the Purchase of War Bonds" as its theme. The two reasons for this contest are first, to provide short scripts which stress this theme, and second, to give individuals a sense of personal responsibility to the war effort.

Students of any college or university in the United States may enter plays in the contest which closes April 1, 1943. Scripts, which will be judged first by the heads of departments of the different colleges should be between ten and thirty minutes long—the shorter the better.

Judges will be Margo Jones, Head of Dramatics at University of Texas, Mrs. Morgenthau, Hallie Flanagan Davis, Dean of Smith College, and Barrett H. Clark of the Dramatists' Play Service, New York. All of these people are na-tionally known figures in the non-com-mercial world.

Girls' Rifle Team In One-Point Loss

Anderson, Hendershot and Thayer Lead U.V.M.

A challenge postal match was held be-tween the girls' rifle team of Northwest-ern University, Evanston, Ill., and the girls' rifle team at U. V. M. Although it was held some time last month the results have just been posted. Under the direction of Sergeant Landa, the girls here shot ten-bull targets, one shot in each bull, prone, at a distance of 50 feet. Ten tar-gets were submitted, the sum of the high-est five being considered the score. The Northwestern high scorer was H. Gins-berg who shot 100, a perfect target. Inci-dentally that score has now been dupli-cated by Janet Hartung, U. V. M. '46, but alas not in time for the match. Our out-standing scores were made by Betty Anderson, Sylvia Hendershot, and Rose-mary Thayer, each with a score of 99. Ac-cording to all available totals the North-western girls appear to have been the vic-tors by only one point!

The individual and total scores are:

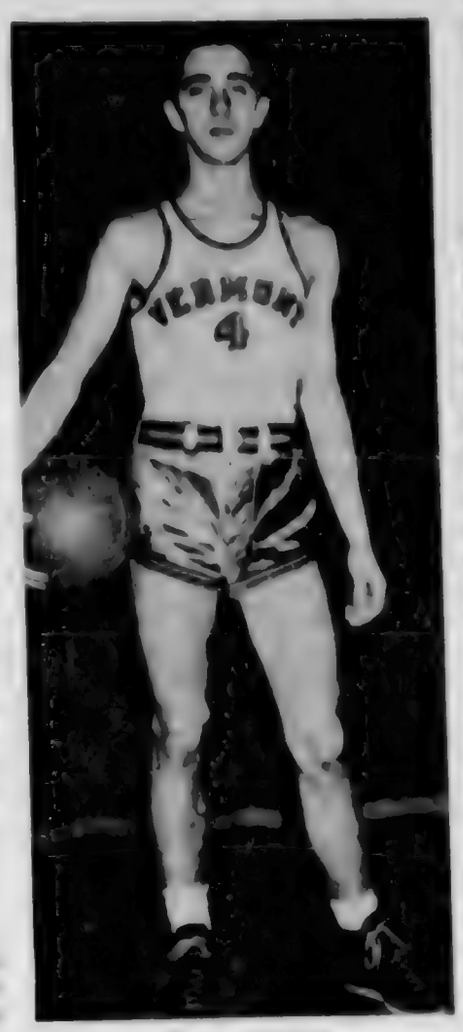
man himself are more than mere im-pressions."

From Granada Nin-Culmell went to the Paris Conservatory to study with Paul Dukas. He feels that his musical educa-tion in France gave him a scholastic orientation of vast importance to the ulti-mate freedom he has achieved in his music.

Nin-Culmell's first published work (written 1928-29) was a series of "Three Impressions" for piano inspired by a Spanish rhythm (Habanera), a Spanish painting (The Water Carriers by Goya) and a Spanish garden (Greco's house in Toledo). A Sonata also for piano was given its first performance in Paris at the Societe Nationale. His Piano Quintet—first performed at the 16th Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music in London, 1938—was chosen by the American Musicological Society to represent modern chamber music of Spanish America at their First Inter-national Congress held in New York City, 1939.



Enters Into Numerous Activities

Since July 1936 Nin-Culmell has almost exclusively played Ibero-American and Spanish music, and has given programs at Dartmouth College, Middlebury College (Spanish School), Columbia University, Town Hall, Cosmopolitan Club, Beetho-ven Association, 18th Festival of the In-ternational Society for Contemporary Music (CBS orchestra), Association of Committees for Inter-American Place-ment (Williamstown, Mass.), National Conference of Christians and Jews (Wil-liamstown), and over WOR (Bamberger Symphony), WQXR and WCBX, as well as numerous other colleges, schools, clubs, etc.

Nin-Culmell was appointed a member of the International Jury for the 18th Festival of the International Society for Contemporary Music, the first time in the history of the Society that an Ibero-Ameri-can had been appointed to serve on this Jury. He is on this year's committee to decide where the 19th Festival of the Society will take place.

This concert is made possible by the combined funds of the University Glee Club and orchestra who, unable to take their usual spring trip, are instead using that money to bring artists to Vermont. There will be no admission fee for stu-dents or men in any branch of the serv-ice on the campus.

Captain-Elect for '43-'44

LARRY KILLICK

U.V.M. Representatives At Northfield Meeting

The annual mid-winter Conference, sponsored by the Student Christian Move-ment in New England was held last week-end at Northfield, Mass. Student rep-resentatives from colleges all over New England attended. The main theme, The Christian Faith in the Present Crisis was discussed and enlarged, and many per-tinent topics were brought up.

The representatives from U. V. M. were Alison Carr, Katherine Doane, Penelope Easton, Mary Harmon and Ione Lacey, all of the class of '44, Ruth Jordan and Vesta Stevens class of '45, and Nancy Hall and Barbara Powers from the freshman class.

To Leave July 1 For Marine Corps

Election of Managers Not Announced Yet

With the receiving of the last ballot from there or the sender, it was known on Monday that Larry Killick of Burlington, high scoring forward and outstanding passer for the last two seasons will be named to lead the University of Vermont on the hoards for the 1943-44 season. However, it is believed that the University will not be represented in college basketball circles next year.

The announcement cannot be made offi-cial as yet, nor has the results of the elec-tion of manager been disclosed as the head of the Athletic Council must verify the ballots first and he couldn't be reached when the last vote arrived.

Killick to Enter Service

In spite of the indefinite status of future basketball plans, Killick without doubt will be unable to become an active captain as he expects to be with the Marine Corps on active duty status by July 1.

Larry, who is one of the best players to don the Green and Gold, hit the nets consistently this year to amass a total of 242 points in a 16 game schedule, for an average of 15.1 per game. Down at Med-ford, Mass., he rang up a record tying total of 37 points against a strong Tufts aggregation.

He held the same pace against state competition and was given the "most valu-able player" award on a poll of the various coaches to prove that scoring wasn't his only ability. He also came through with several other high scores, notably 27 points against Middlebury, 20 against St. Mi-chael's, 18 in contests with both Amherst and Fort Ethan Allen and 17 against Mid-dlebury and St. Lawrence.

Star in Other Sports

Killick also plays a fine game at second base for the varsity baseball squad, at which position he also appeared last sum-mer on a team at Portland, Me., with Ralph LaPointe as an excellent keystone combination.

He displayed his abilities in the past touch football season when he helped the Kappa Sigs annex the crown in the Intra-mural league. Larry prepared for U. V. M. at Edmunds High in Burlington and Kimball Union Academy at Meriden, N. H. He will be joined in the Marines by Tommy Killick, his younger brother, a basketball player at Burlington High this past year.

Student Health Service Swarmed By Students and Air Corps Cadets

Then reads the sign in the merchant ship. Life goes on just about the same for most of us with the exception of a few minor incidents still strange to us, as that part of town. Increased activity is present everywhere. A Saturday afternoon there isn't going to undermine our patriotism. Coeds are treated with the rising of the U. S. flags and stop covered women to stand with caps in hand, responding to the command "Eyes Front" as they hurriedly exercise their vocal cords en route to class.

Students coming into the Health Service lately have been confronted with Air Corps Cadets. Many have received the wrong impression of this, but don't let it frighten you away students! It only means that the staff is doing double duty. Evening and early morning Health service are for the benefit of the Cadets. The only material we can discriminate is the evening of medical examinations. In the latter there must be observed from the officers of the [illegible] and Women [illegible].

[illegible] the arrival of the cadets, there has been a long list of sick call. Whether this is an experience of getting on leaving Arizona I do not know an allergy on account to Vermont has yet to be decided. We have heard no definite adverse opinions about the weather but we are waiting for that warm, balmy day late in May when we can say "This is Vermont weather."

Under the capable direction of First Lieut. Jesse J. Iverson, MC., stationed here with the 61st College Training Detachment, and ably assisted by Dr. L. H. Harwood, Director of Student Health Service, it is our sincere hope that the dispensary will function efficiently and for the satisfaction of all. At the present time the Medical facilities of Station Hospital, Fort Ethan Allen are available to the cadets. A complete dental unit is being set up in the dispensary for their use.

Please Note:

1. According to military regulations soldiers remain in quarantine for two weeks following arrival at a new station. Sad girls, our "buys" will be in for a much longer period!

2. To those interested, the design on the rug in Health Service is not that of a Swastika but the emblem of the Navajo Indians in the southwest section of the United States.

3. It is up to our fair coeds to show these new arrivals the hospitality of Vermont people.

Cold Storage Under Aggie Department

Why this strange arrangement? The Horticulture department, headed by Professor Cummings is conducting an experiment to determine the cause and prevention of a curious disease known as "bitter pit" which is found on apples and pears and which is serious enough to destroy half a year's crop. The cold storage tests that have been made yearly for a decade have not as yet yielded a solution.

The disease characterized by brown flakes in the flesh, just under the skin, is not parasitic, nor by insects but due to a condition of malnutrition, and fluctuating of the water supply.

"Bitter pit" was first reported in Germany in 1899 and the research workers at U. V. M. are a group of many people from all over the world who have worked on this puzzling problem.

The Horticulture professors are also busy with another experiment on blossom sterility of apples and pears. The problem is to alter heritable traits in fruit blossoms so under normal conditions each variety will be self fertile and not require cross-pollination from other varieties.

Use of a drug, colchicine, injected into tissues increases the number of chromosomes so that an odd number, multiplied by two, would give an even number and permit complete mating so that blossoms will be self-fertile.

Men's Rifle Team

In a close match with Northwestern University recently, the men's rifle team lost by one point, the final score being U. V. M. 493 and Northwestern 494.

A pistol match with Syracuse University is scheduled for the 27th of this month.

College Program Of Naval Training

Plan Keeps Officers Enrolled in School

High school graduates and college students who possess naval officer potentialities may now be chosen for college training to be carried on while in uniform, receiving pay and under general military discipline, according to information received by Prof. Arthur D. Butterfield, Armed Service Representative at the University of Vermont, from the office of the Regional Director for the Navy College Training Program V-12.

Preliminary selections of candidates will be made in high schools and colleges throughout the United States on Friday, April 2, from 9 to 11 a.m., with requirements as follows:

(a) The men, who may or may not be attending college, must be high or preparatory school graduates who will have attained their 17th but not their 20th birthdays by July 1, 1943.

(b) Or high or preparatory school seniors who will be graduated by July 1, 1943.

(c) Or students who do not hold certificate of graduation from a secondary school but who are now continuing their education in a credited college or university.

Furthermore, to be eligible each applicant must:

(a) Be a male citizen of the United States.

(b) Be morally and physically qualified for this program, including a minimum uncorrected visual acuity of 18/20 for each eye.

(c) Be unmarried and agree to remain so until commissioned unless sooner released by the Navy Department.

(d) Show potential officer qualifications, including appearance and scholastic records.

Men now enlisted in any branch of the armed services, including V-1, V-5 and V-7 reserves on inactive status, are not eligible for this program.

At the University of Vermont, the examinations will be held in Williams Science Hall on Friday, April 2, from 9 to 11 a.m., and all students desiring to take the test must obtain admission and identification forms from Professor Butterfield, Room 104, Waterman Building, as the forms are necessary as authority to take the test.

He was educated at Northwestern University and the University of Chicago. He knows world affairs and deals with them realistically. His articles have appeared in numerous publications, most frequently in the monthly magazine on world affairs, Changing World, of which he is editor.

Tickets at 50 cents each will be on sale at the Everyday Bookshop, McAuliffe's and the L. P. Wood store. Some fifty complimentary tickets will be distributed by Patty Page among members of the International Relations Club and ten each, will be placed in the hands of Professors Carroll, Nuquist, Hall, Evans, and Dykhuizen for distribution. Federal tax of five cents on each ticket will be payable at the door the night of the lecture. All proceeds from the sale of tickets over and above necessary expenses will be turned over to the American Red Cross.

Chapels Will Be Held In Evening at 7.15

Due to circumstances in regard to the army the Wednesday morning chapel service has been changed to Wednesday evenings at 7.15. The extra half hour of sleep is probably deeply appreciated by the students and it is hoped that attendance at these services will be large. Especially convenient will it be for the girls dining in the Waterman Building. This Wednesday, the service will be conducted by Dr. Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, formerly Dean of Yale Divinity School.

Faculty-Student Supper on Sunday

Staff and Sandal held another in its series of Faculty-Student suppers on Sunday from 5-6.

Sandwiches, delicious punch, cookies and cake were on the menu—all for fifteen cents.

The informal atmosphere of the student lounge added greatly to the supper. It is hoped that in the future more student and faculty members will avail themselves of these opportunities to get together informally. The Staff and Sandal girls are giving these suppers for just this purpose, and want all faculty members and all students to consider themselves invited.

Maeve McMorrough Presents Irish Humorous Sketches

Monologist Depicts Real Characters With Great Success

[illegible] audience of students, faculty, [illegible] people gathered at the Student [illegible] Monday evening at 8.00, to have [illegible] a hearing Miss Maeve Mc[illegible] renowned monologist, in a de[illegible] series of character sketches which [illegible] drawn from real life. She finds [illegible] characters in the slums, on celebrated [illegible] street in Dublin, and on the Irish [illegible] countryside.

Miss M. Morrough was born and [illegible] in a small Irish village of about [illegible] people and with her bright smile and [illegible] manner is typically Irish. She de[illegible] the "Stage Irish"—applied to the [illegible] colleens dressed in green dresses, [illegible] apron, and cap and the old man [illegible] a tall hat smoking a clay pipe, who [illegible] so popularized in the theater that the [illegible] people have the wrong idea of [illegible] Irishman. She insists these are [illegible] typical of the Irish and these people [illegible] aren't to be found in the Emerald Isle.

Miss McMorrough began her career of [illegible] people when she was but a child, [illegible] she was incessantly mimicking every [illegible] she ran up against. This urge and [illegible] for acting was finally satisfied in [illegible] association with the Abbey Players in [illegible]. It is interesting to note that she [illegible] coached under Sara Algnad, character [illegible] at the movies, who played the part [illegible] Mother in "How Green Was My [illegible]."

Her sketches were all so unique and [illegible] that it is difficult to cite the [illegible] illustrations. In "A Visit to Our [illegible] Dressmaker," her interpretation of [illegible] girl wanting a dress to go to [illegible], was full of humorous Irish man[illegible] and the rich Irish brogue which is [illegible] to any one's ear. In "The Inter[illegible] With the Irish Fishwife," she de[illegible] her character so vividly that you [illegible] yourself right on Moore Street [illegible] the lurid atmosphere of the market [illegible] dens. College Plans Summer Program

Will Help Accelerated And Freshmen Students

Plans for the summer session are being definitely formulated, and there will be an announcement in the near future concerning the summer term and next year. At present the Arts College intends to offer courses to take care of the following groups: (1) Pre-Medical students in the accelerated program, both the present Freshman and Sophomore classes. (2) Students taking the Chemistry Curriculum, from the same two classes. In addition to these, English 6, German 2, Philosophy 2, and such other courses as are asked for by sufficient number of students will be given in the Summer Term. In the above courses, the full year's work will be covered in one term.

A number of students graduating from high school will be admitted to the summer term, and for them we shall offer the first semester of the following courses: English 1, Chemistry 1, Zoology 1, Mathematics 1, French 3, German 1, History 3, Political Science 1, and also work in Elementary Education.

Professor Douglass is arranging a program for students in Elementary Education who wish to accelerate their programs, and will offer during the session of regular summer school, work supplementing that to be offered in the summer term, particularly in Education.

The three academic colleges are planning an enrollment of all students, both for the summer term and the next academic year to ascertain which courses they shall offer. It is intended to provide suitable programs for all students who plan to return to college next summer or fall.

Doan and Jordan Speak at Collegium

Collegium will meet at 7.30 at the College St. Church this Sunday night. Kay Doane and Ruth Jordan, who attended the Northfield conference last week-end, will tell about it, discussing what took place at the conference and also some of the ideas and suggestions brought out in the meetings which are applicable and worth thinking about here at the University. A short discussion of a few of these ideas will follow the reports. Everyone is invited to come to what promises to be an interesting meeting. Social hour and refreshments afterward.

Dancing, Maple Sugar Will Be Highlights

Tonight is the night! That ever popular affair, Dean Hills' Sugar Party, will go off as scheduled tonight at 8.00 promptly in the gym. The price of admission is only fifty cents.

In spite of rationing, speeded up programs, the Air Corps, and what not, this annual party which has now become a tradition at U. V. M. is being held for perhaps the last time. Those of you who have never been to one of these events don't know what you're missing. Make the most of this opportunity and come to the gym tonight with the rest of the crowd for an evening of fun, food, and entertainment.

SPECIAL!

Twelve o'clock night for all girls attending Sugar Party. Extra night for Freshman girls.

Here's a chance to satisfy your sweet tooth with pure Vermont Maple Syrup, commonly known as sugar on snow. It is not known now that there will be any limits to the amount available. Those necessary accessories, doughnuts and pickles will also be served.

Popular Dean Hills will be the guest of honor, as always. He is the originator of this well-known affair and many thanks are due to him for its success. The various committees within the Aggie Club have also been working their hardest to make this the best Sugar Party ever.

As yet the full plans for the entertainment have not been announced. One of the main attractions, however, will be a dance following the "sugaring off." It will start about nine and last until twelve.

If you want a good time and good food, be sure to be on hand in the gym at 8:00.

Air Cadets Have Religious Service

Committee Arranges for Weekly Chapel Hours

Among all the work that has been done for the Aviation Cadets on our campus the fact that these boys did not have any religious leadership was at first overlooked. However, the Religious Life Committee soon took over the task. The committee took a census of religious preferences and organized weekly services for the three major faiths. They were given at 9:00 a.m. for Catholics, 10:00 a.m. for Protestants, and 11:00 for those of the Jewish faith. So far three services have been given. Last Sunday Mass was given by Father Joy, principal of Cathedral High school in Burlington. The Protestant service was given by Bishop Van Dyck, Episcopalian Bishop for Vermont and the Jewish service was led by Julius Cohen, U. V. M. medical student.

Prof. Ladd Reveals Spring Activities

At last—the inevitable! Professor Ladd has spring fever. To quote the enthusiastic gent, himself, "as I sit here gazing out the window at that budding, leafless tree—the same tree at which I have gazed for the past century, my thoughts travel to the approach of spring and the time when my classes can meet outdoors." Oh, to take German! "Benny is a little worried, though, due to priorities and lack of a stove, he is wondering just how he can serve his eager students their daily supply of ice cream. (Like I said before—oh to take German!) Of course, with the reopening of the Coffee Corner, Herr Professor feels that this nook might supply the group with their needed refreshment.

He also informed me that he is going to school in a special night school at the High school where he is learning the intricate art of woodcarving. In case anyone is interested, this course offered by the State Department of Education is offered every Monday night and the classes meet from six to eleven. The school furnishes all of the required wood, tools and necessities. "They make everything from salad bowls to beads," was Mrs. Ladd's comment, but Professor Ladd replied this by explaining that he indulged only in straight woodcarving and clay modeling. The school is open to anyone interested, and I hear that there is a great variety of students. It seems that even the famous tennis player, Chang, attends. (Now how did he get in the German department news?)

He hums that's all—professor the tenor is catching! It's funny what a little mud and a "budding, leafless tree" can do.

NOTICE

Students, we want your cooperation. You have been given the privilege of using the Student Lounge and its furnishings on the provision that these things are kept in the same condition in which they were given. So far this privilege has been greatly abused.

The Lounge is not being kept in order. Paper and cigarette ashes are needlessly strewn on the floor; footprints are noticeable on the upholstery; cigarette burns are marring the slip-covers. This can't go on.

This is a warning, students. If there is no improvment within a few days, the Lounge will be closed.

Come on, let's keep the Student Lounge nice.

Mr. J. Nin-Culmell In Chapel Sunday

Programs Rich in Music Of Latin Americas

The University of Vermont Glee Clubs and Orchestra will present Joaquin Nin-Culmell, Cuban pianist and composer, assistant professor of music at Williams College, and a leading exponent of Latin-American music, in a piano recital in the Ira Allen Chapel on Sunday afternoon, March 21 at four o'clock. Students of the University will be admitted free upon presentation of their ticket books. Service men will also be guests of the University Musical Organizations.

Mr. Nin-Culmell, who comes under the auspices of the Arts Program of the Association of American Colleges, will present, in addition to the public recital on Sunday afternoon, three short informal recitals, open to the faculty and students without charge; one on Sunday evening at eight o'clock in the Fleming Museum Auditorium, accompanied by a talk on "Music of the Americas," and followed by an informal reception for all who wish to meet Mr. Nin-Culmell, the second on Monday morning at eleven o'clock and the last on Monday at four o'clock, both of these being at the Music Building on Williams St.

Nin-Culmell is also a pianist of exceptional ability. Following his training with Manuel de Falla and Paul Dukas he concertized in all the important capitals of Europe, including Madrid, Paris, London, Copenhagen, Geneva, Rome and Malaga. Nin-Culmell, a native of Cuba, has also given many concerts in Havana, notably as soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto with the Havana Philharmonic Symphony orchestra.

In this country he has presented the first radio performance of Falla's Concerto with the Hamburger Symphony Orchestra and Rodolfo Halffter's Obertura Concertante with the Columbia Broadcasting symphony Orchestra. More recently Nin-Culmell played the Mozart

C. M. Eichelberger To Lecture Monday

Mr. Clark M. Eichelberger will speak on Monday, March 22 at 8.15 in the Old Mill under the auspices of the Delta Club. The subject of his speech will be "The Four Tests for the Job Through."

The fact that he became director of the League of Nations in 1937 and that he saw service in the last World War, that he is at present Director of the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace" as well as a widely traveled and observing man who is deeply interested in the cause of the League of Nations and a durable world peace proves his aptness on speaking on such a subject. He is cognizant of world affairs and competent in dealing with them.

The tickets, on sale at the Everyday Bookshop, McAuliffe's, and the L. P. Wise store, are 50 cents. There are only fifty complimentary tickets which will be distributed among members of the International Relations Club by Patty Page and ten each to be distributed by Professors Carroll, Kripps, Hall, Lyons and Fiveheizer. Federal tax on tickets will be payable at the door. Proceeds from tickets will benefit the American Red Cross. The lecture is as promising as the prospect of several complimentary tickets.

Wise Words From the Past

And I proclaim to you who are murderers that immediately after my [illegible] punishment for homicide [illegible] will await [illegible]. She [illegible] wanted to escape the accuser and not [illegible] of [illegible] but that will not be as you suppose, for other [illegible].

[illegible] a protest was sustained by express such sentiments. The slaughter of Europeans before the young eyes[illegible] the hundreds killed in the [illegible] the [illegible] of the Soviet taken hostages starved to death in the prison on Ellend, and the fury of Oradour, [illegible] in cold blood—all these could not have found [illegible] words.

We must remember those victims. We must remember that with them not only human beings were killed, but that with them went all the values they stood for: Christianity, good will, truth, happiness.

[illegible] we have heard during the past years, 'the trouble with Hitler for instance, was not that he was a Nazi at home. The trouble with him was that he would not stay at home.'

After a two-year history in Poland, after Rotterdam and Lidice people still make the tragic error of believing that Fascism is merely a local product and not exportable. We have seen a score of free people fall because they did not realize that the trouble with Hitler is that he is a Nazi. Period.

We must strive for a world conscience, for finding ways to be tolerant without having to tolerate bestiality and mass murder. But first we must disavow all political and social theories that build their ideology on ruthless, exaggerated nationalism and political expansion. There is no place for Fascism in any part of the world, even if it could stay within narrow confines. We have seen the faces of German, Italian, and Spanish refugees seeking a haven in England and America. We have heard the ring of the hunted feet on the cobblestones of Prague and Paris. We have heard of thousands locked and tortured in hundred concentration camps.

[illegible] there will be more accusers of you than there are now; accusers whose lightest [illegible] I have restrained and as they are younger they will be [illegible] with you. But if you think that by killing me you can avoid the accuser censuring your lives you are mistaken. That is not a way of escape which is either possible or honorable.

This coming generation of accusers will arise. It was the last thing that the [illegible] crucified European asked from us—it must become a kind of sacred heritage. And it should not be a generation that seeks bloody revenge as an end in itself but that will endeavor to make this world a bastion of anti-fascism and anti-tyranny.

This globe has seen too much bloodshed already. It is high time to find a formula that will give us, whenever the need should arise, many more accusers than demagogues, many more fighting free men than Fascists, many more upright Christians than Teutons.

To the generation that will search for this formula, to the Socratic conscience of the future, we dedicate this editorial.

[illegible]

Dear Dad:

I am sure you will get a number. This letter is what you might call an appeal. We here at Southwick feel like "the last battalion."

[illegible] seems as though all the boys at Redfield are getting all the breaks. You write articles about them and the girls were there. Well, they aren't any better than we are. They're not handsome and tall, and after a GI haircut they don't have any curly hair. The real men were sent to Southwick Hall (Hall [illegible]).

Among the best of them is the group from Newark and vicinity. I myself am from Newark.

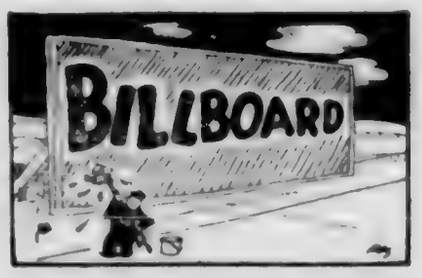
The next item on the list is a complaint as to the morning [illegible] some of your columns stated our arrival here. There seems to be some resentment toward our use of the school and some of the residents [illegible]. But me quote one of the passages from the Cynic. "One more we are going to have a chance to dance in the Waterman Building, something we haven't done since the arrival of the Army at Occupation." What the hell, we didn't ask to be sent here, you know.

As far as the women go, the most beautiful I have ever seen are from north Jersey.

(A questionable remark about our girls has been omitted—The Editor.)

If you like, you may print this letter in your scandal rag. In fact, I dare you to print it.

You said in your scandal rag that you want news from the "Air Men," well this is the real stuff. Print it.



Yours,
G. I.

EDITOR'S NOTE: It took a lot of deliberation to decide to print this letter. The students of U. V. M. are trying their best to make the aircrew students feel at home. We gave up many of our dormitories, Southwick, and a great part of the Waterman Building with the sincere desire that it will help the air cadets to enjoy the better their stay on our campus.

We definitely do not resent the air cadets at our University and the story about the dance in the Waterman Building was written in the spirit of joyous expectation that we finally have found a place again, however small, to get together on Saturday nights. We had not had chance to do that for weeks.

We are sure that above letter is not the sentiment of the majority of the aircrew students and we only reprint it because we feel that it will arouse comment among our students as well as among the air cadets and this will be a big stride towards a better understanding among all of us.

We like all the soldiers, in whatever dorm they may live (even the ones without any hair) and we also like our girls (even the ones that do not come from north Jersey).

All organizations on campus that desire an allocation for the year 1943-44 from the Student Activity Fund must submit an itemized estimated budget of their tentative expenses on or before April 1 of this year. The budgets must be signed by the organization's faculty adviser and placed in my box in the CYNIC office. These must be in by April 1 in order that final allocations may be made next fall. My hours are from 2 to 5 on Tuesdays and from 12 to 1 on Wednesdays.

President Millis Answers Students Questions on Future of University

EDITOR'S NOTE—The CYNIC takes pleasure in introducing a new feature to the students. With the cooperation of President Millis and the student body we hope to make it a permanent part of our newspaper. The president has kindly agreed to have the CYNIC serve as kind of clearing house for questions that students would like answered by the administration. Please put all your questions in an envelope in the CYNIC office.

PRESIDENT M[illegible]

1. Will there be a summer school for [illegible]?

[illegible] courses will be given during the summer quartermester in all fields in which the enrollment justifies the offering. Definite announcement concerning the actual courses to be given will be made shortly after the completion of the advance enrollment which will be held later this month or in April.

2. Is there a possibility that the school will not open its doors next September?

The University is definitely committed to maintaining its formal curricula in so far as the exigencies of war will permit. The University, therefore will operate next year and will welcome and in fact seek all students to whom it can be of service. The only exigencies which might close the University of Vermont are those which would close every institution in the country.

3. Would you advise students to apply for transfer to other universities?

No, unless it is found after the registration period that the University of Vermont cannot offer the courses which they need and desire. It also should be borne in mind in this [illegible] situation which prevails [illegible] of Vermont will also [illegible] other institution in the [illegible] course offerings will [illegible] about the same degree [illegible] tion.

4. Does the University [illegible] take the rest of the [illegible] over before or at the [illegible] semester?

It is impossible to [illegible] tion at the present time [illegible] know as yet how many [illegible] dents we will have in the [illegible] Army Training program [illegible] what our needs will be [illegible] matter should be decided [illegible] the next month and [illegible] by the first of May or [illegible].

5. What is the status of [illegible] with regard to above [illegible]?

It is contemplated that the [illegible] houses will be used in the normal manner to house the members of the [illegible] groups.

Saved!

Tons of tin!

For years telephone cables have been spliced in a very satisfactory way. But the solder joint contained 40 per cent war-vital tin.

So Bell System men devised a new type of joint which saves up to 80 per cent of the solder. A "Victory Joint" they called it.

The new technique has been adopted throughout the System with the result that 600,000 pounds of tin and an even greater amount of lead can be saved in a normal year's construction.

This is another example of the nation-wide cooperation of Bell System people in fulfilling their ideal—service to the nation in peace or war.

Well, what ... say Sarge?

... Pvt. Al Wees, "U. V. M. training has no superior. I've already been made corporal of the guard. Get it while you can, for it is a blessing in disguise."

From Pvt. Julius Goldberg, Miami Beach, Fla, "I never appreciated the importance of those hours of drill until I came into the army—now I see fully well what I learned during those long hours I thought I wasted in the cage at U. V. M."

All of us boys are getting the chance to acquire the fundamentals of military tactics; however, we are not taking advantage of the offered opportunities, for the cutting of military classes is appalling. We are offered excellent courses in marksmanship, stalking, guard duty, musketry, map reading, tactical problems, and drilling by the Military Department, yet we are not taking advantage of them. Get on the ball, fellows, for when you are wearing khaki you'll be grateful for this training.

Don't forget, if you have a friend, relative or fraternity brother in the armed services, write to him often, for mail is the soldier's bread and butter.

The Band Entertains Throughout the Year

"Joe" Lechnyr's R. O. T. C. Band marching at Centennial Field.

Sergeant Pickett Predicts U. V. M. Men Will Stand Out in Regular Service

"The freshmen have been very attentive this year and have benefited by receiving two or three times more training than usual. We've been trying to give them everything we could in a short period of time—and I'm absolutely sure that the men who have received their basic training here will stand out in the regular army," quoth Sergeant Pickett, hard working and valuable cog in the University's military department.

Sergeant Pickett, who directs a majority of the freshman military classes and therefore is certainly in a position to make the above statement, has a multitude of duties that keep him busy all day every day. At the present time he conducts a map reading class for freshmen, instructs the freshmen every Wednesday morning in musketry, is the senior drill instructor in the Saturday morning drill by companies, and also directs an extra basic weapons class for sophomores. He has also completed classes for the freshmen in guard duty, recruit drill (that was the basic drill during the first couple months of the school year), marksmanship, mechanics of extended order drill, military history, military organization, and customs of the service. Along with all this he acts as an umpire during the Friday morning field problems, handles the cut list, and has charge of freshman makeups (the hardest problem of all, according to the sergeant).

These were just a part of his duties, though. In the administrative department he is in charge of the supply room, keeps a stock record account (an account of every piece of equipment on hand), and makes out the annual report of the department's operating costs.

Stressing the importance of ROTC training at the present time, Sergeant Pickett passes along the following excerpts from letters received by him from past members of the class of '46. Martin "Jack" Carey, now in the navy, says, "the navy's some different than the army but ROTC still helps a hang of a lot."

Frank Estes, another class of '46 member, in the Air Corps at Atlantic City writes, "I thought ROTC was tough but sure had it comes in handy down here. Some of the Jeeps don't know one foot from another." Dave Sullivan, one of the fellows who went with the first group of ROTC's has this to say, "what little drill we have had here is a long way from catching up with that which I had in the short time I was at Vermont."

But here's the prize one of the lot and the Sarge's favorite. One former Vermont student (whose name will be withheld for obvious reasons) said "tell the boys not to complain about 7:30 military. It's only stress stuff. You can laugh when I tell you but I really like the Army and I used to be one of your biggest gold bricks."

Boys Up At Dawn Every Friday For Field Problem

The U. V. M. Military Department has hit upon something entirely new! Once a week an new problem or a never known as maneuvers. Since last month all those taking ROTC training have been rousted up at dawn's early light to study the map by 7:40. Here we are, fatigue suits and all, hungry soldiers students, ... classes at 8:30 to study field tactics. Everyone is ... and we all hope we can get back for the same reason we had to consider the case.

Then the march starts out smartly, out toward the University Farm buildings. Early morning traffic is about to progress and the motorists seem rather alarmed at the sight of hundreds of ... soldiers dressing over the roads. A whistle blows and we spread out and hit the snow as two planes appear and wing it to strafe us. We pump bullet after bullet into the planes but the dare things don't believe it and they refuse to fall. However they are soon driven off and the march continues.

After turning off at Spear St. scout patrols are sent out on the flanks to ward off the enemy. The first time the battalion went out they didn't know what to expect from the "enemy" with the result that several platoons in the front connected Custer's Last Stand and were massacred without mercy by our foes. It really wasn't fair as they had the Browning and Garands and could fire about the bullets they didn't have faster than we could with our Victory rifles. However, after that first time, things were organized and under the able leadership of the upperclassmen and officers, the battalion has been functioning as a unit with the result that the battle is now evenly fought with a few mistakes in tactics still evident.

Following the fight, we return to the main road and then to school at a brisk run designed to warm up the half-frozen soldiers. In a few days, a critique is issued to show what was wrong so that mistakes will not be repeated in future weeks.

Two weeks ago we were marching along when the enemy was sighted. The signal platoon passed out and took cover at the side of the road. One fellow next to me stood up for a minute to tighten his ... Suddenly I remembered. Dozens ... had ... on the ground.

"Anyone dead" he said.

"Oh, thanks for telling me" replied the bewildered student.

Report to the rear continued the ...

I soon concluded at the rear to find that Sergeant Lynch was the head casualty. He moved on along behind the column which was again marching along the road. By that time we were tired and made reasonable facsimiles of corpses. The field problem finally ended as we found to avoid the problems of how to keep warm. However, a fast run back to the gym took the chill out of our bones and we were soon ready for the morning ...

Although some of us have still not realized it these problems have been inaugurated for the benefit of students. Many of us will shortly be in one of the armed forces, and it is important to learn how to handle men a bit in such situations. Last time the planes bombed the unit to make us realize the importance of spreading out in such a situation. The Military Department feels that these problems are far more effective than explaining such things in classrooms and hereafter, those who get a kill will be required to explain themselves to Lieutenant Thayer. In addition to the fact that the weather is warming up, the department is planning new situations and problems which should be of interest to all ROTC students.

Girls From Redstone and Slade Entertain Fraternities at Tea

Delts Enjoy Party With Redstone Girls

"Come over to the House this afternoon"

"Guess I'll go over to see how the place looks now"

And so Delta Psi cordially invited by the Redstone girls to come home and tea at 37 Summit St. Find the fraternity and your fellow Greeks [illegible] and a little [illegible] afternoon.

As the morning [illegible] were Mrs. Proctor [illegible] Head Hostess and Housing Coordinator, 43 house president. A host of [illegible] Greeks. Then they were [illegible] who Delta Psi gives to war. Into that treasure trove [illegible] makes a house a home had really done a [illegible] Psi house. Even wallpaper! [illegible] animals! And not a Varga [illegible] Dear me the camp [illegible] it was never like this.

But the girls were treated—but that the organ "the best girls of all" was not mere flattery, and it wasn't long before they began to feel at home. Dancing in the hall and [illegible] upstairs in the library kept the party going until time began to run out—and the girls too. Robert Leach, president of Delta Psi, lighted the first fire in the fireplace. The girls of Delta Psi will no doubt keep the flame burning brightly.

Reactions to this party were fairly uniform. Of course all the girls enjoyed it—with the men of Delta Psi. And the Delts came away feeling their house was in good hands. Fellows on coming in and looking into what had once been the dining room had said "Too bad." But when leaving with "Come again" as the theme song their remarks were "Not so bad—not bad at all" and they didn't mean the house.

Fraternity Evacuees Feted by New Occupants

"Said the Sergeant to General, 'Move it Over.'"

The Slade Hall girls wish to thank the Kappa Sigma Fraternity for the spirit in which they have left their home. We want you to know that we appreciate it and thank you for it and we shall endeavor to return your home in such a condition that you will not have regretted our stay.

Although we are rather startled to be awakened by itinerant plumbers, complaint carpenters and "Pinky," the paperhanger (we are thankful for the work they have done) we have already come to love the spacious rooms (by the way, has anyone seen Polly Clarke this week?) and rambling halls which comprise our new home.

On Saturday afternoon, March 13, we had an open house for the Kappa Sigs, not comparable to the Bowery Brawl, but we hope the Kappa Sigs enjoyed it as much as we did. There was dancing in the living room, and Mrs. Loudon served coffee (real coffee) and cake.

In conclusion we might add, with apologies to Patrick Henry, "Our only regret is that we have but one home to give for our country."

U. V. M. Students Sponsor Movie

Highlights of a Year At U.V.M. to Be Seen

Under the sponsorship of Student Government a [illegible] film to [illegible] under will be shown to the students and friends of the University. The feature entitled "Highlights of a College Year at U. V. M." depicts all the events of a typical college year from the freshman rush activities through the run of the football season and the sports of the other seasons. It includes shots of the work at the R.O.T.C. as well as class and lab work in the various departments. Many students now in school will be seen at their work and play all to a fitting musical accompaniment. Under the direction of Heath K. Riggs the director of admissions, these scenes were put on celluloid during the last academic year. Mr. Riggs planned the sequences and made general arrangements for the production which has been displayed in many parts of the country as well as to the Air Corps students who are now part of our campus. All who have seen it were impressed with the beauty of the campus in every season and the interesting and comprehensive view they get of the life of the undergraduate students at U. V. M. It is hoped that every student now enrolled will take advantage of the opportunity to see this colorful and genuine picture. Further details will be made public very soon. Watch the Cynic for time and place.

The entire program was so refreshing, so unique, and so entertaining that everyone went away thrilled and feeling thankful that Uncle Sam had given a wonderful opportunity of education which is a much needed break from the permanent contact with the war in our everyday life. "It is going to be wonderful," quoth Miss Needham.

Under the leadership of its president, Patty Pike, YWCA has successfully met the challenge brought about by changing conditions and new problems which have arisen during the past year. Some of its outstanding activities have been: Freshman Camp, the Freshman Mixer, the Freshman Handbook, the GSO, Community Center work, deputations, knitting, the International supper, work in connection with chapel services and the Chapel Chimes, reports on the Sunday services at the local churches, and the W.S.S.F. drive, which raised over $300.00. It has also sponsored three of the outstanding speakers of the year: Eleanor Nerac, Dr. Timothy Tin Fong Low, and E. Stanley Jones. Three mass meetings have been held, the first of which was a supper meeting. By these and numerous other activities YWCA has proved its worth during the past year.

Sorority Notes

SIGMA GAMMA

Kathryn Marcott '45 returned recently from Andover, Mass. and Boston where she attended the Christian Vocational Conference of Episcopal College Women as a representative of Canterbury Club.

At an extra meeting called this week, the new officers for the sorority were chosen. Peggy Fake is the new president; Anne Capen, vice-president; Lucille White, secretary, and Ione Lacky, treasurer. The installation will take place next Monday evening as well as a farewell ceremony for the retiring officers.

Dotty Franklin reports that she is making a lot of noise as usual. That isn't strictly news!

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

The Alpha Chis are happily awaiting the arrival of their Providence President Miss Kathryn Myhre, who will be with them next weekend.

Phyllis Pierce '43, Mary Germaine '43 and Betty Smith '43 spent their weekend in New York.

Margy Watts '46 now wears a Kappa Sig pin. The lucky fellow is Roy Alberghum 43.

Miss Myer the province president, was here over the week-end and was entertained at a supper Sunday evening, March 14.

Barbara Hall and Shirley Needham will attend the Student Union Convention which is being held this week-end at the University of Connecticut in Storrs, Conn.

Florence Bezzas has moved into the Alpha Chi House and Shirley Hall is back from the House Management House. The Alpha Chis now have a full house.

DELTA PHI EPSILON

Estelle Berkson was elected president of the sorority at the meeting Tuesday evening. Other elections were: Jesse Lasman, first vice-president; Florence Levin, second vice-president; Harriet Shapiro, secretary, and Selma Feinberg, treasurer.

Among the New York bound this week-end will be Helaine Goldberg and Elaine Oling.

On Sunday, March 14 two girls were initiated into the sorority. They are Harriet Shapiro and Phyllis Feinberg.

Bunny Cutler and Phebea Jacobs have made an official announcement that they may head north this week-end.

Ice skating has become part of the physical education program for girls at Texas Christian University.

Girls Debate Vassar And Albany College

The Debating Club has scheduled two debates away from Burlington this week. They will meet first at Albany Teachers College in Albany, March 19, and the next day at Vassar in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Both of the debates will be in the form of a round-table discussion rather than a formal debate, and the subject for each concerns post-war policies.

Faye Lippman and Frances Donahue will debate on the specific statement, "That the United States should establish a permanent federal union with power to tax and regulate international commerce, to maintain a police force, to settle international disputes and to enforce such settlements, and to provide for the admission of other nations which accept the principles of the union."

Combined Dining Hall at Waterman Now Feeds Majority of Co-eds

Formerly the dining room on the third floor of Waterman housed about fifty people. Now, since Redstone campus moved down to the lower end of the campus, it has one hundred and fifty starving girls to feed. This is quite a job and requires the most detailed planning to run smoothly. Three times a day the big banquet hall on the third floor opens its doors to the hungry mob.

For the most part people are crazy about the new dining room. The food is excellent. It is so good that many have wondered if we are on army rations. The dining rooms are light and airy and make a very pleasant place to eat.

The girls who formerly ate at Robinson like the new Grassmount dining room. Best of all, they like the food and its quantity. They also like the pleasant atmosphere of the dining room. Quite a few have to get up and take a regular hike before breakfast to get to the Grassmount dining room and stave off hunger until noon. They admit that eight seems a little early for breakfast, but then what could be better for your figure and constitution than a morning hike? Lucky girls who are living at 420 College Street, formerly the Sig Phi (we have been requested not to use its name in connection with a girls' dormitory), who can just roll out of bed and be at breakfast on time.

Reactions have been favorable from those who ate in the Grassmount dining room in its smaller and less well-known days. The girls at the lower end of the campus feel this is a splendid opportunity to get to know more of their fellow U. V. M. co-eds. They like the idea of eating three delicious meals in the same place. They like the food, the furnishings, and the general atmosphere of our new war-time dining room. Best of all, they like the fact that they now have time to digest their breakfast. This is quite a pleasant relief from dashing to the cafeteria, usually over solid ice, at two minutes to nine, feverishly standing in line for food, and then gulping the coffee and two pieces of toast in one minute flat to make the first hour class at the Old Mill on time. Yes, I am sure that their digestive systems are quietly thanking their lucky stars since the advent of the new dining room and its new régime.

The Grassmount dining room runs, and runs smoothly under Miss Underwood's most able guiding and planning. June Hoffman, as hostess, also has an enormous job on her hands. She is doing her job with the utmost equanimity and is certainly getting the desired results. In fact, all the staff of waitresses, cooks, and dishwashers, as well as the dietitian and hostess, have the [illegible] are doing a good job.

I think everyone is [illegible] change in dining room [illegible] were formerly the upper [illegible] of the campus a real [illegible] other. It also gives [illegible] lovely, satisfied feeling [illegible] A vote of thanks to M[illegible] the fine and difficult job [illegible]

Senor Nin-Culmell Gives Performance At Chapel Sunday

Hispanic-American Music Brilliantly Played by Artist

[illegible] took advantage of the presence of Joaquin Nin-Culmell on Sunday afternoon at the chapel were treated to an excellent and timely afternoon's entertainment. Senor Nin-Culmell possesses among other traits a magnificent command of technique. His concert was well planned, being in chronological order. It was divided into three parts, the English music of colonial times, the music of those composers who do not try to associate their work with any country, and the works of those who definitely draw upon the folk-lore of their country for inspiration.

During the first of the concert the attention was drawn between the feeling for the sanctity of the chapel and their musical appreciation of the music. However at the close of the first part of the concert the large audience broke into prolonged applause.

As an artist, Mr. Nin-Culmell is superb. He showed his brilliancy best by his ability to present a program entirely of Hispanic-American music so comprehensively. He is the master of his instrument.

As a composer, the artist won a huge ovation at the close of his own sonata, which is definitely modern. Crashing dissonances constant and sudden changes from major to minor and back again, and an austerity were the outstanding characteristics of the work.

There were several numbers which were of especial appeal: The "Homenaje" by Simho by Vianna, a short sparkling number from Brazil; the "Milonga" by the Argentine, Gaito, which Mr. Nin-Culmell says is "the tango before the night clubs got hold of it"; and the three selec-

[illegible] manager of the Howard Johnson Agency announced this week in the Old Mill. Mr. Jarvis manager of the local restaurant says that "the plumbers and carpenters can be found and the refrigerator 'set to cruise' the students will once again be eating their meals at canteen.

The students have missed the Canteen a great deal but they realize that it is the least they can do to turn over their favorite eating place to the Army Air Corps. This is a sample of the hospitality of the U. V. M. students which they will extend to the cadets when they get out of quarantine.

Vote on Committee Officers Thursday

More Student Interest Urged by President

"Elections for the Executive Committee of Student Government will take place this Thursday within the main entrance of the Waterman Building," Natalie Spear, president of Student Government announced today.

"The response at last week's elections was very discouraging," she went on. "Only thirty percent of the students took the trouble to vote as against last year's record of eighty percent. We're hoping that enough people will turn out this time to prove we can top last year's peak."

Two freshmen and four each from the sophomore and junior classes must be chosen to serve on this committee. A sub-treasurer, who will be trained for the position of treasurer which she will automatically assume next year, must also be elected.

The eleven elected members of the Executive Committee will meet with the four other Student Government officials at least once a month during the college year. It is their joint task to bring all matters pertaining to the welfare of student government to the attention of the student body. They must also talk over matters of common concern with the administration. The election of a Student Court and various sub-committees, as well as the job of apportioning the Student Activity fund also falls to them. They are given the power to make any rules necessary for the proper carrying out of their duties.

Due to an oversight, the names of Sylvia Wellwood '44, and Constance Perkins '46 were omitted from the slate published in last week's Cynic.

The full list of nominations is as follows:

Junior representatives: Penelope Easton, Marilyn Ennet, Margaret Lake, Peggy Palmer Gertrude Sherman, Sylvia Wellwood, Elizabeth White.

Freshman representatives: Mary Boardman, Rachel Giddings, Constance Perkins, Betty Rome, M. L. Spiegel.

Sub-treasurer; Margery Anthony, Beryl Cheney, Vesta Stevens.

Ruth Jordan Reports At Collegium Meeting

At the weekly meeting of Collegium, March 21, Ruth Jordan '45 gave a report on the Northfield Conference which she attended last week. She brought up the main points touched upon by the conference, and a discussion followed her talk. After refreshments were served by Louise Rice '43, the meeting was adjourned.

Next week's program is tentatively set for a poetry hour, with Mrs. Percy C. Ladd reading.

Dean Hills' Annual Sugar Party Held Friday Night

Speakers Include President and Governor; Ray I. Pestle Awarded John M. Thomas Cup

[illegible] Kappa Phi Kappa [illegible] educational society held a meeting last Tuesday night March 16, in the Education Office. Prof. W. H. Martin of the Agriculture Educational Department spoke on "Vocational Education." He stressed the necessary part that the federal government plays in furthering its development. He also emphasized the importance of such a program during the war and its subsequent value after the present crisis is over and education once more comes to the fore. Professor Douglass a member of the National Council of Kappa Phi Kappa discussed the point that the National Council suggested at a meeting two weeks ago in Cleveland, Ohio. This plan concerned the future plans of the individual chapters and the advisability of discontinuing activities for the duration due to the fact that many of the active members are leaving to enter some branch of the armed forces. Following the talk, the local chapter of U. V. M. voted to follow any suggestions of the National Council and to remain active for the current year, after which they will cease activities until the war is over. They elected an alumni council whose function is to take care of any business that may arise concerning the chapter while it has suspended activities. The committee consists of Heath Riggs Director of Admissions, W. H. Martin, Assistant Professor of the Agriculture Educational Department, and Orrin Jay, an instructor at Burlington High School. These members together with Professor Douglass, who is to serve as a representative of the faculty will strive to keep the Burlington Chapter of Kappa Phi Kappa in a latent state for the duration, when it will again resume its activities. At the close of the meeting it was announced that Dean Charles Park, who is president of Vista Gamma, and is now stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting on March 30.

[illegible] Sugar Party held Friday night. Ray I. Pestle [illegible] Cup. [illegible] Dean Hills, [illegible] Governor Wills and Professor Douglass. [illegible] sugar and [illegible] were the order of the evening. The Vagabonds provided their usual peppy entertainment for the affair and the guests showed their appreciation by going on dancing with the kids. When all were assured that they seemed like candy people from Tracklock, Wm. Pierce '43, general chairman of the party, spoke a few words. He told a good one on Kennett, Bowden Chittenden County Farm Bureau Agent. It seems that Ken saw his obituary in the newspaper not so long ago. He called Dean Carrigan on the phone shortly after and said, "Did you see the announcement of my death in the paper this morning?" "Yes," said Dean Carrigan, "Where are you calling from now?"

You know, fellows, Vermonters have queer quirks—they sometimes laugh only if they feel like laughing. Mr. Boyden, toastmaster, told a joke which Anne, his wife, had told him a few minutes before. The audience didn't respond as they might have, and Ken, right into the mike, came out with, "Guess it didn't go over so well, Anne."

Mr. Boyden introduced Governor Wills by relating a milking contest in which the governor and Dean Carrigan participated last summer. It seems that Governor Wills lost the contest to Dean Carrigan by three points. Governor Wills explained the situation like this. "You see there were Democratic cows in the contest and when they heard that educated voice out came the milk."

The local newspapers had announced this sugar party as probably being the last one for the duration.

Concerning the announcement Governor Wills said, "The old folks of today and the generation could furnish a crowd great enough to celebrate Dean Hills' sugar party next year." He closed by paying tribute to Dean Hills with the following words. "Dean Hills' name will go down in history as being the shining light not only at the Sugar Party but also at many other activities."

Professor Mallet introduced by the toastmaster stated, "I hope that the Sugar Party will not end tonight." He referred to Dean Hills as Dean emeritus emphasizing the tremendous work under the Dean's regime.

Dean Hills Says: After the table was adjourned for musical program, community sing and the presentation of the John M. Thomas cup which had made

More of Air Corps Will Arrive Soon

The Air Corps Men's Glee Club singing at the Vermont campus are soon to be augmented by the arrival of their fellow cadets. The added number is scheduled to arrive between March 30 and April 1. Three new officers arrived last week to complete the staff for this unit for the current period. The 150 more privates will be of the same classifications as those already here and presumably will come from the same place, Atlantic City.

However no more rooms will have to be located to house the new troops for they will live in the same quarters with the present students at Converse Hall and in Fleming Museum. The new arrivals will bring the total number of cadets to approximately 1,000 men. This number will be maintained on the campus all the time, as some may leave others will arrive to take their place and keep this number constant.

An Open Letter to the Air Men

Fellow Students: There has never been any doubt in our minds about your attitude towards us. We felt sure that you would appreciate the little things we tried to do for you the first week that you were on our campus. We hope that every hour you have spent on our campus will be a pleasant one. We shall never falter in our determination to make you feel at home here. The pretty girls and your own mates will be in your dorm studies and we want them to be happy while here.

We are anxious the chance to meet all of you personally and show you the campus with all its traditions, to tell you the stories that have been handed down from class to class. There is the saga of the Boulder for which generations fought against Norwich and which is now securely embedded in U. V. M. soil. There are the thousand and one tales of the foot ball seasons when we stopped the Dartmouth cold and when our Catamounts won against all odds driven only by the cheers of fifteen hundred students.

We realize that other universities could offer you greater facilities, but none could present to you the buildings that have been built with so much love rather than money. The people of Vermont are not known for material wealth. No other university could have been more willing to give up its beloved meeting places with greater hope that you would accept our halls as an expression of our appreciation for the services that you are rendering today to our nation. This is the least we can do until we shall join you and fight this war side by side.

Your quarantine will be over pretty soon and we want to invite you today to all our dances, all our meetings, to share with us whatever we have to offer. After this hour we will have forgotten the letter one of your fellow's wrote and we shall remember only the sixty replies. The wonderful expression of your appreciation will induce us to greater effort to show you our campus in all its beauty so that you may leave us with the realization that you are fighting for Vermont too.

Fellow Students: The war has taught us that we are one big community, that the destiny of this world is in our hands and that our future will only be a happy one if we all work as a unit, one people indivisible. We must never allow any prejudices and resentments to enter our ranks, and letters like the one we printed last week, however bad they may be, preserve this unity. Comments similar but much worse than them rallied us to take up arms against the evil concepts of whole nations; comments like them will make a conscious unit of all of us here on this campus.

We shall not be with you very long. Our semester is almost over and by the time a few of us will come back to school this fall, you will have gone. We must attempt in this short time to deepen our understanding for one another. We want you to write home to your folks that we have tried to do our best, however little this may be. It is never the abundance that counts but the spirit in which services are rendered. Please accept ours with all their shortcomings.

Air Men Rise In Defense of U. V. M. Spirit . . .

The Cynic office was literally flooded with letters as a result of an Air Cadet's letter printed in Friday's Cynic. The following are excerpts from the mail received.

Dear Editor:

. . . . Editor, you can be sure sure that poor kid is the exception to the rule. Please don't judge all of us by him. Judging from your Let's Note I see you have apparently misunderstood the significance and rather insignificance of the private's letter but I'd hate to think that any of the student body might feel that "G. I's" opinions are endorsed by anyone but him self.

All of us (with only one exception—the above mentioned misfit) really appreciate what the University of Vermont has done for us. From the very first day, since I arrived on the U. V. M. campus, I have been impressed by the cheerfulness of the students and others with whom we have come in contact. This is no flattery—it's the honest truth. I don't know whether that's a characteristic of U. V. M. students or Vermont folk in general but I'd hate to see anything spoil it.

Let's keep up the spirit of friendly cooperation which prevails between U. V. M. and the Air Force.

Sincerely,
Pvt. Orestes M. Davey,
("Rusty")

Dear Editor:

. . . . It is truly unfortunate that we have such a person in our midst, but all we can do is ask you of the University of Vermont to bear with us, be patient with us and try to overlook the blatant bleatings of the black sheep; for you know, as well as we know, that in any group such as ours there are always one or two persons who show their smallness to the detriment of the rest.

I can only hope that the writer's anonymity was due to a latent sense of shame.

Sincerely,
Pvt. E. C. Laidlaw, Jr.

Dear Editor:

. . . . If this was in civilian life I wouldn't think it was any of my business, but being a soldier, I think it is. We are a unit and when one soldier does something wrong, it reflects back on all of us.

Whoever this fellow is, he must have thought that the girls were going to fall for him just because he is going to be a cadet and wear a uniform. . . .

Sincerely,
Virgil

Dear Editor:

First, we think the women are swell. We've been "locked up" for a long time so that most of us look twice at anything in feminine attire, but believe me they are "etxra special" here. Second, we do appreciate what you have done for us and as for grumbling and complaining about the loss of some of your dormitories and classrooms—we haven't heard a bit of that. You may think that it goes unnoticed by us, but we appreciate those things and hope to prove it when they turn us loose. Third, and last, we don't believe your paper is a scandal rag and never did. If it was I don't believe there would be such a general rush for it when it is placed in the hall for our benefit.

Yours truly,
Pvt. A. Hannibali

Dear Editor:

. . . . I sincerely hope you will not be influenced by any misstatement or insult mentioned in this letter. I personally, and, quote the rest of the fellows, feel that the person or persons who wrote such a disgusting letter are poor sports.

Closing, I sincerely wish that every student of the University will remember that that letter was not written by us, and I hope it will not play upon our friendship and character.

Sincerely,
Pvt. Walter A. Manaker

Dear Editor:

Let it be said here that we hope that the college will not judge the calibre of the Air Crew students from such a collection of egotistical phrases.

We thank all and appreciate the speed and efficiency used in moving students out of the beautiful dormitories, to provide quarters for the Air Crew students. Also for the students' and faculty's quiet acceptance of crowded conditions and limited schedules.

Any reference not complimentary to our paper or student body, is strictly our own opinion. The Air Crew student's enthusiastic and eager anticipation of dates, dances, and social functions easily counters the true attitude of the Air Crew student.

Sincerely,
Pvt. Byron E. Bassett.

Dear Editor:

Enclosed is a reply to the letter written by the airmen at Southwick. In my humble way, I have tried to allay their suspicions that we resent their presence here.

If you will publish this answer, I know they will see that for at least one of many reasons, they are welcome.

I am sure many many coeds lend their voices to mine.

A Coed.

To preserve my maidenly blushes, I beg to remain unknown.

To the Gentlemen of Southwick Barracks:

I really don't know where you unearthed the idea that we of U. V. M. resent your presence upon our campus. We don't, we assure you.

If for no other reason, we coeds are grateful for your presence because you now occupy Southwick. Why? Well, listen to our tale of woe.

Once upon a time a man died and left our fair campus some money. With this money we built the spacious Waterman Building. Lo and behold! Alas the social life began to drift to Waterman. The Student Lounge opened its doors to clubs—meetings galore were held there—but, Southwick was not neglected.

No.

On cold bitter days, when the very marrow of our bones was frozen, the coeds trudged bravely through the icy blasts to Southwick: for gym, for home nursing, for modern dance, for this—for that.

But that was not all.

No.

There was more.

In dark, polar nights, when naught but witches and hobgoblins and gremlins should be abroad, U. V. M. coeds, unheedful of their Dean's warning to stay far from lonely streets and dark places, again trudged bravely up the dim-lighted streets and across the shadowy campus to Southwick: to attend jolly little meetings of this and that and the next thing.

And then, of course, they had to walk home again, much later. And some had to walk alone, because no one lived down their way.

And all this time, we were wondering: why cannot we, too, have the privilege of meeting in Waterman? And we received no answer.

As if in answer to our plaintive cries, Uncle Sam sent you men here. You filled up Redstone and Southwick, Robinson and Slade. We coeds moved out—a little upset, 'tis true, but then—we adjusted in no time and bounced right back again.

And the finest tribute to your arrival, as I see it, the most cheering fact in those few confused days, was this salient fact: no more classes, no more meetings at Southwick!

Into our eyes came a warm glow. Into our hearts began to steal warmth and affection for you. Because of you, we, too, are able to share Waterman. We have been freed from bondage. We no longer meet at Southwick. Long live Southwick! Long live the U. S. Air Corps!

A Coed.

Dear Editor:

I was very sorry to find out that there was someone in the Air Corps here with such a feeling toward Vermont. I wonder if you would consider publishing this article [illegible] G. I's letter in Friday's Cynic.

Thank you.
Hazel Butterfield

To G. I. at Southwick:

Dear G. I.

We know very well that you did not ask to be sent here: this is not a time for asking, it is a time for doing.

However, we can keep our sense of humor, can't we? Hence "the Army of Occupation"—it was not [illegible]. That questionable remark [illegible] which was omitted [illegible] been, but we'll forget it.

We know that you [illegible] strange place away [illegible] we also know that you [illegible] of your letter. How? In [illegible] boys at Redstone, you [illegible] hair cut, they don't have [illegible] your own sense of humor [illegible] lacking.

If you had not [illegible] anonymous, I know of at [illegible] which you would receive [illegible] ever, I hope that this one [illegible] better understanding [illegible] Corps and U. V. M., and may it [illegible] make you feel the way I did [illegible] your letter in the Cynic. [illegible] "the real men were sent [illegible] Hall."

Sincerely,
Hazel [illegible]

Dear Editor:

We are also soldiers from Southwick Hall, and we too at first felt like the battalion. However, after becoming [illegible] acquainted with the efforts and spirit [illegible] cooperation of the student body and faculty of this University, we have not changed our minds. . . .

All of us have a home state and it is only natural to retain a certain amount of loyalty to that state. We grant that the "Miss America" contests are held in New Jersey; however, how many winners has that state contributed? True he may personally think the girls in Northern Jersey are the "most beautiful" he has seen but—there are 659 others of us who think the quantity and quality of girls here more pleasing.

There are many of us here who have been in college before and we feel it a privilege to be able to again read a college paper. Consequently we feel that it is a rank injustice to refer to the Cynic as a "scandal rag."

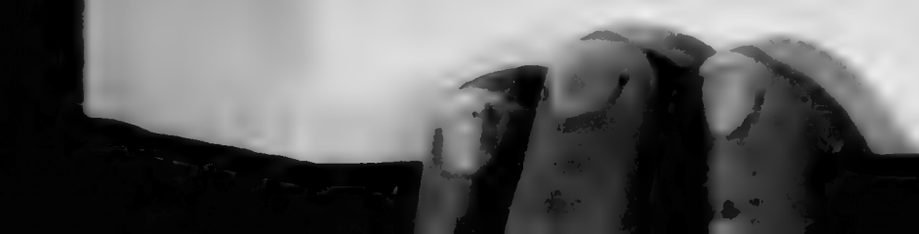
Did that "G. I." soldier realize that he might want to attend one of the dances at the Waterman Building?

We feel, and we are sure all the fellows will second it, that we are extremely fortunate to be located at the University with such fine traditions and high standards. We want to express our sincere appreciation to the faculty members and student body for their generosity and team play (to use an army expression) in making our stay here a pleasant one.

Pvt. J. H. [illegible] Jr.
Pvt. A. F. [illegible]

Dear Editor:

I should like, on behalf of the [illegible] students of U. V. M., to apologize for the unwarranted and shameful letter [illegible] of our colleagues, which appeared in the March 19 issue of the Cynic. It is [illegible] not the sentiment which we feel [illegible] the University, I assure you, and it is revolting to think that one [illegible] write you for any purpose other than to express our gratitude for the spirit with which you have so generously welcomed us into your organization. . . . I suppose it is almost [illegible] add that the aforementioned soldier is very definitely singular in his opinion of the U. V. M. coeds (and I'm sure [illegible]).



Again sincerest apologies [illegible] comrade.

Yours for a better understanding,
Robinson Hall [illegible]

Dear Editor:

. . . . Abundantly "endowed" with disgusting conceit and jealousy [illegible] must be quite a bargain to [illegible] wonder, then, why you're [illegible] Though I'm not from Newark [illegible] many fine men from Newark [illegible] and you're not one of them. You [illegible] credit to Newark, to New [illegible] Air Corps, to your family [illegible] self. . . .

. . . . You termed yourself a [illegible] yet you hadn't the intestinal [illegible] to you, to sign your name. Put [illegible] nerve to degrade Southwick Hall, fellow men, and most important [illegible] Air Corps. You had better [illegible] welfare, remain anonymous.

Our first impression on our arrival here three weeks ago was one entirely favorable and our appreciation has grown with each succeeding day. Our opinions definitely are not those which were printed in the letter but have been just the opposite as the Air Crew students time and again have complimented U. V. M.

We have been given the use of Redstone Campus and other beautiful buildings located here at the University including numerous other facilities. We have no criticism to offer regarding any articles written in the CYNIC, and are hoping that in the future we'll find many write-ups in your paper of our activities.

We are looking forward to open post when we will have the opportunity and pleasure to meet, and mingle, with the students of U. V. M. and the citizens of Burlington. We feel that this will bring a closer unity between you and ourselves.

In closing let us explain that this letter is written as a result of many requests from among us that the indignation be expressed of the entire 61st Detachment.

In appreciation of your hospitality and generosity.

Sincerely,
CHARLES S. OLSON,
ALBERT W. QUACKENBUSH,
Squadron Commanders at Southwick Hall.

Dear Editor

The repercussions of an editorial written by one of the boys has been felt in every hall, every room, and every heart. We are proud of our title, proud of our uniform and proud of our fellow soldiers. This pride was sorely dented when one misled individual would incriminate others with such an inane editorial.

If there are 650 soldiers at this post, then I can surely guarantee that 649 are still true soldiers. W can have only distaste for the individual who wrote such a letter.

We are proud of your campus, and proud of the traditions that are carried on. We are especially grateful for the opportunities that are offered for all here.

The young ladies referred to, have a perfect right to hold distaste for any soldier who would write and assume that others feel as he is want to feel. We apologize to the girls and the personnel of the University for one of our individuals. I say individual for we cannot class such a person as a soldier.

We hope to do all that is expected of us here and in our later training.

The rest of us feel differently and I am taking this way to make an understanding on the topic.

Sincerely,
PVT. ROBERT J. JOHNSON,
On behalf of the soldiers

Dear Editor:

This is the first time in my life that I have ever written to an editor of a newspaper, and I never thought that I would be writing in shame. Yes, shame, for after reading the letter that was written to the newspaper by a certain private from Southwick Hall I cannot rest until I express my apologies for his ungentlemanly act and to assure you that every soldier I have spoken to feels the same way that I do. Skipping the part about Redstone Hall, because I am a very happily married man, and his nauseating remarks about the young ladies of the University, I should like to remark about his statement of the student resentment of the army "taking over" as it were, the University, naturally there is some slight resentment or annoyance because you all have some sentimental attachment to various "haunts" which are now being used by the Army Air Force, but you all realize, and we (all but one) realize this is war and war is no fun, to say the least, and we all have to make sacrifices. Therefore, sir, I hope that you will understand our position, as we understand yours, and not be prejudiced by one individual who sets himself up to express his opinion as the opinion of all concerned.

Yours apologetically,
PVT. CHARLES F. PIZZSON

Dear Editor

I and my roommates have just read what we believe to be a great manifestation of ignorance. We refer to the letter in the current issue of the CYNIC. We do not know who wrote it, but that an apology is called for. It was certainly an abuse of free speech, to say the least. Secondly, it is not representative of the feeling of the air crew students here.

We realize that you will not judge 650 of us on the unauthorized statements of one individual.

PVT. DOUGLAS G. LAWRENCE,
PVT. WARREN F. KREMER.

Dear Editor

I am sure the majority or better still, all of us with a few exceptions, are enjoying the hospitality of the university even though as yet we have not enjoyed too much freedom. If I were in the mental state that the G. I. soldier who wrote this letter must be in, I would feel very sorry for myself indeed.

And I only hope this letter will in some small measure change your opinion of us that you certainly must have gotten when you read the letter of Pvt. G. I.

Sincerely,
PVT. THOMAS THOMPSON.

Dear Editor:

We never expected to be shipped here but now that we're here, we feel damned happy to get into such a place. The girls here are just as nice as could be found anywhere and even more sociable than other places we've been. They even arranged dates with a great many fellows here and that's something we've never had before.

The fellow that said that "the most beautiful girls were in Newark" is crazy or color blind. I've been there and I'll stake everything I have that I'd choose Burlington any day.

Steeped in gloom are we of the air corps and ankle deep in lachrymosity—worried frowns have replaced the smiles so prevalent 'neath flight caps.

We ... inconvenienced you greatly, we realize that, and the warm and generous reception you've given us has removed the bitter taste of "G. I." That one man should make dubious statements grieves us deeply.

With your grace we'll smile again.

Telephone Goes Wild; or Love Overcomes All The Obstacles

[illegible] last week.

[illegible] "Hello" a man's voice. Bob's heart sank. "This is Redstone."

A girl's voice. Bob asked. "Is this [illegible] Redstone dormitory?"

"Yes. [illegible] what do you wish to speak to?"

"To Annie."

"Annie? Who's Annie? Ha! Ha! Annie doesn't live here anymore. You're the one we've been waiting for. Ha! Ha!"

Bob groaned and hung up.

He called information and asked the operator in Redstone 5000. He called 5000 again.

"Listen, operator. I just want to talk to a girl that lives at Redstone."

"You'll have to call Burlington exchange, sir, and ask for the Delta Psi House."

"Oh! I should say!"

Another nickel in the slot. "Operator, may I have Delta Psi?"

"Just one moment, please."

"Special operator. What number, please?"

"I want Delta Psi."

"Delta Psi Fraternity or Delta Psi House, sir?"

"I want Redstone, operator, but that's turned to the Delta Psi House."

"Sorry, sir, but that is through 5000 at Waterman."

"But I just called 5000 and they told me to call through Burlington Exchange." Bob was getting desperate.

"Just one moment, please." [illegible] 10 seconds. 15 seconds. 20 seconds. "741 is the number. Just one moment and I will connect you."

(Buzz! Ring!)

"Hello."

"May I speak to Annie?"

"Sorry this isn't the girls' phone. Call 2905."

Bob hung up weakly. What would the fellows think of his long absence. Why did he want to go out Saturday, anyway? He wasn't at college to go out. He was at college to get an education. But no! Faint heart never won fair lady. No obstacle would stand in his way! He would show true character. He put in another nickel and called 2905.

"Hello?" A sweet young thing answered. Bob's heart jumped. His trembling recommenced.

"May I speak to Annie?"

"Just one moment please. Oh Aaaannneee! Hey, Aaaaannneee!" Bob took it back about her being a sweet young thing—not with a lusty yell like that.

"Sorry she doesn't seem to answer. I guess she isn't in."

Bob mumbled lamely. "No, I guess she would have heard if she were in. Thank you."

The S. Y. T. replied, "Could you leave a message, please?"

"No . . . No. I'll call again."

Bob wiped his forehead and stepped out of the booth. How to face the fellows! Aint he had no sandwich.

He knows. He would kid around. Play dumb.

He walked bravely out through the corridors towards the bulletin board. Except that his knees were springy, he was none the worse for his ordeal.

But no one was around! He thought that couldn't be possible. All his searching couldn't reveal their hiding place. Bob gave up and went home.

When he got home, he found them all studying.

As he came in, Joe, his roommate, winking knowingly at Bill, explained, "We thought you were making a long distance call, so we left. The Cafeteria has been closed to students for a few weeks already. Did you get a sandwich?"

But started to mumble something. Just then the landlady came in.

"Oh, Bob, someone called for you while you were out. Some somebody. I guess she wants you to vote for her in those elections they're having at school. She said something about Mortar Board, but I didn't get it. She'll call again at 8:30."

Dear Editor:

We, here at Converse, are very gratetul to you for your reply to G. I. in the March 19 issue of the CYNIC. Everyone here feels ashamed of having a future officer "sound off" in such a disgraceful manner.

Personally I also come from North Jersey and think that everyone in Vermont has treated us royally. This includes all of our instructors, your paper, and all the people with whom we have been lucky enough to come in contact.

Sincerely,

PRIVATE FROM CONVERSE.

Dear Editor:

Sincerely,

PVT. WILLIAM R. FOSTER.

Dear Editor:

. . . . Whoever wrote it, you may be sure, will be sorry for more reasons than one. You know that we fellows are representing the army of the U. S. and the rest goes without saying. Besides that fact is the feeling that the rest of us experienced on reading the letter. I am sure that his or their stay among us will not be the most sociable, as far as we are concerned.

I, for one, actually feel guilty when I see the sacrifices that you students have made and are making every day and the way that you are receiving your thanks.

There are plenty of us who would like to, and would if we could talk with you, express our appreciation for the way that you are treating us. . . .

Yours truly,

PVT. E. H. R.

Dear Editor.

In regard to the letter printed on your editorial page today from the Mr. G. I. I am sure that you appreciate the fact that in every group there is bound to be at least one fool. In my opinion any person with a viewpoint warped as badly as his seems to be, doesn't even belong in the group up here and it would be a favor to all concerned if he were sent back with the rest of the G. I. soldiers.

Sincerely,

PVT. THOMAS MCKANIS

Redstone Hall.

Dear Editor:

I want to apologize for the letter which you printed in the last issue of the Vermont CYNIC. We haven't discovered as yet who wrote it, but I am sure we will know how to deal with him if we do find out.

We all realize, I think, the sacrifices the students are making in our behalf and appreciate it.

Respectfully yours,

PVT. WILLIAM B. GOULD.

Dear Editor:

I'm from the third floor in Redstone, so I sort of feel responsible for that monstrosity. I'm one of the "tall, dark, and handsome Irishmen" and I'd like to state that while I'm neither tall nor handsome, but Irish, we're not getting all the breaks, and even if we were, they were gotten on Irish pluck.

As for the women, personally I think they are all pretty damned nice.

I'm from around Newark myself and the North Jersey women while exceptionally nice, still have a lot of competition.

As for that remark about the students, well, you can figure out just about what kind of a person wrote that.

We fellows all know that the students have gone to all sorts of trouble because of us, and really we appreciate it more than we can say.

After the treatment we received in Atlantic City living up here among the students is just out of this world. All of us know that we've put ourselves out and I would like to thank you personally for everything you've done for us.

That's about all for now, except thanks again and we all apologize.

Fraternally yours,

PVT. BOB MCANNEY.

... Editor:

I do not know how to start this letter to you as I am boiling mad. I read the letter that was sent to your paper and I was really peeved.

. . . I personally like my new home here at the University. I am well treated by everybody here. The food is good and conditions are a hundred percent better than what we formerly had.

I wouldn't blame the students one bit for being peeved. They really have given up a lot. Their homes have been taken over and their school pounded. Quite a few of their comforts have been taken away.

I personally would like to thank them for the sacrifices they have made. I wish to apologize for the stupidity of the fool who sent you the letter.

Very respectfully yours,

PVT. PATRICK MALONEY.

Dear Editor:

We of Redstone Hall feel that the letter which appeared in the CYNIC of March 19, 1943, is purely one man's selfish opinion and we disapprove of it most thoroughly. I myself feel almost apologetic for this imbecilic deed.

We feel that the students of U. V. M. and other civilians of Burlington are doing their best to make us comfortable. We appreciate this and thank them for their efforts. We wish nothing to stand between us, so please don't let this incident reflect on all of us.

Very truly yours,

PVT. LAWRENCE G. KRAMENOS.

Dear Editor:

It is true we didn't ask to be sent here but I can truthfully say I am very thankful that I was. This is a wonderful school and I am sure that the soldiers appreciate everything that is being done for them by the college authorities. We also realize what the student body has given up and we express our thanks to them all.

Sincerely,

PVT. RICHARD SHOENTHAL.

Dear Editor:

I sincerely hope the letter written by one of the privates from Southwick was not taken as the attitude of all the Aircrew students. Not all of us are from Newark and the students from Newark haven't the attitude of a few privates. We are glad and proud we can attend school here and appreciate all the regular U. V. M. training. Your pleas are for us.

I also hope the girls don't take the letter too seriously, but hope they will consider us part of the student body. Please forgive the rash statements of the G.I. soldier.

Very truly yours,

CLAIR R. [illegible]

Dear Editor:

Read the letter in the CYNIC written by one of us. I really shouldn't say one of us because he does not express himself as such. I myself and I feel I am not alone, like the city and college very much. I also feel we are treated pretty well by people whose homes we have practically taken away from them. By we and I mean GIs not the GIs called the fellow who wrote the letter to feel free to report it.

Sincerely,

PVT. M [illegible]

Dear Editor:

Many thanks for printing the letter anonymously written to me by our G.I. Here is the answer.

I am not ashamed. I am Pvt. Wm. Gutches of Slade Hall. I moved here quite recently from Southwick, south wing. And all I can say is that we men of all Halls here do fully realize and appreciate what the town of Burlington and the University of Vermont are doing for us. We are more than pleased with the hospitality received here at U. V. M. and have found our limited relationships with the students very pleasant.

Very truly yours,

PVT. [illegible]

Dear Editor:

Inclosed I am the letter that you saw on behalf of the Aircrew students at the University of Vermont, humbly apologize to the staff of the CYNIC, to the people of Burlington, to U. V. M. and to the people of Hamilton. We regret that one of our number could have such a frowned upon attitude and the poor taste to publicly admit it. Would it make us sad to find that we have that type of person among us, we are not proud to be connected. The Air Corps wants real men in their Pilot Training Program and we feel confident that anyone of his character will not be with us for long.

Knowing how hard it is for any town or school to take and its motto, a great influx of strange soldiers we all feel that U. V. M. and all Burlington have done far more than their share in making us welcome. This I say, in the fact of the restrictions that have allowed us very little contact with civilians.

We want Burlington to like us. We are grateful for the fine treatment we have been accorded here and we want everyone to know it. This is a great contrast to Atlantic City and we don't want a few to spoil it for the rest of us, so will you please think twice before you condemn us for the mistakes of that one present minority.

Respectfully,

Another North Jersey Boy.

Dear Editor:

I am not very good at this sort of thing, the only letter writing I do is to the folks back home. This time however I feel it's my duty to apologize for the G.I. soldier who wrote the letter that was published in your paper recently. The only true statement in the letter was that he called himself a G.I. soldier. I can safely say that no one else up here would stoop so low as to do what he did.

I won't go into any great detail as I know you will receive many letters such as my own. But I would like to express my personal appreciation for the warm welcome I received as part of this group. I am glad that I can live on your fine campus and attend classes in your school to prepare me for the job I have to do.

I hope you won't judge the rest of us on the basis of that letter. The Air Corps is the best branch of the service and the most to it are men. I am really very proud to be. I am one of them. However there is always one who manages to crawl in under the wire and the G.I. soldier crawled way under.

Again my apologies for the

Yours truly,

Dear Editor:

I am not a veteran by any means but I have had quite a year on the gridiron. During this time I never had the opportunity to feel glad I was the hospitality given the athletes by Burlington. Off hand I can think of no town where I have been treated better than right here at U. V. M. I too read the letter quoted by G.I. in his letter to you and it struck me as rather odd. However your explanation satisfied me.

As far as the women go, I think the most beautiful girls from New York [illegible] are found here.

I have talked to several of the fellows about G.I.'s letter printed in the CYNIC and we feel he is entirely out of line. In our opinion he is not intelligent enough to be called a "guy."

Further we hope that the action will not cause friction between the student body and us and that our relationship will be as cordial as the letter says it has been in the past.

Sincerely,

PVT. F. R. W.

Students Urged to Give Pint Before Leaving

Friday March 9 a ceremony was held to dedicate the Vermont Blood Plasma Bank A demonstration was given at which blood was given by members of the medical profession and a trial run of the apparatus made Dr Keith Innes was in charge and Dr Stroman lectured on "Blood Substitutes"

Blood donors for the Vermont Blood Plasma Bank are plentiful at the moment and many are anxious if not impatient to make their contributions Nearly 250 students signed up during the drive several months ago. Everything is being done to facilitate the handling of these student donors

Of the 250 students, there is a slight majority of women (due of course to the drafting of men). It is planned to process the plasma before April 29, when the present semester ends. All minors who plan to donate must have parental consent

Mortar Board will assist the society by furnishing the Blood Bank director, Dr W. E. James, with up-to-date addresses of the student volunteers much needed after the recent reshuffling of the students to different quarters about the campus.

Volunteers from the city of Burlington will be accepted as donors and are asked to register at the local Red Cross

The $15,000 worth of special equipment is all set up and almost ready for use Collection will start as soon as the apparatus is functioning properly

Alpha Chis Hear Dr. Stoehr Play

Last Monday evening the Alpha Chi agony had the pleasure of visiting at the house with Dr Richard Stoehr Viennese composer now a member of the faculty at St Michael's College Doctor Stoehr spoke informally on life in Vienna giving some interesting sidelights on the discovery of an old Roman cellar underneath a modern one He also showed us several pictures of Viennese life including some interesting scenes in cafe houses which he described as being similar to our drug stores only much better and much gayer Later he delighted the girls by playing Tales from the Vienna Woods Vienna City of My Dreams and The Waltz

The alumnae were also present and during the open house by having ice cream soda and cookies After the refreshments Doctor Stoehr obliged a small group with autographs and with a waltz tune as a Polish soldier in the last World War who had not seen his home for twenty-one days Doctor Stoehr played with the German discovering this treasure being operated by the Stoehr Electrical Instrument Company Dr Stoehr also gave a lecture to prove the authenticity of the tune

Post-War World Analysis Reveals Huge Problems

Mr. Clark Eichelberger Shows Ways to Attain Greater Cooperation

Planning for the future was the theme of the very timely and interesting lecture given by Mr Clark M Eichelberger director of the Commission to Study Organization of Peace on March 22 at the City Hall Mr Eichelberger addressed townspeople and U V M students and faculty at a meeting which was sponsored by the Kappa Club

Mr Eichelberger believes that World War II could have been avoided if all people had cooperated with the League of Nations We believed ourselves he said and now we must plan for a world government and world peace

Complete military victory over the Axis must be won But to achieve this we must know what we are fighting against and what we are fighting for "We fight against tyranny" Mr Eichelberger gave examples of how the tyranny of Germany over the occupied people was decreasing the population of the occupied countries Imprisonment starvation and mass killing are common throughout Europe Faith in religion and faith in government have also been destroyed

We are fighting for the four freedoms and a better world in which to live The sacrifice of our soldiers must not be in vain said Mr Eichelberger

When hostilities cease there will be no time to write the peace treaty The plans for and problems of the post war world must be worked out in advance of the Armistice The problems for discussion and planning are those of food, of rehabilitation and of policing the world until the governments are reestablished "No occupation should be taken in the name of the United Nations," states Mr Eichelberger

The policies of post war conditions are based upon whether the United States will cooperate or not "There are those who want the United States to be imperialistic But such a policy would result in higher taxes a decrease in free enterprise lower standards of living regimentation of the people and ultimately another war"

A continuous conference of the 41 United Nations during the period of war has Responsibility Spells Trust

[illegible] graduated to leave this week [illegible] the administration considered it unfair [illegible] these plans were [illegible] and apprehensive [illegible] that [illegible] to wonder to what [illegible] could look.

[illegible] the administration considered the suggestion that in due [illegible] these prep-ed [illegible] examinations of this University were [illegible] a measure which for a while seemed to be [illegible] years to come. By today [illegible] the pressure [illegible] the ranks but also has made [illegible] progressively [illegible] which [illegible] the uncertainties of [illegible] it will.

It is true that these preparatory units have suffered hardships on the present basis but with many small colleges closing down we begin to realize the permanency of the situation and appreciate the necessity of long range planning. It would be far more disastrous by far more disappointing if after the war this campus had to resume its academic duties with an [illegible] of physically unfit, half-trained veterans, and an embryonic faculty.

All the more solid effort on part of our administration will not only be of benefit to the University and its students, but the State of Vermont will be one of the prime beneficiaries of all the plans for the continuance of academic life at our University. We must not go into details here; all the problems during the present [illegible] should have driven home at least this one point.

It seemed therefore strange to many students that the Legislature of the state recently to pass a bill which will make a two-thirds vote of the State Trustees necessary before any part of the $300,000 may be used that have been promised to the University. (The University raised an equal amount through private channels last year.)

We shall not attempt to either enter or solve the argument we shall not over State interference or uphold the conception that a university must be supervised. We only realize that the shock of two years ago was a heavy one and that a slight distrust is pardonable. We only feel certain that the destiny of this University is now in hands of responsible people who very much will to maintain the old confidence in our institution. Again and again we were made to feel the steadying influence of the new and old men behind the helm. They had so ably by President Mathis did not need much time to reassure students and patrons and their great effort will not fail to convince Montpelier.

In these processes we can only be onlookers because time alone heals such wounds.

The Season That Did Not Come True

Vermont scores another run during 1942 season at Centennial Field.

Many Freshmen on Hoop Letter List

Larry Gardner, U. V. M. athletic director, announced today that the following athletes, many of whom have entered the armed forces already, may be classed as lettermen for the 42-43 basketball season. Capt. Bob Doherty, Larry Kulick, recently named to head next year's court club, Milt Kaufman, Ralph LaPointe, Norm Beaulieu, George Henderson, Reno Conti, Don Murphy, Dick Breen, Leon Sheppard, and Al Johnston.

As yet, no manager for next year's basketball team has been announced.

W. A. A. Archery Enjoys Good Year

Girls Enter Team in National Competition

The Archery Club has, in spite of the confusion of moving, had a good winter season. Two teams were entered in the National Intercollegiate Competition in Class "C" which shoots sixty arrows at twenty yards. Although the results have not been received, the scores show a marked improvement over those sent in last year. Last year's score was 4344 and U. V. M. placed eleventh. This year the teams have the score of 4448 and stand a good chance to place well up.

Individual high scorers throughout the three weeks of shooting were:

	Hits	Score
Margaret Wishart '43	180	1294
Jean Davison '44	179	1176
Esther Ballard '45	113	784
Joyce Eymeton '45	113	622

Others placing consistently on either the first or the second team were: Viola Stevens '45, Phyllis Handy '45, Marcelle Russell '46.

Joyce Eymeton, Jean Davison and Esther Ballard provided Art Stacey and his boys on March 26th at the "Y" Pinshot sixty arrows at thirty yards. The girls had not practiced at that distance and the men had the advantage.

Baseball and the War

Total number of men playing major league baseball this season will be about 400. . . . By conservative estimate, these 400 men will furnish entertainment for 20,000,000 Americans who either attend games or follow them day by day in the press or on the radio. Several million of these men are men in the armed services. Suppose baseball were abandoned and all players told to do something to help the war effort—dunnit? Being frank, most of them would go into defense plants. . . . They won't sacrifice the entertainment of 20,000,000 to add only 400 men to the country's vast labor army. . . . What do you think?—Joe Aston in the Cincinnati Post.

Hand Ball Tourney To Get Under Way

He-Men Invited to Try Hand at Intramurals

By LLOYD SPIEGEL

Spring is here at last! The Athletic Department has announced the beginning of an intramural handball tournament and this is a sure sign of spring, for in past years this tournament has been a large spring drawing card. This year, because of the cancellation of all intercollegiate athletics, the tournament should be bigger and better than ever.

For the benefit of all you big, strong he-men who know that football is the only game that rates for a real man and for you timid souls who never think of participating in that brute torture of physical endurance called athletics, handball at U. V. M., and also at most other civilized places, is a game in which you hit a small black ball against nog one, but four walls. After playing for several hours and with your arms and legs weighing about a ton like lead pipes you'll agree with the writer that handball is not the game for those who like to recline in an easy chair while gathering fat.

This year's handball tournament will bear many new stars to go down in history with the rest of the U. V. M. handball greats whose names at the student body can start to remember. However be that as it may, there are some darn good handball players on hand. Leading the list is the team of those inseparable basketball twins and last year's tennis pair Doherty and Milt Kaufman. Paired in Kaufman-Underland alignment last year Doherty's driving torpedoed the team was unbeatable last year and this year will be one to watch. As the tournament has raged, both were twice in a row to the same team, and as both boys are seniors they will be in there doing their best to come out on top. Also in there battling for the top position will be Dave Fisher, who took first place two years back. Master of the kill shot and outmaneuvering a fast game with either hand, Fisher provided with a decent partner will be hard to stop and means that it is a dark horse will wind up in the final bracket.

Jimmy Paul Zarzuk, whose dad was the New York State four wall champion and packed quite a wallop in his younger days, is said to be following in his father's footsteps. Many others will enter the tournament for the attendance at the squash courts, where the game is played, has been very encouraging. Let the round robin and be sworn to the Physical Education Office to sign up. Don't be a "rugged individualist!" "Poor Herbert" has been gone since 1932, and they say that "Franklin" is going to run for a fourth term, so join the masses and beat the Physical Education Office bright and early tomorrow, for 1,000 U. V. M. boys can't be wrong. In these days of shortages and rising prices this tournament is a must—for it is something for nothing. Take advantage of it or you'll be sorry it's over!

The United States has some 600 junior colleges.

Summer Session Offers Many Art Courses

Professor Douglass of the Education Department stated today that the calendar for the summer session will be from July 6 to August 14. He was pleased that as full a program as possible would be provided, taking into consideration war time conditions. It is expected that the following courses will be offered: Art, Botany, Economics, Education, Home Economics, English, Health, History, School Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Zoology, French and Spanish. Also many courses will be offered for students who are working for their Master of Arts or B.S. in Education degrees. The hour plan will be the same as those of the summer term students.

An opportunity will be provided for students who are accelerating their programs to take a course in principles and procedures in education in the summer term so they may be enrolled to do student teaching during the first semester of the next school year. So far as possible, certain of the courses will be arranged so that students in Elementary Education who wish can take advantage of the courses offered.

Bill for Thirty New Scholarships

State Senators to Award Home Eccers

At the recent session of the Vermont Legislature a bill was passed making available thirty scholarships of $120 each for worthy and needy students pursuing a course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Home Economics. One such scholarship will be awarded by each of the state senators and shall be for one year's duration. These are in addition to the ninety scholarships of the same amount which have been awarded by state senators during the past thirty of which have been available to students studying agriculture and sixty available to Arts and Sciences, Engineering and Home Economics students.

Mr. Lloyd Chaffee, representative from Enosburg Falls introduced the bill and sponsored it on its way through the Legislature. Mr. Chaffee a farmer in Enosburg Falls has sent three daughters to the University of Vermont. Ethelyn and Elizabeth, twin daughters, graduated in May 1942 from the College of Arts and Sciences with Ph.B. degrees and Charlotte is a freshman this year, studying Home Economics in the College of Agriculture.

Classical Department Unchanged by War

As to the future of the Classical Department in the University, Professor Prindle stated that there would be no drastic changes in its schedule and that so far as he knows the advanced courses will not be dropped and the schedule will continue as previously.

A few of the students have been interviewed and the conclusion may be drawn that the women students will return if the Classical Course is resumed as for the men—you know the answer.

No word has been given as to whether there will be any courses in languages for the Air Corps privates.

Metropolitan Star To Sing Here

Glee Clubs Present Eleanor Steber

Now that the final arrangement have been made, the University Glee Clubs announce the presentation of the lovely and glamorous young star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Eleanor Steber, in a concert at the Ira Allen Chapel Wednesday evening, April 14 at a quarter past eight. Miss Steber has had a tremendous hailing throughout this country and Canada. Everywhere she sings she stirs memories of the so-called "Golden Age of Song." She has appeared with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, the Ford Hour, Coca-Cola Hour, and the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

She received her entire music training at the New England Conservatory of Music, went on the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air and won them. Since that she has been with the Metropolitan, continuously augmenting this work with recital concert tours.

"The society's most beautiful soprano voice belongs to Eleanor Steber. She is a coloratura without the jewel-like hardness that so often relieves voices that are high and facile. It has all the warmth and luster of the true lyric soprano, plus the agility and most of the range of the lighter voice. The sound is the richest I have heard produced by human throat since the so-called Golden Age of Song." —Glenn Dillard Gunn, Washington Times Herald.

Miss Steber is being presented to the students at U. V. M. and to service men free of charge, as was Mr. Sam Caldwell. There will be a charge to members of the faculty and the public. The funds for the concert are those which were drawn from the Student Activities Tax for the Glee Clubs for their annual trip which was impossible due to the war.

Y. W. C. A. Chapel

The Chapel service Wednesday will be conducted by the Y.W.C.A. and will take the form of a candlelight service similar to the services conducted by the Y last Lent and which was so successful. The hour of the service has been set ahead a few minutes in order to make it possible for the Air Corps men to attend. This will be 7:05 p.m. with the service concluded by 7:30.

Army and Navy examinations (V and A 12), will be held in Room 27, Williams Science Hall on Friday, April 2, at 9 a.m. Persons arriving after 9 will not be admitted. Students interested must bring application blanks.

A Chance to Carry the Burden

During the last few years the most complicated plans have been passed by trembling instructors. The patterns of events have been built of current units awaiting but the key to the master. But there is no master! The way to democracy is democracy; the way to make the people understand more precisely is to make them to talk about it.

The problem of dimout on the east coast was most satisfactorily solved in those cases where the people of different houses got together and discussed the dimout. If our army had weekly meetings in which the complex problems of the future were discussed, we would have a miraculously democratic, world-conscious army. But we are still trying to do things individually, each of us his own little cell of personality, listening by himself to the views of four hundred town characters or national characters who do most of the talking for us.

For some odd situation we have been facing on our own campus for years. In class after class the lack of spirit has been denounced. Many a group or individual tried to kindle a flame that would bring about a greater interest on the part of the student body in the affairs of school and campus. Yet the success has never been great and not even Student Government could bring a majority of the students to the polls at election time.

The failure of all those attempts was due to the fact that again a small group of people asked for the passive support of the student body, that they only asked to be listened to without realizing that they had to make the students an active part of their endeavor to arouse the interest of the latter. A weekly bulletin by the secretary of Student Government that "the following will be done or has been decided," will be forgotten soon because the seal of finality does not allow any discussion.

This is no criticism; it is only an attempt to show a perhaps more successful way of accomplishing our ends together.

Today especially it is necessary to build up a strong alumni interest on this campus. Why not start with the classes that are attending the University now? There are many important changes that are in the process of being materialized which will give us a greater university in the time to come. Through private channels we heard about a serious contemplated change in our school system that will adapt our curriculum to the four twelve week terms which work so successfully at the University of Chicago. The students would like to hear about those plans officially; they would appreciate to learn all the pros and cons that are being advanced, and even add their own two cents' worth. Such an active participation will make them a part of the changes that are taking place, it will make them see the many difficulties, and instill them with a greater pride in the institution which they helped build. The administration and the faculty is trying its best but it could do still better if it allowed the students to carry the burden too. The students have been waiting for that chance for years; they will be responsible if they are given responsibility; they will show interest if they are made to feel that they are a vital part in the reconstruction; they will give their best if the best is asked from them.

In the world in general and on this campus in particular we must break down those individual invisible cell walls and have a flowing together of people. Thus is the clearest, the shortest way to a future that will bind this globe, this University engaged in the responsible undertaking of building for a better life.

Delta Psi News

Spring is here. It's in the air and it's in the blood of everyone giving a tingling and refreshing sensation that can't be beaten. And how does this all affect the female portion of U. V. M.? Just look in at the occupants of the Delta Psi House for a few minutes. As you saunter up the walk you notice the wide open windows and from the topmost story strains of "Miss You" float down. That's right! It's the voice of Doris Hall; the morning mail must have arrived. Once inside you are impressed with the quietness of the place and as you pass by the former library, who should you see but Janet Stimpson surrounded by books. But is she studying? No—She is gazing off into the distance with that dreamy look in her eyes—a sure sign of spring fever! Next you climb up the stairs. What's that? Someone is counting 1, 2, 3, and you thought this was a college dorm. Once upstairs everything is made clear for Lu Goldstein is only counting the days until she can make for the roof and spend hours basking in the sun. Then comes Lyn Gallagher's room showing Lyn and Dean Moore with pen in hand obviously writing to the two handsome young men in the pictures before them. You smile understandingly and mutter to yourself, In spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. 'Well what about young women?'" By now it's just about time to leave, so quietly you retrace your steps. As you start down the walk who should you meet but Casey McGauley and Eli Berig. Could it be that they went for a walk just for the exercise and nothing more? Will wonders ever cease? Slowly you shake your head and return home where you can once more collect your muddled thoughts.

Play Never Headlined

"Let me tell you about a play in the 1926 World Series." Rogers Hornsby [illegible] "You witness Lou Ambrose [illegible] and comments about the classic when Alexander turned Lazzeri to the second inning with three on and two out and one run leading 3-2. The smartest play of that entire series has never been headlined. Alex got it over. Remember the ninth inning. Two out. Bases up. The Babe was dangerous. He had hit the home run in an earlier game and one of Jess Haines on the final afternoon. Alex wasn't going to pitch a home run ball to the Babe. Not to Babe Ruth. Wise Alexander. He wasn't even the Babe you see the look. He tried to steal second and I tagged him on the final play of the series after Bob O'Farrell threw that speedy Ruth to me at second base. "Bottlenecks" Theme at Chapel

The Rev. Stanley Cummings of Bennington Congregational Church has been in Bennington for a number of years. Formerly he was pastor in St. Albans and is now chairman of an important committee on Ministerial Standing of the Vermont Congregational Conference. He is a graduate of Yale University and Union [illegible]

His theme Wednesday night at Chapel was "Bottlenecks." Reverend Cummings said that we are bottleneck operations in our industrial field today as we were 25 years ago. There are also bottlenecks in the spiritual realm of things he pointed out. Any individual may be a bottleneck hindering the bringing of peace, contact and stability to our lives.

Another bottleneck is under social relations towards an excellent, earnest objective in having a reasonable amount of security and peace and the realization of God's dream. Rev. Cummings stated that those who will take a constructive part in the effort will be in the minority. There are still, in two thoughts to protect: 1. We should keep wide open a bottleneck about concerns us no matter how dangerous it may seem. 2. Can it be that this is the way He has taken to force us into a state of helpfulness upon one another?

The speaker closed with the thought provoking statement "Bottlenecks, are they wise or otherwise." My guess is wise.

Army Air Cadets Hear Amateur Hour

Talented Members of Crew Stage Big Show

Approximately 250 Army Air Crew students at the University of Vermont witnessed an amateur program such as they had never seen before on the University campus last Saturday night. The program was held with the permission of Capt. Alton F. Ernst, C. O., and Lt. James L. Dixon, commandant of students.

The entertainment opened with the singing of the Air Corps song by all the soldiers. The strains of the song were still echoing when onto the stage with a flourish rushed Private Weststyn, master of ceremonies. He announced that the show for the evening was to be presented by various soldier-actors of the detachment. The stage lights were dimmed and out coasted the "Whizzers," Privates Mumm and Gunzalus. Their act based on figure and whirl roller skating was enjoyed by the audience as a unique feature. As the applause was dying down, Private Leutas, a former student at Tulsa University made his appearance on the stage. In a very interesting manner he told the audience about campus life at Tulsa.

The instrumentalists broke forth with several snappy melodies. The feature of this attraction was a drum solo by Private Foster, former member of Teddy Powell's orchestra. At the piano was Private Landeas, trumpet, Private Hodges, guitar, Private Bresset, clarinet, Private McCafferty, saxophone, Private Somides. Private Goundry, a handy man at the piano, played Sammy Kaye's theme song. Said one cadet, "You could sense the way the soldiers thought of their loved ones left at home."

At this time, Private Weststyn, master of ceremonies, rendered a [illegible] ing vocal solo. Newly Elected Y. W. C. A. Cabinet Members Ambitious

At the election March 19 the following were chosen as new members of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet.

President Esther Gustafson '44. "Gus" says she will try to do as good a job in the new office as Patty Pike did this year. She has been active in G. S. O. and Red Cross work and an interested member of Y. W. for three years. Among her campus activities are: Feature editor of the Cynic, Health Council Chairman on W. A. A., member of Pan-Hellenic Council, and dorm staff. Now that Robinson Hall and its living room are no longer used for the Pi Phi gates, Gus is having a good time getting her cozy furnished to their taste. She also is often seen [illegible] singing pictures of music [illegible]

G. S. O. Leader Alison Carr '44. This year's chairman of the G. S. O. cabinet says she is ready to go ahead next year as the leader and instead of having a retiring committee behind her she will have two assistants. Previous to G. S. O. work she had quite a reputation this year. Other activities of Alison are: Bluestockings, Staff and Sandal, Outing Club, and Cycle.

Assistant G. S. O. Leader Connie Pratt '45. Although Connie has done mostly camp work for the G. S. O. she is very interested in it. She is a member of Sophomore Aides also W. A. A. and Swimming Club.

Assistant G. S. O. Leader Betty Rome '45. Betty was surprised and modest's admitted she is very happy to be a member of the Cabinet. She is a member of W. A. A. the Christmas and Easter dramatics and Newman Club. Enrolled in the Liberal Arts course she hopes some day to teach music and now enjoys playing the piano in her spare time.

Freshman Camp Director, Kay Fraser '44. With many new ideas in mind, Kay is going to have charge of Freshman Camp, and although it will probably [illegible] from, as the many to previous years she hopes it will be as good, if not better, next year. She expects that because of the accelerated college program, it will be a harder job than ever to orient the freshmen to college life. Kay has been an assistant camp director, helped with Brotherhood Week programs, and has made a scrapbook of Y. W. C. A. activities.

Assistant Freshman Camp Director, Betty Farnsworth '45. Betty is well known for her singing with Mary Lib Metcalf and Trit Johnson. Her campus activities also include W. A. A., G. S. O. and glee club, and membership in various sorority clubs. She hopes camp next year will be as successful as the year she was a freshman, and that everyone will have just as good a time.

Treasurer Ruth Jordan '45. Surprised and gratified, Ruth hopes that everyone will help to keep Y. W. C. A. at its present prominent place on the campus, and is going to do her best to fill her responsible position in this worthwhile group. She has been busy this year as social chairman of Y. W. C. A., a business editor of the [illegible] as a counselor at Freshman Camp, and as a delegate to the Northfield Conference.

Secretary Barbara Powers '46. Barbara says in her short time at U. V. M. she has enjoyed lots of campus activities. Among them are W. A. A., Easter chorus, Dance Workshop, and Bluestockings. She is also interested in public speaking and dramatics, was a delegate to the Northfield Conference and took part in a Chapel service. Very pleased with her new office, she's going to try, in her friendly way, to be a good secretary.

Religious Life Head, Penelope Easton '44 is also an interested Y. W. C. A. worker. She has worked enthusiastically in this and other campus activities. She is a member of Staff and Sandal and several other campus organizations.

Powder House

Alumni Find Campus Changed

I have just completed a tour of the Vermont campus. I graduated in June of 1942 and obtained a position with the New York Telephone and Telegraph Company a few weeks later. I realized that the war must have affected my Alma Mater and I expected to see coeds clumping around with Esquires clutched under their arms as the last remaining replica of a campus male. To my amazement, I found 650 lusty cadets who "remember Pearl Harbor" on their way to and from mess three times a day. Following the last group of orderly soldiers, I proceeded to work my way towards the cafeteria in the hope of having a good jam session over a coke and cigarette with one of my old pals. I quickened my steps in eager expectancy of seeing again the small square tables littered with empty cigarette packs, ashes and ash trays, empty coke bottles, perhaps a few Cynics scattered around all enveloped in a haze of blue smoke. Turning the last corner I stopped short at the sight of orderly rows of tables and chairs which confronted me. With a lonesome sigh I retraced my steps. The sign "For University Students Only" aroused by inevitable curiosity. The Student Lounge met with my immediate approval. The luxurious couches, the writing desks, and the radio and vic combination for nickleless souls made me wish that I were back in school again. After reminiscing with several friends, I proceeded to wander through Waterman. The south wing, main floor, almost had me clicking my three inch heels and saluting every time an officer appeared. Walking down the main hall to the north wing I saw a lieutenant, a sergeant, a nurse and a secretary all busy with keeping the soldiers and students healthy. The Purchasing Department's office turned out to be occupied by Spanish classes and the classrooms on second floor, south wing were occupied by Northeast Airlines. On the other end, the rooms in the north wing were distributed between the English Department and the Romance Language Department, and one or two left empty by the recently departed Civil Aeronautics Authority.

With weary steps I climbed to the third floor. Two beautiful dining rooms and two nicely furnished lounges assured me that the coeds were well cared for. I walked down slowly, my thoughts miles away, traveling from Pearl Harbor to Wake Island to Guadalcanal, Rostov, Leningrad, Berlin, London, New York and then back to Burlington, seat of my university, guardian of Lake Champlain and scene of many of my happy moments and sad hours. I continued walking stopping only to salute with my eyes the service flag hanging in the entrance. Through the door and down the hill toward the railway station my legs automatically directed me. The wind was biting and I brushed my hand across the side of my face. One moment I stood still, then hastened faster, for I had felt BUMPS BEHIND MY EARS!

Northern Vermont Painting Exhibit

Museum Now Offering Interesting Feature

If you have a few minutes between classes or during that lull before lunch when you don't know exactly what to do, why not drop over to the Robert Hull Fleming Museum and mosey around for awhile. There are many intriguing features about the museum (beside the self-service elevator) of which most of us remain ignorant in our hurried routine of classes, labs and hour exams.

It would be well worth your while to visit the third floor some time in the near future, for the Northern Vermont artists are holding their thirteenth annual Exhibition. The exhibit includes over a hundred paintings and lithographs by Vermont artists, native and adopted. You will notice immediately the predominance of typical Vermont scenes—mountains, valleys, cows, and Vermont through all the seasons.

The most interesting fact about the Exhibition is that most of the artists are amateurs, from housewives to physicians. It is remarkable to note how many people here in Vermont paint purely for the pleasure and satisfaction of painting.

Among the more or less professional artsists whose works are included are Arthur K. D. Healy, who has exhibited at many group shows in metropolitan centers, and Ruth Mould who also has had shows in New York. Also there are some paintings by George Zaetz, a commercial artist whose interests turned toward the fine arts, and Grace Webb, Burlington doctor who has just completed a one-man show at Fort Ethan Allen. Our own Francis Colburn, resident artist at U. V. M., who has been an exhibitor in many national group shows and has had one-man shows in New York, Amherst, Williams, Middlebury, and Vermont, contributed an interesting study titled, "Vermonter."

All in all the combination of amateur and professional talent offered at the Fleming Museum would really compensate for the short walk over. Drop in and see how Vermont artists express Vermont.

NOTICE

According to a vote of the Trustees, students who enroll for a semester's work and are inducted during the course of the semester and who do not receive credit for work done will be granted a full refund of tuition paid. President Millis tells me that this will apply to the Summer Term so that any men who enroll for the Summer Term and are later called into the service of the armed forces will be granted tuition refund.

President Millis Gives Address At Medical College Commencement

31 Members Graduated at Ira Allen Chapel; Prizes Awarded 7 Students by Dr. Beecher

[illegible] responsibility of [illegible] medicine will be heavy in setting a bridge [illegible] peace and in preserving a world of peace," Dr. John S. Millis, president of the University of Vermont told the 31 graduating from the College of Medicine Wednesday afternoon at the Ira Allen Chapel. He also stated, "Science somehow has gotten far ahead of [illegible] fields of activity and thought and man's moral strength and conscience have not been able to keep pace."

In conclusion President Millis said, "My charge to you is that you must remember that you are not only doctors, but American men of science and you will be true to your training and responsibilities in the largest sense only as you contribute to the welfare of mankind and the world in general."

President Millis then conferred the degrees upon the 31 members of the graduating class. Prize awards were given by Dr. C. H. Beecher, dean of the Medical College. It was announced that all of the graduates will enter the armed forces upon completion of one year's internship. Following the exercises 26 of the men were sworn in by Lieut. D. W. Thayer of the Military Department.

Five members of the class were graduated cum laude. They were Richard B. Hadley, AB., of Bellows Falls; Harry O. Whipple, A.B., of Montpelier; Allan Yale Wolinsky, B.S., of West Rutland; James G. Woodruff, A.B., of Barre; and Seymour S. Cutler, B.S., of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Prizes were awarded to seven students, three of whom were members of the graduating class. The Carter prizes for the greatest proficiency in obstetrics were awarded to Edward J. Sennett, Ph.B., of Poultney, John E. Thayer, B.S., of Burlington and Harry O. Whipple, A.B., of Montpelier. These are all seniors.

The Woodbury awards in medicine went to Richard B. Hadley, who received the prize for the greatest proficiency in clinical work during the senior year and to Donald H. Harwood, B.S., of Dorset, who was given the award for the sophomore having the highest standing for two years.

Alan Davidson, A.B., of Burlington received the Nu Sigma Nu merit award for being the outstanding student in the junior class. A similar award went to Sanford Savin, B.S., of Bridgeport, Conn., as the outstanding student in the freshman class.

The chief marshal was Prof. L. S. Rowell, M.S., with Hovey Jordan, M.S., marshal of the faculty. Stillman G. Davis, Jr., B.S., of Sanbornville, N. H., was class marshal.

Rev. R. A. Hall offered prayers. Miriam S. Marston, M.A., was at the organ and Prof. Howard G. Bennett, M.A., directed the singing.

Blood Bank Plasma Will Operate Soon

Seniors to Be Called First; Others Later

To the many blood donors for the Blood Plasma Bank the questions have arisen when? and who? and what for? The bank under Doctor James may be ready to operate next week if the new equipment is in running order. The answer to the "who" question is for the present just seniors. And the "what for" answer is to supply each hospital in the state with two units per bed.

Donors are probably anxious to know some of the "gruesome" details. The ordeal will not be painful and it is taken for granted that those who are afraid of the sight of blood have not volunteered. However they will be given a thorough physical examination and if they are considered in poor health or weak they will not be used for obviously their plasma would be of poor value. They will be required to have fasted for four hours because the plasma is clearest then but will be given fruit juice just before and coffee immediately afterward. Their blood will be typed first, not because it is necessary for plasma but because it is of interest to most people to know their blood type, and they will be sent a card later letting them know this information. The actual process will take from five to ten minutes with a half hour rest afterward. It depends on the individual whether or not they feel weak but generally they do not.

The blood is put in donor bottles at the hospital and sent to the bank in the medical building. It is then processed in a centrifuge. The cells settle out and the plasma which rises to the top is drawn off. It is then put in bottles and frozen while being rotated so that it freezes in a shell with a hollow core to the middle. Next it is dried in a vacuum so that it goes directly from the frozen state to the dried state without melting. It is in this form that the plasma is then sent out to the hospitals.

Mortar Board girls have been assisting with this project and have made out cards for all the volunteers, changing the addresses of those who have moved and omitting the names of those who have left school. Alice Needham '43 said that just seniors would be called upon this year with the underclassmen selected in the summer or fall. The donors will go to one of the three local hospitals: Bishop DeGoesbriand, Mary Fletcher, or Fanny Allen.

Candlelight Service Given by Y.W.C.A.

An impressive candlelight service emphasizing the theme "The Light of the World" was presented by the senior members of the Y.W.C.A. cabinet on March 31 in the Ira Allen Chapel at 7:05 p.m.

The service was led by Elizabeth Deming '43 and Patricia Pike '43 treasurer and president respectively of the retiring cabinet. The service consisted of two hymns, an anthem by the choir, scriptures and prayer, and the candle-lighting ceremony. Miss Charlotte Perkins, secretary of the state Y.W.C.A. assisted in the planning.

The time of the service was changed to accommodate the fliers who through misunderstanding did not attend. Chapel Service next week will also be held at the same time, if they wish to attend.

Action to Be Taken On Mill Fire Hazard

Action for fire prevention in the Old Mill is being taken by Student Government. In view of the student complaints and the increased use of the building, they feel that the best step is to stop smoking in the halls.

There is a rule against smoking in the building but there is no policing and no penalty. The executive council believes that upon asking for no smoking and student feeling aroused against it is sufficient to stop the hazard.

The possibility of fire drills is being investigated as a result of a suggestion from an education class.

Staff and Sandal had a short business meeting yesterday afternoon in the Senior Lounge at the Waterman Building.

The Vermont Cynic

The Official Student Newspaper of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College

VOL. 41 APRIL 2, 1943 NO. 46

Will You Cut or Contribute?

So you, out English again this morning—not you, Private Jones. I know you can't cut. You students can and do. Strangely enough the number of cuts is greater than ever before. Your professors are devoting many extra hours to teaching, with the Army courses added to their duties. You, however, are failing to take advantage of the instruction offered.

Of course, you realize that we have about 21 days of classes left, which is roughly ten more meetings of each course. In other years we crammed for our three-hour final exams and begged for a reading period. This year we won't even have a chance to catch our breath and skim through the text. We have to be prepared to fill that blank book with legible, meaningful prose in the short space of 60 minutes. Missing lectures and class discussions obviously will not contribute to our fund of ready knowledge on that fatal day.

By the way, are you sleeping enough? I mean at night. Those catnaps in history class don't count. You realize by now the number of reports due immediately if not sooner in nearly every course. Do your reading now while you can take it at a reasonable if not a leisurely pace. You can keep going when you're dead tired, but you can't sit in the library when you're drowsy from weeks of inadequate sleep.

You hear students saying that conditions are too unsettled now for them to study seriously. They tell you there's no point in spending the last days of the semester—perhaps of college life—grinding at courses in which they have little interest. Well, if they can give instances of the improved use they make of that same time, it's a point well taken. If they have only a record of more hours spent at movies, playing bridge or killing time in various ways, they don't deserve to be in college. You people are just trying to escape reality, refusing to face the facts and to adjust to war-time conditions.

Stop and realize that college is probably the easiest time in the life of most of us. Right now we have real responsibility only to ourselves. We spend our time as we choose. The school authorities are here only to guide us in our study and to help us lead a sensible, healthy life while we are here. If we childishly fret at the restrictions without looking beyond to the purpose of them, it's a case of not being able to see the forest for the trees.

College isn't what it used to be. You hear that, too. Why should it be the same? We'd be the first to cry "Outmoded!" Yet we refuse to make the adjustments. We won't sleep enough, study enough, or think enough. In times as stimulating as these, in a university where we have the opportunity to learn about what is going on in the world and why conditions have reached their present state, all many of us do is to hark back to the good old days of chocolate bars and fraternity picnics.

Look alive, realize that shortly you'll be a tax-paying citizen of the United States, and prepare yourself to be an informed voter, a contributing player in the Game outside of College.

Dear Editor:

I for one am sick of being asked to cooperate, of being told that I should do this or that. Therefore, I am not going to fill in with any "Come on fellows, it's your college. Make it good." I want to say that Student Government has at last decided to do something about making the Old Mill less of a fire trap by stopping smoking and holding fire drills. Many students have already expressed their concern on the matter.

Am I right in believing that a word to clear-thinking college students (you may say, "the wise"; if you wish) is sufficient? I hope so.

Prof. Pooley, Best Dressed Man On The Campus, Has Plans

By DONALD HACKETT

We found Professor Pooley seated in his book cluttered office, sporting a red tie, a blue shirt, a gray-blue suit, a tan sweater, gray socks, and a pair of black and white sport shoes. He offered us a Lucky Strike which we righteously refused. He was born at the turn of the century in Meriden, Conn., to a manufacturing family. We noticed on his desk: two pencils, a piece of chalk, an ashtray (used), an infinite number of books, and a letter from W. W. Norton & Co., Inc., 75th Ave., New York City, with the notation "Pyrrhus" scribbled on it. In the waste basket was a yellow blank from Prentice-Hall, Inc., 70 Fifth Ave., requesting that he order the 882 page, illustrated, revised 1942 edition of "A History of Latin America." On the wall before his desk was an "American Book Company School Calendar."

Mr. Pooley attended the local schools and edited his high school paper. It was here that he acquired his nickname Gus by which he is still known to his intimates. His main ambition at that time was to be an English teacher but he switched to a classical language major after a few years at Yale. He was just eighteen when he entered that institution, and Yale was housing a S.A.T.C. unit of which Gus was modestly a part. However, the armistice occurred after two months and it ended his military activity.

After graduation in 1922, Gus taught Latin two years at the Suffield School in Suffield, Conn., after which he returned to the Yale Graduate School for an M.A. degree. He spent two years instructing at Williams and came here in the fall of 1928, to conduct Latin, Greek, and History courses, after having married a home-town girl, one week before (to be exact, Sept. 18). During his first year here, when Greek was required for an A.B. degree, there were two classes of twenty students each in elementary Greek. At present, his beginners' Greek class numbers three industrious members. This however, does not trouble him at all. He finds that he can [illegible] more with a limited [illegible] His courses in Ancient History average [illegible] thirty students each.

New Executive Committee Members Participate in Many Campus Events

When you voted for your choices for the Executive Committee, did you wonder what kind of persons they were, what they did, and liked to do? If so, perhaps this birds-eye view of them will make you feel better acquainted with them.

Who is this person over here painting so industriously? None other than Sylvia Wellwood, one of the junior representatives, who disclosed that she is very fond of painting. When asked about her activities, she replied that she was in University Players, secretary-treasurer of Health Council and in the Outing Club. To round out her activities, she is taking the C.P.T. course, and hopes some day to get an instructor's rating. As for her hobbies, horses, either real or toy, appeal to her.

On a bit further, is Peggy Fake, who is introduced to us as the new president of Sigma Gamma. Peggy is news editor on CYNIC and is active in the Classical Club. Next year she expects to be an instructor in Physics.

A member of Staff and Sandal, Penelope Easton is also one of the newly elected members of the Executive Committee. She is also active in Bluestockings, the Home Economics Club, W.A.A., and on the Religious Life Committee of Y.W.C.A.

Next we discover Peggy Palmer (so full of energy we could hardly run her down to interview her). She goes out for almost every sport and is social chairman of W.A.A. A news editor on CYNIC, Peggy also writes up the U. V. M. notes for the Free Press and is a member of Bluestockings. Musically inclined, she [illegible] the organ wheeze, if the opportunity comes her way. The Wings Were Most Important

ALISON CARR

Katherine noticed it she to poison ivy. This wasn't thought, however; poison walks and brooks and spring, waited all through the winthings to come. The fact wasn't any poison ivy out yet bit in her musings—Katherto be bothered by details.

ast sat there in the school rubbed the back of one foot on it the other and thought about trees outside, and wondered been so wise as to know how windows were in a chapel it was beautiful out of doors.

this itching persisted, all morn at her heels above the backs of and Katherine decided she'd better look at it when she went home lunch. She was feeling rather pesort of light on her feet, and found it very hard to listen through her two lectures.

It was such a wonderful morning. The sun was bright and the sky was deep blue not dark, but deep blue, and the clouds were great soft puffs of gleaming cotton. On her way home to the dormitory Katherine walked very fast, almost running because it all made her so happy.

When she came inside and went up to her room Katherine found her roommate reading a letter from her Johnny, and seeing at that discovery she felt her heels itching all the more. She decided that she'd better look at them now, and as her roommate went out of the door Katherine promised her that she would be down to lunch in just a minute.

She sat down on the pillow of her bed so that she could look out the window better and she pulled up her left foot, the one that itched the most (Katherine was left handed), and untied her shoe. She took it off, and then she rolled her sock down looking out the window as she did it at the maple tree, where buds were getting redder all the time. She felt her foot and felt something soft, and she saw it again. She stopped looking out and turned from the window, looking right at her heel and at two white wings.

They were just like the wings in an Easter pageant or in a mythology book, only smaller. They grew out at Katherine's heel, one folding left and the other right. They were triangular, and made of white feathers that over-lapped each other neatly.

Katherine felt very shaky. She pulled down her other sock, and naturally there was another set of little white wings. Then Katherine stood up and walked over to her bureau. She had to watch her feet to make sure that they were touching the floor, because it didn't feel as though they did at all.

Katherine came back and sat down on her pillow again, wondering what she should do. She'd better not tell anybody—she was sure of that. No one here, anyway. Could she tell George? She wasn't sure. George was a corporal in the United States Army, and Katherine was in love with him. She had met him at a tort dance and he had told her all about his home in Mississippi, where he worked in a bank and spent his Saturdays fishing on a wide, smooth creek.

George had blonde hair that was rather straight, and he was very shy when you first met him. He was exactly as tall as Katherine. He understood her strange, complete way of being happy for no explainable reason very well, although he never talked about it, but just nodded his head with his steady smile when Katherine sometimes tried to tell him how she felt. But in spite of all this, Katherine wasn't sure that George would understand about the wings.

She sighed. They were going to be a problem. She got up with that wonderful lightness under her feet and found a pair of very wooley socks to put on so that the bumps the wings made wouldn't be noticed, and then she hurried down to lunch, slipping in without even being heard as they were saying Grace.

In the weeks that followed, a great many things happened. Katherine's house mother found her hanging out of the third floor window trying to see a bluejay that was chirping on the greening lawn below, and the house mother accused Katherine of not even listening as she was lectured on her general conduct for 18 minutes.

All of which was very unfair, because Katherine was trying to listen—it was just that she had to concentrate on keeping her wings quiet at the same time. Because when things were very wonderful, as now, when bluejays were beginning to come back, the wings would begin to flutter, and to make the woolen socks go out and in as though something were breathing down there, and Katherine didn't want to have to explain them to anybody.

Since the wings had come Katherine had gotten into the habit of taking long walks early in the morning. It was really spring now, and there had been a great swooping wind these last few days that wasn't cold but was strong and calm, and when Katherine walked along in it her wings moved in time with it, and if there were any birds in the place where she was walking they would go right on with their business, just as though they didn't see Katherine at all.

With her wings she didn't feel as though she touched the ground, so it seemed as though she could sing up much higher than she had ever been able to before, and that was helpful, because sometimes Katherine had a feeling that couldn't be expressed in any other way than by singing up high.

And when she danced with George—then Katherine felt happier than ever before, and her wings were worth it, worth the worry and the wool socks and everything.

Because when Katherine had her wings and danced with George, she floated. She supposed that other people before themselves had almost floated as they had danced, but Katherine knew that it had been nothing like this. Hitherto, she and George had loved to dance together because it was together. Now they loved to dance because it was dancing.

George thought he was learning the New York kind of dance steps, and Katherine thought he was forgetting the Mississippi ones. But she knew that it wasn't the New York way that he was learning.

Katherine wanted very much to talk to George about it, and about other things too, but somehow the wings were the most important. She wasn't positive that George would understand. No other girls had wings on their heels, especially the kind of respectable girls that George must have know in Mississippi. And if George knew about them and didn't understand—well, Katherine didn't want to think about that at all.

The other things Katherine wanted to talk to George about had to do with the war, and what was going to happen to George, and what it was all really about, but still a funny little thought persisted in Katherine's mind that the wings were the most important thing.

The days went on, and Katherine grew more and more attached to her little white wings. She walked a lot, and she found a new little forest that she showed to George. He liked it, and they used to go to it often to watch a family of squirrels that lived there.

George told Katherine about squirrels

Spring Song

JANE COLLINS

The lilacs sing
a violet song,
the earth smells damp and brown;
and a golden setter
dragging a chain,
buries his nose
in Bostonian ground.

An organ-grinder
musics a tune, that whirls
over Beacon St. cobbles and bright bits of paper
whisper by,
twirling a dance with the wind.

A kite is flown that flies to a cloud and laughs at a boy with a fist full of string.

The spoon oars of a scull dip in the Charles, and a boat
with a slant to its sail slides by.

Oh, Spring is in Boston and I would I were there.

Lilacs

BARBARA POWERS

When Time had made the day,
With morning, noon, and all,
She hung up one bright star,
Not knowing it would fall.

A shining path it took,
Through clouds and midnight blue
Under the milky way
Straight to the tree it flew.

The lithesome tree, green leaved,
Was set with jewels of dew.
The star made every drop
A flower of amethyst hue.
Soon the sweet star died,
He died—but lilacs grew!

Going Out of Business Sale . . .

Country Style

FAITH K. PRIOR

The table was piled high with
Cotton sweaters, high shoes, and night-shirts.
Among them was a sheepskin coat,
Firm and brown outside,
Woolly and soft within.
It had a beaver collar, too, and
The man's gnarled hands smoothed it
Again and again.
He was so thin—the faded overalls
Hung on him like
Washing on a line. And old—
His skin was brown and wrinkled,
As though the winds of years had Left little ripples in it. He Looked cold, the sweater he wore
Was too thin, and unmended.
The tag on the coat read twelve-ninety-five.
This was crossed out, and in big
Red letters was two-forty-seven. The man
Looked up from the soft brown
Of the collar. "Body could put it away
With moth balls or tobacco till Next winter," he said. As he Turned away he whispered,
"Wish't I had the money . . ."

A Human Form of Capital Punishment

LUCILLE GOODSTEIN

Some time ago I was present at an intellectual discussion on the topic of "Crime and Punishment." Quite a sensation was caused when a young man arose to denounce every form of capital punishment practiced today. He believed that capital punishment should be permitted in the following manner only. A condemned criminal should be placed under an anesthetic and taken into an operating room. There his body should be dissected and studied for the advancement of medicine.

A noticeable shiver went through the audience as this young fellow stated his theory. I heard more than one person remark "how barbaric." Nevertheless, suddenly I found myself interested in this so-called barbaric point of view. I have thought very much upon the matter and by now I am a staunch supporter of this new form of punishment.

To dissect and painlessly kill a condemned man we call barbarism. To return the sight of some unfortunate blind child by removing the cornea of a man forced to die I suppose is also uncivilized. To take a man about to be electrocuted and use his body for the advancement of mankind is another inhuman idea. But to take a condemned criminal and kill him by gas, electrocution, hanging or the guillotine is not barbaric or uncivilized according to the view of modern society.

I am afraid I can not agree with the beliefs of modern society. As long as we believe and practice the doctrine of "a life for a life" let us do it in a truly humane manner. Instead of sending charges of electricity through a body let us send the body to a research laboratory for the use of able scientists. Make these outcasts of society pay their debt in a civilized way, and in a manner that will benefit the society they have harmed. Perhaps, then the ancient biblical maxim will have more than one meaning. Not only will justice be avenged, but by the taking of a criminal's life, life may be given to an innocent member of our great community—"a life for a life."

Interlude

JANE COLLINS

He turned on the light, and ran his hand across the top of the piano until he found a flat chip of wood. Stooping slowly he placed it under the short leg of the stool. Then he sat down.

His fingers roamed over the stained keys, and suddenly there were soldiers marching through the room. The precision of their every step was heard, and the throatiness of their gallant song. A bugle sounded, and the "thump, thump" of a thousand feet was silenced. Winter came, and somewhere a great birch bent to the ground, and there was the tinkle of ice falling upon the white crust of snow. A bird picked up the song of the shattered ice, and winter blossomed into spring. The voices of children were heard, as they twirled and danced, and laughter reigned supreme, and youth stood by with eager eyes, a million worlds to vanquish.

"I might have known I'd find you here," she said. His hands relaxed upon the keys in chaotic discord.

"Mamie's husband is working overtime, but not you! They're going to have a new car, and we never have anything. All you do is play that damn piano until sometimes I think I'll go mad. Oh, they warned me about marrying you but I . . ."

He groped along the floor for his cap and a rusted lunch pail, then turned from her and started down the five flights of steps into the night.

April

The morning woke with two fat blankets
And sent the West Wind scurrying for coats
While she lighted the sun
To put against her feet.

Toulon

FAITH K. PRIOR

Death crept on looking common that grey dawn in France
And at its head rode Silence on a black and charging steed
Her eyes on the city gates swung wide to fear
And Death crept down the streets and through the floating mist.
Jean raised a shadowy sword. The rising sun
Caught on its blade and burst in radiance
Reflected in the flames which scorched the very waves
And rocked the water's edge and laved it red with blood
As one by one the grey ships reared and plunged or passed
Asunder with a mortal wound their bloody bowels
Aflame and spreading on a sea now red with dawn
The gray and phantom ghosts framed heart to heart breathed death
As dying fingers clung to steel, and dead men killed their own.

Who wonders what the Frenchmen saw that made them weep
In sorrow, joy, in pride and death as on their bridges
Stood the proudest of the sea. It was the sun
Dispelling the gray mists of gloom, and bathing in Celestial radiance the shore of France the white
And golden horse the girl in armor and the sword
All fire lit in the sun and crumpled Shame spread over
With the purple shroud so newly torn from face and heart of France.

VESTA SILVESS

I was an only child. I got what I wanted
When I cried for the moon
People began to build ladders
I did things violently, loved or hated
I had a passionate appearance.
The contrast of dark hair and violet eyes
With a pale complexion
With all my heart of passion
I loved a lad who was as ardent
Until another girl took him from me
They married, and all that fire turned back upon me
And consumed me with hate
I built an exquisite little house
How people envied me!
I amused myself by having everything other people wanted.
I appeared perfectly happy and I always remained young looking
I was benevolent and loved by young and old
So that the whole town mourned
When at length I quietly passed on
Yet all the while I had been consumed
With that raging fire of hate.

Dawn

JOSEF LACY

The forest lies hushed in its recessed vaults
Awaiting that miracle of ages past
The dawn.
The candles of heaven long since snuffed out
Have filled the air with stardust.
It settles slowly on each glistening leaf,
Silvering the pearly drops of dew
Slowly throughout the hallowed silence
Steals a whisper
As stirs the soul at the voice of God
The whisper grows and becomes a symphony
As the cadenza of the thrush mingles with the grave notes of the waterfall.
And the gentle doe lifts her dew-wet muzzle to greet
His Supreme Majesty the Sun.

Burlington Chamber Music Society Entertained at H. G. Bennett Home

[illegible] was a Mozart [illegible] and piano, played by Mr Anselmo and Mrs. Bennett respectively. It consisted of the movements a graceful and dainty Allegro and a lively Andante. This last was [illegible] with a lovely soft reading. Carolyn Phelps turned the pages for Mrs. Bennett.

Then we were transported to a castle in Hungary, where we were entertained with some gay dance music in the form of a Haydn [illegible] originally for two harpsichords, clarinet and string quintet. Harpsichords, clarinet and string quintet played the first three instruments, and Mr. Anselmo was the violin soloist. Esther Hermann and Edwin Chandler were the other clarinets. John Goss and Mrs. Robert Adams, the cellists, and Mr. [illegible] played the viola.

This consisted of three movements an Allegro Moderato in which the piano and violin seemed to be playing a game with one another, a Largetto, full of fun and pizzicato, and a Presto. This was probably its first performance in this country.

After a brief intermission we heard a Beethoven Trio for piano, violin and cello, also consisting of three movements a graceful allegro con brio, an Adagio, warm and peaceful, and an Allegretto, consisting of theme and variations.

Mrs. Bennett said that this last movement reminded her of country farmers dancing in their heavy boots and that try as she could she could find nothing about it except that it was a fine [illegible] unpublished 18th century opera. Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Anselmo and Mrs. Adams played this. The piece was truly delightful and everyone (performers and audience alike) seemed to have great fun with it.

The last number on the program was extremely interesting. It was a Trio for flute, viola and harp by Jacques Ibert, a young French composer, and was very modern in treatment. It was marked by dissonances, contrasts and weird intervals. It was in three parts: a [illegible] contemplative [illegible] a fast movement which was more lyric in quality and reminded us of water and moonlight and a Divertissement which was very strange, colorful, and exciting. This was played by Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Anselmo, and Mrs. McNamara on the flute. This last piece was in definite contrast to the other three and it was the Divertissement which was replayed for an encore.

The varied program was very interesting and seemed to take a new life because the performers seemed to truly enjoy what they were playing.

Jane Collins '44 Inducted in WAACS

Beneath the service flag in the Main entrance of the Waterman Building, some 75 curious people watched as Jane Claire Collins '44 took her oath on Monday as a WAAC enrollee. Lt. Josephine Springer, local WAAC recruiting officer, administered the oath and read a message from Colonel Hobby about the conduct and behavior of enrollees. Lieutenant Springer was especially happy that day because Auxiliary Collins is the first Vermont girl to be enrolled here under the new setup. The WAAC now has its own office in Burlington, serving northern Vermont as far east as St. Johnsbury, and from now on the whole enrollment process will take place in Burlington, whereas in the past a trip to Rutland has been necessary.

Auxiliary Collins, a native of New Haven, Conn., is a junior at U. V. M. and a member of Bluestockings (literary) Society, John Dewey Philosophy Club, and Dean's List cum laude. She transferred here from Albertus Magnus College where she was active on the staff of the Albertinum Literary Magazine and as a member of the "Campus Players" dramatic society.

Newman Club Will Hold Last Meeting Of Year Tuesday

Father Joyce Expects All Catholic Students To Vote for Officers

The Newman Club will hold its last meeting of the semester and school year, Tuesday evening, April 6, at 8 in the Student Lounge of the Waterman Building. Our guest speaker for the evening is to be Mrs. Zita Taylor, Secretary of Vermont Catholic Charities, who will speak on "Catholic Social Welfare Work." Mrs. Taylor, through her wide knowledge and experience in the field, promises to relate many interesting experiences about the various people and circumstances with which she has become associated. Mrs. Taylor travels throughout the state and is justly recognized as a valuable asset to the social interests of this state.

Father Joyce, the chaplain of the Newman Club, will be present as usual, and this will be our last opportunity to meet with him in a body.

Elections of officers for the new school term will be held and every Catholic student is expected to vote in order to have a fair election. Please be there and cast your vote.

Sunday, April 4, is Communion Sunday and the Newman Club will receive in a body at the 9 o'clock Mass at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception. This is the Lenten season, and it would be very edifying to see a good turnout of the Catholic students, who have made an effort to attend the 9 o'clock Mass and to receive Communion in a body. A section will be reserved in the middle aisle.

Remember, the last meeting of the year at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, April 6, in the Student Lounge.

. . . Most Important

in Mississippi, very unusual ones, and he told her how he often went coon hunting with his father, but that he would never squirrel hunt.

At times like these Katherine was sure that George would understand, and she would look at him, about to tell him, and the wings would flutter; and then Katherine would think of how sturdily George walked along, and how the square toes of his shoes were always so well polished, and she would be afraid to tell him, because he looked so sensible.

But then, just like cycles in Zoology, Katherine would like the way George looked, and would get very happy, with her wings fluttering again, and she would say: "George,—" and it would start all over again.

At the last U. S. O. dance of the spring, after which Katherine would go home from school for the summer, George asked her why she danced so well——it was wonderful, he said. She looked at him, smiling his steady smile, with his hair standing off the part on his light head and she wasn't surprised at all when he said:

"Katherine, let's go for a walk."

"Why, yes, George," she answered. "Can you get my coat for me?"

So they went for a walk, down the pale road from the U. S. O. building, and they finally stopped under a big tree at the corner of a vacant lot, and George kissed her.

"I'm going away, Katherine," he said. And then he told her about the orders his company had been given, about going to a coast base where ships came to take Americans to England.

Katherine stood there, quite silent, with a cold feeling at what George had just told her. She stood there in front of George in the shadow of the big tree, and then the wings began to flutter, and she didn't try to stop them at all. She smiled at George, a happy smile in the darkness, because she wasn't worried about him any more.

Katherine leaned over and kissed George, and then she started walking back to the U. S. O. building briskly, with a slight swishing sound at her feet.

And she tried not to laugh at George, who was coming after her with a puzzled look on his face, stopping occasionally to rub the back of his left heel on the front of his right one.

Book Store Gets More New Books

Four new editions have recently been added to the varied display of books for rent and for sale in the book store.

John T. Whitaker author of "We Cannot Escape History," has been an American foreign correspondent to all parts of the world for the past dozen years. He covers an enormous range and variety of material but does it so skilfully that when one finishes the book, he has a first hand report of one man's descent with the abyss of war and the war itself. This book is only for sale, it is not included in the lending library.

"The Arm and the Darkness," a colorful novel of France in the days of Richelieu by Taylor Caldwell, is developed with emphasis on ideas rather than people. The tension is well sustained. As Mrs. Caldwell has her characters express themselves intelligently and in tune with the ideologies of their day. This book is not for sale but is in the lending library.

"Search for a Key" by Walter Duranty is a novel by a foreign correspondent about a foreign correspondent. This story is an autobiography of Oliver Joby, a well-bred Englishman who traveled to every nook and cranny of Europe searching in vain for the key of the present day situation.

"Between the Thunder and the Sun" by Vincent Sheean, pictures a bright world on the eve of collapse. He gives us a first-hand observation of the whole world before it was engulfed in the second great World War. The story of the great crisis of our time is developed with a personal rather than a historical aspect. "Between the Thunder and the Sun" and "Search for a Key" are both for sale and in the lending library in the book store.

The Security Fund Drive Is a Story Of Cooperation, Spirit and Success

To the class of '46, the phrase "Security Fund Drive" recalls little more than a mimeographed letter once received, scanned, and thrown away. To upperclassmen, it brings back memories of screaming snake dances, torch parades, bean supper campaigning, and the thrill of really knowing "school spirit." To the University as a whole, it means existence itself achieved through a great all-out effort.

[illegible] success story that is about to be told. Before President Millis took over the University there was discovered a school deficit of several hundred thousand dollars. An alumni committee and a legislative committee appointed by Governor Wills lengthily investigated and studied, and in the fall of '41 a special emergency session of the State legislature was called. It passed a law appropriating $250,000 [illegible] on the condition that an additional $250,000 should be raised by the alumni during the next year—'42-'43. If the University would appeal to its alumni and friends for special gifts. If the University could raise $5[illegible] by June 30, '[illegible] the legislature would match it with another $[illegible] and a special also raised and [illegible] deficit [illegible] a year a $250,000 [illegible] 1943.

Burlington Chamber Music Society Entertained at H. G. Bennett Home

This time, we did not have to brave foul weather to attend the second concert given by the Burlington Chamber Music Society last Sunday evening at Prof. H. G. Bennett's home. Mrs. Bennett announced the numbers to be played and added her own interesting comments about them which greatly increased our enjoyment and understanding of the program.

First, was a Mozart Sonata for violin and piano, played by Mr. Anselmo and Mrs. Bennett respectively. It consisted of two movements, a graceful and dainty Allegro and a lovely Andante. This last was clearly defined, with a lovely soft ending. Carolyn Phelps turned the pages for Mrs. Bennett.

Then we were transported to a castle in Hungary, where we were entertained with some "after dinner music" in the form of a Haydn Concerto, originally for two harpsichords, clarinet, and string quartet. Harpsichords, clarinet and string quartet played the first three instruments, and Mr. Anselmo was the violin soloist. Nellie Herrmann and Edwin Colesky were the other violinists. John Goss and Mrs. Robert Adams, the cellists, and Mr. Coltburn played the viola.

This consisted of three movements: an Allegro Moderato, in which the piano and violin seemed to be playing a game with one another, a Largo, full of fun and pizzicato, and a Presto. This was probably its first performance in this country.

After a brief intermission, we heard a Beethoven Trio for piano, violin, and cello also consisting of three movements: a graceful allegro con brio, an Adagio, warm and peaceful, and an Allegretto, consisting of theme and variations.

Mrs. Bennett said that this last movement reminded her of country farmers dancing in their heavy boots and that try as she could, she could find nothing about it except that it was a tune from an unpublished 18th century opera. Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Anselmo, and Mrs. Adams played this. The piece was truly delightful and everyone (performers and audience alike) seemed to have great fun with it.

The last number on the program was extremely interesting. It was a Trio for flute, violin and harp or piano by Eugene Goossens, and was very modern in treatment. It was marked by dissonances, contrasts, and weird intervals. It was in three parts. a ....., contemplative ——————, a Serenade which was more lyric in quality and reminded us of water and moonlight, and a Divertissement which was very strange, colorful, and exciting. This was played by Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Anselmo, and Mrs. McNamara on the flute. This last piece was in definite contrast to the other three, and it was the Divertissement which was replayed for an encore.

The varied program was very interesting and seemed to take a new life because the performers seemed to truly enjoy what they were playing.

Jane Collins '44 Inducted in WAACS

Beneath the service flag in the Main entrance of the Waterman Building, some 75 curious people watched as Jane Claire Collins '44 took her oath on Monday as a WAAC enrollee. Lt. Josephine Springer, local WAAC recruiting officer, administered the oath and read a message from Colonel Hobby about the conduct and behavior of enrollees. Lieutenant Springer was especially happy that day because Auxiliary Collins is the first Vermont girl to be enrolled here under the new setup. The WAAC now has its own office in Burlington, serving northern Vermont as far east as St. Johnsbury, and from now on the whole enrollment process will take place in Burlington, whereas in the past a trip to Rutland has been necessary.

Auxiliary Collins, a native of New Haven, Conn., is a junior at U. V. M. and a member of Bluestockings (literary) Society, John Dewey Philosophy Club, and Dean's List cum laude. She transferred here from Albertus Magnus College where she was active on the staff of the Albertinum Literary Magazine and as a member of the "Campus Players" dramatic society.

Newman Club Will Hold Last Meeting Of Year Tuesday

Father Joyce Expects All Catholic Students To Vote for Officers

The Newman Club will hold its last meeting of the semester and school year, Tuesday evening, April 6, at 8 in the Student Lounge of the Waterman Building. Our guest speaker for the evening is to be Mrs. Zita Taylor, Secretary of Vermont Catholic Charities, who will speak on "Catholic Social Welfare Work." Mrs. Taylor, through her wide knowledge and experience in the field, promises to relate many interesting experiences about the various people and circumstances with which she has become associated. Mrs. Taylor travels throughout the state and is justly recognized as a valuable asset to the social interests of this state.

Father Joyce, the chaplain of the Newman Club, will be present as usual, and this will be our last opportunity to meet with him in a body.

Elections of officers for the new school term will be held and every Catholic student is expected to vote in order to have a fair election. Please be there and cast your vote.

Sunday, April 4, is Communion Sunday and the Newman Club will receive in a body at the 9 o'clock Mass at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception. This is the Lenten season, and it would be very edifying to see a good turnout of the Catholic students, who have made an effort to attend the 9 o'clock Mass and to receive Communion in a body. A section will be reserved in the middle aisle.

Remember, the last meeting of the year at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, April 6, in the Student Lounge.

in Mississippi, very unusual ones, and he told her how he often went coon hunting with his father, but that he would never squirrel hunt.

At times like these Katherine was sure that George would understand, and she would look at him, about to tell him, and the wings would flutter; and then Katherine would think of how sturdily George walked along, and how the square toes of his shoes were always so well polished, and she would be afraid to tell him, because he looked so sensible.

But then, just like cycles in Zoology, Katherine would like the way George looked, and would get very happy, with her wings fluttering again, and she would say: "George,—" and it would start all over again.

At the last U. S. O. dance of the spring, after which Katherine would go home from school for the summer, George asked her why she danced so well——it was wonderful, he said. She looked at him, smiling his steady smile, with his hair standing off the part on his light head and she wasn't surprised at all when he said:

"Katherine, let's go for a walk."

"Why, yes, George," she answered. "Can you get my coat for me?"

So they went for a walk, down the pale road from the U. S. O. building, and they finally stopped under a big tree at the corner of a vacant lot, and George kissed her.

"I'm going away, Katherine," he said. And then he told her about the orders his company had been given, about going to a coast base where ships came to take Americans to England.

Katherine stood there, quite silent, with a cold feeling at what George had just told her. She stood there in front of George in the shadow of the big tree, and then the wings began to flutter, and she didn't try to stop them at all. She smiled at George, a happy smile in the darkness, because she wasn't worried about him any more.

Katherine leaned over and kissed George, and then she started walking back to the U. S. O. building briskly, with a slight swishing sound at her feet.

And she tried not to laugh at George, who was coming after her with a puzzled look on his face, stopping occasionally to rub the back of his left heel on the front of his right one.

Book Store Gets More New Books

Four new editions have recently been added to the varied display of books for rent and for sale in the book store.

John T. Whitaker author of "We Cannot Escape History," has been an American foreign correspondent to all parts of the world for the past dozen years. He covers an enormous range and variety of material but does it so skilfully that when one finishes the book, he has a first hand report of one man's descent with the abyss of war and the war itself. This book is only for sale, it is not included in the lending library.

"The Arm and the Darkness," a colorful novel of France in the days of Richelieu by Taylor Caldwell, is developed with emphasis on ideas rather than people. The tension is well sustained. As Mrs. Caldwell has her characters express themselves intelligently and in tune with the ideologies of their day. This book is not for sale but is in the lending library.

"Search for a Key" by Walter Duranty is a novel by a foreign correspondent. This story is an autobiography of Oliver Joby, a well-bred Englishman who traveled to every nook and cranny of Europe searching in vain for the key of the present day situation.

"Between the Thunder and the Sun" by Vincent Sheean, pictures a bright world on the eve of collapse. He gives us a first-hand observation of the whole world before it was engulfed in the second great World War. The story of the great crisis of our time is developed with a personal rather than a historical aspect. "Between the Thunder and the Sun" and "Search for a Key" are both for sale and in the lending library in the book store.

Mrs. Conzelman Speaks on World After the War

The Reconciliation of Idealism With Human Nature Was Stressed

Speaking as the wife of [illegible] who has been stationed for [illegible] the Orient and the Philippines, Mrs. Marion S. Conzelman addressed the International Relations Club Wednesday [illegible] periences and opinions concerned with the questions of world peace, Philippine independence, and Oriental problems.

"We must keep our idealism for world peace in touch with human nature as it is, not as we wish it," she said. "We must not hope for an overnight change. We must understand that the difference between Orientals and white people is not merely one of different living standards but rather one having a racial basis."

Mrs. Conzelman does not think that the Filipinos are ready for independence. "They are a very lovable people but extremely juvenile," she said. "Furthermore there is the greater problem of incompatible and opposing religious factors. Moreover the president of the commonwealth, Emanuel Quezon, even advocated the abolition of freedom of speech in the Philippine University, after a student debater spoke about the graft in the government. The thinking Filipinos resent Chinese middlemen, and the fact that the Catholic Church owns the land and holds the people in an almost feudalistic subjugation. They are no more capable of self-government than a fifth grade class here."

The Japanese people are an enigma to Mrs. Conzelman. They seem to have a dual nature. They are lovers of beauty but they can be inhumanly brutal when called on an "errand for the emperor."

A discussion on whether education would be of any help to bring about world conscience followed the address.

The "Security Fund Drive" was organized to raise the amount needed to secure the legislature's appropriation. President Kidder now heads the campaign. Many students are not aware of the fact that the Champlain Sabers was formerly part of an organization of national scope known as Scabbard and Blade. However in 1925 the members of the society on this campus broke away to become a local organization which took over as the Champlain Sabers.

Tomorrow Founder's Day will not be celebrated. It was the signal Cocks instead at the Ar Cup that was common on the Ver campus in that year, and it was the First World War rather than the second that made circumstances impossible for a regular observance of Founder's Day.

Therefore it is Honors Day alone that we celebrate today. But we shall use this day to remember the thought expressed in these words: "Founder's Day is a time set apart to hold Exercises to honor of the men who have established our university. The greatest honor we can bestow upon them is to catch their spirit.

Seniors Abolish Age-Old Tradition

Wear Caps and Gowns Before Graduation Day

Before a considerably diminished and predominantly feminine student body the traditional Honors Day ceremonies took place at twelve noon today in the Ira Allen Chapel. The outstanding Vermont men and women awarded their just recognition and reward for scholastic and military achievements at this past year.

In the absence of President Mathes who is at present making the annual tour of the S. A. T. Honors Day this year marked the first time in recent years in the regular academic calendar, special events at caps and gowns. According to Vermont precedent this privilege has always been reserved for Founder's Day traditionally observed on May 1 but since the observance of Founder's Day must be omitted this year the seniors have been permitted to break precedent and appear early in their academic robes and mortarboard hats.

Another feature of Honors Day 1943 was the presentation of the Mortar Board and Phi Beta Kappa scholarship cups for the year. The U. V. M. students were introduced by Nathan Smith, the retiring president, and R. J. Wright, '44, newly elected president.

Nature in a destructive mood can put miles of telephone line out of service.

To bridge such gaps, while repairs are being made, Bell System men have devised special portable radio equipment.

An emergency radio unit is rushed to each end of the break and connected to the undamaged part of the line. In a few minutes, a temporary radio bridge has been set up and telephone traffic is re-established.

Being prepared for emergencies is part of the daily job of Bell System people—part of the tremendous task of maintaining the lines of communication on the home front.

Gold Key Society, sophomore men's honorary group, has selected twelve men to carry on next year in the active steps of this year's members. Gold Key's main function is to hold "smokers" in the fall for the men of the new freshman class to better acquaint them with the ways of the campus and associate them with sophomore leaders. Gold Key also assists other campus organizations in ushering at games, and other events, and takes part in two college dances each year, one the Gold Key dance, the other, the Soph Hop for which they combine their talents with those of the Sophomore Aides. Prof. Benjamin Franklin Ladd is the society's get getting faculty advisor, well loved and respected by his charges.

Following are the six new members who were selected for their campus activity, leadership and scholarship. A few sidelights on each are enclosed.

Boulder Retires Eight Old Members In Class of 1943

Their Worthy Careers And Records of Service Brought Vermont Fame

Boulder society was organized to [illegible] as a connecting link between the student body and the administration. It is an organization recognizing [illegible] leadership in all student activities. Election to this society is a recognition of a shining career of service to the University.

A review of the achievements of the Boulder is a review of the achievements of our campus—student government, [illegible], athletics, baseball, basketball, football—the contribution of these men is great.

Boulder Society this past year was made up of the same high grade students as in the past. Let us review the highlights of each career.

Joe Corbett will be remembered as the first president of U. V. M. Student Government as far as the front pages of the papers are concerned. Sport pages will prefer to remember him as the star of the baseball team.

The late Bert Mott was an athlete of extraordinary ability. He was one of the finest runners to be found in New England, as well as being an important contender for hexathlon honors. He was also business manager for the Ariel, and an advanced military student.

Harris Thurber was active in interfraternity affairs. He participated in interfraternity athletics and also was a member of the Interfraternity Council. All this was while he was doing his bit on the managerial side of athletics and the Waterman soda fountain.

Milt Kaufman, the shifty little guard on Vermont basketball teams will long be remembered for the rings he [illegible] tively and literally ran around opposing players. He couldn't be stopped—even in track and cross-country.

Frank Swift never got to where he played football. He carried the same fighting courage to the basketball team when he managed it. He is an advanced military student, too.

Bob Doherty was the mainstay of basketball teams during his school years. His long bouncing across the court will long be remembered. Bob is also training for his part in the army, a advanced military.

Bill Benoit was co-captain of the football team and coordinator of Lake Walk. He was also active in interfraternity circles being a member of the Interfraternity Council.

George Little, private United States Army, did much for university public relations. He was editor-in-chief of the Cynic and sports editor of the Ariel. He was also active in interfraternity affairs being a member of the Interfraternity Council and business manager of the interfraternity handbook.

Joe Corbett, Bert Mott, Harris Thurber, Milt Kaufman, Frank Swift, Bob Doherty, Bill Benoit, George Little—[illegible] the list of men who in the past years have been outstanding in their service to [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Seven Retiring Mortar Board Girls Leave Worthy Records Behind

[illegible] Mortar Board [illegible] members are [illegible] according to their record of service [illegible] to the standards of scholarship, service and leadership.

Seven senior women are retiring from active Mortar Board membership this year.

M. students, Lilac Day, 1941 (Costumes), Student Union Convention (Committee on Entertainment). "Andy" always has a smile for everyone. Roy Alberghini '43 Baseball Leader

However, Spring Sports Have Been Ruled Out

About three months ago the [illegible] war effort and lack of [illegible] at U. V. M. Athletic Council ruled out [illegible] sports including baseball. Thus, the annual southern trip is cancelled as are all scheduled games. However it is hoped that the remaining members of last year's team will be able to play some informal games with local high school [illegible] with St. Michael's also. Bad weather and the Air Corps arrival has curtailed any extensive practice and such games will be purely informal and off the record.

At the conclusion of last year's calendar Roy Alberghini was elected captain of the varsity and he is actually the present captain even though there is no season this year. Alberghini, a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity, came from Orleans a small town in Vermont. It was there that he learned to love baseball and he played with his high school. After coming to U. V. M., Roy made the varsity in his second year. Pitcher Alberghini is a well-liked man and a dependable cooperative teammate. He is enrolled in the secondary education curriculum and is now in his senior year at U. V. M.

Larry Gardner to Miss Vt. Baseball

[illegible] baseball weather first approaching [illegible] again enters the limelight [illegible] together with Larry Gardner who is as much a part of that game as [illegible] except three parts. The popular member of U. V. M. [illegible] staff is now in Cincinnati, Ohio on the [illegible] next and as he [illegible] there he has accomplished a [illegible] job in training [illegible] top-notch teams ever at Vermont.

Baseball fans know several facts [illegible] on the great third baseman of all time but few know that the many years [illegible] first ambition was to be a pitcher. And that he was during his playing career at the Lansdowne Park High School here in Vermont. In fact he pitched the team to the state championship back in 1905.

Soon he became interested in the University of Vermont and after being accepted he made the varsity baseball team as his freshman year. "Doc" Hayes, who was coach at the time, used Gardner at third and short and he showed remarkable aptitude at the former position, using that he soon made the team at that "hot corner."

He played in the Major Leagues with Ray Collins and was watched at the time by some major league scouts. By the time he had reached his senior year here at U. V. M. Larry had a contract with the Boston Red Sox. However he went to Lynn for experience and was given the chance to pay for his board back by playing baseball. He received $100 for the season of college. He was soon in the limelight of baseball and from 1907 to 1910 he played third base for the Boston Red Sox. He was considered to be one of the best baseball players in the league at the time. These were the days when the Red Sox had such baseball greats as Tris Speaker, Duffy Lewis and Larry Gardner participated in those world series contests in 1911, 1912 and 1913.

teams in the East and the team has won the state championship for the last three years. Recently Fuzzy received a Naval appointment. However he turned this down for he believed that he would be of more use supervising the physical education program of the Vermont group of Army Aviation Cadets which is the largest in New England. During the spring and summer Fuzzy coaches the Vermont fresh baseball team, and is the business manager of the Burlington Cards.

Fuzzy has turned out many stellar athletes, the great majority of whom are in the armed services, and when this war is over, and things have returned to normal he will produce many more. Athletic competition not only builds men's bodies, but molds their character as well, and Vermont is proud of Fuzzy Evans for the work he has done, is doing, and will do.

respectively. In 1920, he moved to Cleveland where he played with the Indians in the series of that year. Following his ten years with Boston and his days at Cleveland, Larry's career as an active ball player drew to a close although he considers those last years in the early 20's to have been his best days.

Naturally Larry was glad to return to his Alma Mater in 1929, and he proceeded to settle down and turn out some of the best clubs in Vermont's history. He doesn't mention the fact that in addition to his baseball career Larry made a point of playing the guitar regularly in the old days.

Versatile Larry Gardner in his quiet and friendly way has impressed all those who have been fortunate enough to play under him as being a great player, a fine coach and one swell guy.

The Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox, Columbia University's 65 year-old rowing preacher, is retiring from his post as chaplain after 33 years.

There will be a tea given for the present and next year's members of the women's societies this afternoon from 4.15 to 5.15 in the women's lounge, third floor, Waterman building.

Bruna Castagna to Sing in City Hall Friday, April 16

Community Concert Association Brings Versatile Musician

Bruna Castagna, Metropolitan Opera's leading contralto and foremost Carmen of today, will sing at Burlington's City Hall Friday, April 16, under the auspices of the Community Concert Association.

Mrs. Clarence Cowles, president of the association here, pointed out that Mme. Castagna does not allow her operatic triumphs to blind her to other phases of art. She is a brilliant figure in concert, recital and radio as well as in opera. An accomplished pianist, her greatest hobby lies in collecting original paintings. Visitors to her New York apartment call it a miniature art museum; she has over 50 masterpieces which she has gathered while on tour in South America, Australia, Europe, Egypt and the United States.

Although she has few superstitions, Mme. Castagna in doing Carmen always carries one particular pair of castanets. These were given to her by Paoletta, renowned mistress of ballet at the Lillo Opera House in Barcelona. Paoletta took an interest in the singer, taught her the art of manipulating the castanets, and made her a present of an heirloom, a fine carved wooden pair.

Admission is by membership ticket only.

Mortar Board Starts Mary J. Simpson Fund

Replacing the customs of the traditional Founder's Day was the Honors Day ceremony which took place in the Ira Allen Chapel at noon on April 10. This ceremony marked the first appearance of the class of '43 in academic cap and gown. New members of the honor societies on campus were announced and special honors awarded.

The ceremony was opened with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" after which a prayer was offered by Rev. Hall. Lieutenant Colonel Simpson then conducted the ceremonies of the Chamberlain Sabers. Following this the new members of Mortar Board were installed by Miss Simpson and Natalie Spear and the new members of Boulder by Dean Mott. The names of the new members of the other honor societies were then read by Dean Swift.

The climax of the program of the day came with the announcement of the Mary [illegible] Simpson Scholarship Fund established by Mortar Board for the aid of women returning to U. V. M. from the armed forces, and announcement of the Abraham Mott cup in honor of the late Dean Mott.

[illegible] was awarded the coveted Ira Allen Trophy, which is given to the outstanding member of the junior class. She was also elected in absentia to Phi Beta Kappa Society.

At the ceremony it was announced that [illegible] '45 will be editor-in-chief of the '45 Ariel while Jeanne Hotchkiss will be business manager.

The program was closed by the singing of "Amen" followed by a benediction in City Hall. Conspicuously absent at the ceremonies were many of the U. V. M. men now in the armed forces, several of whom were elected to the honor societies.

Mortar Board Library On Waterman's 3rd Floor

Mortar Board has moved its library, formerly in the South Lounge at Southwick, to the girls' lounge on the third floor of Waterman. We urge the students to make use of these books, about 150 in number. The subjects are varied and include such valuable and instructive books as "Treasury of Art Masterpieces" by Craven, "Currier and Ives," "Modern American and British Poetry," "Let Me Show You Vermont" by Crane, "Northern Nurse" by Merrick, as well as "New England Indian Summer," "Rabble in Arms," novels on historical facts, and for the ski and nature enthusiast. When you have a few minutes, why not enjoy some of these books? Any one who is interested at any time call Marge Rubin, at the Delta Psi House.

Pres. Millis Takes Middle West Trip

Entertained by Alumni In Cities Visited

Pres. John S. Millis of the University of Vermont left on April 7 for a week's trip, first to the middle west and to return by way of Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, and Hartford, Conn. While away he will be entertained by university alumni groups in the various cities visited.

President Millis will reach Pittsburgh in time for an evening banquet on Monday, April 12. Plans for this meeting are in charge of Lawrence H. Averill, U. V. M. '27.

From Pittsburgh the president will go to Washington, D. C., and then back to Philadelphia. The Washington chairman is Miss Caro Goodrich Wyman, with Maj. George E. Lamb '02, and Dr. Samuel W. Hamilton '98, also assisting in the plans. The Philadelphia arrangements are under the direction of Lawrence J. Doolin '23. These are both dinner meetings.

Three alumni groups, the Connecticut Alumni, the Hartford Alumni, and the Hartford Alumnae, are uniting to welcome the University's president in Hartford on April 15.

President Millis will return to Burlington April 16.

Opera Presented By Musical Clubs

On Sunday afternoon, April 4, the University Musical Clubs very successfully presented Gluck's "reform" opera, Orpheo ed Euridice at the Ira Allen Chapel under the combined direction of Prof. Howard Bennett and Mr. Ippocrates Pappoutsakis. With the handicap of various cases of the grippe impeding the performance, it is a credit to the whole group, in particular the soloists, Robert Goss '44, Theresa Coderre '43, Shirley Lampman '45, Marjorie Southworth '43, and Barbara Nash '46 that such a fine performance was given. The orchestra handled the difficult ballet music with well-defined musicianship. The chorus was very well balanced, even with the constant drain which the armed services have placed upon it. One of the high lights of the performance was the trio by Mr. Goss, and Misses Coderre and Lampman.

The presentation of an opera in concert form presents a large number of problems, none of which were evident due to the smooth coordination of the orchestra and the chorus which was accompanied by Miss Miriam Natilee Marston at the organ. Professor Bennett at the piano accompanied the solos.

Waterman Building Dining Room Will Feed Summer Term

Coffee Corner to Help; Demonstration Groups To Be in Taft School

The summer session at the University of Vermont will be held as usual during the coming summer, according to Prof. Bennett C. Douglass, director of the session. The dates will be July 6 to August 14, and so far as possible, subject to the demands of wartime conditions, a full program will be maintained. Courses will be offered for those working for the Master's Degree, for teachers desiring to earn certification credit and wishing to strengthen their preparation for the work of the coming school year, and for undergraduates who are unable to attend a full summer term of sixteen weeks and who need additional courses to meet requirements.

The summer session will be of service in meeting wartime needs. New courses will be offered for teachers who wish to refresh their knowledge to enable them to give instruction in high school physics, chemistry and mathematics. These courses will be of assistance in teaching pre-induction courses to help qualify high school students for military service.

Demonstration schools on the elementary and junior-senior high school levels will be conducted in the Elihu B. Taft Memorial School and at the Burlington High School.

The University dormitories and fraternity houses will be available for the housing of summer session students with the exception of those used by the Army Aviation Unit. Board will be available in the dining room on the third floor of the Waterman Building at the Coffee Corner Restaurant in the Old College Building. The recreation and entertainment programs will be modified to meet wartime conditions.

There will be opportunities, says Professor Douglass, for college students, school administrators and teachers to study a variety of courses to qualify themselves for special service and to meet the requirements for degrees.

Frats Will Hold Dances in Spite Of Present Events

In normal times, spring(?) brings new and exciting activity to the college campus in the form of fraternity spring formals. This year brings many complications, first and foremost being a frat house available to give such a dance. The boys are now living in cramped quarters and if dances are given at all, they will be strictly informal affairs with a victrola in place of the usual orchestra. However the old spirit is still there and spring dances will be on hand this week-end. Most of the frats on the hill have not made definite plans, but are in the process.

Does anyone know what's happened to the Phi Delts and the SAEs? Your reporter can't find them to find out about their plans for a dance—if any? If the boys in those fraternities should announce their plans for the coming week-end, the CYNIC is ready and willing to publish them.

At the Sigma Nu house, the boys of Kappa Sigma and Sigma Nu decided on very short notice to sponsor a tea dance at the house on Saturday. Further details will be in Friday's CYNIC.

The ATOs, Delta Psis and Phi Sigs have not made their plans public as yet, but you can rest assured those boys are not idle.

Metropolitan Opera Star At Chapel Wednesday

Eleanor Steber, New England Conservatory Graduate to Sing

ELEANOR STEBER

Eleanor Steber, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, who will be presented in Ira Allen Chapel on Wednesday, April fourteenth at 8:15 p.m., is among the most outstanding of the younger generation of American artists. A winner of the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air, she made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera as Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier." Her subsequent numerous appearances there have included this and other roles, among them Micaela in "Carmen." Concert tours have taken her to many states and Canadian provinces. She was among last winter's soloists with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, chosen by Bruno Walter to sing in the performance of the Mozart Requiem which he conducted on the 150th anniversary of the composer's death. Radio audiences know Eleanor Steber as soloist on such programs as the Ford Hour, Coca Cola Hour and the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Metropolitan Opera broadcasts. Outside the United States, she has appeared in Canada, including engagements as soloist with the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra; and in Havana, where she sang the role of Marguerite in "Faust."

Born in Wheeling, W. Va., Miss Steber's first teacher was her mother, an accomplished musician and a leading church soloist, who taught her voice and piano until she graduated from high school. At the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston she studied with William Whitney. Afterward she came to New York to coach with Paul Althouse, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera. She entered the Metropolitan Opera Auditions, and in the spring of 1940 was awarded first honors.

Miss Steber comes to the University as the guest of the University Music Clubs who are using their allotment from the Student Activity Fee to bring outstanding artists to the campus. All students of U. V. M. will be admitted free upon presentation of their student activity ticket books. Service men will also be admitted free. All others will be charged at the rate of fifty cents and one dollar plus tax. These tickets are on sale at the University store and at Bailey's Music Rooms on Church Street.

In a recent conference with Miss Simpson, Dean of Women, she stated that due to the war conditions the chapel is being used as concert hall; so it is entirely fitting to applaud at such concerts.

Conferences with the Dean may be arranged through the office.

Bruna Castagna, leading contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the artist for the next concert under the Community Concert Series. The concert will be given in City Hall Auditorium on April 16.

Elmwood Hall Picnics In Spite of Weather

Bright and early on the morning of April 11 the girls of Elmwood Hall set out on a picnic par excellence held at the Quarry by their amiable housemother, Mrs. Underwood. Their kits were filled with food a-plenty (conforming strictly to the present point system).

After marching and singing for a time in a military mode under the command of Commodore Hart '43, the girls found a delightful spot for a fire with a vue magnifique of our Lake Champlain. The fire was made by Peggy Price '46 and Betty Anderson '45 with Tiff Prince '46 and Jackie Mallon '43 directing operations.

When the flame was blazing, all 18 carnivorous coquettes proceeded to feed their faces on hot dogs, milk, cake, ginger ale, candy, popcorn, ice cream and other dainties. Porgy Batchelder '45 refrained from the repast because Aggie Mulholland '44 forgot the mustard.

The feed was followed by a softball game between the Wham Wonders and the Beautiful Bunters, the former aggregation winning by the prodigious score of 15-5. (Pass the liniment, Nancy!)

An Open Letter to Mortar Board

The Challenge: To Raise Three Thousand Dollars

[illegible] to yourself as well as to your society.

[illegible] has made this [illegible] that there is a place for Honor Societies on the hill campus exists [illegible] when they are willing to fulfill [illegible] of leadership foresight and action on the college community.

There are many intangible bonds that connect our departing men with the University but the sentiments of past experiences which made those bonds so truly glorious strong enough to induce students to return to a life that from the distance has nothing else to offer but memories from a time when they had not yet learned to love life.

Your scholarship has represented a stronger link between the students and the University than any other expression of our appreciation could have done. You have given our men a symbol to return to even if they never intend to finish a penny of the scholarship you can offer them. The past has now been linked to the future and the present plays only a necessary but temporary role.

We like the name that you associate with this scholarship. For years Dean Sampson has been a beacon of the expression of a world conscience on this campus. Her faith in humanity, her sincere belief in the ultimate redemption of mankind must be an inspiration and guide to the many students that look for values in the war in which we are engaged.

You have laid the foundation, you have shown the way. We hope that Mortar Board of '44 will continue the project. We would like to see you all members of Mortar Board go ahead and contact all the many organizations on this campus to contribute to the fund before the semester is over. A "Dean Sampson Day" among faculty and student body should help to swell the fund tremendously.

We realize that the time is short but you must put teeth into your project. The ideal has to be translated into reality. We feel sure that the student body of this campus will cooperate with you in your endeavor and we ask you to raise $3,000 before the end of the semester. Mortar Board has already contributed $300, the various organizations on the campus should be able to raise an equal amount. Every student can give a minimum of fifteen cents and that will add $1,200, the faculty and administration will surely chip in $500.

Three thousand dollars. It is a challenge and we are sure that you will raise it. There are the many old and new members of the various honoraries who will feel it their duty to do more than their share; and it never has been said that the people of this campus closed their eyes to a worthy cause.

Let us recapitulate. You have proven your place on this campus. Your initiative will give impetus to many other groups on campus and will make them look for ways to fulfill their duties beyond the letter of the law. Your example will show that even in times of war we can build towards the world to come. You will have done more than enough to yourself as soon as the three thousand dollars will have become a reality.

The student body can only congratulate Mortar Board of 1943.

Umpire Calls Tie Ball

Ever hear of a tie ball? It happened in a close game in one of the South's smaller leagues a few years ago. Feeling was running high and there was to the community, a lot at stake. Count was three and two on the home batter with the tying and winning runs on bases. . . . In came the pitch and the umpire, hesitating, finally yelled, "Tie ball!" . . . He insisted it was not wide enough for a ball, too high for a strike. . . He made the pitcher deliver another pitch. Fortunately for him, the batter grounded out.—Jack Troy in the Atlanta Constitution.

COLLEGIUM MEETS

At the meeting of Collegium last Sunday night, Penelope Easton gave a very interesting talk on an adequate faith for these times. During the discussion which followed the talk many other problems were brought up and discussed.

Coach Fogg Now Trains Air Cadets

... V. M.'s capable J.V. football and basketball coach and past coach of the ... track teams Sherman "Sherry" Fogg ... another valuable member of the University's athletic department. Affable Sherry, who as stated previously, has coached a number of Vermont athletes on the gridiron, court, and cinder-path, now that the war has erased the last semblances of college sports, has turned his talents to the task of administering bone-crushing, back-breaking, and foot-blistering exercises to the Air Cadets. And, in the composite opinion of the latter, he has succeeded remarkably well.

Before joining hands with the other members of the department to instruct the cadets, Sherry floored a successful J.V. basketball team, that, although hampered by frequent departures of armed-forces-bound players, came through the season with six wins and three defeats. His '42 footballers showed plenty of power at times but were defeated in each of their three battles, losing to Bellows Free Academy of St. Albans, Green Mountain Junior College, and the Middlebury second-stringers.

Previous to assuming his present duties at Vermont, Sherry taught and coached at Bellows Falls and Newport. He attended the University of Vermont for a time, and then switched to Wisconsin U., at Madison, from whence he was graduated. In recent years he has officiated at many high school and college basketball games in this vicinity.

Also Garner First Place in the New England College Rifle League

Under Lieut. Thayer's Tutelage, Miller, Weaver, And Crossley, Become Best Shots in Area

The U. V. M. rifle team has done it again! Not only once more won first place in the William Randolph Hearst tournament. Another engraved trophy will be hung alongside numerous others on the wall of the battalion room in the Military Department. Under the excellent guidance of Lieut. Donald W. Thayer, this year's team was able to surpass all recent records of former varsities. In addition to taking the Hearst trophy the sharpshooters garnered second place in the first Service Command Senior Unit ROTC tourney, a first place tie with Coast Guard Academy in the postal season of the New England College Rifle League matches and another first in the regular season tournament of the NRCRL matches. In addition, the team shot in the national ROTC meet but final scores for this event will not be made until May.

As for the regular season, Vermont piled up an enviable record of nineteen wins as opposed to one loss. The one defeat was a portent to the advent of final year exams here. Thus the U. V. M. team completed its 1942-43 season by outshooting all of its opponents here in the East. The season's scores and ... are as follows:

An Open Letter to Mortar Board

The Challenge: To Raise Three Thousand Dollars

[illegible] to yourself as well as to your society.

The work project that you have started so successfully has made this campus realize again that there is a place for Honor Societies on the hill where men are willing to build their lives on leadership foresight, and service to the college community.

There are many intangible bonds that connect our departing men with the University, but the sentiments of past experiences which made those bonds so very golden strong enough to induce students to return to a life that from the distance has nothing else to offer but memories from a time when they had not yet learned to face life.

Your scholarship has hammered a stronger link between the students and the University they left behind than any other expression of our appreciation could have done. You have given our men a symbol to return to, even if they never intend to touch a penny of the scholarship you can offer them. The past has now been linked to the future and the present plays only a necessary but temporary role.

We like the name that you associate with this scholarship. For years Dean Simpson has been a beacon of the expression of a world conscience on this campus. Her faith in humanity, her sincere belief in the ultimate redemination of mankind must be an inspiration and guide to the many students that look for values in the war in which we are engaged.

You have laid the foundation, you have shown the way. We hope that Mortar Board of '44 will continue the project. We would like to see you old members of Mortar Board go ahead and contact all the many organizations on this campus to contribute to the fund before the semester is over. A "Dean Simpson Day" among faculty and student body should help to swell the fund tremendously.

We realize that the time is short but you must put teeth into your project. The ideal has to be translated into reality. We feel sure that the student body of this campus will cooperate with you in your endeavor and we ask you to raise $3,000 before the end of the semester. Mortar Board has already contributed $[illegible] the various organizations on the campus should be able to raise an equal amount. Every student can give a minimum of fifteen cents and that will add $1,500, the faculty and administration will surely chip in $500.

Three thousand dollars. This is our challenge and we are sure that you will raise it. There are the many old and new members of the various honoraries who will feel it their duty to do more than their share; and it never has been said that the people of this campus closed their eyes to a worthy cause.

Let us recapitulate: You have proven your place on this campus. Your initiative will give impetus to many other groups on campus and will make them look for ways to fulfill their duties beyond the letter of the law. Your example will show that even in times of war we can build towards the world to come. You will have done more than justice to yourself as soon as the three thousand dollars will have become a reality.

The student body can only congratulate Mortar Board of 1943

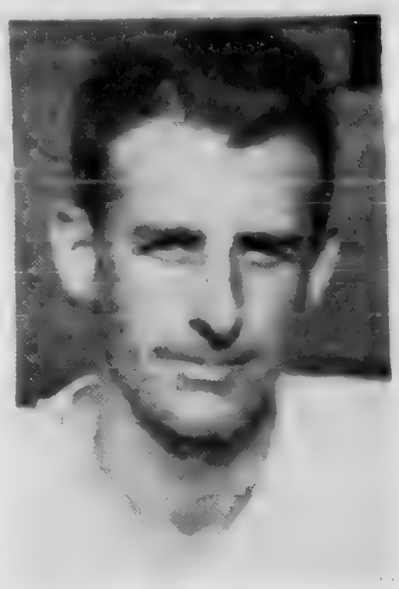
Umpire Calls Tie Ball



Ever hear of a tie-ball? It happened in a close game in one of the Southern smaller leagues a few years ago. Feeling was running high and there was, to the community, a lot at stake. Count was three and two on the home batter with the tying and winning runs on bases. . . . In came the pitch and the umpire, hesitating, finally yelled, "Tie ball!" . . . He insisted it was not wide enough for a ball, too high for a strike. . . He made the pitcher deliver another pitch. Fortunately for him, the batter grounded out.—Jack Troy in the Atlanta Constitution.

Coach Fogg Now Trains Air Cadets

U. V. M.'s capable J.V. football and basketball coach and star coach of the frosh trackmen Sherman "Sherry" Fogg, is another valuable member of the University's athletic department. Affable Sherry, who as stated previously, has guided a number of Vermont athletes on the gridiron, court, and cinder-path, now that the war has erased the last semblances of college sports has turned his talents to the task of administering bone-crushing, back-breaking and footblistering exercises to the Air Cadets. And, in the composite opinion of the latter, he has succeeded remarkably well.

Before joining hands with the other members of the department to instruct the cadets, Sherry floored a successful J.V. basketball team, that, although hampered by frequent departures of armed-forces-bound players, came through the season with six wins and three defeats. His '42 footballers showed plenty of power at times but were defeated in each of their three battles, losing to Bellows Free Academy of St. Albans, Green Mountain Junior College, and the Middlebury second-stringers.

Previous to assuming his present duties at Vermont Sherry taught and coached at Bellows Falls and Newport. He attended the University of Vermont for a time, and then switched to Wisconsin U. at Madison, from whence he was graduated. In recent years he has officiated at many high school and college basketball games in this vicinity.

Also Garner First Place in the New England College Rifle League

Under Lieut. Thayer's Tutelage, Miller, Weaver, And Crossley, Become Best Shots in Area

The U. V. M. rifle team has done it again! Yes this time more than first place in the William Randolph Hearst tournament. Another engraved trophy will be hung alongside numerous others on the wall of the battalion room in the Military Department. Under the excellent guidance of Lieut. Donald W. Thayer this year's team was able to surpass all recent records of former varsities. In addition to taking the Hearst trophy, the sharpshooters garnered second place in the first service Command Senior Unit ROTC tourney, a first place tie with Coast Guard Academy in the postal semi-finals of the New England College Rifle League matches and another first in the regular season tournament of the NECRL matches. In addition the team shot in the national ROTC meet, but final scores for this event will not be released until May.

As for the regular season, Vermont piled up an enviable record of nineteen wins as opposed to one loss. The one defeat was a forfeit to the advent of mid-year exams here. Thus the U. V. M. team completed its 1942-43 season by outshooting all of its opponents here in the East. The season's games and scores are as follows:

Vermont score	Opponent	Score
1402	Woonsocket	1242
1404	Coast Guard Acad	1374
1404	Northeastern U.	1228
1356	Norwich	1[illegible]
forfeit	Worcester Tech	1244
1363	Ripon College	1316

1410	New Hampshire	1[illegible]
1908	Texas A. & M.	forfeit
1888	Niagara University	forfeit

The outstanding member of this year's team was Fred W. Miller Jr. Miller [illegible] of the finest shots seen at Vermont in many a year. He took first place in the New England College Rifle League and another first in the postal season of the same league. His excellent shooting has earned Fred the distinction of being the first shot in New England this year and so the time seems to recommend a prize of $15 in war stamps. Miller will deservedly be presented with the [illegible] at the rifle banquet.

Two other members of the team are Capt. L. A. "Jack" Weaver and Harry E. Crossley. These two were ranked respectively as second and third best shots in New England. Weaver was also second best during the entire sequence of matches. In addition to being a member of the team winning the New England title Weaver is the lucky recipient of $15 in war stamps. Harry Crossley was also a member of the winning team and was third best throughout the season. He was rewarded with a war stamp prize amounting to $5.

Dwight C. Burritt, a freshman on the varsity, earned $4 for being one of the [illegible] who participated in [illegible] member of the winning team. George Hobbie and Charles Preston were also members of the record-breaking postal play, [illegible] [illegible] $3 in stamps.

Letters or rifle charm awards will be presented to those mentioned above as a [illegible] for their fine work. Lieut. [illegible] has in readiness [illegible] these are Robert E. Woods, Robert P. Gore and two members, Paul C. Zumbrunk and Wardner Bottum.

Of course the man behind the scenes is the picture of a championship team is Lieutenant Thayer. Without his expert help and untiring assistance to the team such records could not have been made. His coaching is deserving of high praise. The lieutenant has been named as a member of the rifle committee for next year's Sugar Bowl matches.

A [illegible] is designed to the record for this year's shooting title. The 1942-43 rifle team is recognized as a championship one, handling all opponents with an excellent record of 98 [illegible] And so congratulations, columns and Lieutenant Thayer! Many luck to all of you next year!

"Ronald Slayton Is Modern," Says Colburn, Artist

Students Invited to Attend Criticism in Art Center Thursday

Students at the University have been invited to a discussion of the paintings of Ronald Slayton which are now on exhibition in the Art Center. The meeting, scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:45 will be opened to any student or faculty member and will be an informal open discussion.

The paintings, being about a week ago are mostly oils or tempuras, and constitute the first of a series of exhibitions planned by the members of the Art Department for the University community. The next scheduled exhibition is that of privately executed by high school students in the state and will open in one week.

In discussing the current show of Slayton's paintings Mr Colburn of the Art Department points out that these works are among the most controversial ever to be hung at the University.

"Ronald Slayton is a modern," said Mr Colburn "and I doubt if anyone can see the work he has produced without being deeply moved. Those who have seen the paintings are either highly voluble in their praise or vitriolic in their condemnation." Slayton is not the kind of artist one can take casually."

Since opinions have been so varied and so strong Mr Colburn said that he felt the whole matter should be taken up in an open discussion where opinions can be exchanged. "I hope," he said, "that we'll have a good old fashioned bull session, even if we don't settle Ronald Slayton's ultimate fate." Mr Colburn urged that as many students as possible come to the meeting, even if they feel antagonistic toward modern art.

The exhibition is open on week days from 9 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and is well worth a visit. Slayton has treated Vermont landscapes, country farms, problems of capital and labor in original, and to many observers alarming ways. He is an artists' artist, who has had shows in Boston and been represented in national exhibitions but whose work is still little known outside artistic circles. Because of the nature of the painting the discussion to be held next Thursday evening should be of particular interest.

Fifty-six Profs Teach Air Cadets

Since March 1 the University has provided instruction in Medical Aid, Civil Air Regulations, Mathematics, History, English, Physics, Geography. Members of the faculty—some fifty-six professors and different instructors are giving the needed instruction and are being aided by a number of student instructors.

Classes were rescheduled as of April 5. Mr Heath K. Riggs has done a splendid job in completing schedules for the many different combinations of courses, having succeeded ably to scheduling classes, mess, study hours, physical exercise and military drill.

Some 180 men are expected to be on the campus some time this week after which we will have our full complement of 1,000 students. The army's present plans are to call 30 students to join Wac and every four weeks thereafter. They will be replaced by another unit of 300 men.

The educational deficiencies of these men have been determined by arms aptitude tests. The men are now taking those subjects in which they are deficient. Four courses is considered a full schedule. Since each course meets five times a week, it appears to be full time work. A few men who were proficient in most or all subjects are studying navigational and under Professor Butterfield.

Miss Marston Inspires Listeners' Imagination

The organ recital given by Miss Miriam Nathire Marston Sunday afternoon in the chapel was well attended and received by the townspeople as well as the students and faculty of the University. Miss Marston played selections from Bach, Handel, Reger and others. "Summer Sketches," a series of musical descriptions of "Dawn," "The Bee," "Twilight," and "Evening" aroused the imagination of the listeners and created a very favorable response. "Allegro" from Handel's Fourth Symphony furnished a very fitting finale for the program.

Candlelight Scene of Installations Tuesday

Preceding the W.A.A. Council initiation last Tuesday night, a short joint meeting of the old and new officers took place and plans were made for a meeting of the new officers some time next week. A candlelight installation service was then held. Phyllis Savage, the retiring president, lit the candle of the new president, Sylvia Ronnals, who, in turn, called up the new members and lit their candles.

The other new members of the W. A. A. Council for the coming year are: Barbara Burnham, vice president; Priscilla Perkins, senior representative; Marjory Anthony, junior representative; Mary Greene, sophomore representative; "Pat" Paterson, publicity chairman; Rachel Giddings, corresponding secretary; Alice Rowe, recording secretary; Peggy Palmer, social chairman; Mary Quinn, chairman of the council at large; and Elizabeth Nares, scrap book chairman. The initiation ceremony was closed by singing "Champlain."

Following the installation two championship games were played. Pat Crowley and Janet Hackwell, representing Pi Beta Phi, defeated Emmy Craven and Nancy Flemming in the badminton finals. Nancy substituted for Barbara Kennon, who, because of illness, was unable to play. The result of the basketball game between the Alpha Chis and Pi Phis was a tie score at 14-14, so the play-off took place last night.

The ceremony and championship games were followed by light refreshments—ice cream, brownies were enjoyed by all.

Following the Campus Sing on next Friday evening, the U. V. M. Student Government will show a film on "Life on the Vermont Campus," in the Student Lounge.

There will be a very important meeting of the members of the business staff of the CYNIC on Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 p.m. in the CYNIC office. This includes scrubs and staff members.

Am. Opinion Poll To Be Held Here

Students, professors and Aircrew men at U. V. M. will have a chance to join in a nation wide survey of opinion on vital questions affecting the postwar world when this poll comes out with Friday's Cynic. The National Intercollegiate Christian Conference (National Student Y.W.C.A. and National Student Y.M.C.A.), the National Peace Conference and other groups are participating and the Gallup Poll is cooperating in an advisory capacity. This is a nation-wide poll, with identical questions used by business people, housewives, statesmen, students, members of the armed forces, and others.

The questions which will be presented include those dealing with present and postwar relief abroad, new world organization, America after the war, and an opinion poll of the armed forces, among others. It is a secret ballot and signatures are not required; but each person participating in the poll is asked to state his age, sex and occupation. The tabulated report and summary, which will be published in a later issue of the CYNIC, will be turned over to the National Opinion Poll for inclusion in a national tabulation which is to be released to the press of the nation and to officials of the United States government. Prof. Raymond A. Hall of the Religious Life Committee is in charge of the American Opinion Poll on this campus.

"Ronald Slayton Is Modern," Says Colburn, Artist

Students Invited to Attend Criticism in Art Center Thursday

Students of the University have been invited to a discussion of the paintings of Ronald Slayton, which are now on exhibition in the Art Center. The meeting, scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:45 will be opened to any student or faculty member and will be an informal open discussion.

The paintings, hung about a week ago, are mostly oils or tempera, and constitute the first of a series of exhibitions planned by the members of the Art Department for the University community. The next scheduled exhibition is that of murals executed by high school students in the state, and will open in one week.

In discussing the current show of Slayton's paintings, Mr. Colburn of the Art Department points out that these works are among the most controversial ever to be hung at the University.

"Ronald Slayton is a modern," said Mr. Colburn, "and I doubt if anyone can see the work he has produced without being deeply moved. Those who have seen the paintings are either highly voluble in their praise, or vitriolic in their condemnation! Slayton is not the kind of artist one can take casually."

Since opinions have been so varied and so strong, Mr. Colburn said that he felt the whole matter should be taken up in an open discussion, where opinions can be exchanged. "I hope," he said, "that we'll have a good old fashioned bull session, even if we don't settle Ronald Slayton's ultimate fate." Mr. Colburn urged that as many students as possible come to the meeting, even if they feel antagonistic toward modern art.

The exhibition is open on week days from 9 a.m. to 5.00 p.m., and is well worth a visit. Slayton has treated Vermont landscapes, country dances, problems of capital and labor in original, and to many observers, alarming ways. He is an "artists' artist," who has had shows in Boston and been represented in national exhibitions, but whose work is still little known outside artistic circles. Because of the nature of the painting the discussion to be held next Thursday evening should be of particular interest.

Fifty-six Profs Teach Air Cadets

Since March 1 the University has provided instruction in Medical Aid, Civil Air Regulations, Mathematics, History, English, Physics, Geography. Members of the faculty—some fifty-six professors and different instructors are giving the needed instruction and are being aided by a number of student instructors.

Classes were rescheduled as of April 5. Mr. Heath K. Riggs has done a splendid job in completing schedules for the many different combinations of courses, having succeeded ably in scheduling issues, meals, study hours, physical exercise and military drill.

Some 350 men are expected to be on the campus some time this week after which we will have our full complement of 1,000 students. The army's present plans are to call 300 students in late May and every four weeks thereafter. They will be replaced by another unit of 300 men.

The educational deficiencies of these men have been determined by army aptitude tests. The men are now taking those subjects in which they are deficient. Four courses is considered a full schedule. Since each course meets five times a week, it appears to be full time work. A few men who were proficient in most or all subjects are studying navigational aid under Professor Butterfield.

Miss Marston Inspires Listeners' Imagination

The organ recital given by Miss Miriam Nattlee Marston Sunday afternoon in the chapel was well attended and received by the townspeople as well as the students and faculty of the University. Miss Marston played selections from Bach, Handel, Reger and others. "Summer Sketches," a series of musical descriptions of "Dawn," "The Bee," "Twilight," and "Evening," aroused the imagination of the listeners and created a very favorable response. "Allegro" from Handel's Fourth Symphony furnished a very fitting finale for the program.

Sylvia Ronnals Is W. A. A. Head

Candlelight Scene of Installations Tuesday

Preceding the W.A.A. Council initiation last Tuesday night, a short joint meeting of the old and new officers took place, and plans were made for a meeting of the new officers some time next week. A candlelight installation service was then held. Phyllis Savage, the retiring president, lit the candle of the new president, Sylvia Runnals, who, in turn, called up the new members and lit their candles.

The other new members of the W.A.A. Council for the coming year are: Barbara Burnham, vice-president; Priscilla Perkins, senior representative; Marjory Anthony, junior representative; Mary Greene, sophomore representative; "Pat" Paterson, publicity chairman; Rachel Giddings, corresponding secretary; Alice Rowe, recording secretary; Peggy Palmer, social chairman; Mary Quinn, chairman of the council-at-large; and Elizabeth Naess scrap book chairman. The initiation ceremony was closed by singing "Champlain."

Following the installation two championship games were played. Pat Crowley and Janet Hackwell, representing Pi Beta Phi, defeated Emmy Craven and Nancy Flemming in the badminton finals. Nancy substituted for Barbara Kennon, who, because of illness, was unable to play. The result of the basketball game between the Alpha Chis and Pi Phis was a tie score at 14-14, so the play-off took place last night.

The ceremony and championship games were followed by light refreshments—ice cream brownies were enjoyed by all.

Following the Campus Sing on next Friday evening, the U. V. M. Student Government will show a film on "Life on the Vermont Campus," in the Student Lounge.

There will be a very important meeting of the members of the business staff of the CYNIC on Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 p.m. in the CYNIC office. This includes scrubs and staff members.

Am. Opinion Poll To Be Held Here

Students, professors and Aircrew men at U. V. M. will have a chance to join in a nation-wide survey of opinion on vital questions affecting the postwar world when this poll comes out with Friday's CYNIC. The National Intercollegiate Christian Conference (National Student Y.W.C.A. and National Student Y.M.C.A.), the National Peace Conference and other groups are participating and the Gallup Poll is cooperating in an advisory capacity. This is a nation-wide poll, with identical questions used by business people, housewives, statesmen, students, members of the armed forces, and others.

The questions which will be presented include those dealing with present and postwar relief abroad, new world organization, America after the war, and an opinion poll of the armed forces, among others. It is a secret ballot and signatures are not required; but each person participating in the poll is asked to state his age, sex and occupation. The tabulated report and summary, which will be published in a later issue of the CYNIC, will be turned over to the National Opinion Poll for inclusion in a national tabulation which is to be released to the press of the nation and to officials of the United States government. Prof. Raymond A. Hall of the Religious Life Committee is in charge of the American Opinion Poll on this campus.

Three More Profs To Teach Cadets

With 150 more Air Corps Cadets [illegible] taking English, the department has called on Professor Carpenter [illegible] include this subject in his class [illegible] of classes, composed mainly of freshmen. "Benny" Ladd will also be [illegible] within a couple of weeks to [illegible] gutteral sounds and teach the 200 new cadets who will arrive very soon the "whys" and "wherefores" of the English language. For this reason the German Department wishes it known that the instructors are very much upset about the disappearance of the "great big" dictionary which was to be used by the cadets. It seems that said volume got moved out of the office—and things like that don't just get up and walk away. Now, who would want a huge Webster Dictionary? It won't fit in your pocket for cross-word puzzle convenience and if you want to press that Mortar Board corsage, try an English II book—"but please, fellers," chants Carp, "bring back my bookie to me!" Lost, strayed or stolen—let's have it back again.

We might also note here that Professor Prindle of the Classical Department and Mr. Coburn, the artist, have consented to teach English to the "birdmen." Here's wishing you luck, professors, and watch the comments, such as, "Now in German we'd say. . . ."

Campus In Spring---Many Won't See It

Wave of Red Spots Sweeps Campus; Provides Vacation

"Measles! Measles! Who's got them now?" Almost every girls' dorm or sorority house on the hill has converted one or more of its rooms, at one time or another, into pest houses for those with the dread disease.

The "plague of red spots" developed among the fairer sex of U. V. M. soon after the cadets arrived. H-m-m-m. Some have enjoyed the three-to-five day vacations, but others have definitely not—especially over a week-end.

Sylvia Wellwood cooped up in her room at the Alpha Xi House, with Margo Benoit who didn't get a rash—was wishing all along that two others in the house would get bumps behind their ears so that they could have a game or two of bridge. Ah me! at it again, huh, Syl?

When Betty Mansfield was let out of "Wartime Redstone," and when she came back to German class last Monday Professor Carpenter expressed the opinion that maybe the girls need a bit of rest (as if they don't think so, too!).

Some have broken out during class and every so often, one gets a glimpse of a victim beating it for home between classes. A sets good example of this. Pat and on type was Alice Carr who was seen making a quick exit for the Delta House on a Thursday not long past.

There have not been many cases among the male populace but that may be due to the fact that there are few men to get anything or does the shortage remind one of Mortar Board or sorority dance difficulties, girls?)

Maybe if spring would come on the measles would take it on the wing and go north, but until the shortage of metal permits the ocean to have bobby pins to keep its WAVES in place, remember to feel behind your ears every morning and swallow hard because you can get measles more than once!

Notice Fire Captains!

Will fire captains please hand in to the Dean's Office their fire drill books and flashlights. There will be no more fire drills this year. It is very necessary that these matters be taken care of before the last week of school. Any person not returning her flashlight will be held responsible for it. Please take care of this matter immediately.

House Presidents For Coming Year

The time has once more rolled around to "room-choosing," and midst all the excitement, worry, tears and joy the job of selecting House Presidents and House Fellows is allotted to Dean Harris and her assistants. Being a House President or House Fellow is not a soft job. It imposes responsibility and hard work on the girls chosen and thus the girls are chosen with special care and attention. Since all the rooms in Dresser, Clagget, Warner, Edmonds and Mrs. Connick are not spoken for the House Presidents have not been decided upon for these dormitories. However the list of House Presidents and House Fellows for larger dorms are complete. Delta Psi Mary Perry and Margaret Lake. Kappa Sigma Constance Bray. Sigma Psi Phyllis Fein and Marion Lawson. Alpha Hope Mary Harmon and Norma Chaffee. Sanders, Beryl Cheney and Constance Pratt. Roberts, Rosemary Warren and Vesta Stevens. Grasmount, Helen Lovejoy and Gladys Southam.

Another list will appear in Tuesday's issue.

American Gallup Poll will close Monday afternoon at 3 p.m. All ballots must be in before that time.

Metropolitan Star Eleanor Steber Presents Concert

University Choir and Orchestra Sponsor Soloist at Chapel

... the concert of Tuesday, April 6 ... Chapel, Miss Eleanor Steber ... Dramatic Soprano, appeared in concert at the Ira Allen Chapel. Miss Steber has ... studied the operatic stages with the Metropolitan Opera Association in New York. Everything was in readiness to be included in her concert.

The lowest stage Miss Steber enjoys as a singer might easily seem a drawback. One can scarcely be more extravagant in according her the generous commendation she deserves. She is a dramatic soprano, who sings her numbers beautifully without resort to theatrical mannerisms or contortions, because her interpretations spring from an intelligent appreciation and feeling for the composer's ideas. The honesty and integrity of her art and her own refreshing exuberance and dignified friendliness are marks of a charming personality behind her singing.

Miss Steber's purity of tone and clear cut production made her singing an unqualified joy. The perfection of intonation, the mellow limpid tone quality, the flowing portamento and incredibly beautiful pianissimo are ever present features of her style. Her effortless sure attack particularly remarkable on high pianissimo tones and an amazing breath control are elements of her technique which make her singing the more beautiful.

Arias from many operas appeared on the program and gave Miss Steber's vocal talents full range and yet the stage art was not allowed to mar her concert style. The Verdi "Ah!" from "La Traviata" drew tremendous applause for both the singer and her excellent accompanist, Joseph Quillian. The purity of the early Handel's arias was of excellent medium. The Mozart aria from "The Marriage of Figaro" received a particularly sensitive rendition. To those on the program, Miss Steber generously added arias from Puccini's "La Boheme" and "La Boheme."

A group of songs in German was given with fine effect. A French and English group added variety to the singer. It is to be hoped that we may be favored with more visits from such an enthusiastic

Poll on Concert Problems to End

On Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock the Gallup Poll sponsored by National Intercollegiate Christian Conference will come to a close. The poll which is open to all students, professors and interested people deals with twelve questions of importance at this time. Such questions as post war relief abroad, America after the war and new world organization will be included.

After the results of the U. V. M. poll have been tabulated the report will be sent to the National Opinion Poll.

This is to be a secret ballot. Each person will give age, sex, and occupation, but not his name. The final results will be published in papers all over the country and copies will be given to persons all over the government.

Professor Hall of the Religious Life Committee who is in charge of the poll on this campus hopes that many persons will respond to the opportunity to state their opinions. The persons most are especially invited to cast ballots. Of course all students and all the professors are asked to vote. The results will be put in the Cynic later.

[illegible] are at [illegible] colleges who have been [illegible] and under the A.S.T. These college people are not [illegible] but American citizens of Japanese ancestry who have been brought [illegible] to Internment schools. They believe as we do in the democratic principles that we are fighting to perpetuate, and they are as anxious as we to keep those principles alive by loyal service and adequate citizenship.

The War Relocation Authority has authorized the Student Relocation Council to make this possible. Already War and Navy Department approval of 344 receiving colleges has been obtained, and there has been acceptance by colleges and communities of more than 800 students. There are now about 1,200 of these Nisei students waiting to be placed when sufficient funds have been gathered.

Legislation has been passed, however, that will admit the men of the relocation camps into the army in a few weeks. This will leave about 9000 students still forcibly stagnating in the camps without even the opportunity to carry on participation in American life.

Since the government has accepted their desire to fight with our forces, since the students that the Relocation Council is placing have transcripts of at least B plus averages in the colleges they have left, and since their present records in colleges of relocation are nothing but excellent, we believe that a Japanese American student at the University of Vermont would be a good bet.

We understand that the trustees of the University do not approve of a scholarship for a Nisei student. It would take about $600 to keep one of them here for a year. Of this he or she could be given jobs with earnings totalling almost half that amount. We of the CYNIC promise to be responsible for a campaign to raise the balance.

We ask the students to express their sentiments concerning this idea. Let it be known that we are aware of the responsibility of being college students whose opportunities are still intact. We are getting more out of our democracy than these Japanese Americans, and we owe them our help.

ALPHA XI DELTA

Initiation was held Tuesday afternoon for [illegible] Partridge '45 Laura Mayne '44 and Catherine Zwick '46 followed by a banquet at the Hotel Vermont. Pantsmistress Jean Shea encountered a little insubordination among the seniors, who had their fun by insisting that Ruby Sanderson act out a ceremony she and Keith put on at the house some weeks ago, asking pointed questions about a book Rita has been reading late at night recently, and otherwise getting at the bottom of various idle rumors around the house.

Yes, Ginger Hunt is in the Mary Fletcher, but she hasn't got it, as the saying goes now. And Sylvia is spending a day or two in her room, but just a glance at her face reveals she has the German measles. There's nothing mysterious about Ruby's absence from the city over the week-end, either. She was maid of honor at a home town wedding. The first we saw of her Monday evening was a parade from room to room in her gown, which incidentally looks Mmmm. . . . Millie Anderson wants to know whose hat she wore to St. Albans a week ago Thursday, when Jan Spear, Alpha Xi Delta '41 was being married to Staff Sergeant Allen Bedard. There seems to be some doubt. She knows it wasn't hers—so do we.

Because of the world situation and despite the campus situation, an informal dance will be held from 8 to 12 at the house Saturday the tenth. Various committees, such as the one for moving unnecessary furniture out of the house, are hard at work.

We regret that Lois Cotton had to leave unexpectedly for Granby Wednesday night because of an operation undergone by her brother Henry.

DELTA PHI EPSILON

Three new (!) med school widows are among our numbers. Oh well, Saturday is fun, isn't it? Incidentally, one of our pledges is having a serious debate with herself about whether to go to a nut house or come to summer school. Is there an editor in the house?

Say, what's wrong with the mail from Florida lately?

We join the Hotel Vermont in thanking Pearl W. and Ellie K. for their efficient job of floor mopping before the Saturday dance. Orchids to Elaine Oling for doing such a swell job pinch-hitting in the absence of Marjorie Rubin as chairman of the dance committee. It was a grand dance. Many new faces and heads were seen including the head on the punch. The clean-up committee (to be or not to be) did an efficient noisy job? ? ? ?

For those who have questioned, Lynn Epstein and Harriet Cohen are not attending the 6B class of the Taft School—they are practicing the techniques of soft ball as pitcher (?) and second baseman (?).

To-date measled victims include Ellie Berig, Lucille Goldstein, Marge Rubin, Rose Eisman, Spotty Jacobs,—Helaine Goldberg patiently waiting—he who laughs last.

Roses to Flo Hecht (Jim never brings me pretty flowers) for being initiated.

R. O. T. C. Band to Play

W. A. A. Notes

The new officers of W. A. A. held their first meeting on Tuesday, March 6, at 4.15 in 140 Waterman. After the minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Rachael Giddings and approved, the Constitution of W. A. A. was read to enlighten the officers as to their duties for the coming year.

The main business discussed was the big W. A. A. banquet which is to be held —in spite of rationing—on March 20 at 5.45 in the auditorium of the "Y." Mary Quinn read the list of committees which will be in charge of the necessary arrangements.

Miss Crowe secured some "points" from the ration board, and Alice Rowe '45 and Mary Greene '46 have the job of "high math" to plan the menu. They are, however getting the assistance of a couple of senior home ecers.

The decorating of the tables will be up to the mental and physical efforts of Margery Anthony '45 and Elizabeth Naess '46. (It should be a help if the weatherman would declare a closed season on winter!)

The main attraction of the banquet, besides the food, is the awarding of honors to those women of U. V. M. who through the 1942-43 seasons of sports have shown outstanding ability of leadership and sportsmanship, and ability to play their sport or sports well. Natalie Spear '43 moved that the club managers be granted honorary varsity membership if they have shown skill in their sport in previous years, but the awarding of such would be left to the discretion of the Physical Education Department. The motion was carried. Priscilla Perkins '44 and Rachael Giddings '46 are to work out the program and presentation of awards.

Margaret Palmer '44 and Pat Paterson '46 are in charge of sending invitations to members and guests. The banquet is largely for those women who have earned their membership through one of the clubs and who have paid their fee—25 cents for freshmen and 10 cents for upperclassmen—to their managers.

All the committees are to report to Mary Quinn by Wednesday, April 14.

The time of 5.45 may seem a bit early for a banquet, but this is to have the program over by 8.30 or before which will not count as a night out. As to dress, the officers decided that sport clothes fit such a sports event to the ... verbal T

In addition to the banquet business it was announced that Barbara Webb '44 will serve as Health Council chairman for 1943-44.

Army Air Cadets Show Top Talents

Stage 2 Hour Review Last Friday at U.S.O.

"Off we go into the wide blue yonder climbing high into the sun . . Nothing can stop the Army Air Corps" Darkness, stagelights, attention, action! The Army Air Corps Cadets held an exhibition of their several talented men at the South Winooski Ave. USO, Friday evening, at eight o'clock.

Privates Mumm and Gonsalus demonstrated figure roller skating. Mumm, one time national roller skating champion, featured a difficult one-leg kick spin which he himself invented. Private Westetyn experienced with Metro Goldwin Mayer and master of ceremonies Friday, gave Nestles a good 'build-up' and passed out Hershey bars to the audience.

The Blue Rhythm Boys, Private Berri pounding the drums, Private Goff blowing the clarinet and Private Schreitmuller at the piano gave music as smooth and shimmering as their title leads one to believe.

The jive band headed by Private Foster, formerly with Teddy Powell came straight from a sensational six week layoff at Quarantine Gardens but their jive captured the audience of more than 360.

"We are living in a world of madness and speed and the modern popular songs lack the tenderness and sincerity of those of a few years ago," stated Private Westetyn, master of ceremonies and with this introduction, Private Gonsalus rendered Sammy Kaye's theme song and the Easter Parade for which Private Westetyn sang the vocal. As an encore they gave "A Shanty in Our Old Back Yard."

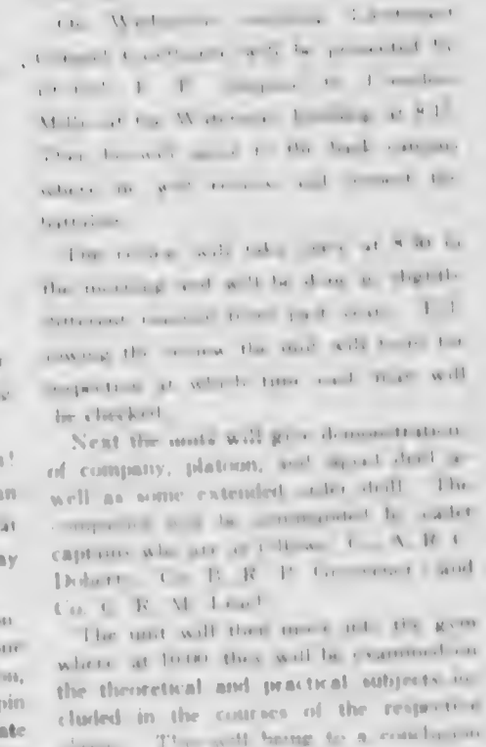
Private Josepho, ad-lib artist and Private Landon enthralled the audience with their humor and impersonations.

A vocal trio consisting of Privates Haste, McGagle and Peterson gave "Mary," "In the Evening," and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Victor Herbert's "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," was sung by Private Neill, Irish bass vocalist. "Old Man River" was well vocalized by Privates Westetyn and Neill.

Private Hodges rendered a trumpet solo after which the "Wreckettes" held the stage effectively and the audience enraptured.

Master of ceremonies, Private Westetyn impersonating Fibber McGee and so and so, gave a lecture in which was included the interesting history of Niagara Falls.



After the two hour show, dancing was enjoyed.

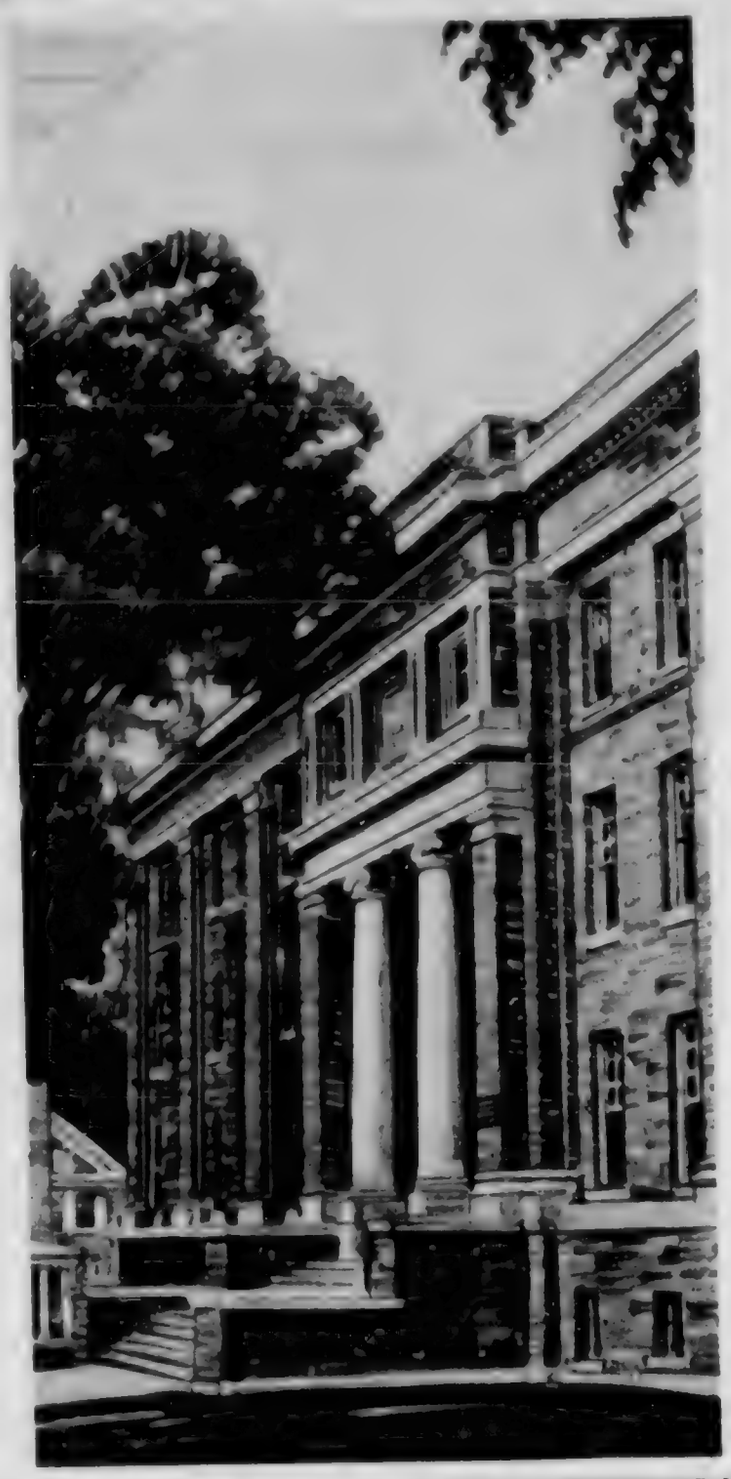
Our Police Force Gets National Recognition



The Burlington Police Force is getting national recognition these days. Did you know that an article in this week's Life shows pictures of a small town police force and tells how it meets every day problems. The small town spoken of is Burlington. The Life magazine is on the bulletin board in the library so be sure to take a look at it and see just how our own home town is being protected.

On the other side of the bulletin board is an unusual map display one of South America in globular perspective and another of Russia's Ukraine showing where the iron ore centers, coal basins, shipbuilding and industrial centers are located along with other interesting points. It is this sort of thing that brings us closer to the conditions abroad that are affecting every one of us so let's make the most of it.

Coffee Corner as Popular as Ever

The Old Mill has lately become a very popular spot on campus just on account of a little counter behind which industrious students mix sodas, grill hamburgers and pour out coffee and perform a host of other culinary feats. Howard Johnson's Coffee Corner is the cause of the Old Mill's popularity—it is having a great success. Students, army and otherwise, elbow their way through crowds of hungry people just for the sake of what's behind that little counter. Service may appear to be a trifle slow but additional conveniences are expected as time goes on to make things run smoother. Surprisingly enough, the small capacity of the adjoining room has not yet strained facilities. Girl helpers are scarce on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Hrs are especially needed from 10 o'clock on. So if any girls desire employment apply to the manager at Howard Johnson at the Coffee Corner.

Three Frats Join In Spring Dance

Who says the war and the shortened semester have eliminated all good times at the U. V. M. horizon. Three of the fraternities on the hill have settled the problem of how to have a dance without a house party by the inhabitants of the aforementioned hall and "Cabin 13" the ex-Redstone campus watering hole. In short the remnants of Delta Psi Sigma Phi and A.T.O. have mysteriously merged for the purpose of [illegible] dance.

They will hold what might formerly have been termed Spring Formal on Saturday evening, April 17 from 8:00 to 12 at the Hotel Vermont Roof. The chaperones are to be Prof. and Mrs. B. Lugl and Prof. and Mrs. J. Marvin.

Music will be provided by the "Clubmen" and dance-chairmen Steve Moore and Houghton Pearl promise a gala evening.

James Quillian who performed so skillfully as accompanist for Miss Steber proved himself a soloist of merit as well. His numbers bespoke a mastery of the modern mode and a technical skill of amazing virtuosity. His chosen program was delightful and atmospheric and he succeeded admirably in presenting varied tone pictures. Registration for the new term at the Medical College of U. V. M. was held Monday, April 12. The class will contain [illegible] more than last year.

Due to the war's accelerated program, the present senior class will complete its course in December 1943. Clinical work in surgery and medicine will not start until April 19 because these classes are expected to attend Dr. Kinsey's lectures at Northampton.

Sororities Hold Spring Informals

Dances were held by six of the seven sororities on the hill last Saturday night, all to the music of recordings.

At the Alpha Chi House a semi-formal dance was held under the direction of Meena Lang '43. The floor gleamed with new wax applied by Bob Marzari '43 and Ned Aiken '45. (Aiken just had to work off his fatherly enthusiasm.) Chaperoning the occasion were Prof. and Mrs. George Kidder, Prof. and Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. France.

Delta Delta Delta celebrated the 50th anniversary of Eta Chapter by cutting a large birthday cake decorated in blue, gold and white. Shirley Wedge '44, president of the chapter, performed the ceremony. The house was decorated with blue and white streamers. The chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. Myron Witham and Mrs. Wells. Myra Gray '44 was in charge.

Delta Phi Epsilon held its dance at the Roof Garden of the Hotel Vermont. Decorations of spring flowers were used, and punch and cup cakes were served. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lisman were the chaperones and music was furnished by Jo Allen and his records.

Kappa Alpha Theta presented a scene of Christmas cheer with red and green decorations and a Christmas tree. Prof. and Mrs. Beyler were chaperones with Mrs. Dodge.

Pi Beta Phi staged an informal dance and served its famous punch with cookies. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor Page, Mrs. George Bell and Mrs. Rutledge chaperoned. Lyn Eimer distinguished herself by coming down with German measles and it is hoped that an epidemic will not result among the air cadets as a result.

Sigma Gamma held its dance in the Student Lounge with decorations of musical notes on the windows. Mr. Rowells chaperoned the affair.

Campus Sing Head Donates Money to Mortar Board Fund

Congratulates Society On Worthy Project Recently Established

Alfred Amee who has been one of the mainstays of our successful campus sings during the last two years will graduate in June. He has given to the Pep Committee the privilege of carrying on the sing activities and they will have to work hard to do as good a job as Amee. One of Campus Sing's last activities is the gift to the Mary Jean Simpson Fund and below is reprinted the letter Mr. Amee wrote on this occasion.

Miss Natalie Spear, Pres.,
'43 Mortar Board

Dear Natalie:

The Campus Sing wishes to congratulate you on the worthy project that Mortar Board promoted this year and to humbly offer you twenty-five dollars as a contribution to the Mary Jean Simpson Fund.

During my four years at Vermont, I have been privileged to associate with Miss Simpson several times, and on each occasion, I have been inspired toward new ambitions for higher aims. I feel that I can say without fear of contradiction that all that she does and means to Vermont commands not only the love of every Vermont girl, but the deepest admiration and respect from the men of U. V. M. In our opinion, no name is more deserving than hers to be given to the scholarship fund.

It is indeed pleasant for me to give you this money, not only because it is going to a worthy cause, but more because it is the Campus Sing's part of a tribute to one who is a constant inspiration and guide to every one at Vermont.

Very sincerely,
ALFRED F. AMEE '43
For the Campus Sing.

New Laboratories For Home Eccers

Carnegie Corp. Grant Received by U.V.M.

Great improvements in the laboratory facilities of the Home Economics Department at the University of Vermont have been made possible by the use of a substantial portion of the $30,000 grant received by the University last year from the Carnegie Corporation.

It will be possible, with these improvements, for the department to offer a new curriculum permitting students, after the first year, to choose any of four optional courses, General Home Economics, Home Economics Education, Clothing, Textiles and Related Arts, or Food and Nutrition. Classrooms have been established in Old College, and the greater part of Morrill Hall, a part of the Agricultural College, has been turned over for laboratories for the Home Economics Department.

In spite of war scarcities, sufficient priorities have been obtained to equip the laboratories satisfactorily, and, according to Dr. Florance M. King, head of the department, the new program is now in full swing. Twelve new courses are being offered and three additional members have been appointed to the teaching staff.

One of the new laboratories, which is fitted out for work in dietetics, makes it possible for the first time, says Doctor King, to offer all the courses required by the American Dietetics Association for student internship in accredited institutions.

A second new laboratory equipped for work in textiles and related arts, has been arranged on the second floor, and at certain periods the department will have the use of the dairy chemistry laboratory for the course in textile chemistry.

Students now have a locker room as well as a reading room on the main floor, and one office is always open as a work room for students in clothing, textiles and related arts.

This enlarged program was made necessary by a greatly increased enrollment, which demanded that students be prepared for other positions than just as teachers of home economics. The courses in quantity cooking and institutional management offer to graduates a much wider scope in future employment, and a course in experimental cookery fits them to be food specialists in commercial food firms.

The Home Management House has also been re-fitted and decorated and all seniors are required to live and work in the house for a seven-week period before graduation.

Home Ec Honorary Initiates Pledges

Last Wednesday afternoon, at 4.14, the new pledges of Phi Chapter of Omicron Nu honorary home economics society, were initiated at the home of Miss Bertha Terrill, faculty advisor. The new members are juniors, Norma I. Charest of Wollaston, Mass., and Ione E. Lacy of Burlington.

Following the initiation, a business meeting was held, at which time the officers for next year were elected. Norma Charest is to be president, Ione Lacy, secretary and Miss Bailey treasurer. Doctor King will succeed Miss Terrill as faculty advisor.

After the meeting, tea was served in honor of the new members. Miss Terrill was assisted in pouring by Miss Holbrook.

Newman Club Elects Next Year's Officers

At the Newman Club meeting on Wednesday night, the new officers for the coming year were announced. The Presidential chair goes to Pat Crowley. The other officers are Vice-President, Frances Witham; Secretary, Persis Yates, and Treasurer, Joan Garrity. The members of the Executive Board were also named. They are Pat McCormack, Helen Ells, Nancy McNamara, Ruth White, Barbara Tennen, and Ita Casey. John McGarry was named as the representative from the Medical College.

Miss Nulty spoke and thanked Fr. Robert Joyce and Father Cassidy who have been in charge of the Newman Club this year.

Mortar Board Accepts Cynic's Challenge to Raise $3000

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Mortar Board of 1943 accepts your challenge to raise three thousand dollars!

First of all, may I say that we greatly appreciate your support of the Mary Jean Simpson Scholarship Fund. To have an editorial on it means that not just one, but many students on campus feel that it is a worthy project and understand the goal toward which we are striving.

Your suggestion to contact all the organizations on campus is an excellent one. The treasurers of many organizations have already been contacted personally, had been in fact, even before the editorial appeared. Letters have been sent to all of the other organizations asking them to contribute what they can. We feel certain that these organizations will respond with their usual promptness and generosity.

As you know, from other letters in this issue, some organizations have already made rather important contributions.

For several reasons we thought it better not to attempt to have one day this year devoted to such a drive as you suggest. With many finals beginning this Thursday, it was felt that sufficient time could not be devoted to planning this drive or that it would be as successful as it should be. We also felt that we should be asking the same people to contribute again as had already done so through the various organizations. Finally, we felt that a "Dean Simpson Day" would be an excellent project on which next year's Mortar Board group might start.

In accepting your challenge to raise three thousand dollars, we feel that we are really just turning it back to you and to the student body as a whole. Except for personal contributions, Mortar Board has given all it has. Now "It's up to each of you." We can do no more than ask for your help.

Thank you again for your understanding and support.

Sincerely yours,
MORTAR BOARD OF 1943

Last of Air Corps Group Have Come

Converse Hall to House Final Cadet Contingent

The lost battalion has arrived! Yes, the last and final contingent of Air Crew Students has come to the University of Vermont and taken its abode at Converse Hall. These boys also have "evacuated" from already famous Atlantic City and have taken refuge in good old Vermont. The new group arrived late Thursday night and descended upon a city, white with April snow—not a welcome sight by any means! Except for a misfortunate automobile accident in which a few of the boys were plunked right into a hospital, the group marched up Main Street and settled safely at home (?) in Converse Hall. The "old bastile" looks pretty dismal late at night and probably gave some of the fellows a scare, but they'll get used to it!

As usual, this new group must first serve two weeks in quarantine during which time they get an overdose of drilling, calisthenics, and athletics. It is not definite when classes begin for the newcomers, and the length of their stay is not known.

Thus, with the echo of "Hup, 2, 3, 4," still ringing in our ears, the college welcomes you new privates, and hope you'll like this University as much as we do. The rest of the airmen seemed to have found it satisfactory, and no doubt, you'll have little trouble getting acquainted with the female population and new surroundings. We only ask one thing—for Pete's sake, and ours too, don't get the MEASLES. We've had a month's seige already.

Last Chapel Service

Wednesday evening at 7.15 the last chapel service of the academic year will be held with the Chapel Choir's singing Lenten music and scripture reading taking the place of the usual address.

Final Campus Sing Held Friday Night

The final campus sing of the year was held Friday night. Bob Goss '44 led the singing. Heath Riggs showed a technicolor film on campus life. A. F. Amee and Professor Ladd were in charge.

In view of the fact that Friday, April 23, is Good Friday, it was voted by the University Council that the Deans be authorized to issue excuses to such students as wish to attend religious exercises on that day. Classes will be held as usual.

This action was taken in accordance with our long standing custom of holding classes on Good Friday when that day falls during the regular college session.

Ira Allen Chapel Scene of Annual Easter Concert

Choir and Orchestra Present Performance From "The Messiah"

The Lenten Easter Concert drew a large crowd to the Ira Allen Chapel yesterday afternoon. The concert was presented by the University Choir augmented by other students and musicians of the city and the University Orchestra similarly enlarged by other players. Michael Anselmo was concert master of the orchestra and Howard Bennett directed the entire program.

The Lenten Easter concert provides an opportunity for great contrast, just as events of Passion Week reproduce profound sorrow and the triumphant resurrection invokes joy. Mr. Bennett produced fully this contrast in feeling.

The choir and orchestra gave excellent performances of the larger chorus from "The Messiah" as well as selections from the "St. Matthew Passion" and the beautiful "Ecce Quo Modo Moritur."

The soloist framed by Elizabeth Bradish added much to the concert. Doris Squire gave an appealing rendition of "He Was Despised."

Shirley Lampman and Marjorie Southworth blended harmoniously in a duet by Pergolesi. Robert Goss with his usual clarity and fine tone sang from the "St. Matthew Passion." Theresa Colette gave an easy and joyous interpretation to "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

The Rev. Raymond A. Hall, minister for the afternoon, read appropriate Scripture and prayers.

New Laboratories For Home Eccers

Carnegie Corp. Grant Received by U.V.M.

Great improvements in the laboratory facilities of the Home Economics Department at the University of Vermont have been made possible by the use of a substantial portion of the $30,000 grant received by the University last year from the Carnegie Corporation.

It will be possible, with these improvements, for the department to offer a new curriculum permitting students, after the first year, to choose any of four optional courses, General Home Economics, Home Economics Education, Clothing, Textiles and Related Arts, or Food and Nutrition. Classrooms have been established in Old College, and the greater part of Morrill Hall, a part of the Agricultural College, has been turned over for laboratories for the Home Economics Department.

In spite of war scarcities, sufficient priorities have been obtained to equip the laboratories satisfactorily, and, according to Dr. Florance M. King, head of the department, the new program is now in full swing. Twelve new courses are being offered and three additional members have been appointed to the teaching staff.

One of the new laboratories, which is fitted out for work in dietetics, makes it possible for the first time, says Doctor King, to offer all the courses required by the American Dietetics Association for student internship in accredited institutions.

A second new laboratory equipped for work in textiles and related arts, has been arranged on the second floor, and at certain periods the department will have the use of the dairy chemistry laboratory for the course in textile chemistry.

Students now have a locker room as well as a reading room on the main floor, and one office is always open as a work room for students in clothing, textiles and related arts.

This enlarged program was made necessary by a greatly increased enrollment, which demanded that students be prepared for other positions than just as teachers of home economics. The courses in quantity cooking and institutional management offer to graduates a much wider scope in future employment, and a course in experimental cookery fits them to be food specialists in commercial food firms.

The Home Management House has also been re-fitted and decorated and all seniors are required to live and work in the house for a seven-week period before graduation.

Mortar Board Accepts Cynic's Challenge to Raise $3000

To the Editor of the CYNIC

Mortar Board of 1943 accepts your challenge to raise three thousand dollars!

First of all, may I say that we greatly appreciate your support of the Mary Jean Simpson Scholarship Fund. To have an editorial of it means that not just one but many students on campus feel that it is a worthy project and understand the goal toward which we are striving.

Your suggestion to contact all the organizations on campus is an excellent one. The treasurers of many organizations have already been contacted personally and indeed in fact, even before the editorial appeared. Letters have been sent to all of the other organizations asking them to contribute what they can. We feel certain that these organizations will respond with their usual promptness and generosity.

As you know, from other letters in this issue, some organizations have already made rather important contributions.

For several reasons we thought it better not to attempt to have one day this year devoted to such a drive as you suggest. With many senate functions this Thursday, it was felt that sufficient time could not be devoted to planning this project that it would be as successful as it should be. We also felt that we should be asking the same people to contribute again as had already done so through the various organizations. Finally, we felt that a "Dean Simpson Day" would be an excellent project on which next year's Mortar Board group might start.

In accepting your challenge to raise three thousand dollars, we feel that we are really just turning it back to you and to the student body as a whole. Except for personal contributions, Mortar Board has given all it has. Now, "It's up to each of you." We can do no more than ask for your help.

Thank you again for your understanding and support.

Sincerely yours,
MORTAR BOARD OF 1943

Last of Air Corps Group Have Come

Converse Hall to House Final Cadet Contingent

The lost battalion has arrived! Yes, the last and final contingent of Air Crew Students has come to the University of Vermont and taken its abode at Converse Hall. These boys also have "evacuated" from already famous Atlantic City and have taken refuge in good old Vermont. The new group arrived late Thursday night and descended upon a city white with April snow—not a welcome sight by any means! Except for a misfortunate automobile accident in which a few of the boys were plunked right into a hospital, the group marched up Main Street and settled safely at home (?) in Converse Hall. The "old bastile" looks pretty dismal late at night and probably gave some of the fellows a scare, but they'll get used to it!

As usual, this new group must first serve two weeks in quarantine during which time they get an overdose of drilling, calisthenics, and athletics. It is not definite when classes begin for the newcomers, and the length of their stay is not known.

Thus, with the echo of "Hup, 2, 3, 4," still ringing in our ears, the college welcomes you new privates, and hope you'll like this University as much as we do. The rest of the airmen seemed to have found it satisfactory and no doubt, you'll have little trouble getting acquainted with the female population and new surroundings. We only ask one thing—for Pete's sake, and ours too don't get the MEA SLES. We've had a months seige already.

Last Chapel Service

Wednesday evening at 7.15 the last chapel service of the academic year will be held with the Chapel Choir's singing Lenten music and scripture reading taking the place of the usual address.

ATTENTION, BLOOD DONORS

If you are a minor (under 21 years) you must have a release signed by your parents. Get your release blanks in the Bookstore, have them signed and return them to Professor Evans as soon as possible.

Canterbury Club Meets

At its final meeting of the year, Canterbury Club had the privilege of hearing Miss Helen Turnbull, Field Secretary to Episcopal Students in New England. She spoke about the work of the church in colleges and told many of the interesting questions she has been asked at the various other New England colleges she visits.

Newly Elected Mortar Board's Initiated Sunday

On Sunday evening at 8.30 pm. in the Faculty Lounge on the third floor of the Waterman Building, next years members of Mortar Board were initiated. The new initiates are Penelope Eastam, Julia Fletcher, Barbara Hall, Patricia McCormack, Priscilla Perkins and Justine Whalen. Present at the ceremony were Elizabeth Gurney, Mary Whitney Rowe and Charlotte Perkins, all U. V. M. graduates, and Miss Hoffman of the Physical Education Department.

VOL. 61 APRIL 20, 1943 NO. 30

If Ye Break Faith With Us Who Die

We entered this war with an idealism that appeared to be destined to lay the foundation for a better peace, for a happier world. It looked as if another liberty, fraternity, equality shouting army was to arise from the dark plains of history to give new hope to a tortured world

Our idealism, however, seems to have faded somewhat since Pearl Harbor. When people like Henry Wallace attempt to give us the blueprints that may finally put into our hands a freer world than mankind has ever known, members of congress speak of globaloney. When the common man in the street just begins to realize the need for international co-operation, he is being told that the future of the United States must be one of isolationism and self-sufficiency after the war. Day after day we are made to believe that we must police the world, that we must rule the air, that we must control the sea lanes in the world to come

In opposition there are many, to be sure, who speak up for the equal rights of all nations, who try to show us a future of good will and understanding among all members of humanity. But it is so much easier to distort than rectify, to be a demagogue than a messenger of brotherhood

It would be a waste of time to wail over such conditions unless we could draw a lesson from these disappointing experiences

(1) We, the youth of this nation, spectators and participants in a great battle must not forget, during all the dramatic excitement of these days, the cause for which this fight is being waged. We who will carry the brunt of the bloody months ahead must demand that our comrades shall not die in vain but that the principles they fight for will be transcribed into the moral code of this and the generations to come. We must see that our enthusiasm for victory will also serve as a constant reminder of the ends for which victory is to be attained

(2) At no time must we lose our hope for the establishment of a better world, because without hope there can be no faith, and without faith there is bound to be another similar crisis in values as our generation has already known. Such a crisis drives men to fear and fear is the parent of irrationalism.

(3) We must realize that today every one of us has to participate in the planning of the future, however little his contribution may be. We have to choose between the many plans that are being offered, and we have to choose in the realization that the refusal to choose is itself a significant choice.

(4) We know that our victory will leave grave problems to be solved, high issues to be met. But the assurance that it does not leave mankind to confront the problems in chains is alone worth fighting for. Our victory will leave standing a world in which men have the right to dream; and to maintain that right as a living principle is a long step towards the fulfillment of that dream

Today our generation is given the weapons to fight this war. We must not allow the old generation that blundered so heavily to write the peace all by itself. It will be us in the trenches, us storming over the battlefields, us seeing friend and foe killed by the hundreds who will develop the new concepts of a new humanity. It will be us listening to the agonizing cries of friend and foe alike from No Man's Land who will realize the futility of hate and deadly strife. Then ours must be the duty and privilege to watch over this peace, over the destiny of this world

This editorial must not remain a vision of a distant millennium but with our co-operation may become a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our time and generation

(Editor's Note: This letter was given to us for publication in the CYNIC.)

Miss Frances Donahue,
Chairman Pep Committee,
U. V. M. Student Government.
Dear Fran:

The demands of the services of the United States are making many changes on our campus, and considering the uncertainty of just what next year's college program will be, it seems wise to incorporate the Campus Sing under the activities of the Student Government Pep Committee

As you know, I have been associated with the Campus Sing now for two years, and during that time, I have tried to establish it as a permanent activity in our college program. With the suggestions of Professor Ladd and the talented leadership of George Millikan, it has constantly gained popularity, and I feel that its future is now well established.

In handing it over to you, I would ask you to keep it a separate activity within your committee, to keep its funds separate, and, above all, to continue Professor Ladd as your faculty advisor. It was he who first introduced the sing to Vermont, and I know that his interest will be helpful to you, just as it has been to me. Also I would place in your keeping four large posters and 350 Campus Sing song books, many of which have never been used.

It has been a lot of fun promoting this new idea on the Vermont campus, but it's an even greater joy to know how much it has come to mean to the students. Doing something that you know is going to be meaningful to others gives, in return, a satisfaction that is one of the privileges of life. It is with reluctance that I hand it over to you now; but I hope that under your direction, the Campus Sing will continue to promote that spirit and enthusiasm which are so much a part of our Vermont tradition.

Very sincerely,
ALFRED F. AMEE, '43,
For the Campus Sing.

In Response to the Editorial of A. C.

U. V. M. has often been chosen because it is a college possessing a spirit of freedom, a spirit representative of the Vermont spirit. This spirit is yet alive; it has been re-shown many times, in many ways lately on campus. However, as a candle may be at one moment very brightly lighted but in a few seconds may be smoking in darkness, the light having been blown out by a sudden gust of wind, so we must watch our U. V. M. spirit and keep it protected.

Lately we again heard about the subject of Japanese students and the continuation of their education on college campuses. But we are fighting Japanese? So what! We fight wild cats too, but we continually fondle and protect our domestic kittens.

It is right that U. V. M. should keep up her spirit at this period of dynamic actions more than at any other time. Then, let's not tie her helpless with strings of irrational hatred!

Who else has anything to say on this subject?

R. BURNELL

Why the 25c for Your Ariel

It is truly unfortunate and hard for all of us that there is a war, but we must face it and do our best to end it the quickest way possible. In order to do this graduation was advanced two weeks. This threw the printing schedule of the '44 Ariel all off, and due to war conditions that schedule cannot be altered.

I regret that this has happened, but there is nothing either you or I can do about it, except be thankful that we are having a yearbook this year.

The twenty-five cents is the average cost for wrapping and mailing the Ariels. We cannot send the Ariel at book rates because of the advertising contained therein. It must be sent parcel post and charged according to the zone to which it is sent and the weight of the book. It costs seventeen cents just to mail books to Vermont state students, not including wrapping. In some cases it amounts to thirty cents to send to mid-western states. Nobody makes a cent on this arrangement and it is only through the tremendous cooperation and whole-hearted interest on the part of the Book Store that we are able to send out the Ariels at all

Now, you might say that the Ariel should pay for the mailing costs from its own funds. The total cost of circulation would amount to about two hundred and seventy-five dollars. We did not allow for this in our budget because we made it out long before the University's schedule was changed.

It's really going to be a wonderful book, because everyone has worked very hard to make it so. Show your appreciation to the publications staff and members by getting your quarter into the Book Store today!! Right now, before you forget!

Thanking you in advance.
PAUL R. WALDREN,
Bus. Mgr. '44 Ariel.

Sorority and Dorm Notes

DELTA PSI

The girls at the Delta Psi House entertained in the ballroom for the first time last Friday evening. The function?—a semi-formal dance for the members of Miss Harris' math. classes. As to whether a good time was had—here is a goodnight remark of one handsome guest, "Why don't you ask your housemother if you can give lots of dances because this was swell?" We hope he speaks for the majority. And so next Friday evening another such party is planned and the girls are looking forward to tripping some more light fantastics with just about the best the army has to offer.

DRESSER COTTAGE

Does anybody know where Dresser Cottage is? We sometimes wonder! Well, anyhow in case you're interested—there is a little house, with a tower, on Mansfield Ave. by that name. OK? And we are quite active, believe it or not!

A few weeks ago we took our second trip to Colchester—"Down on Chapin's farm!" Bonnie Buley, Dottie Day, Hilda Lund, Shirl Chapin and a guest Ione Lacy with their boots, saddles, overalls, and plaid shirts spent an afternoon in the sugar woods—Sweets for the sweet you know! Then home to supper. If I told you all we ate it would do either or both of two things. It'd make us out to be (uno what!)) or make you hungry. So I won't tell

And speaking of trips and eats—that's right up our alley 'cause Friday night we, Eunice Simmons, Mary Paterson, and Shirl Chapin went out to Bonnie's in Richmond to help her celebrate her birthday. (I won't tell you how old she is—that's a secret!)

Occasionally we have long distance telephone calls beside the regular nightly five minute calls from a couple of young Romeos.

Our postman says he never saw so much army mail but gee whiz, we know our duty when we see it.

We even entertain once-in-a-while. Jean Mansfield, friend of Mary Paterson spent several days here a week ago. She came up from Boston.

Ho hum! Spring is here! Only three more weeks, only seventeen more days! Too bad you didn't hear of Dresser Cottage before but you'll be hearing more of us. By the way we have a wonderful house mother, too. We couldn't leave without mentioning that.

—Until later, Adios.

DELTA PHI EPSILON

In honor of the seniors, Helaine Goldberg Temaly Yett, Lucille Goldstein, and Eleanor Berig, a luncheon was held at the Hotel Vermont. The warble birds in the person of Ellie Konowitz, Ethel Spahn and Soprano Commanday, aided by the bass voice of Pearl Weissbard from the other end of the table contributed greatly to the musical selections rendered. Seriously though, Elaine Oling, Spotty Jacobs, Freda Koble and Bunny Cutler, you did a grand job with the arrangements and decorations even if the kitchen does close at two.

The new regime doesn't permit any more than a nine gulping of coffee and swallowing toast. I now have to get the alarm at the ungodly hour of 7.30. This necessitates arising at 20 minutes to seven that there will always be a margin of 10 minutes for dressing.

There are two distinct methods of accomplishing this early morning feat. The first is an orderly, sensible manner in which the attire for the next day is planned the night before. Everything is placed in layers on a convenient chair and towels, washcloth, tooth brush and paste, and comb and brush are placed in an orderly pile near at hand. In spite of this foresight, dressing with sleep laden eyes is a simple matter. But the very sensibleness of this method is untasteful to me

I much prefer a more hap hazard type of action. Thinking of what to wear the next day is a positive drudgery when you are ready to fall in bed. And so I cheerfully climb into bed and let the morning bring what it will. Surprisingly enough, it usually does. The alarm jangles loudly at 7.30. That is my cue to calmly roll for a blissful [illegible] snooze. I feel that those extra minutes of sleep in the morning are necessary for the upkeep of my so-called disposition; and therefore it is impossible to dispense with them. Pleasant things come all too soon, for 10 minutes passes [illegible] the proverbial Fords. And then the rush is on. That is, the case if the room temperature isn't so low it automatically "freezes" all action. While I am scrubbing my teeth and face I try to plan my apparel for the day. But my morning ablutions take so long a time that I never get much planning done. Besides, early morning is not for concentrated thinking or such co-operation. Consequently, it seems the best way to decide what to wear is to look in the closet and pick out the first thing my eyes light upon. There is no time to wonder whether I'll wear my "new," my "blue," or the "one on last." Once decided I find myself running in circles from the dresser to the closet and back again to the dresser. In the mad scramble I might put on two matching plaids or unmated socks. But fate is kind to those who get up early, even though providence rewards the early bird, and such calamities seldom happen. Three Teams Represent UVM In Bowling Tourney

Girls' Team Outscores the Boys; Pop Brooks Rolls 354 for "Faculty"

[illegible] was well represented last week [illegible]way Arena's annual tourna- [illegible] Pop Brooks had entered three [illegible] teams including a girls' team, [illegible] team, and a faculty team.

The girls' team was the first to bowl, and although there were no actual [illegible] the faculty was seen to get a [illegible] than the Northeast Airlines [illegible] who bowled next. "Pop," "Fuzzy," [illegible] Grosvenor, and Viens made [illegible] and Sherm Fogg garnered [illegible] total for the team.

[illegible] Bevins, Corky Hollowell, Jean [illegible] Mary Quinn, and Janice Preston made up the sharpshooting girls' team. After they had bowled, the U. V. M. boys' team followed suit, namely Ed. Boyden, Dick Hay, Johnny Rush, Bob Bennett, and Dick Long. For once, the fairer sex conquered. Yes, those girls amassed a total score which outpointed the boys by thirteen pins.

Following these team events, the tournament continued with singles and doubles events for all classes. The scores were as follows:

Girls' Singles — J. Norris, 287*; N. [illegible] 280; M. Quinn, 282; J. Preston, [illegible] C. Hollowell, 249.

Girls' Doubles—J. Norris, M. Quinn, 592; Hollowell, N. Bevins, 562; J. Preston, B. Smith, 556.

* Game totals

Boys' Singles—B. Bennett, 329; D. Hay, 322; D. Long, 316; E. Boyden 313; J. Rush, 298.

Boys' Doubles—B. Bennett, E. Boyden 682; D. Long, J. Rush, 586; D. Hay, Winchell, 580.

The faculty team—not exactly faculty—didn't do too well in singles and doubles "Pop" Brooks was the exception with a terrific high singles total of 354.

All the events are not over yet. The CYNIC is unable to publish scores of last night's bowling. Mary Quinn and Ed Boyden composed one mixed doubles team, and Jean Norris and "Pop" another. Full scores and standings will appear in Friday's issue.

Movement to Save Paper

CINCINNATI, Ohio—(ACP)—University of Cincinnati students have launched a war economy movement to save paper which, if it spreads to other campuses throughout the country, will save thousands of dollars annually, its proponents here claim.

Students will ask their professors to accept themes written on both sides of the paper—a breach of academic form heretofore considered absolutely unacceptable in best classroom circles.

Backing up their request are these facts as to sale of theme paper in Cincinnati campus bookstore: During the three month period ending December 31, the University's 10,750 students bought 200,000 sheets of theme paper, valued at about $600.

Apply the local figures to the approximately 1,300,000 college and university students throughout the nation, and the savings, if the Cincinnati plan were adopted generally, would be impressive.

Vermont Lettermen in the Service Flood Athletic Dept. With Letters

Scattered all over the face of the earth, serving in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines, past U. V. M. athletes always find time to flood the University's Athletic Department with letters and cards. Many of the more recent communiques are from fellows who left with the E. R. C.'s in February, or those who entered the armed services during the school year.

Joe Corbett, who managed last year's high-flying football team and played a bit of second base on the baseball team, as well as heading Student Government, is Ensign Joseph E. Corbett now. Corbett, who graduated in January, is stationed at Fort Schuyler, Bronx, N. Y. Joe likes things fine, although the studies and calisthenics are pretty tough, and writes, "If I keep eating and working, it won't be long before you can see me when I stand sideways."

Reno Conti, the mighty midget of the Cats' '42-43 cage squad, sends his regards to all. Private Reno, an air corps cadet, was at Atlantic City when last heard from, but probably has been shipped out to some college by now. According to Reno, the physical fitness program is certainly stiff, "not much like basketball."

Two of the E. R. C.'ers heard from were large Leo Spear and almost equally large Al Weess. Leo, who divided his time between last year's Varsity and J. V. football teams, is now stationed with the artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C. In his usual merry manner, the big fellow reports that Fort Bragg is a typical training camp, "sand and more sand." Weess wrote while still at Devens and promised to send along a letter when he received a permanent station.

Dick Healy '41, shortstop on the baseball team and also a star basketball player, is at the A. A. F. School of Applied Tactics in Orlando, Fla., in Officers' Candidate School. Dick postcards, "I've been in the army about a year and I've been across the continent twice. I'm disqualified for flying duty because of bad eyes, so I guess that explains why I could never hit a baseball."

The star of Sherry Fogg's J. V. basketball team this year, Bill Bister, is putting in his time with the air corps at Miami Beach. Besides getting his basic training, Bill seems to have found time for quite a bit of recreation, swimming (this is in Florida, not Vermont), basketball, etc. Bister, when last heard from, was waiting for an opening in a meteorology school and is probably attending said school now.

Lieut. Ed Corliss '42, with the infantry at Camp McCoy, Wis., has praise aplenty for his cross-country and track training. "Never before have I appreciated so much my track and cross-country experience at Vermont. We've been hiking from 8-15 miles every day. I've had absolutely no trouble with my legs or feet and have felt good after every hike. Cross-country was a darn good foundation for infantry training." As can be gathered from the above, Corliss was one of Archie Post's "hill-and-dalers."

Joe Corbett summed up the attitude of all in his usual effective way, "Suppose it's kind of tough not worrying about who's going on the Southern (baseball) trip this spring, but I know that if everybody pitches in it won't be long before the fellows can go down to Centennial and play ball again."

H. A. Mayforth Now a Lieut. Col.

It is now Lieut.-Col. Harold A. Mayforth of the Air Corps. Always a prominent figure in the best interests of sports in Vermont, Mayforth resigned as the high mogul of the Northern League in 1941 to enter the service with the rank of major and has been on duty in the specialist reserve at the Air Corps at Wright Field, Dayton, O. He is an air service veteran of World War I.

Colonel Mayforth was a prominent athlete at the University of Vermont and later served that institution as its graduate manager of the athletics for eight years. He also was the state's softball commissioner for two years and aided in the development of the game here.

His son, H. A. Mayforth, Jr., left the University in his sophomore year to join the mechanized cavalry.

Columbia University sophomores studying humanities are permitted to don earphones to listen to musical recordings while they learn their lessons.

Fort Hill, former home of Thomas Green Clemson, founder of Clemson College, is located at the center of the Clemson campus.

Army Air Cadets Use Gym Full Time

Many Changes There; Phys. Ed. Classes End

For the first time in the recent history of the University of Vermont, the freshman and sophomore classes are undergoing a semester without Physical Education. The program of the Physical Education Department, like so many other things, has been chopped to the ground under the axe of the army.

The department was plodding along heavily strained by the advent of the first batch of 650 air cadets, and the arrival of another 350 cadets last week, made it imperative that the University athletic program be abandoned. It looks like the gymnastic training of the last semester will be the last for the duration.

If any of the upperclassmen, or any person who was formerly acquainted with the gym happened to wander in quite by accident, I wouldn't be surprised if they didn't recognize it. The old gym has had a sorely needed overhauling to meet the needs of the air corps, and with so many uniforms wandering around it is quite possible to believe that one might have had a mental relapse. All that remains of the lower lockers, where once our athletes might congregated, to hurl unsavory linguistic compliments at "Reno," is an open space. Quite fitting for teams which once fought and will fight no more. The lockers have been moved under the gym floor, and where once mighty mother nature was symbolized by good brown earth, now lies flow boards and linoleum, the work of man. Progress! Where once the fallen heroes went to have their arches and pains kneaded and massaged, the medicine room, now stands sheet metal and gleaming chrome faucets, and some dreamy-eyed chap (not in uniform in there) might be led to believe that they were expelled by the torrents of onrushing H2O.

However, these additions of man have not completely solved the problem, for the numerical superiority of the soldiers over the lockers is something to think about and their numerical superiority over the profs is more appalling. I've often wondered what would happen if one day they decided that they didn't enjoy their exercises. One maimed prof, and a few hundred K. P. candidates. On the whole the situation between the boys in khaki and the school is most commendable, so have no fears, for we don't want you to wake up in the middle of the night, having the whole army rushing at you.

The new boys will most probably receive the same training their other buddies received. This consists of bear walking, rope climbing, running, and work on the bars. In a few weeks they'll be veritable "Atlases," if they aren't already.

We hope that the new boys find Vermont agreeable to their constitutions, for they are to ours. I know that the whole campus will try to make their stay here as pleasant as possible, and if I know the army they will take advantage of all opportunities. Good luck to you all!

Insects Winning Race

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(ACP)—In a neck and neck race for survival, man is lagging behind the ant, according to Prof. William T. Heron, a University of Minnesota psychologist.

"It seems to me that up to now the small-brained insects have been winning the race," he says.

The reason for this, he explains, is that man-made civilization has gone in cycles while ants and similar insects—flies, social beetles and bees—have continued steadily for 15,000,000 years.

Their survival is due, Heron says, to control of reproduction and strict divisions of labor, "More organized than man's in some instances." Man's civilization, however, developed because man's brain enables him to adapt himself to new situations, while ants' instinct is sufficient only [illegible]

Pvt. John J. Westeyn of Air Corps Proves To Be Very Versatile Cadet

[illegible] personalities in the [illegible] College Training Detachment the [illegible] statement at the [illegible] University of Cincinnati is Pvt. John J. Westeyn of Pasadena Cadet Private Westeyn is the man who stages the musical [illegible] given by the detachment at the Lee [illegible] and the success of the productions is due in no small measure to his training and to hidden writing radio and stage work [illegible] at that institution.

Private Westeyn who was born in Virginia but now claims California as his home has had an interesting career. With his family he lived in many different parts of the United States before choosing the west coast as a residence. "I believe the traveling about helped me," he says. "It taught me how to get along with all types of people."

He attended Leland Stanford University intending to go into medicine. "But [illegible] I wanted to earn some money," he says, "and my musical interests had always been in dramatics and writing." So he went to Pasadena to learn secrets writing from Gilmore Brown of the famous Community Playhouse. Victor Mature was a fellow student of Westeyn's as were William Holden, Wayne Morris and others. "Mature had almost no money," says Westeyn, "but even then he had points of self-confidence and was determined to stick to it. Part of the time he lived in a tent which he pitched on the Playhouse's back lawn."

The training under Gilmore Brown resulted for Westeyn in an appointment in the scenario department at the MGM studios in Culver City. "I spent two months last reading scripts," he says.

Wrote Script

After that he was given a chance to write them working with Walter Donnger on pictures for the "Dead End Kids." Sometimes they wrote only certain scenes while other writers worked on the remainder. "Mob Town" however they did in full.

"Johnny Eager" which starred Robert Taylor was Westeyn's next accomplishment and was followed by another period of more or less inaction. "That's customary in studios," he says, "and it's fun, in a way. You get to know so many interesting people, stars, producers and directors, and there's always the races at Santa Anita. If you like horses as much as I do. But I wanted something more constructive."

So he signed up at KIEV Los Angeles broadcasting station, doing what he calls "sustaining announcing," as well as writing scripts for broadcasts.

This led him by a natural process to the large radio studios at both Pasadena and Glendale where he appeared as master of ceremonies with many of the big name bands of the country as well as with important musical productions.

Musical Master of Ceremonies

The next step in his dramatic training came with his engagement as master of ceremonies on a Lambert and Marco musical presentation. Under the stage name of Jack Western he toured the entire west coast, from Seattle to San Diego. "I enjoyed that," he says, with the quiet simplicity which is as much a part of him as his charming poise. "When it ended I interested getting back to radio, but then I realized that my number was coming up, and there were things I wanted to do and see first."

So he came east and, on his very first afternoon in New York, went out to the Belmont race tracks. Horses have always been Westeyn's greatest enthusiasm outside of his work.

"I wasn't familiar with eastern race horses," he says, "but I had read about them and knew their times." So he looked them over, studied the racing forms, and made his choices. The method worked uncannily well since out of eight races he picked six winners, the other two being photo finishes, besides hitting the daily double.

But there is more to the story than that. Just at the start of one race, for which he had picked the favorite, No. 5, he glanced at his tickets only to find that by mistake the attendant had sold him two on No. 2.

"And No. 2," says Westeyn, "was a 12 year old called Emma's Pet who had never won a race in her life and looked as if she ought to be dragging a milk wagon. I was completely discouraged."

Likes Horses

He needn't have been, however, for the stars were on his side that day and Westeyn just couldn't lose. The sequel sounds like a Saturday Evening Post yarn: the favorite refusing, another good prospect being scratched, and so on to the unbelievable outcome. Emma's Pet came in ahead and paid off $42.60. No wonder Private Westeyn likes horses.

At the moment his thoughts are only on helping to win the war. But when it is over Private Westeyn knows exactly what he means to do with his life. "Pasadena again," he says, "and the Santa Anita claiming races. I intend to claim at least a few, run them on the local tracks, and then settle down to horse-breeding. It's the best kind of a life."

ROCKPORT, Mass.—(ACP)—It's a long stretch from first violin to fourth down, but Donald C. Greason, artist, has successfully bridged the gap.

Greason, whose studies of the Boston Symphony Orchestra won him fame, has concluded a folio of paintings and drawings made on the "playing fields of Harvard."

Greason sees no incongruity between his choice of subjects. Grace and Rhythm, he says, are as characteristic of football as they are of playing the viola.

A Million Free Cigarettes A Week For the Boys Over There

A regular package of 20 Chesterfields free to 50,000 men each week—a million cigarettes a week for Victory—that's Chesterfield's message of good will to fighting men at the front.

With the slogan "It's Victory Tunes for the boys over here and Victory Tunes for the boys over there," Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company makes this announcement five nights a week over the regular Fred Waring "Pleasure Time" broadcast (Mondays through Fridays on the National coast-to-coast network) and three nights a week on the Harry James program (Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Columbia coast-to-coast network).

The sending of a million Chesterfields, week after week to 50,000 men in foreign bases where smokes are hard to get and supplies not too frequent, is largely the result of the radio public's interest in Chesterfield's entertaining radio shows.

Since last November, Fred Waring has been devoting his entire 15-minute broadcast to "Victory Tunes," playing and singing songs selected by the men in the Camps and dedicating each program to one of the camps or posts. So enthusiastic has been the response to this feature that Waring has enough requests on file to occupy his salutes for months to come.

To date, eight new service songs have been written and presented by Fred Waring and so far this year 110 different camps have voted on what they wanted Waring to play and then tuned in to hear the result. The songs written include "Sky Pilots" for Naval Aviation; "Roll Tanks Roll" for the Armored Forces; "Look Out Below" for the Parachute Troops; "The Fight Quartermaster Corps"; "The Men of the Merchant Marines"; "Man to Man" for the marching soldiers of the infantry; "Anchors Navy Blue" for the Waves and "Hail to the Corps" for Marine Aviation.

Equally popular is Harry James' tribute to the men in the armed forces with his nightly feature called the "Chesterfield Special." Since Harry James' records are hard to get, he plays a "Chesterfield Special" every night over the air, so that those in the far-off spots can hear their favorites in the sensational James arrangements, played through the mike exactly as the boys would hear them on their phonographs at home.

The thousands of Service men all over the country who go slightly haywire each time Harry James goes on the air with his magic trumpet will be delighted to know that he has just been voted champion of about everything on the list.

The wizard of the Chesterfield Music Makers recently emerged from a popularity survey conducted by Radio Life, Pacific Coast fan magazine, with the following score:

1—Favorite recording artist.
2—Favorite sweet orchestra.
3—Favorite hot orchestra.
4—Helen Forrest, favorite girl singer.
5—Favorite recorded song, "I've Heard That Song Before."

Thus West meets East on even terms, for James was only recently voted America's champion dance band in a similar contest in the East, conducted by radio editors under the auspices of the New York World Telegram.

make-up are a matter of seconds and they usually look it. Then comes a brisk five block walk to breakfast through icy snow and a wind of highly refrigerated temperature. What a wonderful conditioner that is.

All this may seem like a foolish way to go about the simple problem of getting dressed. But, to me, it has several distinct advantages. First and foremost, it eliminates the pain of nightly fore-planning. Secondly, it leaves no chance of the person concerned changing into a complete automaton from an overly mechanical and orderly routine. Lastly, and best of all, its whirlwind action provides all the exercise necessary for one day and dispenses with the monotony of stupid setting-up exercises. Incidentally, I always thought those horrible exercises were more upsetting than setting up and I am happy to see them go by the board. Why should I do exercises when I can avoid them and get 10 minutes extra sleep in the morning? Yes, the second method is by far the most desirable, even in view of the fact that it presents an ever present danger of making me resemble a sloppily dressed "Raggety-Ann."

VOL. 61 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, APRIL 23, 1943 NUMBER 51

206 Will Receive Degrees at Annual Vt. Commencement

Pres. Kenneth Sills Of Bowdoin College To Be Guest Speaker

Approximately 206 degrees will be awarded at this year's annual commencement of the University of Vermont, which will take place Sunday afternoon, May 2. The present listing, which is subject to change, indicates that about ten of the degrees will be masters degrees, conferred in course, and five honorary. The remaining 191 will be bachelors degrees. Forty-six degrees mostly engineering were granted in January, and 31 medical degrees in March, bringing the total number for the year to a tentative 283.

Bishop Vedder Van Dyck of Burlington will be the chaplain of the day.

President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College will be the commencement speaker at the University of Vermont on Sunday, May 2, in the Ira Allen Chapel, when the University will hold its regular academic graduation of the year.

President Sills, who was born in Halifax, N. S., in 1879, has been president of Bowdoin since 1917. He received his A.B. from the same college in 1901, and has since received honorary degrees from the University of Maine, Bates College, Dartmouth, Colby, Williams, Bowdoin and Dalhousie University.

As a young man he was tutor and instructor of English at Harvard, Bowdoin and Columbia, and was also professor of Latin, and Winkley professor of Latin Language and literature since 1907.

He has been on the board of visitors to the U. S. Naval Academy; democratic candidate for Senator from Maine; president of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; trustee of Wellesley College, and of Athens College (Greece); trustee of Carnegie Foundation and of Worcester Academy; and delegate to the Protestant Episcopal Church World Conference in Lausanne in 1927, and in Edinburgh in 1937.

In 1911 he published "The First American, and Other Poems," and is also the author of numerous reviews. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Commencement at the university usually occupies four days, class day, alumni day, baccalaureate day, and commencement day, but this year, because of war demands, it has been reduced to one, with nearly all of the colorful adjuncts omitted. The only social function will be the president's reception, held immediately after the exercises to which students, parents, faculty and alumni are invited.

Normally a galaxy of fraternity, class and department reunions feature the commencement celebration. Although there are no formal class reunions this year some of the classes, notably the fifty year class of 1893 and the forty-five year class of 1898 will hold informal gatherings. A trustees luncheon is also scheduled to take place some time during the day.

The commencement exercises will be held at 3 in the Ira Allen chapel at 3.30 p.m. with the academic procession forming at 3.10.

Methodist College Group

There will be a special program for service men and students from 6.30-7.30 at the Methodist parsonage on Buell Street next to the Methodist Church. Everyone come for a get-together and good time.

The eight-page Commencement issue of the CYNIC will be sent to your home address during the first week of May.

WAAC Caravan in Burlington Monday

75 University Girls As Guests of Honor

Next Monday the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps will take over Burlington with a stupendous variety show, the WAAC Caravan. Top-flight stars from different Army posts in the First Command Area will take part in this extravaganza, an all-Army and all-WAAC show. Three thousand tickets are available for the evening show, and in addition there will be 75 University of Vermont girls, potential WAACs, as guests of honor.

This great attraction which has already been seen by more than 50,000 people has many feature acts. Among these are the Ft. Devens Recruit Reception Center Symphony Orchestra of forty-eight members, under the leadership of Sgt. Joseph Conti. Some of the players in this symphony formerly played with the Boston Symphony, Philadelphia Philharmonic, and Cleveland Symphony, and Pvt. Joe "Toots" Mondella was formerly with Benny Goodman's orchestra. Other acts include the Ft. Heath music sextet, Sgt. Maxie Armstrong and his 366th Infantry Privateers, the "Sea Scandals" of the Camp Edwards Engineer Amphibian Command, Sgt. Bob Moore, former Hollywood announcer, piano duet, accordion trio, dancers, soloists, string ensembles. The climax of the evening's two hour and twenty minute show will be the WAAC revue, with a line of twenty auxiliaries, and a fashion show "What the Patriotic Woman of 1943 Will Wear."

Tickets for the evening performance are available at no expense to the general public in several Burlington centres including the WAAC recruiting office. University women may obtain their tickets in the office of the Dean of Women. The seventy-five guests of honor from U. V. M. will include incoming and outgoing members of Mortar Board and Staff and Sandal, senior and junior women's honorary societies, and other campus leaders, who best exemplify the type of woman for whom the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps is eager. These seventy-five girls will have the opportunity to attend a preview and the special radio broadcast in the City Hall Auditorium at 5 p.m., followed by a buffet supper at the Memorial Auditorium. The big evening show at the Memorial Auditorium will begin at 7.30 p.m.

Mortar Board Nearer to $3,000.00

Mortar Board has been very successful in its drive for money for the Scholarship Fund, having collected $113 in two days. It is expected that that amount will swell rapidly.

Many Pro and Con Answers Received From Gallup Poll

The students and air crew men who participated in the Gallup Poll seem to have done some serious thinking. These comments below were selected to give evidence of that fact.

In reply to the question—"Do you believe that people of Nazi-conquered countries of Europe should be given food by the United States now, even if some of this food may fall into German hands?" —many interesting comments were received. Two people who voted no stated that "blockade is one of the most effective weapons" and "we must do everything to weaken and crush Hitler, even if it means suffering for ourselves and others. In controversy one girl commented that "there won't be any population left in some of these countries if we don't try to feed them. Germany will be defeated on the battlefield—not by starvation." Another believed that we should give the people a "tangible proof of our good will now, to count on their help."

The question concerned with taking steps to end discrimination against Negroes in the United States aroused much disagreement. One of the answers most supported the positive in his statement that this has been one of the screwpots of our democracy. Even Goebbels and Lord Haw Haw knew that. Another ex-serviceman wrote "Democracy is what we are fighting for." The negative

After filling out the blanks students should discuss their needs and the amount for which they are applying with the proper Dean and give him the application in person.

Francis W. Nye '41 Receives Flying Cross

Word has just been received that Francis W. Nye '41 of Barton, Vermont, arrived in the United States on April 21. As pilot of a fortress he has seen three hundred and sixty-five hours of combat duty during ten months in Africa. While there he received the Distinguished Flying Cross and he has recently been promoted to the rank of captain.

Because of illness, Bruno Castagna's concert, scheduled for April 16 has been postponed until April 30.

1,500 Tickets on Sale; All Air Corps Men And Students Expected

It has been proclaimed from all the mountaintops and valleys that there not only will be a Junior Prom, but that it will probably ... and social function spectacular on the campus in one or five decades. This modest proposition does not seem to take into account the Navy Ball in the Armistice Season of 1925 but Leon Sutter who was a sophomore then and can thus recall a few particulars.

The aforementioned unimpeachable source was just that, to Fred Walgren and Larry Kubick who have promised to take their minds off their studies long enough to get the promenade over with a loud bang.

These semi-committed individuals have set their minds to the task, but finding this wholly inadequate, they surrounded themselves with a competent committee of busy little bees. It is only a question before the bees make their appearance as we are told that sitting on cold objects will cause them. This committee is instigated to appoint a committee, which in turn will appoint a committee which will see to it that some Junior of known integrity is selected to journey to the Strong Hardware Co. (adv.) for two cans of wax.

Yes, believe it or not, the chairmen say that there is a lot of money in the Junior class treasury and the sky's the limit. We'll have wax on the floor. The chairmen also have decided that the procedure will be to wax romantic, rather than to wax facetious.

The locale has a rugged background, being in the gymnasium. Everyone has been asked to wear shoes to prevent the spread of athlete's foot. It is rumored that Bill "Scat" Roeder will put on an exhibition of foul shooting during the intermission, having received a challenge in that foulhards department from no less a personage than Prof. Lyman Rowell.

Chairman Walgren announced that the date for this never-to-be-forgotten dance is April 29 and we believe he meant 1944. The affair is to get under way at 8.30.

Hillel Celebrates Ancient Holiday

Observing the beginning of Passover, the Hillel Society celebrated this religious holiday by sponsoring services and dinner Tuesday evening, April 20, at the Hebrew Free School.

Reverend Jacob Katchmore of the Hebrew Free School presided over the ceremonies for over one hundred persons representing the aviation cadets, university men and women and townspeople.

The holiday Passover commemorates the exodus of the Jewish people from Egypt after freedom from bondage under the Pharaohs.

Among the honored guests at Tuesday night's dinner were Prof. and Mrs. Raymond Hall. Professor Hall who is Secretary of the Committee on Religious Life has shown an infinite amount of interest in Hillel and has contributed much effort toward the growth of this organization on campus.

The banquet under the chairmanship of George Siegel was the first large undertaking of its kind to be presented by Hillel and marks a definite upset in its progress. Dalia Israel who assumed the immense responsibility of obtaining food during rationing and supervised its preparation headed the food committee. Lenore Cohen ably took charge of publicity and Selma Feinberg financed

The drive to raise $3,000 for the Mary Jean Simpson Fund this semester has been quite successful up to today. The goal, however, has not been reached yet and we hope that further contributions from all the campus organizations will help Mortar Board to meet the challenge. It still remains: Raise $3,000 this semester.

To all of you who are taking exams we offer the advice of age-old experience:

The Pen Is Mightier, Or Research In N. Y.

The lions outside the New York Library are not there just for ornament. They are a symbol, and if in a wise man who takes stock of a pair of granite symbols sitting outside the building as he stands to enter.

However I walked bravely past the lions up about a hundred steps that and a ten foot door and a plan turned towards a desk marked "Information." Where I was going and how I was going to find out where I was going I didn't know, but I stumbled into an explanation of my reason for being there.

"I would like to get some information about an Elizabethan."

"Room 315."

That was all anyone was going to get out of her evidently, so I stood there running through my philosophy 1-2 impressions until I decided to try the third floor as a kind of hypothesis.

All the way up the stairs blue uniformed guards kept their eyes on me—the minute one could no longer see me another appeared to take his watch. After a time I found Room 315. It was big enough to hold all of Billings Library but the apse roof and it was completely lined with card catalogue drawers. There were many tables, but no chairs. I remember thinking that I would be very tired of standing before my research was done.

I approached a square desk in the center of the room and again stated my purpose. Then the questioning began.

"Is this school work? What school? Have you anything to SHOW that you go there? Perhaps a bursar's receipt?"

I opened my pocketbook with more hope than trust and my tears were justified. I had absolutely nothing to show that I had ever been in the state of Vermont, let alone having gone to school there. I had a little card citing the fact that I had hospitalization insurance, and I had half of a round trip ticket to Troy, which, as I explained to the man, is on the way to Burlington; but that was all.

The desk clerk finally told me that he was sorry, but powerless. "You might try the main office," he said reluctantly as I turned away.

So I tried the main office. I sat in the center of the mainest part of it for forty-five minutes, at the end of which time a young, smiling man hurried up to me, nodded his head at the ticket to Troy and made me out a slip entitling me to go anywhere from behind the counter with my desk clerk to the Room of Terms on the seventh floor.

The look on the desk clerk's face when I presented the little slip, would have made Sherlock Holmes feel at ease and that refreshed me considerably.

An hour later I had my first book. During the time that had elapsed I had made out four slips, taking them back for correction each time, and I had sat with a numbered card in my hand waiting to see that number flashed before me on a large electric sign. During the time I waited there, invisible hands were finding my book, counting its pages, and probably having a little farewell service over it. It reached me by means of its own little elevator and another librarian who had a regretful shadow over his face as he handed the book to me.

My book was a very old one, but in good condition and I thought that when I took it back to the desk intact that my stock might go up a bit. In fact, as I went about getting the next book I needed I felt quite as though I had conquered the whole affair. My favorite desk clerk could find no fault with the call slip I had made out, and his assistant, who was in charge of handing out the little number cards, gave me mine in two minutes flat.

I went over to the electric sign nonchalantly feeling like something between a scientist and the president of the Rockefeller Research Foundation. I held my card out in an off hand manner when its number was flashed, looking up to the balcony as I did so.

"There's a — a little matter about this slip, — a," said the librarian, in a delicate voice. "You see, the Encyclopedia you asked for, although old, has quite a few volumes, and we would rather not send it all up at once. Would you mind indicating on your slip which volume you would like to see first?"

Something died in me then, something that was between a scholar and the president of the Rockefeller Foundation. I left the library soon afterwards, by the side entrance, the one farthest removed from the lions.

Dear Editor

The challenge to the 1943 Mortar Board to raise $3,000 for its Mary Jean Simpson Fund is not so much of a challenge to Mortar Board as to the student body and student organization. The girls have started this fund, a scholarship for the boys who will want to return to college after the war, they worked secretly for it and got it well under way. Now they have announced their project to the University and the students must respond.

So far the donations have amounted to about $100. This is far below their expectations. The Campus Sing gave $25. This should really be a challenge. The girls feel that if a tiny little organization like Campus Sing can give $25 the larger groups with more finances can afford to give proportionately much larger amounts. Pi Beta Phi sorority gave $50. Other groups have given smaller amounts to bring the total so far to $100.

However it is certainly hoped that there will be more contributions in the next week. This secret project of Mortar Board certainly should appeal to the students. The boys should want to swell this fund for their own help after the war and the girls will surely want the men students to be enabled to come back. College students must prove their worth at a time like this. Organizations which do not conform to this idea have no business existing in war time.

Student Gov't Has Cut System Plans

The meeting was opened at 4.15 p.m. by President Robert White in the North Conference room of the Waterman. The roll call was read.

Mary Perry presented a definite cutting system for the University, which although not voted upon, was looked upon favorably by the council and executive committee. It was suggested that the cutting system be published in the CYNIC to call forth the students' opinions or objections and to be read at the Student Union mass meeting, April 21.

The system, as presented, was this:

Freshmen, first semester, to be allowed one cut in each course regardless of the number of credit hours in that course. Freshmen, second semester, who are on Dean's list, to be allowed as many cuts in each course as the number of credit hours in that course.

Sophomores, not on Dean's list—to be allowed as many cuts in each course as the number of credit hours in that course. Sophomores, on Dean's list to be allowed one cut more than the number of credit hours in that course.

Juniors, not on Dean's list—to be allowed one cut more than the number of credit hours in that course. Juniors, on Dean's list to be allowed two cuts more than the number of credit hours in that course.

Seniors, not on Dean's list—to be allowed two cuts more than the number of credit hours in that course. Seniors, on Dean's list to be allowed unlimited cuts.

The next regular meeting will be held Tuesday, April 27, at 5.00 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
BARBARA A. BURNHAM,
Secretary of Student Government.

Cadet Major John W. Niemi Receives Loyal Legion Saber

[illegible] sighs of relief and satisfaction [illegible] awaited Federal Inspection [illegible] Vermont R. O. T. C. Infantry [illegible] concluded yesterday noon [illegible] with a presentation of military awards to outstanding battalion members.

The ceremony ended the two-day program that included an hour-and-a-half review and inspection, held on the back campus and inspecting officer Lieutenant Colonel [illegible] H. Crawthorne, of the University of New Hampshire, several theoretical and practical tests in the gym, and a "field problem," a sham battle over local terrain.

For the hardy few who braved the elements to witness it, Wednesday morning's formation, and the drill that followed it proved to be a colorful spectacle. It started as the three R. O. T. C. companies, led by the R. O. T. C. band, passed in review, continued with the personal inspection of every man in the battalion by Colonel Crawthorne and finished with a drill (Company "A" drilling as a company, Company "B" drilling in platoons and squads, and Company "C" demonstrating extended order drill.)

The final formation, yesterday morning's awards ceremony, began with a session by the band, under the direction of Joe Lechnyr, this was followed by the presentation of awards and then the band played the National Anthem.

Announcement of awards was made by Cadet Major J. W. Niemi, and started as the visiting inspecting officer, Colonel Crawthorne, awarded the William Randolph Hearst medals to members of the rifle team. L. A. Weaver, Jr., H. E. Crossley, Jr., G. J. Holden, Jr., D. C. Burritt, and C. F. Preston, Jr. High individual scorer of this group was L. A. Weaver, Jr. Next came the presentation of the New England Rifle League Championship Team Award by President John S. Millis, and this went to L. A. Weaver, Jr., H. E. Crossley, Jr., G. J. Holden, Jr., D. C. Burritt, and C. F. Preston, Jr. High individual scorer was again L. A. Weaver, Jr.

Following this, the Loyal Legion Award, the Loyal Legion Saber, a regulation commissioned officers' saber, suitably inscribed, which has been presented annually since 1931 by the Vermont Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion to that student of the graduating class who attains the highest [illegible] standing in the Infantry Drill Course, was presented to John W. Niemi, Cadet Major, by Judge Joseph [illegible] Sherrin.

H. E. Crossley, Jr., on behalf of the Sons of the American Revolution of Vermont, gave one of the American Revolution medals to the following: Robert M. Leach, sergeant; Robert P. Gove, corporal; George P. Rubin, sophomore; and Luke K. Holden, freshman. These medals had been presented here first by the Vermont Society Sons of the American Revolution to one member of each class in the R. O. T. C. who is outstanding in character, conduct, leadership, and in theoretical and practical knowledge of the year's course. These medals are of nation-wide standard pattern. The stated purpose of the award is to keep before the minds of the young men of today in order that they may be encouraged to exemplify them in practice, those qualities and characteristics upon which our nation was founded and has been perpetuated.

The American Legion Trophy, a mounted silver shield annually awarded to the R. O. T. C. Company which shows itself to be the most proficient in attendance, neatness, set-up, and drill was presented to Company "A" commanded by Cadet Captain Robert Doherty by Mr. Charles A. Root, Commander, Burlington Post No. 2, American Legion.

War Also Changes Advanced Military And ROTC Subjects

Some Courses Added; Others Intensified; All Are Speeded Up

At the [illegible] year of 1942-43 draws rapidly to a close, one finds the ROTC units [illegible] of the University of Vermont closing what will be three and one-half years since the day that found the R. O. T. C. and the Advance Military Corps greatly [illegible]. The R. O. T. C. has had many of its starting members graduated, yet the regular units and the remaining members have been given the most intensified course ever used at this University. Everything has been speeded up, and many new methods of instruction have been added. Map reading, tactical problems, military history, drilling, artillery and guerrilla warfare have all prepared the R. O. T. C. boys for their future service. The advanced boys have also had their courses intensified, and they are better equipped to enter the army as officers than probably any other Vermont class. They have had excellent training in leadership through leading the basic R. O. T. C. boys in their daily drillings and tactical problems. They have had classroom lectures on military procedure six days a week, and practical experience in the handling of all types of weapons.

After the end of this semester all the advanced military students will enter the armed services. The senior officers, who will graduate, will be sent to an officers' school for a three month training period. At the end of this period they will receive the gold bars of a second lieutenant and will be sent to stations throughout the country. Although the battalion at Vermont is composed of infantry only, when these boys are sent out to school they may be sent to schools of other branches of the army.

The junior officers, who will not graduate, will be taken into the regular army for a thirteen week basic training period. At the end of this period they will be sent to officers' candidate schools. The members of the basic R. O. T. C. and the Enlisted Reserve Corps will be taken into the army to privates; however, it is highly probable that they soon may qualify for officers' candidate school because of their former training. Their grades in R. O. T. C. will probably heavily influence the decision.

Next year because the conditions of war will have completely removed the male personnel of the University, there will be no advanced military courses. However, as there will be an incoming male freshman class, although small, there will be a basic R. O. T. C. unit. This unit will prepare the student for the forthcoming military duty which will then be almost a certainty.

Library Notes

Once more the University of Vermont is indebted to the Billings family. It was Mr. Frederick Billings who gave us our library of which we are so proud and just recently his granddaughter, Mrs. John McDill of Woodstock presented the library with a beautifully bound set of Darwin's books.

"Masters of Mobile Warfare," a new book just recently published by the Princeton University Press, is of extreme interest to the University of Vermont. For Colonel Elbridge Colby, the author was at one time Commandant of the Military Department here at the University and has honored us by dedicating this book

"To the University of Vermont for some of whose students some of this material was prepared"

"Masters of Mobile Warfare" will undoubtedly contribute to our military strategy.

Dorm Notes

[illegible] evening and [illegible] all well again, thank you. Annette Libby tried to make us believe she has the measles but we think it was just because she wanted her picture in bed. Olive had some trouble [illegible] but we bet it was a thrill anyway.

Ken Swain just thought she'd like a mention in the notes. Her address is the same as the week end house for bankers. Send her any more Buck Rogers all well and [illegible] again.

Something all sailors [illegible] we were given to the [illegible]. Pauline [illegible] Dan [illegible] I know there was still [illegible] a little girl—I mean a little girl with a [illegible]. Pauline wears the wave and waves on.

Saturday night Carol Chase went home with her brothers. Just how many brothers have we got Chase? The car was full. The girl across [illegible] from Texas [illegible] this. It wasn't cheese [illegible] but she guessed it was delicious.

Those who were at the Cottage over the week end had quite an exciting time we understand—what a week end! Let her there's only one more week end left of it!

Last one more week end then "au revoir" for some of us and just "so long" for others. You wanna know where we're going to be this summer? Well, you see it's like this—everything is uncertain at this [illegible] but some plans have been made. Annette Libby has [illegible] position at Lakeside South Hotel. Olive's looking for a cook's [illegible]. Know anyone who can cook? Just call 3665 and ask for Annette.

Some of the girls are not going to leave Converse Cottage this summer but are going to continue to call it "home" and Mrs Converse "mother." Kay Deane and Peg Lake, formerly a resident are going to instruct [illegible] the cadets.

We even have a prospective defense worker. Hattie Lou expects to have a position helping carry on the job in her home town, Springfield.

when Ali Amer sets the mood by sounding Middle C on his pitchpipe. Ali is working out daily to build up his wind for the occasion.

The orchestra is as yet unannounced, but it seems that Vinnie Mangoney is in New York making negotiations for an All Star band featuring such luminaries as Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Woody Herman, Harry James, Gene Krupa and Red Ingle. If they have trouble making train connections, the second best will be obtained in Lefty Gourd and his Chuck Wagon Riders straight from East South Colchester. In case these boys are auditioning for NBC, Bill Benoit has promised to beat out the rhythm with his left foot.

Perhaps the most encouraging factor which looks well for the success of this venture is that the 1400 air crew men here will be given the night off to brush up on their tactics and latest maneuvers. Some of these underlings consider the old techniques fully as effective as the latest however and may brush the cobwebs off same. It is high time for you airmen to operate so get busy on the wave for that big night.

A big send off has been left in the receiving line with the fast coming [illegible] of Rene La Croix superintendent of the boiler room in the gymnasium to chaperone the party. It seems that Rene is being held over another week at Bernardin's restaurant. Posters are being sent out to induce Ava Ekwense Jr. to lend dignity and bonnet-ence to the reception line.

Hazen Paterson has spiked all rumors to the effect that he was going to pass among the dancing couples selling fig newtons.

Tickets are now on advance sale. Get them quick before they are all sold. We have only a few left and many of these are counterfeit. So hurry. The fare is $1.65 which is reasonable at one-fourth the price.

Let's overcome jim in an appearance even if it's only to watch Mike Spring in respondent raiment glide smoothly over the gym floor. As Fat Lynch and his time-loving musical cohorts would say "Come and dig it coming back Jack while Fat gets her with helium."

Little Sisters to Be Given Away, Hurry!

Will all girls who would like to be "Big Sisters" please sign on the notice in either the Y room or the Physical Education board up on the landing between the two floors and the cafeteria in the Waterman. Please sign right away so that you can be contacted this summer.

Thank you.

Summer Projects To Help the War

Rural Centers Ask for Students This Summer

Want to do your part this summer in helping to win the war. This is a question which need not be asked because for those students who have not made their plans for this summer it is already uppermost in their minds. Some students have already made arrangements to work in a defense plant, to attend school, or some other activity which is allied with the war effort.

For those who have not made their plans they should realize the needs of communities and the services which they can render in various fields of work. The shortage of man power in agriculture is a serious handicap and provides opportunity for students to work all summer. The National Student Council of the Young Women's Christian Association is sponsoring a program whereby the call for summer help will be answered. They have made plans to supply agriculture, industry and community service in districts where there is the greatest need. Their general plan is to place thirty to fifty students in a community where they will work for ten weeks. They will work at regular jobs on farms, in factories, shops, offices, or community agencies, drawing the usual wages for this work. Three sessions per week will be devoted to the discussion of social, economic, political and religious problems of community life. In the economic field there will be great opportunity to apply the practical knowledge of the academic courses taken in college and such questions as How many hours should one work?; What constitutes a living wage?; Why are farm wages so low while food prices are so high?; and similar problems will be answered and made more clear.

In the rural centers, students will live cooperatively together and will be taken each day to farms where they will do dairying, truck gardening, poultry work, or fruit picking. There are tentative plans for such projects being made in California, Missouri, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Ohio, Wisconsin, Connecticut, and New York.

These projects are running from June 18 to August 28 covering a period of about ten weeks. The membership of these projects will be through application and recommendation of the college faculty. There is a slight registration fee of $15.00 which will be covered by the wages earned before the end of the ten weeks is up. For application to this type of work, Miss Fern Babcock, 640 Lexington Avenue, New York City, can furnish you and she will also send further information.

The Emergency Service Committee of the National Pilgrim Fellowship is also sponsoring a plan whereby students may offer their services where they are most needed. They have projects in New York, Vermont, and Connecticut as well as in Ohio and California. Their work offered is not limited to agriculture and industry but deals with playground work, church services, youth work, recreational activities and study of America's agrarian problems. There will be harvesting of crops and general farm work with farm families. For further information relative to the Emergency Service Committee, it may be obtained from Ross Cannon, Room 805, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

They Give Their Lives! You Lend Your Money!

Remember the girl that sat next to you in history class—he's asking for your help. Every war stamp and bond that you buy will help to make him the smartest looking soldier in Uncle Sam's Army. Vermont has pledged $1,[illegible]. Every cent U. V. M. students put into war stamps and bonds will help to outfit our fellow students and alumni. Show your appreciation. "They give their lives—You lend your money"!!!

Don't just walk past the girl selling stamps near the entrance on the first floor of the Waterman Building. Give up that extra package of cigarettes, and that ice cream cone between classes break your "piggy" bank and stop hoarding all your change—Uncle Sam can use it, and so can our boys.

the National Winter Intercollegiate Archery Contest U. V. M. placed thirteenth. The Pi Phis collected the badminton, basketball, and bowling cups. The Tri Delts won the cup for the largest percentage of participation during the 1942-43 season. Emmy Craven carried off the ping pong cup and honors for Grassmount.

Emblems were awarded to five seniors—Mary Louis Hart, Abbie Fritche, Jean Norris, Margaret Wishart—to eight juniors—Dorothy Bullard, Pat Crowley, Julia Fletcher, Barbara Hall, Jeanne Knickerbocker, Hilda Lund, Margaret McElfish, Margaret Palmer—, to eight sophomores—Barbara Burnham, Jeanne Bull, Joyce Byington, Sylvia Hendershot, Jeanne Hotchkiss, Barbara Kennob, Alice Rowe, Betty Ritchie—, and to four freshmen—Peggy Donnelly, Mary Greene, Anne Hoos, and Pat Paterson.

The club gave Miss Crowe, Miss Cummings, Miss Hoffman, and Phyllis Savage gifts as a token of thanks for their part in making W. A. A. a success.

Recognition is due to the committee which helped to make the banquet the crowning event of the club year. Alice Rowe and Mary Greene assisted by Marjorie Abell, Penelope Easton, Alida White, Norma Charest, Rosamond Hughes, and Ruth Jordan were in charge of the food. The program and awards were arranged by Priscilla Perkins and Rachel Giddings. Decorations were made by Margery Anthony and Elizabeth Neass; and publicity by Peggy Palmer and Pat Paterson.

The club takes this opportunity to publicly thank Miss Crowe for her untiring, cheerful work in the Physical Education Department. Miss Crowe will join the WAVES this summer.

Don't Forget Quarters For Mailing of Ariel

It was stated by Paul Walgren, business manager of the 1944 Ariel, that the year book will come out in June. If you want yours sent to your home please leave your name and address plus 25c at the book store before you leave. If you return for summer session and pick up your own book at the book store, your money will be refunded on presentation of your receipt.

was upheld by two senior girls. One said "Too much ill feeling and it wouldn't make any difference in our prestige." The other—"Our first job is to win the war, not replace white workmen with incompetent colored men just to give them equal rights."

Should all able-bodied Americans be guaranteed jobs and social security as well as political rights? Opinions on this query were fairly well divided. One person believed that we would or "otherwise we will have a large body of discontented citizens, who will be good material for a sort of 'ism' propaganda—probably communist."

Another supported this proposition but thought that "this is too idealistic! What good would it do to 'guarantee' a job if the guarante can't be fulfilled?" One man contradicted with saying that "More people would just wait around for a job instead of studying and preparing for any job." Another expressed that "this would in effect be establishing fascism and would be the ultimate defeat of our system."

These are but a few of the interesting answers received from the Poll. However, the returns were not too numerous and more cooperation could have been given by the student body because they will represent the opinion of U. V. M.

RAISE THE TOTAL!

The Sigma Gammas wish to announce that they have sold in the month since they have taken over from the Sophomore Aides $181.40 worth of defense bonds and stamps. They hope with everyone's help to attain a total of at least $250 worth before the year's out. Let's get busy!

Will all the girls who have tutored this year under the Mortar Board tutorial system, please give their bills to Helena Anderson by Tuesday.

There will be an Air Force Appreciation dance April 30, from 8-12 p.m., in the Memorial Auditorium. A New York band will play. Sign up in the Y room.

Dorm Notes

Hello again—How's everything and everybody? We're all well again, thank you! Annette Lilley tried to make us believe she had the measles but we think it was just because she wanted her dinner on bed. "You had your breakfast in bed before—but you can't have it there any more."

Kay Doane also thought she'd like a vacation so she packs her suitcase in the middle of the week and heads for Bakersfield but she came back Sunday all well and happy again.

Speaking of suitcases reminds me — we went down to the terminal Friday to meet Libbie's sister, Pauline Day. The first thing I knew there was suitcase with a little girl—I mean a little girl with a suitcase. Pauline spent the week-end with us.

Saturday night Shirl Chagnon went home with her brothers. Just how many brothers have you got, Shirl? The car was full! She got some cactus candy from Texas t'other day. It wasn't chocolate but she passed it nevertheless.

Those who were at the Cottage over the week-end had quite an exciting time we understand—what a week-end! Too bad there's only one more week-end left, girls!

Only one more week-end then "au revoir" for some of us and just "so long" for others. You wanna know where we're gonna be this summer? Well—one see-it's like this—everything is uncertain in this hectic world but some plans have been made. Annette Lilley has her same position at Lakeside, South Hero. (She's looking for a cook, girls! Know anyone who can cook? Just call 3465 and ask for Annette!)

Some of the girls are not going to leave Dresser Cottage this summer but are going to continue to call it "home" and Mrs. Dresser, "mother." Kay Doane and Peg Fake, formerly a resident, are going to instruct (?) the cadets.

We even have a prospective defense worker. Dottie Day expects to have a position helping carry on the job in her home town, Springfield.

A big void has been left in the receiving line with the last-minute refusal of Rene La Crosse, superintendent of the boiler room in the gymnasium, to chaperone the party. It seems that Rene is being held over another week at Bernardini's restaurant. Feelers are being sent out to induce Asa Bloomer, Jr., to lend dignity and benevolence to the reception line.

Biagio Palermo has spiked all rumors to the effect that he was going to pass among the dancing couples selling fig newtons.

Tickets are now on advance sale. Get them quickly, before they are all sold. We have only 1,500 left and three of those are promised. So hurry! The fare is $1.65, which is reasonable at one-fourth the price.

Junior Prom Ends The Year's Social Events at Vermont

Students and Soldiers Enjoy Annual Dance In Colorful Gymnasium

On April 29 the S.S. Junior Prom sailed again. With the floors waxed, the gangplank lowered, the flags waving on the orchestra's deck, and with the ship's officers at their posts in the cloak room and at the ticket desk, the last formal dance of the year made its debut. The chaperones, Professor and Mrs. Witham, Mrs. Simpson, Lieutnant Schwartz, and Professor and Mrs. Dean greeted the guests as they left the upper deck.

The students and the soldiers were well mixed, making the whole a very congenial group. The girls' spring formal dresses made the crew very colorful and though the number of male students has been depleted considerably, there were almost as many "tucks and tails" as there were uniforms.

The Barbarians from Barre assisted Bill Scott in tapping out the rhythm. They moved the dancers to their soft, slow, strokes and rocked the ship with their excellent time. The army fellows, though not singing all day, were kind hearted and joined in with the band on the Air Corps song. Their own selection, No. 17 in the Big Song Book, was rendered as an encore, a very brief one. Everyone sang with the band when they played "Roll Out the Barrel," inspired perhaps by the nautical atmosphere and perhaps not.

There were some post-graduates at the dance too. It seemed good to see them and with Sonny Lewkowiez wearing the spotlight it was possible to almost everyone.

At intermission some of the couples raced over to the Howard Johnson in the Five Corner and others found Biagio Cassano on board strip with his merchandise of cakes and ginger ale—a necessary perhaps!

And so the evening rolled on and everyone seemed to enjoy himself. Much of the credit for the success of the S.S. Junior Prom goes to Paul Walgren, Lawrence Jordan Kulbok, and others who attempted to furnish mermaids, and other maritime life at the further end of the boat.

Thus the college year ended with the Junior Prom followed by the Air Corps dance Friday night.

Air Corps Dance Declared a Success

"A good time was had by all," was unanimously agreed by all who attended the Army Air Corps Appreciation Dance last Friday evening in the Memorial Auditorium. Some 1,000 boys and girls danced to the music of Red Dower and his orchestra from 8 until 12.

A special feature of the evening was the V. M. Trio consisting of "Trit" Hooker, Betty Farnsworth and Mary Lib Kent. They rendered several numbers which were greatly enjoyed by the dancers.

Then the Air Corps men organized a March which was followed by a line.

For intermission a little entertainment furnished by the men themselves who demonstrated their musical abilities as pianists, a singer and a drummer, created.

The chaperones were representatives of the college Air Force and the U. V. M. girls really had a good time and that the Air Corps men have shown their appreciation. Even though this group will not be here when we are back to school they will all have the friends they made and the memories they had

Seniors Speak at Short Class Day

Pledge to Maintain Ideals of University

The one hundred and fifty-second Commencement of the University of Vermont closed that busy college

And graduates of next day said that the important things were the same. Graduates were approximately the same size, they wore caps and gowns as other graduates have for so many years, the speakers "Commencement" but there was a difference. The key note to the whole change was the color scheme on the Class Day program and white and blue. The graduating class was predominantly women. Many men who expected degrees naturally were absent, they were not at war and gone but the uniforms of the armed services. Those men fortunate enough to be able to remain this week even tomorrow will be doffing the grad caps and gowns for a uniform.

In the Class Day exercises Janet Hackwell's Ira Allen Oration had a two-fold purpose. Like our graduation day, but a week ago, Founder's Day, and on which to pay the highest tribute to Ira Allen, the founder of the University of Vermont. Miss Hackwell in speaking of Ira Allen said that Ira Allen had never received much recognition, except in the pages of the State where [illegible]

Mary Jean Simpson Fund Well Started

Far-Sighted Project Begun by '43 Girls

Mortar Board, the woman's senior honorary society at U. V. M., certainly has had a worthy project this year. They have become far-sighted and originated a scholarship fund for the benefit of our boys in the service.

The Mary Jean Simpson Scholarship Fund, as it is called in honor of our beloved Dean of Women, Miss Mary Jean Simpson, is to be a scholarship awarded to any worthy boy who attended the University and had to enter the armed forces before his graduation. Until the war is over the money will be invested in War Bonds, thus serving a double purpose.

Several weeks ago the Cynic challenged Mortar Board to start a drive for a $3000 goal by the end of the semester. Mortar Board took up the challenge and has nearly reached that goal. They contacted all clubs and organizations on the campus. The results were very gratifying indeed, a sum of $2,500 having already been raised. Big events the result of efforts by campus organizations and alumnae are as follows: Mortar Board, Alpha Xi Delta, Sigma Gamma, Kappa Sigma, Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Alpha

John S. Millis, The University Weathers the Crises Under Him

When John Schoff Millis became president of the University of Vermont in early November of 1941, the Burlington Free Press commented after an interview with him, "If President Millis had any qualms about the future, he certainly did not give any such indication. He looked as though he were ready for anything that might happen and had no fear about handling it." Dr. Paul C. Packer temporary president for two months prior to the arrival of Mr. Millis departed saying, "I'm happy about the whole thing. With the help the state Legislature has given the University and the loyalty of the alumni body, I'm sure everything is back on the right road and the University will continue to grow and progress under Millis." The editor of the 1941 Cynic, Edwin Bardeau said in an editorial, "We hope that Saturday's events were the turning point in Vermont's long years. We hope that President Millis will begin the first two years of his academic and executive work which face University in greater needs." And so the arrival of President Millis two years ago signified a great step forward in the advent of a new period of advancement for the University. The Free Press said something about looking forward to a second 150 years of service. Yet there was a modest and timely appreciation of the necessities that lay before him. They realized their own responsibilities. Editor Bardeau wrote, "Obviously one man cannot accomplish this task alone. So here we are back on the door-steps of the students and faculty again. Not only must they back the new president in his task—they must also be the ones to formulate suggestions and pass harsh to constructive criticism."

Mr. Millis, one of the youngest college presidents in the country, became the University's fourteenth president at the age of 38. He was born November 22 at Palo Alto, Calif., the son of Harry Alvin and Alice May Millis. His father was a professor of Economics at the University of Chicago and is today chairman of the National Labors Relations Board. Mr. Millis attended the University of Chicago and graduated with a B.S. degree in 1924 a mathematics major. He received his Master of Science degree in 1927 and became a Doctor of Philosophy in 1930 both degrees were in the field of Economics.

He married Katherine Boudinot Weaver of Baltimore, Md. on June 14, 1929. She graduated Bachelor of Arts from Goucher College and Master of Arts at Columbia. They have children, Ann Jean 11, Alice Gertrude 9, and Henry Wood 6.

Mr. Millis was an athletic coach at Hyde School in Indiana 1924-26. In college he was a "fourth or fifth stringer" in

War Conference To Be Sponsored

A national conference of American [illegible] and college students to discuss post-war problems and consider [illegible] war organization will be held under the sponsorship of the United States Student Assembly in New York City on May 7, 8 and 9.

Discussion at the conference is expected to revolve about such questions as U. S. foreign policy as exemplified by our State Department's activities in North Africa and our relations with the Soviet Union. International post-war organization will be considered at length. The National Resources Planning Board report and the problem of race relations in the United States will serve as focal points of the discussion of domestic politics.

Delegates to the conference are being selected by college groups throughout the country. Eligible are representatives of such groups as a college's War Council, International Relations Club, post-war discussion group, political association or college press. Each college will be allowed three delegates. Observers, without voting privileges, are welcome. Persons interested in attending are invited to write to Bill Leuchtenburg, the United States Student Assembly at 8 West 40th Street, New York City.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

In view of the fact that there will be very few boys enrolled this fall, the Pep Committee of the Student Government will sponsor a Co-ed Band under the leadership of Mr. Lechnyr. All girls who play band instruments are asked to bring them when they return to school in October.

Come on girls—let's make a real band. Someone has to play "Cotton Babes" war or no war!

[illegible] last column even though it is [illegible] a rather solemn task especially when [illegible] last sports page for some time [illegible]

[illegible] we would like to thank sincerely our [illegible] Bob Stahl and Jerry Dubinsky who [illegible] their cooperation [illegible] have been [illegible] work and excellent cooperation. They deserve the credit for [illegible] sports page going under trying conditions. Then also our editor Allen [illegible] and often wrote articles at the last minute [illegible] when all the rest [illegible] was looking.

[illegible] to thank Whitey Killick of the Free Press for his services as [illegible] a regular job for him it seems. Also the Physical Education Department [illegible] Athletic Department were very cooperative and co-operated and their [illegible] appreciated very much.

[illegible] must go to Editor Jake Katz and Dennis [illegible] for their [illegible] assistance reading galleys and kindly criticism [illegible] sports department [illegible] newspaper work.

[illegible] finally, thanks to everybody for the friendly reception [illegible] sports [illegible] events. Not once did anyone criticize or gripe. That is what you call real [illegible] spirit.

[illegible] look back over the four years the dreams and ambitions [illegible] Vermont as compared to something intangible that remains with us [illegible] perhaps best explained by Larry Gardner when, while talking to one of the [illegible] he said that it is not taking men who come to Vermont as good athletes and [illegible] them into a championship team, but rather it is taking untrained boys and [illegible] with them until they develop into finished and smooth players, even though [illegible] over the team just as they reach perfection, that gives him and us doubt as to [illegible] duties here at Vermont, the greatest satisfaction.

That is the attitude that all our coaches impart on this campus. They all show so much enjoyment they get from working with the fellows and we know the boys feel that way about working with them.

We would like to take this opportunity to express our gratitude to Archie Post for his excellent guidance in our three years of running. His interest, perseverance and patience show how well he loves the sport, and he imparts the same feeling for [illegible] into all those who come under his tuteiege. Besides all this, he has been a fine example to the students as a man and a fellow athlete.

Most of our men have joined some branch of the armed service and the rest will soon take their assigned places, either in active service, in war jobs or in school ready for the service. General Montgomery said to his men just before their drive across North Africa words to this effect, that when two armies of equal strength and training meet it is the one that is in the best physical condition is the general to prevail. We believe that the physical training gained by our students in sports and [illegible] will stand them in good stead in their respective jobs. If this is true we are sure that the athletic department will feel that they have done their part in contributing to the big fight. We know they have.

Closing the last column on the last sports page for the duration is not a very happy thing but we know that when the war is over, the old Vermont love and spirit will [illegible] and we will be back to our campus and that Vermont will again shine on the athletic fields [illegible] the CYNIC will again show such headlines as "Vermont Wins Five State Championships." Good luck to everyone and so long till we meet again.

August Childs as Private Relates His Sudden Death

Stuttering Sergeants, Non-Fitting Clothes Enhance Army Life

I guess all of the fellows who made the world safe for Democracy. What a crazy thing that was. I fought and fought, but I had to go anyway. I was called in class A. The next time I went to be in class "B"—he here when they go and be here when they come back.

I remember when I registered. I went to the desk and my milkman was in charge. He said, "What's your name?" I told him August Childs. He said, "Are you an alien?" "No!" I replied. "I feel fine." Then he said, "When did you first see the light of day?" I said, "When I opened my eyes in Philadelphia." He asked me how old I was and I told him. In the first of September. He said, "The first of September you'll be in Australia and that will be the end of August." A veterinary started to examine me. He asked if I had ever had the measles, smallpox, St. Vitus dance, and if I took gas. I said, "No, only when I stay in a closed car long." Then he listened around my chest and said, "I think you have a heart somewhere." "Want my neck, that's a button on your ear," I said. The doctor said he had examined some 14,000 men and that I was the worst physical wreck that he had examined. Then he handed me a card class "A" and I went to camp.

I guess they didn't think I'd live long; the first fellow I met on the yard. Flying Corps." I went a little further and some guy said, "Look what the wind is blowing in." I said, "Wind nothing, it's the draft." On the second morning they put the clothing on me. What an outfit; as soon as you are in it, you think you can lick anybody. They have two sizes—too large and too small. The pants are too tight, I can't sit down. The shoes are so big that I turned around three times and they didn't move. And what a raincoat they gave me, it strained the rain. I passed an officer all dressed with a fancy belt and all that stuff. He said, calling after me, "Didn't you see what I have on," I said, "Yes, what the hell are you kicking about look what they gave me." I started to camp with $75; in 10 minutes I was broke. I never saw so many threes and twelves—not a pair at dice. No matter what I did I was broke. Something went wrong even in cards. One time I got five aces and was afraid to bid. A darn good thing, the fellow next to me said, "We're playing pinochle." Everybody and everything is crazy. "If you're a livery hand, you're put in the medical department; if you're a watchman, you are made officer of the day.

I saw a man with a wooden leg and asked him what he was doing in the Army. He said "I'm going to mash potatoes." Oh, it was nice, five below zero one morning and they called us out for underwear inspection. You talk about sweaters—red flannels, B. V. D.'s—all kinds. The union suit I had on would fit Tom Thumb. The lieutenant lined us all up and told me to stand up. "I am up with the underwear that make you think I'm sitting down." He got so mad he put me out digging ditches. A little while later he passed and said, "Don't throw that dirt on there." I said, "Where am I to throw it?" He said, "Dig another hole and put it in there." By that time I was pretty mad so I drank a quart of whisky.

Three days later we sailed for Australia. Marching down the pier I had some mixed feelings. I had a sergeant that stuttered so much it took him so long to say [illegible] so that if it was marched overboard. They pulled us out and a captain came along and said, "Did it?" I replied that I had just not.

I was on the boat two days. I stayed over the railing all the time. By the middle of one of the boat trips the captain crawled up to me and said, "What company are you in?" I said, "I'm all by myself." Then he asked me if the bracelet was up yet. I said, "If I swallowed it, it's up."

It Happened Feb. 17, 1943

[illegible] the world's fight for free mankind, the Army Air Force was established in the campus of the University of Vermont today and the initial 17 Flying Training Command personnel assigned here to head the newly instigated college training program for aviation cadets.

The new program as announced recently by the War Department will see thousands of cadet reserves inducted immediately into colleges from coast to coast for academic and military courses prior to their actual training. After the program is under way, the students will take a five-month course.

A limited flying program will be conducted for all students in cooperation with the CAA War Training Service.

The detachment at U. V. M., one of the many selected colleges, will be headed by Capt. Allen F. Ernst, Air Force Commandant, who arrived here today. No announcement as to the number of future wingmen to be stationed here could be made at this time, he said.

The training schedule, which will be conducted without interruption to the regular college curriculum at the University of Vermont, will fall into four [illegible] academic subjects, physical and flying. The purpose of the program will be to better prepare pre-flight training in the AAF Flying Training Command and thereby vastly reduce costly eliminations.

Students will be enrolled as privates and remain such until the completion of the course, at which time they will be sent to one of the Flying Training Commands Classification Centers as cadets and assigned to train as pilots, bombardiers or navigators.

During the five months' course, students will receive over 700 hours of academic and military instruction. Regular University personnel will conduct the academic and physical phase of the training. Academic subjects include mathematics, physics, current history, geography, English and civil air regulations. Physical training will be stressed here in order to fit trainees to absorb future intensive training without undue fatigue or ill effects.

Captain Ernst and his staff, which will act in an advisory capacity in regard to academics, will have direct supervision of the military indoctrination program, which will include infantry drill, ceremonies and inspection, first aid and customs and courtesies of the service.

I've Got Sixpence

I've got six pence (five, four, three, two, one)
Jolly, jolly six pence
I've got six pence
To last me all my life
I've got two pence to spend
And two pence to lend
And two pence to send home to my wife (poor wife)
No cares have I to grieve me
No pretty little girls to deceive me
Happy as a lark, believe me
As we go flying home.

Refrain

Flying home, flying home
Flying home, flying home
By the light of the silvery moon
Happy is the day that the Air Corps gets its pay
As we go flying home

Slade Men

When we march along down the street
With our hearts light and free
People always point us out as the best
Whether here or across the sea

We are volunteers who are young in years
We're the ones to win the war
We're the men from Slade who are on parade
We're the pride of the Army Air Corps

PRIVATE BILL FOSTER.

Famous Figures in Private Disguise

Like every other building the U. V. M. barracks have four walls—they have electric lights and they also have furniture. But, unlike our other campus buildings they have famous people, or just plain talented men.

We have already heard and read about Private Westeyn's versatility and we are glad to have him here. Then over in Slade there is Private Bill Foster. Bill is the boy whose piano playing is an all time drawing card—and not satisfied with being a one instrument man, he used to beat the traps (drumming, to us) in Teddy Powell's orchestra. And speaking of music—guess we've all heard that mean dish of "boogie-woogie" that emanates from the student lounge when the 10 fingers of Private Pat Landen start toying with the keys. In jive language, he's solid!

And not to forget the other pair of appendages—winged feet and wheels! Privates Gonzalus and Munn constitute an unusual pair in that strange art of roller skating. To don a pair of skates and entertain hundreds at night after marching all day certainly is ambition at its height. Must be vulcanized feet!

To make the "fine art lovers" complete, we have people like Private Seymour Josephson, a gifted writer, actor and worshiper of anything pertaining to theatre and bright lights. Just ask him to quote Shakespeare sometime.

Ah—here we are! Athletes! You've all seen that tall, dark and goodlooking corps commander in the halls of the Waterman. Well, there's more behind his name than his quiet manner indicates! Deyo—the star basketball player of Seton Hall—and one of the boys who engaged in a national tournament. And in the same category we find Private Bob Peterson a former swimming star with a long record behind his name.

And let's not forget to mention the cosmopolites like Private W. W. Porter who spent two years in Panama as an engineer before the war. Duke is his Alma Mater, and there in the heart of the South he got his training. "Did you say Spanish?" Must be Private J. J. Hannon—the fellow who spent two years in Mexico. Just ask him about it sometime!

There you have only a few of the many [illegible] members of the Air Corps group on our campus. Their talents far from being hidden, have been used to [illegible] many a dull hour for us students as well as for their associates. And now that the end of the year is nearing, we can tell the Cadets that we really think they're swell! It's fun to share a college with people who give back so much in return. Vermont likes them—hope they like Vermont—keep 'em smiling, keep 'em flying—they've kept us entertained!

U. V. M. Students Send Plea to Cadets: Cherish Our Alma Mater and Campus

Snowflakes were falling [illegible] white carpet already [illegible] northwestern was howling [illegible] eight o'clock temperature [illegible] above zero. Students were [illegible] all directions to the Waterman Building. They held their notebooks [illegible] tightly under their arms [illegible] their heads to escape the [illegible] wind. Groups by groups [illegible] and singly they pulled open [illegible] and gladly breathed the warm [illegible] chiefs came off and [illegible] drooped carelessly over chairs [illegible] owners rushed to stand in [illegible] fast. They came back to the [illegible] with trays, unloaded there [illegible] Northeast Airline fliers, the [illegible] arrivals, left dish-laden tables [illegible] to catch their punctual stations [illegible] the Burlington Airport. Seniors [illegible] sors sat at the few remaining [illegible] conversed in a dignified and [illegible] manner. The buzz of different [illegible] voices became louder as the crowd [illegible] Excitement seemed to be creeping [illegible] their voices. On listening more [illegible] one could distinguish the following [illegible] and phrases: 1,000 or 2,000 soldiers [illegible] cafeteria . . . mess hall [illegible] leave . . . no place to eat [illegible] live . . . in love with Vermont [illegible] believe it . . . impossible

We thought 1,000 Cadets and 1,000 students an impossibility at our small University . . . we couldn't believe it would happen . . . we didn't want to believe it would happen . . . we wanted our University. But it did happen. U. V. M. [illegible] evacuated Robinson, Redstone, and Slade Halls and Southwick Memorial. University men moved. One fraternity opened its doors to the other and with such combines, all found a place to sleep. On Friday, February 26, faculty, students, employees, and friends ate their last meal in the U. V. M. Cafeteria and received their last cokes and ice cream at the soda fountain. The administration furnished two pleasant dining rooms on the third floor of Waterman for the University women. We could still not conceive "no cafeteria."

Finally they came, 650 of them [illegible] by the R. O. T. C. Band. But [illegible] quarantine! It lasted six weeks. They went to classes. They marched and how they sang! What spirit! We thought We gained the student lounge with [illegible] fortable lounges, chairs, a victrola and a radio. The co-eds reveled in their new [illegible] room with their own exclusive lounge on the third floor. We missed the cafeteria but soon we stopped missing it. Many of us who had formed the habit of "dropping in" at odd moments for a cigarette [illegible] found we felt better when we smoked less. We learned the Air Corps songs. We enjoy singing them. We are glad to have the Air Corps on campus. Besides enjoying "company," they make us feel that we are doing a small part toward the war effort. At last we don't seem sheltered from the war. Last fall it was difficult to realize that there was a war going on. Half pads of butter served on coffee were our only reminders. Now we hear Soldiers; we hear about training, and we are sharing classrooms with them. With the coming of spring, during this happy relationship we are very thankful for [illegible] that these are our own Soldiers of the United States Army Air Corps we breathe a fervent prayer of thanksgiving. May they enjoy the Vermont campus as immensely as we have enjoy our alma mater for the friends who will never walk [illegible] May they look at it with [illegible] we have during our college [illegible]

Air Corps Cadets, we leave the Vermont campus to cherish. To those of us who are graduating, to those of us who won't return until [illegible] and for some of us until [illegible]

Au revoir, Cadets.

Pvt. Don Durgin Gives Inside Dope

Former Princeton Man Now Cadet at Converse

Before entering the Army, Private Durgin attended Princeton where he worked on the school paper. This is written from the isolation ward at Fort Ethan Allen where Don is recuperating from the measles.

Three pints of milk and beautiful gals are things they don't dare tell Air Cadets about, but once at U. V. M. the 350 recently arrived aircrew men discovered for themselves how much life was worth living and reveille worth answering (10 demerits worth). By now the Converse-men are used to the daily quart and a half of milk.

Disconcerted at arriving in the dead of night the new men nevertheless took to Burlington and its refreshing scenery (include landscape, mountains, buildings), right away.

Not allowed to speak while in quarantine to any of the undergraduate body or their own upperclassmen, the Cadets have had to rely on themselves for amusement. Stories told by the older men who were in quarantine for six weeks portrayed quarantine-happy Cadets conducting themselves like cell-block patients after a few weeks confined to the barracks together. One of the men, near cracking point, hoarsely whispered in the best monogram picture, Bela-Lugosi manner, "I'm tired of looking at men in uniform."

It is the much-publicized American sense of humor that is putting the boys safely through this window-clawing, eyeball rolling period though. From the ceaseless din of bunk bull sessions come more colorful characters and funny situations than appear in any Hollywood movie—and the Will Hayes Office is not the only reason.

The first laugh of all came when the boys awoke to the pleasantly-voiced appeal: "All right, misters, time to arise." And they found this "mister" stuff was on the level. No more: "OK, youse chowderheads, up and at 'em." Imagine the surprised expression on the new man's face when he heard: "You're supposed to be at attention, Mister" instead of, "I should have what you got, zombie." Being students back at college work on a college campus makes the boys feel much more important, more advanced in the work of gaining the coveted wings.

As the Cadets gather around each others' bunks to swap experiences, stories and G. I. jokes a sense of comradeship develops which is inevitably carried on in the classroom, on the drillfield, and finally into the air. A pretty good amateur light heavyweight who was knocked out in 45 seconds of the first round of his first bout in a Golden Gloves tourney had the boys rolling on the floor as he imitates himself coming to 20 minutes later in a fighting mood, waiting for the bell to ring.

Then there are always the gags about particular characters in the outfit. The boys never tire of hearing how a lieutenant, who, noticing a pair of shoes out of line on inspection day under a fellow's bunk, asked the owner whose shoes they were. "Mine," said the Cadet timidly, forgetting to add "Sir." "Mine what," said the lieutenant impatiently. "Mine shoes," came the reply.

So in spite of quarantine and missing the Junior Prom the new Cadets are enjoying their aircrew training and look forward to the not too far distant when they can join their upperclassmen on open post in the pleasant city of Burlington.

Timothy Alden, founding president of Allegheny College, was a direct descendant of John and Priscilla Alden of Plymouth Rock fame.

Students desiring to work during the month of June are requested to leave their names at the NYA office.

[illegible] first two years at the University [illegible] played hockey and worked on the [illegible] staff of the CYNIC, and then was [illegible] for his efforts by being elected [illegible] Key. In his junior year he has [illegible] President of his class, Treasurer of [illegible] Club, Editor-in-Chief of the [illegible] Director of Kake Walk, and [illegible] elected to Key and Serpent. For [illegible] he was elected President of [illegible] Government and Boulder, the [illegible] honors a man could attain on the [illegible] M campus. As regards the Ariel [illegible] this information, "If present [illegible] go through, the Ariel should be [illegible] before summer school opens, which [illegible] June 7th. Working on the [illegible] cost on campus.

Last Kake Walk he made [illegible] and I cannot [illegible] lot. I've been lucky in having [illegible] you don't learn as much [illegible] with the [illegible] Walk as you [illegible] Government."

Bob is a Physics major in General Science, and has been kept busy this year with teaching the Air Corps students and the Northeast Airlines. His favorite instructors are, of course, in the Physics Department — Professor Walbridge and Doctor Braun. Bob wasn't too crazy about teaching Physics but does want to go into research work, that is, if the war is over soon; otherwise, Bob will apply for a permanent commission in the Navy.

Hard work has been characteristic of Bob's life at Vermont—he's earned his way by working at the Y, teaching, waiting on table, and even taking care of children nights.

Bob's favorite haunts have been the Science Hall and "downtown," and he likes just being with the boys and playing hockey. He did say, "Vermont has the coldest weather in the world and that's something I won't miss in the least. Just for that I'll probably land in Alaska or someplace."

"Taking everything in consideration, I have no regrets in coming to Vermont."

If you work as hard in the Navy as you have up here, Bob, you'll be an admiral in no time. You're representative of the real Vermont man going into service, and here's wishing you smooth sailing and best of luck!

Outing Club Donates One Thousand Dollars

[illegible]

Pres. Came Here From Wisconsin

[illegible] post that he came to the University of Vermont. In his field he has published a [illegible] articles on Physics and articles on Atomic and Molecular Spectra in Physical Review.

During 1940-41 he traveled about the country under a grant from the Carnegie Corporation for the Advancement of Teaching and studied administrative methods in the varied universities of the country. In this connection, he met Doctor Packer of the University of Iowa, whose connection with Vermont has been mentioned before.

Mr. Mills outlined a program which is today, well on the way to fulfillment. Upon assuming the presidency, he had four financial aims: (1) to care for all deficiencies, (2) to work out a long range financial plan, (3) to raise $260,000 from the alumni, (4) to cut the budget by $75,000. The Legislature of Vermont had appropriated $260,000 to support the University for a two-year period, and followed this with an offer of another $260,000 with the stipulation that private sources supply an equal amount. The alumni and students did better than this with a contribution of $320,000. The war and the resulting decline in the enrollment, necessitated a revision of his fourth aim, and it became necessary to cut the budget by $125,000. It is now arranged at present that the University can run on $150,000 a year. The war has assisted in one way, however, by taking away a portion of the faculty. It would, otherwise, have been necessary to reduce the number by other means.

His academic aim was to liberalize curricula and to break down vertical barriers. In the past, a student was confined to one certain curriculum and could not move horizontally into the other curricula for an occasional course. President Mills has broken the rigid bonds, thus permitting the student to take courses from other curricula than the one he is enrolled in.

In the field of student relations, the president has fostered student government, intending to give the student more authority and responsibility. It has also been his intention to enliven the art courses, to foster greater activity in drama and music. It was a step in this direction when Mr. Colburn came to the University.

The president also desired a more aggressive admissions policy. There are the alternatives of either remaining perfectly passive about admissions, than retaining only those students who meet with a certain standard, or of being more aggressive and going to the secondary schools in search of the higher grade of student. For the first time, a Director of Admissions was appointed.

Plans for liberalizing the professional curricula have been hindered by the war as it is difficult under present conditions to cut down on technical courses.

As for the present and immediate future, it is a matter of survival. Vermont like most colleges and universities will remain in a "state of suspended animation." In assessing the accomplishments of two very trying and unusual years, the Free Press progresses to "a second 150 years of service sure only to the likely, thanks to the [illegible] students at [illegible] Mills.

The Lawrence Scientific Institute is one of the eight schools in the Northeast offering the B.S. degree.

Review of Religious Life Committee Work for Year Shows Great Progress

[illegible] Religious Life [illegible] Council [illegible] by the president. Dean George Davis, [illegible] Prof. R. V. Hess carried on the duties of executive secretary. Prof. C. F. De Laney, Mr. M. D. Peaver, Prof. T. W. Goodspeed, Dr. V. A. Gladstone, Professor Noble, and Miss Constance Brown were also on the committee.

The Student Government Religious Life Committee chosen by the student body was composed of Marjorie Watson '43 chairman, Dave Lipman '43 secretary, Wendell Harris '43, Mary Germain '43, John Corliss '44, Jacob Isaacs '44, and Phillip Robinson '44.

These two committees met separately and sometimes in joint session to agree upon the functions of each as related to the student religious organizations. They are generally advisory. Their members represent the Protestants, Jewish, and Catholic faiths.

Professor Hall has been the executive secretary of both committees and has directed the activities of the program. When not teaching classes he has been on duty at the headquarters of the Committee on Religious Life in 265 Waterman. In this room the various groups keep their records, hold cabinet meetings, and have conferences. A literature table where the best religious periodicals are available to everyone has been maintained, and a library is being built up.

The work of the program is supported by the University in providing rooms and a working budget by the Student Government in allotting a certain sum from the Student Activity Fund, and by Congregational Methodist and Jewish appropriations.

Some of the highlights of this year's activities were the visits of E. Stanley Jones and the Inter-faith trio. Everyone believed that he could listen attentively for hours to the amusing and inspiring phrases of E. Stanley Jones, a great Christian missionary and teacher. The observance of Brotherhood Week brought interesting discussions by a minister, a rabbi, and a priest from New Haven, Conn. Many of the problems which students had were explained or clarified through questioning these men.

More activity than has been usual on the part of individual religious organizations has been encouraged. The Newman Club has held weekly meetings at chapel hour. The newly organized Hillel was the first to publish a bulletin of its own and it has held a very successful Chanuka and Passover supper with the Jewish members of the Air Force as guests. The Canterbury Club conducted Sunday evening services at All Saints Chapel. The Y. C. A. sent out more deputations this year than in several years, being assisted by the Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. with Penelope Easton as chairman has been very active in executing their religious plans by sponsoring several Sunday evening speakers, joint meetings of the young people's groups of the churches by issuing a weekly calendar of Church Activities by writing the Easter sermons for a Burlington paper, and by cooperating in general, the most active group in initiating and carrying through the items of the Religious Life Program.

Debating Team Has Successful Year In Spite of War

Eighteen Talented Students Participated In Various Debates

[illegible] Phi Beta Kappa [illegible] Colleges [illegible] Bates College, [illegible] Dartmouth College, Dartmouth College, Middlebury College, New York University, Princeton College, Vassar College, Albany State Teachers College. During the season Dartmouth Debating Tournament U. V. M. met Hamilton College, Amherst, Wesleyan, Colgate, Brown, and the University of New Hampshire. The schedule has also included two debates between freshmen at Vermont and Middlebury and two debates between women of these two colleges.

Following [illegible] the debaters tried to win the Lawrence Prize debate to Middlebury College. However freshman Donald Hackel at Portland was awarded third prize for personal performance at the time. During the Tournament held at Dartmouth, Dave Zwick '44 of the freshman team was presented with personal prize in the extemporaneous, after dinner speaking contest. The inter-class Bailey Cup award went to the freshman team this year namely Paul Pascal and Donald Hackel.

Most of the topics this year have been concerned with post-war policies and the status of India. With the exception of those debates which were part of tournaments, most of the debates were of the conference type. However the few that were contested with the decision were nearly always won by the U. V. M. debaters.

The following student debaters men and four women have taken part in the 1942-43 debating season: Dave Zwick, Robert Scanlon, John Peloquin, Daniel Wheeler, Philip Robinson, Jacob Isaacs, Porter Dale, Melvin Waldstein, Sidney Barrett, Donald Hackel, Daniel Ribolt, Paul Pascal, Joseph Waterman, Faye Lipman, Ruth Jordan, Claire Bailey, and Frances Donahoe.

Wendell Harris and Robinson were elected into active life early in the second semester. Due to the exigencies of war the freshmen were assigned to inter-college debate, and gave an excellent account of themselves.

Inquiries have been made concerning a debating program during the summer quadrimester but nothing has been decided as yet. Undoubtedly, the interest shown in debating this summer will have some bearing on the matter. However debating will be held during the regular fall semester and next year we plan the same basis as this season. The tentative topics for the coming year are Jacob Isaacs and Frances Donahoe.

[illegible] at the coming speakers made the coming plans for a Post War Parley in [illegible] for the current year. However [illegible] a plan will be worked upon next [illegible] Along the good beginning this year the Committee on Religious Life are making bigger and better plans for a [illegible]-44 program of cooperation and unity among [illegible] student Air Corps personnel and [illegible] organizations in general.

PI BETA PHI

Another school year has come and gone, and Pi Phis look back on the past full months with a sigh of relief, wondering [illegible] how we got everything in. The whirlwind campaign of fall rushing brought us [illegible] pledges. Then came entertainment for [illegible] soldiers, with Sunday night suppers and [illegible] attendance at the G. S. O. Besides the usual teas and tea dances, an [illegible] house breakfast was given one Sunday [illegible] over 300 guests. The money saved [illegible] omitting our annual spring formal [illegible] was added to our contributions to various war relief agencies. This has been a [illegible] year and we realize next year will [illegible] more adjustments. But when [illegible] we will be ready to do our share [illegible] best on campus.

SIGMA GAMMA

On April 25, 1943, Sigma Gamma held the final meeting in the Waterman Building, terminating its busy twenty-third year on Vermont's campus. Among other first semester activities the girls entertained their alums, mothers, and patronesses with a buffet supper, gave a Christmas party for some Burlington children, and held the annual rummage sale. In the spring the sorority installed new officers, initiated five of its ten pledges, held a very successful semi-formal dance in the Student Lounge, and sold over $250 worth of Defense Stamps and bonds. A crowded year has left some time for autumn steak roasts and winter skating parties.

The Vermont Cynic

VOL. 61 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1943 NUMBER 53

Cynic Staff Moves Back to Old Mill For the Duration

Col. Andrews Now In Former Cynic Abode In Waterman Building

War strikes again! After a year and a half of splendor unparalleled in its history the VERMONT CYNIC has been ousted from its spacious offices in the Waterman Building and moved to the quarters it used to occupy in North College, Old Mill. Our stay at Waterman was but a short interlude; we're out for the duration as Col. E. R. Andrews, newly arrived commandant of the Army college training detachments stationed here, has taken over our Waterman offices.

From all reports we gather that the two items most missed by the skeleton staff on campus in their Old Mill location are a combination lock for the door—and a telephone. In other respects, the place presents a fairly homey, settled appearance, from the four Norman Rockwell posters on the walls to the fly-swatter hanging on the coat hook. In fact, one reporter was heard to remark that she preferred this location because there isn't so much room to loaf, and she consequently gets more work done. It's like coming home again after a visit to a wealthy aunt . . . pretty nice after all.

CYNIC headquarters have moved about considerably since its founding in 1883. At that time it was issued every three weeks, and all correspondence was addressed to the editor's home address, though an office was probably in existence. At any rate, in the early 1900's the office was located in what later became the English office in Old Mill North. Along in the 1920's it was moved to its present location, on the right as you enter the north door of Old Mill. In the spring of 1941, the offices on first floor Waterman were turned over to the CYNIC.

Today we have begun to turn back the pages of time as we take up our new-old abode in the Mill. However, progress will be the keynote as the CYNIC gets under way for its bi-weekly summer edition. Time marches on, and we aim to keep up with it.

President Promises Best Instruction to Returning Students

To the Editor of the CYNIC.

I wish to welcome back to the campus students who have enrolled for the summer semester and to add a particularly warm welcome to the freshmen who are beginning their college course at this time. A sound curriculum has been planned for you and there is every reason to expect a most successful term.

The University is operating a variety of programs during the summer months. In addition to the regular undergraduate students in the summer semester, there will be four or five hundred students for the six weeks' summer session beginning July 7th. Throughout the term there will be the sizable group of the Army Air Force and perhaps other enlisted men taking specialized training in Engineering and Pre-medical work. Thus the University's facilities will be used to capacity and virtually every member of the faculty will be carrying a full teaching schedule. On the other hand, there is no reason to believe that the effectiveness of the course offerings will be diminished by the other demands placed upon the University's resources. The teaching of undergraduate students is the University's first and most important responsibility and we intend to properly provide for their needs.

It is my hope that the undergraduates will find it possible to organize simple but appropriate activities and that Student Government will function throughout the term.

JOHN S. MILLIS,
President.

Medics Will Don Khaki Next Week

Our every swelling number of uniforms on campus will be added to considerably in the the near future when the students in the medical college become a part of the active ARMY. The students have resigned their commissions in the reserve of the Medical Administrative Corps and have been inducted in the Enlisted Reserve Unassigned.

According to Dean Beecher, on or about the 19th of June the men will go to Camp Devens for induction and to be allotted their uniforms. Unless the Army decrees to the contrary, these students will be allowed to remain living where they are and receive commutation for room and board. While in college the medics will be privates in the Army and receive the base pay of an Army private.

The purpose of this program is to provide the Army with a steady supply of doctors directed expressly toward the Army. This takes the men out of the red tape jurisdiction of the local draft boards and puts the munder compiete Army control. Another purpose behind this is to provide financial aid to students under the burden of a five year accelerated pre-med and medical program with no summer vacations to provide the necessary funds.

Students interested in securing part time employment should register at the University Employment Bureau, Room 109, Waterman Building. Several requests for workers are on file and calls for workers on an hourly basis are received every day.

Dean Simpson Fund Tops Recent Goal

Higher Goals Are Being Sought Now

The Mary Jean Simpson Fund has soared well over the $3,000 goal set for it this spring. The fund, named for our present Dean of Women, was originated by Mortar Board to provide financial aid to servicemen returning to U. V. M. after the war. It had as its original aim $1,000 by the close of the last semester. Due to the generosity of the fraternities, sororities and honor societies, this sum was attained early in the drive and exceeded by some $2,000.

Among the most interesting sources of contribution was that of M. Lloyd Spiegel '46 who appeared as a contestant on the Feminint "Double or Nothing" program over WOR. According to a letter received by Miss Simpson from the White Laboratories, Newark, N. J., any contestant in this quiz who fails to answer the final question may nevertheless designate some charity to receive the money accumulated by his earlier answers. Mr. Spiegel chose the Mary Jean Simpson Fund as the recipient of the money in his case and the White Laboratories forwarded the check to Dean Simpson with their compliments and those of Mr. Spie-

This semester again Sigma Gamma leads the campus with a Dean's List Average of 85.7. Running a close second is Delta Phi Epsilon with an average of 84.7. Topping all the fraternities and several sororities is Phi Sigma Delta with an average of 83.2. Phi Sigma Delta has held that place at the head of the fraternities for several semesters. As usual the fraternity women lead the campus with all women second by two points.

The war has brought drastic changes to the University, affecting the social life the curriculum and even the marks. This semester's University average is 80.2 which is an increase of almost five points over the pre-war averages. Each one may have his own theories on why this sudden change for the better but the foremost question still is: "Has the University standard gone down or are U. V. M. students on the whole five points better than they have been in previous years?"

Freshmen Learn Quickly About New Campus Life

Following the freshman Scholastic Aptitude Test and a short talk by President Millis, all freshman men adjourned to the South Conference Room for a short address by Elijah Swift, Dean of Arts and Sciences.

Twenty men were present to hear that it was the first time that such a group had been admitted for the summer. The Dean mentioned that it was in the nature of an experiment and that it was up to them to take full advantage of the opportunity.

He then stressed the importance of working hard and obtaining good marks in view of the fact that the army sends men back to school mainly on the basis of college records. Naturally, continued the Dean, social events have been curtailed, but there are still opportunities for fun to be had by all.

Mr. Swift warned the freshmen that their courses will be tough and advised them against lagging. He especially stressed the inadvisability of being dishonest. The newcomers were told of the importance of learning how to study.

Dean Swift Tells Frosh To Study This Summer

Incomplete returns on enrollment reveal that about 160 students have enrolled up to 4:00 p.m. Tuesday, June 8, in the Summer Semester. Approximately 50 of these students are entering as freshmen, and about 110 in the three upper classes. The distribution as to men and women shows 100 men and 60 women. Enrollment in the Engineering College is about 40 and in the Arts and Science about 120.

Enrollment was held in the Student Lounge, from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00, and from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m., on Monday June 7. Students met their faculty advisors and were enrolled by them. At two in the afternoon, all new students took a Scholastic Aptitude test under the supervision of Professor Metcalf. At 3:30 President Millis addressed the incoming students in his welcome to the University. Immediately following this, the entering class was broken up into the following groups: the Engineering, Arts and Science, the men and women students not studying engineering. Dean Simpson addressed the women students; Dean Swift the Arts and Science men and Dean Eckhard the Engineers. The rest of the day was spent obtaining registration photos, and physical examinations. Class work started on Tuesday, June 8, at 7:20 a.m. All freshman and sophomore men met for their R.O.T.C. at that time.

The aim of the summer term is to help as many students as possible accelerate their course. Men who have enrolled will be able to secure as much college work as possible before they become of draft age, and women students will be able to graduate at the earliest possible time so they may take some active part in the war effort.

Most upperclass courses will complete a full year of college work in the one semester, whereas, freshman courses are the usual semester courses. The four main groups studying in the summer term are the Pre-Medical, Chemistry, Engineering and Secondary Education students. Below you will find a list of the men and women and their home addresses, who are beginning their college work at this time.

Press Club Elects Officers by Mail

For the first time in its history, the University Press Club will be operating during the summer. This organization, under the faculty direction of Professor Dean, does invaluable work in sending news of local student successes to the hometown newspapers for publication. In spite of the difficulties of an accelerated program and full summer schedule, the Press Club hopes to continue in much the same manner as before.

Election of officers for the new year was held by mail this summer and the new officers are as follows:

President, Rose Fisman '45; vice-president, Dorothy Winett '44; secretary-treasurer, Christine Hughes '46, and social chairman, Romona Hawthorne '45.

New members and freshmen are urged to join and asked to be at the first meeting to be held Monday, June 14, in Room 27, Waterman Building at 4:30 p.m.

Plans for the summer season and press schedules will be discussed. Each member is expected to spend at least one hour a week working for the club, and at the end of each year a banquet is held under the direction of the social chairman.

At 3:30 President Millis addressed the incoming students in his welcome to the University. Immediately following this the entering class was broken up into the following groups: the Engineering, Arts and Science, the men and women students not studying engineering. Dean Simpson addressed the women students, Dean Swift the Arts and Science men and Dean Eckhard the Engineers. The rest of the day was spent obtaining registration photos and physical examinations. Class work started on Tuesday, June 8, at 7:30 a.m. All freshman and sophomore men met for their R.O.T.C. at that time.

The aim of the summer term is to help as many students as possible accelerate their course. Men who have enrolled will be able to secure as much college work as possible before they become of draft age, and women students will be able to graduate at the earliest possible time so they may take some active part in the war effort.

Most upperclass courses will complete a full year of college work in the one semester, whereas freshman courses are the usual semester courses. The four main groups studying in the summer term are the Pre Medical, Chemistry, Engineering and Secondary Education students. Below you will find a list of the men and women and their home addresses, who are beginning their college work at this time.

Press Club Elects Officers by Mail

For the first time in its history, the University Press Club will be operating during the summer. This organization, under the faculty direction of Professor Dean, does invaluable work in sending news of local student successes to the hometown newspapers for publication. In spite of the difficulties of an accelerated program and full summer schedule, the Press Club hopes to continue in much the same manner as before.

Election of officers for the new year was held by mail this summer and the new officers are as follows:

President, Rose Fisman '45; vice-president, Dorothy Winett '44; secretary-treasurer, Christine Hughes '46, and social chairman, Ronnora Hawthorne '45.

New members and freshmen are urged to join and asked to be at the first meeting to be held Monday, June 14, in Room 27, Waterman Building at 4:30 pm.

Plans for the summer season and press schedules will be discussed. Each member is expected to spend at least one hour a week working for the club, and at the end of each year a banquet is held under the direction of the social chairman.

The Vermont Cynic

The Official Student Newspaper of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College

VOL. 61 JUNE 10, 1943 NO. 83

To A Different Generation

It has been the great privilege of college newspapers in the past to welcome their upperclassmen back to the campus and congratulate the incoming freshmen at the beginning of every academic year. Stories and editorials were written to introduce to the student the aspects of the social as well as the educational life that was his to partake of in the year to come. And in the days of old there was always much more talk of school spirit, football games, dances and fraternities than studies and preparation for life.

A greater spirit, a spirit of voluntary sacrifice and devotion to duty has supplanted the traditional school spirit. Football and fraternities disappeared as soon as their champions left for bigger assignments. Of the unlimited extra-curricular fun that filled many hours in the past, little has remained today.

After almost two years the colleges have finally found their place in the national war community. On our own campus one thousand air cadets and many more civilian pilots are being instructed twelve hours a day in preparation for the battles ahead. The facilities of all our buildings have been made available to an ever increasing extent to the needs of the armed forces. The Union had to make the comparatively small sacrifice of giving up its spacious rooms to the new university commandant. Altogether, the cooperation of everybody on the campus could not have been any better.

In this changed atmosphere it is often hard for the civilian students to find their bearings. They no longer come here for fun and frolic; they are also on this campus in preparation for total war and total victory. And in return for the precious minutes they have at hand, they want the best education available.

The students of today realize that one classroom, one laboratory must serve the purpose of two or even three, and they have learned from the greater sacrifices of their fellowmen all over the world that such minor inconveniences are not even worth mentioning. There is only one thing the war time student must demand and that is proper, satisfactory instruction. Never must times like these be taken as an excuse to lower standards and it has always been the unselfish duty of the faculties to watch over the educational maxims that must be maintained. The administration and the faculty of our University have promised its students an education that will prepare them for the life ahead as well during the war as it did the task during the peace which today is no longer with us.

With the few more small groups of army students expected, the University will definitely have reached its educational capacity and after a few more minor adjustments we shall be back to normal again—normal war time conditions. If the emergency should ever demand from the University still more space, still more instructors, then the college will find its civilian students a burden to which it will be unable to give the proper attention and which it will have to send home for the duration. We hope that the day will never arrive when an exodus of all civilian students will be necessary. Yet, if conditions should demand it will still be better to start after the war with the high values of the past than with the deteriorated standards of an unpromising present.

~~With these things in mind we can welcome all of you back to our~~ campus. As well as the University, the Cynic will try to meet the needs of both its civilian and army students but it will often be very hard, especially in this column, to attain the men necessary for both. Yet, on this campus we are really one big unit. All of us, civilians or soldiers, in one way or another prepare ourselves to become a link in the war effort of our nation; and while on this campus, all of us learn about the fundamental principles of mutual understanding that must be established if the world in which we shall have to live will be worthy of the sacrifices that have been made to give it to us.

This is the challenge of our way of life to the doctrines of fascism. Even in the midst of total war, even in the midst of a preparation for death, we are engaged in a preparation for life. We were sent here to college to become a part of the life to come. And while it is the duty of our professors to introduce us to the mighty opposites that rule this world, it is our obligation to make sure of the world we want to establish at home, so that our preparation for the life to come may become a guide and an inspiration to the people of the world.

It is a job for faculty as well as administration, civilian as well as soldier. It is our job and we must not shirk the responsibility.

Many Women Here For Summer Term

Freshmen Begin; Others Accelerate

A new era in the history of the University of Vermont started Monday when enrollment for the summer quadremester was held. For the first time in its 151 years of existence, the University is on a three-semester year. This new system has been installed to facilitate the accelerated program and educational needs of the American youth which have been so curtailed by the war crisis.

For the first time, also, freshmen have been admitted and will begin school during the summer semester. The courses of the first half of the freshman year are offered in the pre-medical, chemistry and several other fields. Besides the freshman courses, there are courses for the accelerated upperclassmen, several of which are full year courses.

The freshman women are to be housed at Sanders Hall, upperclassmen are at Roberts House and Allen House. The Waterman Building dining room is open, and all underclassmen are required to eat at least two meals a day there. Although the rules will be more lenient than during the regular school year, a Student Union skeleton staff will take care of any infringements and judiciary necessary.

The gym department announces that there will be no gym offered during the summer semester but freshman women will be required to take their full two years of gym for graduation credit. There will be facilities for sports, however, in the Waterman Bowling Alleys, the women's tennis courts, and North Beach.

Mrs. Angelica Mendoza de Montero of Buenos Aires is winner of a Columbia University scholarship awarded by Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Business Machine Corporation.

U. V. M. Girls Work in Industry While The Boys Prepare for Grimmer Tasks

More than ever before the University students are hard at work in a great variety of occupations. Some are hard at work in defense factories helping the war effort, some are continuing their studies at summer schools all over the country, others are working to gain experience in their chosen fields, and the majority of our boys are serving the country in the armed forces. Because these students have however so scattered, the Cynic is starting a column for them alone. The Cynic wants to keep contact with these students and alumni by printing their names and ranks or occupations.

Those who have any information concerning U. V. M. boys in the service or U. V. M. students in interesting or unusual summer occupations, kindly put your information in the Cynic Office Mail Box, Old Mill North. You'll be helping your friends and the Cynic to keep these students a part of U. V. M. in spite of their distance.

So far over 1,200 of our boys have gone into the armed forces. Many have had to leave their studies during the semester to answer the call and many were fortunate enough to finish their work here at U. V. M. Wherever they are we hope they'll remember U. V. M. and, when it's all over, come back to finish their education.

At Camp Blanding, Fla., is Pfc. Robert Miner '46. You remember Pfc. Miner as the freshman with the magical powers and astounding memory. He amused the Kake Walk spectators this year by a demonstration of his magic. Pfc. Miner was an English major at U. V. M., and has already written poetry of unusual merit.

When last heard of, our very own Don Nutter '43, was an Air Cadet at, of all places, Norwich University. Don became a legendary figure at U. V. M., when a new trophy, the Don Nutter Trophy, was awarded at Kake Walk this year in his honor.

Representing the University women in the armed forces is Jane Clair Collins '44. Jane was a junior transfer and a philosophy major before enrolling as a WAAC Auxiliary this spring at a very impressive ceremony in the Waterman front entrance hall.

David Frank '45, was at S[illegible] versity as an Air Cadet and [illegible] route to Randolph Field, [illegible] vanced training. Pvt. Frank [illegible] bered for being one of the [illegible] the Harvard Freshman Prize [illegible] At the time of his departure [illegible] was a physics major at the U[illegible]

Justine Whalen '44, [illegible] ber of the Cynic and Mortar [illegible] Ita Casey '44, one of the [illegible] ties," and president of Pa[illegible] a defense factory for the [illegible] their best to help our [illegible] running.

Florence Levin '44, Mary [illegible] '44, Jerry Jasper '44, and [illegible] day '46, all psychology majors [illegible] ing their knowledge and gaining [illegible] able experience at the N[illegible] Hospital in Norwich, Conn., [illegible] as assistant nurses there during the summer.

John O. Corliss '44, is now [illegible] in Florida. Pvt. Corliss can be [illegible] bered as extraordinarily active [illegible] U. V. M. campus being editor-in-[illegible] the Cynic just before he was drafted, a recipient of the Harvard Freshman Prize, a prize cross-country runner, and interested and active in numerous other campus activities. Pvt. Corliss was a general science student before he left.

Bitsa Bunk

After teaching the kiddies in a rural school for a couple weeks Skat Cooper will be working at 498 So. Winooski Street (Tel. No. 1) "that's easy to remember and so hard to forget" She will be there until the day after Labor Day when she will be in Shelburne. That's right, another school teacher!

We understand that Hilda Lund [illegible] to be canning, haying, etc., at her summer home this summer. More power to you, Hilda. Take good care of that Victory Garden!

Hazel Butterfield (almost said "the little butterfly)" will be carrying on the work she did last summer. That was working for "Your gal Sal" wasn't it, Hazel?

For when it comes to wanting any other officer all of us here at Redstone will agree that he's the officer we'd all want regardless of the hall we were stationed at.

Officer and student officers of Redstone, I salute you. You are the ones who have made Redstone the best hall on the campus and are keeping it that way. Now if any one of you should doubt Red- stone's superiority, ask anyone who lives here. I assure you that you'd get the same answer. "The Officer's Club" Occupies Southwick

You are all probably wondering what this is all about, well it's very simple . . . The Officers' Club is none other than the best hall of all Southwick.

As a deadline must be met we must give you only much news at present, but we promise you plenty when our new men come in . . . and they should be in soon as we learned on open post last week in town.

If any of you are still in doubt as to why we call this Officers Club, well, all we have in the hall at present is forty men, and of that twenty-four are student officers.

This hall is on the beam and we are planning to win all the future parades.

Let me introduce to you the men who are going to make this possible. Lieutenant McLam our tactical officer . . .

Sq Comm. Nick Davis, and his able assistant, Milton Wilde.

And now we [illegible] this editorial as an expression of our appreciation. And we pledge to the student body that we will make U. V. M. proud of her 61st C.T.D. Training De- tachment!

Slade Hall Enjoys Gigs and Tours With Convenient Masks

Slade Hall—Home of the seven day wonders—June 8, '43.

Since the arrival of the newest additions to the 61st C.T.D. the appearance and quality of the entire detachment has been improved no end. This metamorphosis can be readily detected by any old passerby —not that the passerbys are old, or that there are any,—but—oh well, let's not get confused.

However these rugged, hardened cam paigners fresh from Atlantic City are being persecuted no end. A peculiar sys tem of "gigs" and "tours" have been forced upon them in a most inconvenient manner, which at times can be down right bothersome. Just imagine spending 50 minutes walking about the campus in a gas mask—and not just one 50 min. period, for they invariably come in sets of 3 or 18.

Why 18 I don't know, but that seems to be our tactical officer's lucky number, so I guess that's the reason.

We're still getting our shots, that of course is a big point in our present life. Each Thursday we reluctantly visit the medical room, where we're cornered by two or three huskies and then stabbed. They say it's a hypo, but it's three feet long, has a hilt and handle and we know better.

We're very happy in our own little way though, we haven't been in the army too long and when we do something wrong we always plead ignorance of the law—this is accompanied with the sweetest look of innocence you ever saw.

Nobody taught us to look like that either —I think it's natural or something.

Since my appointment as correspondent and Chief Slade Hall Slanderer, we de- veloped quite a system, it works like this.

First I pick on some likely looking jeep and say, "Wouldn't you like to have your name in the CYNIC? He says "Hmmm," and we detect a light in his eye. Then a quick follow up, something like, "The handsome, debonnaire, suave aviation cadet (to be) Quincy Q. Quirp, formerly of Rat Hole, Nebraska, will be visited by his parents Mr. and Mrs., etc."

We can see his face just beam, and he vigorously shakes his head yes. Then of course we say there will be a slight mone- tary consideration of 25 cents and he looks like he might break out in a rash, but the buildup has been too much, he just can't refuse, so we make a quarter. Cute huh?

This goes on and on and pretty soon our room has new curtains and rugs and a rapidly growing exchequer.

There will be a meeting of the Army News Editors, Wednesday, June 16, at 8 p.m., in the CYNIC office.

Well fellows, we have finally gotten an intramural sports program started. On Tuesday evening two 3 tournaments were started in baseball and basketball. We hope to add more sports later.

I'm sorry to say that it was not a good start as many teams failed to show up for competition. This is your program, fel- lows to do with as you like. Its success or failure depends entirely upon you men. We might as well make up our minds right now whether or not we want this program. The only meter we have to gauge your feelings in this matter is by your actions words don't count. If you come out and play we can safely assume that you really want this venture to be a success. If as last Tuesday eight teams fail to show up, it is an indication that you men disapprove of the idea, and we may as well drop it as it is for you that it has been inaugurated.

I'd like to at this time, introduce to you some of your buddies who have made good elsewhere in athletics.

Joe DeBonis, of N. Y. U. Joe was a freshman hoop star who averaged about 20 points a game last season for the Violet Buds. Although a terrific scorer Joe was considered a still better play maker. In addition, Joe is a very capable first base- man left-hand hitter on the diamond.

Another Metropolitan luminary of the hard wood is Ken Keller of St. John's University. Ken, as well as DeBonis, comes from Long Island, a hot bed of bas- ketball and Ken sustains the high stand- ards set by former L. I. stars. He also is a capable baseball player.

Bill Forbes of Williams and Rutgers was nominated "Little All-American" halfback while at Williams and later transferred to the New Brunswick, N. J., institution. He also plays baseball, bas- ketball and is a better than fair sprinter.

Syracuse University gives us Charles Fornol, its sensational freshman tailback. Freshmen were eligible for varsity com- petition with the Orange and Fornol took advantage of this and it was he who scored the first touchdown of the season for the boys from Syracuse. Also from Syracuse is Jack Kerchman, giant line star. Jack also was a strong armed hard hitting outfielder for the Orange.

George Lesk at Cornell's "Big Red" was a stick holding, sharp hitting infielder for the nine in addition to being a fine tail- back and punter par excellence for the grid squad.

Louis Manhattan College some Paul Lowenstein and Barney Brosow both basketeers. Paul is a pole vaulter, high jumper and sprinter, while Barney is a guarder mate.

I know I've omitted many men I would like to bring to your attention, but if you will follow in these write up the men to the CYNIC, refer it to the charge of quarters at Redstone Hall. I'll appreciate any suggestions you have as this is your column, I only write it. So don't hesitate to drop me a line.

Robinson Sounds Off With Stories Of Success in Parades and Kitchen

Don't tell me you haven't heard of Robinson Hall! To you who know not I will try to [illegible] your knowledge of the famed hall ranked first [illegible] in the [illegible] Hall.

Many men have had their happy times [illegible] through the fact that they had [illegible] their training here. Pvt. Lou Bauer, [illegible] commander and [illegible] mess sergeant, Corporal [illegible] and our tactical officer, Lt. Schwartz [illegible] "Ja! that hall" is the beam! One parade after another, from a conversation to be heard was sent by Robinson. Despite the wet snow down the quadrangle [illegible] 98 percent of our men. Every- thing was [illegible] down, student officers were changed, and different men moved out, the hall immediately the new officers were named. They had a large assignment ahead of them, but they did a great job of it. In a comparatively short time they had the men working together and as we did last Saturday, had the spectators winning parades again. They certainly deserve mention for their efforts, especially the leaders. Pvt. Harry Burke, Squadron Commander; Pvt. Fred Ecelle, assistant Commander; and the present officer in charge of Robinson, Pvt. "Pappy" Davis our First Sergeant. The real quality of a soldier is brought out by his actions towards his fellow men in the outfit. The fact that the Converse men and yet Robinson men have interwoven themselves into a clicking outfit has proven their worth, and we still have more to show you. Let's keep it up, gang!

Now I think I should introduce to you the most unique room in the detachment. It's the kitchen in Robinson. Just a few more than a dozen men make their happy abode there, and happy it is. I can re- member when it was first formed, how nervous they sat and stared at each other. It took just about one week to get every- one started and since they have started no one has topped them yet for fun. At the before mentioned departure of some of our fellows it looked as if brothers were saying good bye instead of roommates of the kitchen. Old Robinson men moved into the vacated bunks, not for the reason that they knew they were going into a broken-in set of men. Now they are keep- ing up the old antics. Here are a couple of their "main events." A singing ses- sion is held practically every night with the spotlight held by the barroom baritone voices of Pvts. "Handsome" Crimes, "Jer- sey" Busher and "Shine" Bauer. The "Jagged but right tenor section consists of Pvts. "Trotsky" Secora, "Lt. O" Berge, "Mailman" Cavely, and "Buffalo" Lesin- ski. Of course Pvts. Becraft, Byers, "Long John" Erwin and "Soapy" Bas- set come in on the off keys. Next men of Robinson, everyone wants to know what Pvt. George does with his spare time, go ahead tell them. The most spectacular act to go on is the "Late guard" an im- personation of a meeting that their late guard held, in mader G. I. form. Pvt. "Pappy" Davis usually holds the head job with its only private "Convalescing" Bean popping to at each command given in double talk. If match this room with any in the detachment especially in Squadron Commander K. P. Murphy's "Dead Hall," Redstone. No fellows its not as dead as you think, it's just that our hall shows them up so much in every- thing that their usual dullness is lost com- pletely.

A few personal sketches might help you to know a few of the boys better. For instance, Pvt. Chas. Byers, who got con- fused because his math teacher started to teach him "Longines," or our Group Cap- tain Ulher, who is plenty tall, plenty dark but . . . . Take it easy Jack. Then we have Pvt. Bacheneck with "Hell, what work I have to do, I wonder if I'll get any sleep tonight." Pvt. Ed Lesinski can always be counted on the softball diamond trying to hit farther than the biggest ex- pense of the game. Lt. Schwartz "You could always see Pvt. Lee Bleeker by coming in two hours before open post to one."

Sights that always can be seen at Rob- inson. Pvt. Bell opening the dooryard for Pvt. Bauer driving on two shoes. Pvt. Bareck getting up at 5:00 a.m. in order to get everyone else out on time.

Pretty much everyone who counts has definitely decided that Class B is the class of the intelligentsia. No one knows ex- actly how, when or why but there is no doubt that Class B contains the real officer material of the class and that there is to be [illegible] saved for something special. Class C is definitely inferior, Class D is detestable, and Class E is. That is the honest opinion of everyone to Class B.

Aircrew Student—Pvt. David Gardner

An newspaper used by future cadets must contain news of the latest activities at primary and basic flying schools. It should be medium for building pride in our detachment with news of our graduates and undergraduates. Of utmost importance are the articles and stories which help to make more clear the reasons for which we are fighting; no ornate and heart throbbing stories but rather letters from men overseas, accounts of our allies fighting and possibly short resumes of the speeches of the United Nations' leaders.

Aircrew Student—Pvt. Milton M Landau

I believe that the Cynic should contain a gossip column of the men at this post. The paper should also have a character sketch of the men who were known during their civilian life and a sports column commentating on our sports. News of men who have left this detachment would prove of great interest to their former acquaintances and the men who are going to follow them.

Aircrew Student — Pvt. Arthur Herman

A detachment newspaper would prove of great interest to me if it had the following articles:

1. A feature write-up on the background of one of our cadets.
2. A column of the activities of the other C. T. A.'s throughout the country.
3. An Editorial on the improvements of 61st C. T. D.
4. A profile on each of our officers to better acquaint us with them.

Aircrew Student — Pvt. Lawrence Gallagher

A detachment paper must have to suit me, news on the latest type combat planes used by the air corps, also how about an article on what is in store for us as we move from school to school. I would like a column written about the news going on in all the halls which would be of interest to everyone.

Slade Hall

Right now the prospects of getting material to fill up this column look rather sad. No news, just the news at all and since nobody was intelligent enough to contribute a quarter and have his name stuck in—well there just ain't gonna be no names. Of course we could write about me, but there will be a full page interview with me in the next issue so there's no need for any previews now.

Last Friday night we all got our all first all open all just all. (That was our southern accent coming out.) We left Slade Hall in a great big rush and ran all the way down to town with hopes of high adventure.

We saw the entire town in ten minutes flat and spent five of them over a chocolate malted.

The remainder of the evening was spent at the Winooski Ave. U. S. O. and the inevitable good time was had by all.

We danced—oh how we danced. The most popular girls were the ones from the cafeteria—especially the babe that serves the dessert. Of course the fact that she does hold that very important job had nothing to do with it—not much!

We have all kinds of just wonderful dancers—hep cat Delisi was running rings around the woman he had; Bill Daley likes the slow stuff—no lights—you know the type—you must!

He dances like he's in a perpetual left bank—just leans over.

Fred Bennet does a square dance (rounded of a bit) and we wiggle a mean Bunny Hug.

Well at any rate we were all Cinderellas and came tearing up the hill at 11.59. I got gigged for signing the book wrong and then went to bed feeling like our old self again.

Sunday morning we went window shopping—looking at sharp plaid ties—crying a bit and then forcing ourselves to look away. Gee, it was awful.

This about brings us up to date and would conclude the publicized version of our Slade Hall Diary.

You'll just have to live in anticipation of the next issue, as this is all for now.

Frosh and Sophs Will Get Up Early This Summer for Military Training

Come on sleepy head, you gotta get up this morning. You'll hear that old fanfare now every morning early, frosh. It's old stuff to the sophs, but you freshmen will appreciate those extra hours of sleep that you did get, when you struggle to get out of bed for military training.

The Military Department has really formulated a tough program for the boys in basic. It seems that we really are in for it, for the frosh and the sophs will be trained under the Army specialist schedule, and we're paying for it. The course calls for 154 hours of training, and out of this 116 is practical and 38 tactical. Yes, that's it boys, you'll be out on the field for actual combat and defense tactics for the equivalent of six and one-half days. The sun is hot! Besides this extensive going over there will be 40 hours of additional training.

Here's what you're getting, frosh, and it is as tough if not tougher than the Army program. If the boys in uniform want to know what we're doing in our leisure time here it is, only the time is not leisure. There will be an extensive physical training program, where every part of your classis will be streamlined and hardened. In order that when you become a buck private you'll know what is expected of you when you meet the general, there will be a course in Military discipline, customs and courtesy. What to do in an emergency—there is included hygiene, sanitation, and first aid. You've watched many parades brother freshman, but here's the first that you've marched in. Well, you'll march long and hard during infantry drill, and they don't spare the guns even if they are Victory rifles. There will be a course in guard duty. The boys will be sent out on scouting patrols to teach the fundamentals of scouting, guarding, and individual security on these patrols. There will be various lectures and actual practice in the defense against gas and chemical attack. There are areas that will have facilities for actual defense against mechanized attack, and all methods of stopping any enemy mechanized detachment. Field fortification work will also be stressed. As in past years, there will be extensive drill in map reading, and this year the new course in aerial photography. On our fine rifle range the boys sharpshooters will learn the sound methods of picking off snipers. The whole freshman group will be trained as a small unit, and they will have complete tactical arrangements.

The sophomores, with a year of basic training behind them will polish up the rough edges, and smooth out the sore points in their training. They will have extensive courses in leadership, map reading, aerial photography and compass. They will have ceremonies to perform in, and will act as a training unit for individual unit for training in scouting and combat intelligence. Scouting and patrolling units of sophomores will be organized. They will have defense against chemical and mechanized attack. The Browning automatic rifle and M-1 training will also be included.

The physical drilling will take place four days a week at 7.30 a.m. There will be training films, and actual field problems supported by attack from the air. For hand to hand fighting we will also receive bayonet and grenade work.

Be prepared boys, for it's going to be tough, but you'll agree that the Army will make you a man.

On June 11 and 15, respectively, President Millis will speak at high school commencements in Woodstock and Waterbury.

The facilities of the University dining room on the third floor of the Waterman Building will be open to the male students this summer.

The Old Order Changeth

Colonel Andrews Praises Our Army Units, U. V. M. Faculty

... PHIL SYLBERT

There are undoubtedly many people who vaguely wonder what has happened to the CYNIC office and who the gentleman is who occupies these premises at the moment. As a matter of fact, he is Colonel E. R. Andrews, commandant of all army personnel located here at the University.

The colonel was regretful about having the CYNIC move out, and hopes that everything will be all right up at the Old Mill. When quizzed as to his former life, he expressed the opinion that he thought it rather routine and not very interesting reading—a point on which we don't agree.

Andrews' father was an officer and a West Pointer. Unfortunately, he wanted his son to be a business man rather than a soldier. Thus, the boy could not enter the famous military institution, for he lacked parental support. A business career did not interest the young Andrews and like many others in his own situation, he joined the army.

The year is 1906 and the U. S. Army is nothing more than a group of about 25,000 men and 5,000 officers (commissioned). Most of the enlisted men are stationed at frontier outposts. An education is difficult to obtain. Soldiers who desire to achieve a fixed goal find that education can be had only by tutoring and infrequent little classes.

The thought that was uppermost in Andrews' mind, and in the minds of all the young enlistees, was to obtain a commission. And this he achieved only after two years of service followed by two competitive examinations. And so, in 1908, we see Andrews with the gold bar of a second lieutenant.

The army was still a small unit during those years before the great war. Soldiers did not mix with civilians; they lived a different and secluded life. When the World War broke out Andrews was with the army in the Philippines. He returned to the states and was shipped overseas as chief signal officer of the 34th division, for the preceding years he had been graduated from Army Service School in addition to acting as instructor. In these days many officers were given very high ratings which they soon lasted. Thus Andrews rose, himself a lieutenant colonel.

The war ended and he came back to America where as a major he was put in charge of a new system known as "university khaki," inaugurated by Secretary of War Baker. This was an experiment designed to take up the slack in demobilization and to provide educational and vocational training for a great mass of illiterates.

Following that appointment he graduated from the Command and General Staff School. For the next six years in training the 34th Division which was one of the first groups of Americans to go overseas during this war. From he was assigned to the formation of an infantry unit made up entirely of Negroes. This task was carried out at Fort Devens. Before being sent here Colonel Andrews was at the barber detention at Long Island.

The colonel then spoke of his family, most of whom are New Englanders. He mentioned his wife who is with him here in Burlington. And with justifiable pride, he told me of his four sons in the armed services. Indeed two have already been overseas and back again.

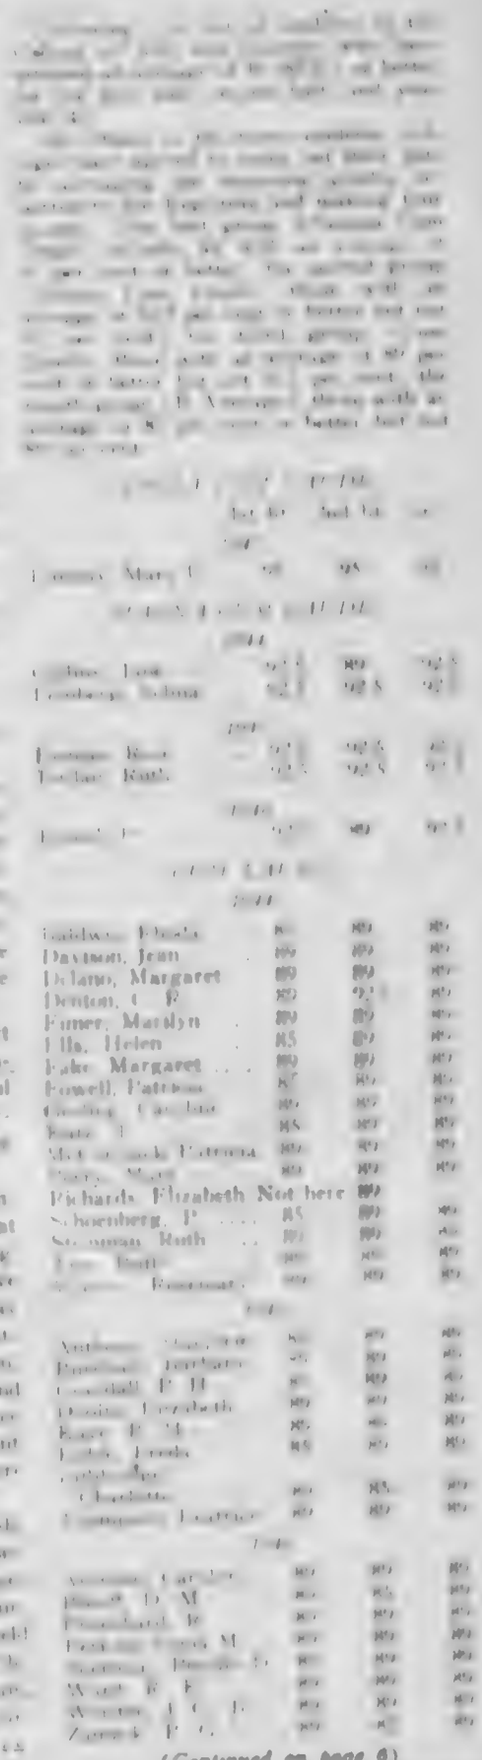
Colonel Andrews considers himself lucky to be sent here for all of his previous tasks have been of an arduous nature; that is, training troops and training men to command troops. He said with much satisfaction that the faculty and the students have been doing their utmost to facilitate the army program at Vermont. And he is very appreciative of the cordial welcome extended him and the men.

Andrews finds a high sense of enthusiasm among the air crew and he reports that their training is proceeding splendidly. In closing he remarked that the general appearance of the air crew reflects on itself themselves and on the fine job they are doing by the university personnel. In short he said "I think the air crew is a swell bunch" which is a real compliment. But then again the colonel's a pretty nice guy himself.

Picnic in Honor Of Freshman Girls

All the University women gathered together Saturday, June 19, for a girls' picnic in back of the Home Management House. The party was mostly informal and one saw the girls were able to dress themselves out in plaid shirts and dungarees with an easy conscience. There was plenty of food and plenty of appetites for it all. Hotdogs were the main attraction which were selected short subjects consumed [illegible] and ice cream.

The freshmen were escorted from Converse Hall to the picnic by Barbara Andrews, Phyllis Fort and Margaret Lake.



Those [illegible] Physics Department [illegible] Prince Perkins "Peggy" Lake, Eva Thayer "Dot" Thornton, "Bea" Plumpton and Jean Eisman sang the Physics Department Song. It was a highly educational performance.

Song sheets were distributed and the group sang many more songs. "The Beaver Song" and "The Prince" to "The Girl is Living in The West." The freshmen were also initiated in the "pull down" campus song and "Whangdoodle."

Thanks goes to Dean Mary Jean Simpson who but help add to the picnic committee Barbara Andrews, Phyllis Fort and Margaret Lake. The waitresses also prepared the food also are complimented!

Student Union's Mass Meeting Held

Freshman Advisory Committee Announced

The first student Union mass meeting of the quadrimester was called to order by Dean of Women Jean Simpson in the Fleming Museum. Dean Simpson presiding extended a word of welcome to the women of the student body and a cordial greeting to the freshmen on behalf of the President and the Administration.

The Freshman Advisory Committee appointed by Barbara Hall President of Student Union was announced as follows: Priscilla Perkins chairman, Margaret Lake and Phyllis Fort.

The students were told that there were to be absolutely no toll calls made over the dormitory telephones, unless the charges were reversed. We also were notified that the student lounge would be opened for our use but to accept responsibility to keep it neat. Special care should be taken to protect the furniture. It was stressed that the elevators in the Waterman are not for the use of the students.

Dean Simpson spoke of our conduct in relations with the Air Cadets, and emphasized that we must be ever mindful of the fact that we represent the University. It is our responsibility to bring credit, never discredit to our college.

Our second mass meeting in the Fleming Museum was held on June 16th at 7:30 p.m. with Dean Simpson presiding. It was announced that at the respective house meetings of the previous Monday evening the following House Presidents were elected: Phyllis Fort at Allen House, Rhoda Baldwin at Redfield, and Laura Hanack at Saunders. The women students were reminded that Student Union rules regarding social trips were to be observed during the summer.

The entertainment program for Freshman Women was announced by the Dean. The upperclass girls are to be hostesses on the Fourth of July picnic. The afternoon at [illegible] o'clock is to be held back of the Home Management House in case of outdoor burglars. In case of rain we will be able to use the Inner Museum. Margaret Lake of the picnic committee, explained that the gathering would be quite informal. The charge for girls not eating in the college dining hall will be 45 cents. Saturday night the Freshmen Mixer will be held in the Student Lounge. Miss Simpson and Mr. Gibbons will chaperone and all students were urged to attend. A Cadet will be allowed [illegible] to a dance if the guest of a student. On Sunday afternoon at one student are invited to the President's reception at his home.

Fox Holes Not Necessary

[illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] effort at Vermont during [illegible] the [illegible] of our University will receive a greater share [illegible] than those of any other single institution in the state.

Everybody was asked to forgo many a convenience and shoulder new burdens. The president as well as the janitor lived up to the needs of the time; neither the rich professor nor the freshman paled. In the months to come all of us will be asked for still greater sacrifices and it is time to pause for a moment and take a look at "sacrifice" a word that has often been misused.

A few days ago there appeared a sign on the door of our student lounge which read "Out on Saturdays and Sundays the last meeting place of the student body, will be available only to the air corps students. It is too early in the semester to assume that all the students never intended to use the lounge during those days and furthermore, no substitute has yet been offered for the loss.

There are people who will say that in times like these when Chinese mothers carry their newborns literally on their backs for hundreds of miles and then attend lectures in the open air, when colleges are closed to the Dutch, French and Greeks, when the sufferings of a great part of humanity are beyond the power of written expression, that in times like these the loss of a room does not amount to very much.

There are other people who surely will point to the fox holes on Attu and the trenches of Tunisia when we speak of the student lounge. They will tell us that we should be thankful for a room to live in, for a classroom that is open, accessible.

Yet we are not trekking over the plains of China nor are we fighting on the islands in the Pacific. When our hour comes to tackle these jobs, we surely will live up to the [illegible] of the men and women that blazed the [illegible] trails before us.

The students of this campus are willing to make necessary adjustments and they have proven that again and again and again. But sacrifices should only be expected when Providence demands it and not when Convenience prescribes it.

We shall hide in the fox holes of Burlington, we shall live in the trenches of the back campus when the destiny of our nation will necessitate such action. Today, however, the students are entitled to one meeting place open to them seven days a week. We are not sure whether or not another room either on the campus or in the greater city community can be found for the air cadets, but we feel that one lounge should be given to the students for permanent use.

There must be no doubt that further burdens will be placed on our [illegible] orders that will require the greatest personal devotion to our [illegible] But must we lose sight of the age-old truth, that unnecessary sacrifice is futile and not make morale.

News reaches us of U. V. M. students and alums in the armed forces and employed in various interesting occupations through the summer. We would appreciate hearing reports of some whom we may not be able to contact.

Several home-economics majoring in dietetics are putting their knowledge into practice during the summer. Ellenor Beegle is substituting at the Waterman third floor dining room until Miss Underwood returns from her vacation. Myra Cone is working at the Emma Pitcher Hospital and Estelle Berkson is enrolling in Florida but working in the Orlando Hospital.

What a surprise to see several students names as lecturers in Burlington papers this week! Trudy Sherman is working for the Free Press, Cooper Hunt for the Burlington News and Alice Needham is a news reporter for the Free Press.

Listening to Burlington's radio station WCAX recently we heard a charming voice that brought back memories. All of a sudden we realized that it was Janet Hartnett, who is now doing broadcasting for that station. Her career with the University Players was a good start for this worthwhile profession.

Caroline (Kay) Brown returned to school for the summer quadrinester with an engagement ring from Bob Lockwood. Bob's now in the army, and will enter Syracuse Medical School on July 1—good luck, kids!

Judy Gilbert married Walter Afan Munn of the U. V. M. air corps contingent early in June—and is seen wandering around campus for an occasional glimpse of her husband. Best wishes, Judy.

Joan Eldredge, graduate in the secretarial curriculum, is pounding the keys in the Burlington office of Atty. Louis Lisman, also a U. V. M. alumnus.

Howard Vreeland is now a lieutenant at Fort Monmouth, N. J., in the signal corps. Jack Williams (of Julie Fletcher fame) is at Air Corps O. C. S. in Miami. Barbara Burns, who is working in the Summer Session office in the Waterman Building, told us that George (Spook) Little, former editor of the CYNIC, is at Quartermaster O. C. S. at Camp Lee, Va.

Fran Juliano is working as a lab technician in a dye factory somewhere around New York City. Barbara Kirby is telling people where to go in a travel agency in Rockefeller Center.

The smiling faces of Don Nutter and Knocker Neal were seen in town over the week-end. Both are with the Norwich air corps college training detachment, and told us Lenny Paul is there with them. So near and yet so far—they don't get to Burlington very often.

Was that Bob Doherty, captain of last year's basketball team and various other big things on campus, who was busy at work on [illegible] Medical school? Januaround with the [illegible] and see the medics. They returned from Fort Devens early Saturday morning with the baggiest uniforms (pants mainly) we've ever seen. Oh well, it's hard to get used to the fact that they're wearing G.I. now, too. Meanwhile they're sitting around on pins and needles wondering if they'll be in barracks or not, and when.

Sorry, I've got to dash to Shakespeare class now, but if you let me know what's cooking around, I'll tell you more next time.

Dog, Fish and Freshmen In Zoology Classes

Thirty-three students start the summer session of Zoology I. The class consists mostly of Freshman pre-medics. So far eminent interest has been shown by all in the laboratory twice a week. The dissecting and drawing of the various systems of the frog has been the topic of discussion for the past two weeks. Its significance is to teach the student the mechanism of the human body. Those further advanced in Zoology are studying Anatomy. The cat and the dog fish, a small shark, are dissected and studied to learn the structure of a primitive vertebrae. For the first two weeks we find the course well under way and the students persevering with keen interest.

The centennial of Hollins (Va.) college will be celebrated in May of this year.

The Inside Story On Student Physics Instructors Revealed

By LIZARDLY LILY
The Roving Reporter

The continuous ingouring and outpouring of khaki-clad students carrying mammoth blue physics books from the Williams Science Hall gives circumstantial evidence to prove that the air force students are studying physics. Your roving reporter who was a physics student himself in the not too distant past, was curious as to how the physics department handled all these students with their comparatively small staff. He finally let his curiosity get the better of him and wandered into one of the physics offices. The following story is the result. The main facts in it are true though the telling of them may verge on the insane. However, even a brief contact with this particular part of the department, namely the student staff, can upset the mental equilibrium of the most stable individual.

The biggest problem of the department is the supervision of the laboratory periods for the air crew students. Labs are run from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., 12 hours a day, 5 days a week. All of the students enrolled in the course must have ten hours of lab each week. To meet the need for instructors, the department has called in faculty members from other departments. In addition to these, several undergraduates have been taken on as Laboratory Assistants. This article will concern itself with these "Student Instructors" as they like to call themselves . . .

The student staff numbers 16 undergraduates and three graduate students. There are 7 girls and 12 men. Of these, 4 are general science students, 3 are pre-meds, 6 chemistry majors, 3 engineers, 2 classical students, and one secondary education student. Their interests are widespread, as witness the editorial board of the CYNIC. Editor Jake Katz is a physics instructor, as are Feature Editor Margaret Fake, Campus Editor Rose Eisman, and News Editors Kathryn Doane, Priscilla Perkins, and George Goldsmith.

Starting from the first floor of Science Hall and working up, the first person we come across is Rose of Tralee Eisman who is just on her way to chem lab. Anytime in the day that she isn't in physics lab. you may be sure that she is downstairs trying to keep the chem lab from going up in smoke. That room she just came out of must be an office judging from the array of desks and people. A cursory glance about shows four more chemists in more or less typical pursuits. Cleve Denton is grading lab reports . . . pondering whether to flunk the cadet or not. "This man had absolutely no conception of the principle of self-induction" says he marking with finality a blue line across the paper. Cleve is said to be a canoeing enthusiast as well as a willing worker. Never far from Cleve is his partner in crime and chemistry, Rod Humphreys. Messrs. Denton and Humphreys are tenants of a summer camp, and your reporter's reliable source of information has it that they do not welcome visitors.

Louie Fishman and George Goldsmith are the other members of this happy little chemists' club. Louie is at the moment trundling apparatus about the building for one of the professors. George is trying to dodge Miss Thornton, who he claims puts all the extra work on him.

Several other individuals appear on the scene from time to time, but none stay long enough to be introduced, so we meander on up to the second floor office, where we are greeted by Miss Joan Hitzel. Joan is the pre-med with the big blue eyes. At the moment she is busily engaged in learning all about the prism specter or something like that from Daan Zwick, the other chemist. Daan takes time out to explain to us that the sharp spiked chopping apparatus over by the window is quite harmless. It is used only to grind up air crew students who are anxious to finish the course fast. It's a foolproof method of getting rid of them, though a little messy. We decide that this is meant to be reassuring but are certain that we could obtain more reliable information elsewhere. We turn our attention to the students bent over their desks. What's this? Homer's Iliad?? Well, this girl must be one of the classicals. Inquiry discloses that she is Bea Thompson '45. Though a classicist at heart, Bea has had math and physics courses with the engineers, and is helping out in lab this summer. The desk next to hers is piled high with papers. This belongs to the recorder of grades, Miss Ka[illegible] eral science math major. She teach high school math alth[illegible] but is enjoying teaching [illegible] while.

Seated at a desk next to recorder is Miss Prissy [illegible] other math major. She quizzes under the able direc[illegible] Katz, but she will soon be official or other about [illegible] other. Pussy just doesn't one place. Mr. Katz enjoys teaching, because interesting people. Like classes which everyone [illegible] we mean army classes. He is a botany major spare time writing his thesis in his field. Of course a [illegible] his is the CYNIC office.

These two fellows here must be Ernie Barash and [illegible] dall, the pre-meds. Ernie explaining to Mr. Crandall run the department. Mr. C[illegible] seem too impressed.

At the desks against the [illegible] weary souls are rifling [illegible] writing down names, copying them in order, and going process all over again. [illegible] Thornton and Peg Fake tendance record ready to [illegible] as she is commonly called, zo major. Peg is a scien[illegible] dent.

Now at last we come t[illegible] with the pipe, Mr. H[illegible] graduate general science stu[illegible] '43. His pipe is his distin[illegible] acteristic. They say you can [illegible] him coming.

The three engineering [illegible] here at present, Collis Gill [illegible] and Melvin Blodgett. Collis and [illegible] are setting up apparatus [illegible] labs, while Melvin, [illegible] know where he is. He is the [illegible] addition to the staff and is [illegible] sanest.

Oh oh, a gray-haired [illegible] poked his head in the door [illegible] to shoot me if I don't get [illegible] P.D.Q. He must be a PHYSICS PROFESSOR!!! O. K. Mister. [illegible]

That ends the story for [illegible] dren. Next week or so, we [illegible] from Lizardly Lily. Don't [illegible] in the same station, same time [illegible] mystery of the, or who did [illegible] bye.

Religious Life Notes

The Religious Life program [illegible] summer began last Sunday with [illegible] service at which the Rev. Sk[illegible] M[illegible] of Burlington was the speaker. [illegible] services will be held each week [illegible] day at 5:15 for U. V. M. [illegible] the Air Corps. The speaker [illegible] Sunday will be Rev. P. C. [illegible] College Street Church. It is [illegible] many will attend these services.

The Committee in charge [illegible] activities for the summer [illegible] resentatives of the various [illegible] campus as follows: Kay [illegible] Government; Phyllis Fenn [illegible] Tyndall, Newman; and [illegible] Y. W. C. A. If anyone has [illegible] tions concerning religious [illegible] campus, the committee will [illegible] glad to hear them.

In place of the Chapel [illegible] lished by the religious groups [illegible] there will be a section in each [illegible] voted to news of the various [illegible] other interesting material [illegible] ligious activities.

Hillel is making plans for [illegible] These will be announced in a [illegible] among them is the plan for [illegible] services for the Air Corps.

Because there is a need [illegible] in the city for the activities [illegible] by the Y. W. C. A., at least [illegible] will be carried on by this [illegible]

Freshmen are especially [illegible] Y. W. C. A. and take part [illegible] ties. More definite information [illegible] given in the next issue of the [illegible]

[illegible] years ago a college prof of mine [illegible] one of his rare gems of wisdom [illegible] students (and I might add that dull [illegible] the classroom did him the honor [illegible] awake). Southwick---Memory Haunt

Slade Hall Enters Canine Competition; Improve Tours

Well, another week and another column but nothing to write about—still we're seventy fellows in our little "shack on the hill" there outta be something.

We took some pictures three weeks ago and brought them to the Cooperative Store for developing. We're still waiting.

Every day we go in and ask but yesterday no pictures—gee it's awful. We spent a whole afternoon looking through law books, so we could sue them for something—but they just can't be sued. If anybody can think of a really mean method of retaliation, go to your nearest grocer, tear off his left arm and enclose it with your suggestion, mail to the dead letter office at New York and forget about it.

We've developed a new system of barks here, you know—like dogs. I can't quite describe the actual sound—it's sort of grruff only not so much gr.

The inventor of the novel system is Yard Bird Jr. Grade.

Lyle Gnagey—we don't know where he came from but he barks like a dog and has webbed feet so you can draw your own conclusions.

Everything is woof or woof-woof, especially women, they're woof woof. We're not permitted to talk to them but we can still bark at them.

This week-end we're walking tours—I had better make that I'm walking tours. Five to be exact.

To relate the incident in detail—I'm sitting in the Old Mill diligently studying, during my free period, when a student looey walks up and says "Wot are you doing here?" I says—"It's my free period." He says, "Where's your program" and I start to look. I look and look and look but no program. He's very patient about the whole thing though. Then he says, "Well I'll just have to gig you." Notice he said "gig"—a "gig" is just one seventh of a tour. So he does and when comes Thursday and the tour list is posted—there's my name with five tours—a grand total of 35 "gigs." It just doesn't add up, but we found that in the army 242 make fifteen a long, long time ago.

I suppose I could give you a step-by-step description of a typical tour, but believe me it's just hell, and I doubt if I could do it justice in words suitable for the linotyper's gentle eyes.

We just go around and around (like Black Magic)—awful scenery and when we do see a woman and wave she screams and runs away. Too bad they can't make gas masks a little more glamorous. (I'm working on that now.)

Saturday we had a jolly old time—we paraded in the hot sandy desert, somebody ironically called an athletic field and then came home tired and hagged only to be told we must go down and load the barracks bags of our "deporting cumerods" on the train.

The first few bags we heaved around were very light, but each succeeding one seemed to get heavier and heavier—we had fun though—pushing luggage trucks, barking at girls and looking very important.

It's funny how many organizers one finds in a bunch of fellows like that. Everybody has his own particular system and most definitely thinks it should be followed (not too many potentials eh, well—just wait till the Corps Commander [illegible]

[illegible] some cases it would seem [illegible] a bugler has been placed in each [illegible] (sometimes more than one) but the [illegible] is still the same disconcerting and depressing.

The [illegible] week or so there were [illegible] relaxation playing records and [illegible] every day—however in the past week or so their instrumental renditions have fallen off. Whether it's a decline in interest [illegible] some extra intelligent soldier dreamt up the limits of his patience took a hand in the matter we don't know but it's getting more and more peaceful with each passing day. [illegible]

The last issue we made some mention as to the ordeal we were subjected to when we get our "shots."

Well, the following Saturday when we went down for the last of our set, the nurse who is the brains behind the outfit, acted [illegible] to the—that using a thumb [illegible] trying to get the fellow to tell who the brains behind this outht was. Under terrific pressure one of the fellows broke down—but when I went in I wore sun glasses and she never knew who it was.

In this week's Journal-American, there was a very delightful and educational article on kissing—the paper went through the hall with the alacrity at which ordinary publications seldom travel (except the CYNIC).

After long deliberate study of the thesis, the boys began to look fondly from one to the other in hopes of finding someone to practice on—but of course they met with no success.

About what happened on open post that night I'm not prepared to state, but the look of lipstick on 40 handkerchiefs brought back memories.

My girl friend, whose picture is kept fondly next to my bed, has a new admirer. He lives on the first floor and is wearing out the stairs tearing up and down just to look at her.

It's awful to be awakened in the middle of the night by a monster who lunges across your bed, drooling profusely and looking at your woman with burning eyes sticking out of his head two inches. Please Colter—stay down stairs, huh?

The beer party a week or so ago was very exciting—for the bartenders anyway [illegible] walked over to a keg (one that wasn't hidden) and was crushed by the crowd. I came crawling out on my hands and knees very much flustered only to be grabbed by a officer who says "Oh drunk hun—well, start pulling the front wheels that'll sober you up." I or the punishment fit the crime ha ha.

However some of the fellows had better luck—I think one of them managed to get two full glasses—but we all held it like men??

Red Fogarty—one of our more promising inmates was quite the talk of the Hall Sunday evening, not to get too inquisitive, but just what did happen at the U.S.O.?

Well such duty calls, or more specifically guard duty, so this is the end. Honest we ain't kiddin'—there just ain't no more.

Gym Gems

Well, fellows, it looks as if the majority of you don't particularly care for intramural sports competition, so that venture has been discontinued. However, a group of men who love sports, from both Redstone and Robinson Hall, have started a continuous softball game on the Redstone diamond. It's a toss-up which hall boasts the more powerful nine, but if any other hall wishes to challenge either of these teams, a game can be arranged through this department.

Despite the fact that formal competition has met with little success at the 61st C. T. D., the athletic events at the Beer Party of last June 12 were very successful, as was the entire party.

Robinson Hall defeated Redstone Hall in a free-scoring softball game. The Robinson team featured Lieutenant Schwartz in left field, Bauer in center field and Buyske at the initial sack. These three supply most of the Robinson power. The Redstone team boasts a fine infield which balances the edge that Bob Cook's fine hurling gives Robinson on the mound. The Redstone infield is composed of Dick [illegible] at first base, Bob [illegible] at the keystone sack, George [illegible] at short, Jim [illegible] at the hot corner and Ray [illegible] at [illegible] bidder. The infield also performed [illegible] at the plate as well as [illegible] at [illegible] being a right [illegible] throwing arm is especially noteworthy.

However, the outstanding individual performance at the Beer Party was turned in by Urban Ludwig, a blond speed merchant from Alfred, who won the prize set of "Suntans" by winning a majority of the sprints. He was closely followed by Bill Clark, one of the "8 day wonders," who has negotiated the century in 10 flat for Choate Prep. Phil Finneman, Manhattan College one-man track team [illegible]

War Bond Drive Must Pick Up

A recent tour of all College Training Detachments in the First Service Command by Lt. Col. I. H. Tucker, Chief, War Bond Division, has revealed that the 61st College Training Detachment has the lowest percentage of participants in the War Bond Drive, with only 53 percent of the personnel allotting part of their pay for War Bonds, against the expected 90 percent which has been attained by nearly all of the other College Training Detachments in the First Service Command.

I am sure you will agree that this is a very poor showing indeed and one of which you cannot be very proud. You have all seen movies, read about the good your money will do, and yet some of you are not doing all you can. You are not being asked to give more than you can afford, but surely you can all contribute some part of your salary. No matter how small the amount, remember that it will help. You're not being asked to give any money . . . just a loan to Uncle Sam . . . and with 25 percent interest . . . so that you may have a share in this great country of ours.

Remember that you're helping yourselves as well as your brothers and friends when you buy a Bond. Invest in America. You can't lose!

Redstone Speaks On Advantages of Army Life Up Here

It Is a Preparation For the War as Well as The Peace Ahead of Us

[illegible] interest to [illegible] will diverge from its original trend and assume an entirely new aspect. Lastly I would like to [illegible] and [illegible]. I will close.

During the preceding week a special training [illegible] was given by Lieutenant Dixon. It is the contention that not a few among us [illegible] have the ability to receive a commission in the Air Corps. For the main part he is absolutely correct in his beliefs. However it is my meager opinion that viewing the resultant without observing and taking the cause into consideration is being very narrow minded. I'm taking this moment to discuss the results, stress the causes and express certain factors which can cause a very beneficial and well needed revolution in our present military system. Since this column is to deal wholly with the military I'll satisfy the academic factor by writing the knowledge obtained here and utilized advantageously to suit your fancy.

The main reason for our being here is to inculcate the instinctive feelings of military bearing and discipline. Although the potentialities of success was very high I'm very sorry indeed to say we've failed miserably. The arguement arises, the stated aim set up is were about our capabilities. Knowing your readers as both my friends and acquaintances, I wholeheartedly contest the veracity of this statement. You may have got the stuff. You've put the work but when it comes to the test will prove not sharp and far capable distinguish between right and wrong. Since its inception the idea of C. T. D. has gradually been degrading in respect to the success of other places made taking a similar venture. The attitude of the officers towards the men and of men over towards them is totally unbecoming of soldiers. It is not meant for me a humble as myself to state where the fault lies. The correction of this situation is really very simple, and can easily be altered instead of antagonized with a little [illegible] which was unpronounced men [illegible] as the Captain, [illegible] a man above [illegible] and though [illegible] true [illegible] would be hard to say. [illegible] ing [illegible] handling his men and [illegible] [illegible] will never [illegible] [illegible] but the seemingly great discovery you deserve [illegible] is doing is totally aggravating to [illegible]. This petty [illegible] is countered by denying [illegible] of several privileges you earnestly crave and could readily have by [illegible] some letters and mark at home. A nightmare manner rather than a relief is used. The fact that allotted time spent [illegible] and the lack of passes are all at your own doing. Passes home, in [illegible] present favors are [illegible] to the select few. Because these men and girls deserve them. You all realize the grim seriousness of war and I know that if you could but say your parents [illegible] perhaps a wife or sweetheart who needs you something like this:

In whom [illegible] dreams came true
And I leave this earth to rest
If [illegible] forever where I can be
With the loneliness that belongs to me

[illegible] there the mountain has its axe
And the hunter has his gun
The virgin beauty of that place
Someday when life is done

The loveliness of flowers and trees
Will never there be dimmed
By earthly man who never sees
That in killing he hath sinned

Where Ebet and Bacchus never reigned
And Venus rules over all
And we can stroll and not be pained
By sight of mortals lost

Where music never goes too fast
And colors always blend.

Redstone---Army Barracks

Private Johnson, Corps Commander Recognized as Outstanding Leader

Our last corps commander was an extremely quiet and modest gentleman. He could have made himself known more for what he was and what he did, but we must admire him for his traits of modesty.

Mr. Johnson had a great deal of publicity as a result [illegible] athletic prowess. He was born in 1917 in Endicott, N. Y. and had his grammar and high school education there. While at high school he went out for the football team in his freshman year and made it. [illegible] went on and played on the varsity for four years, making the all state football team in his last year. Upon graduation he received scholastic scholarship offers from Temple, Princeton, Colgate, Youngstown and Syracuse. He elected to go to Colgate University because of its homelike atmosphere.

In his freshman year he proved valuable on the football team and then went on to star at that location for the following three years in the varsity squad. During the years of 1937, 1938 and 1939 Bob proved against such stars as Sid Luckman of Columbia, Sidat Singh and Monty Christman of Syracuse and Monk Myers of West Point. There is an incident connected with a game he played against Columbia University. On the opposing line was a guard by the name of James L. Dixon, Jr., who is now his superior officer fighting on the same team. Bob was picked for "likely all-American" and had offers to play professional football with the Cleveland Rams and the Buffalo Pros, but he declined these offers because he thought he had a better chance to get ahead in the field he studied. He also had a chance to coach the game which Andy Kerr was tutoring him.

At Colgate he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, the Student Senate, [illegible] and the Kowasowi, a senior honorary society. Some of his fraternity brothers are such notables as Kay Kyser, Johnny Long and Glenn Miller. One of his greatest pleasures derived from the game of football was the opportunities he had to travel throughout the country. Hunting and fishing comprise his other recreational activities.

Bob was married immediately after his graduation in June, 1940. He graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, majoring in geology. Before he enlisted in the Air Corps he worked for the Dairymens League at Buffalo, N. Y. giving advice to farmers on what type of crops would be suitable for the content of their land.

Mr. Johnson has just left us for Nashville, Tenn., and then on to something he has been looking forward to for a long time, [illegible] flying.

Good luck, Bob.

Up there my memories [illegible] that past
Are realities that never end

Where lovely maids with glistening hair
Your flesh is soft and sweet
Call gallant knights from darkness' lair
To come to them, to love, to meet

So, when work or fear and fate is [illegible]
And Death approaches me
In magic and content to say
At last I've [illegible] to be

Your intentions are to be the best of anyone in the world. It is only natural to [illegible] for some [illegible] ones. I sincerely promise those privileges will be granted you provided you prove you deserve them.

In the early stages you may think that you're keeping "on the ball" and to [illegible] the privileges denied from so doing. As time goes and the routine begins to mature, the pleasure you'd derive from complying with it will [illegible] show your scorn at the past.

This is an opportune moment to remind you that the army is a wonderful institution. Good men come out better and all men released are good. The best interests in the world is in your possession. Do it justice men; and it will never let you down. Now, since the intellect speaks with a small voice, let the preceding sentence as the proverbial "Word to the wise."

All comments will gratefully be accepted and considered if directed to me at the Cynic office. So long for now men, and let's get "On the beam." No, my nose hasn't acquired a shade of tan, and contrary to many opinions this article is entirely voluntary.

Robinson Prepares For the Future

Burke, Bedle, and Davis To Build Best Squadron

As I sit and write this column trying to think of something interesting my mind directs to just one thing. Robinson Hall again lost many men to classification centers. The greater part of the original [illegible] now missing so we're counting on a few men that are left. You can build up a good squadron under Private Burke and Private Bedle and a great ball under Private Davis. When we were first formed it looked the same way, a mere [illegible]. We can make every thing we want it to be. Let's cooperate.

Taps, Taps, Taps, yes fellows we all got them last week. Something just seemed to come out from nowhere. I guess I was also subject to some.

Robinson is again on the [illegible] It didn't take 24 hours for the boys from Southwick, Redstone and Slade to jump on the rock and bragging about winning three parades. Take it easy boys, we still have it to us as we may not take it so easy on you in the future.

A strange mist has come over the hall in general. Most of the men are now in good old flight training. As anyone comes into the door at night all you would hear is "Gee, was it rough upstairs today." I'm one of them and I know how it feels. The more one talks about flying the better he feels. There is nothing better than to listen to the "bunk flying" done by the "best of 'em all" at Robinson Hall.

I can remember while helping "Pappy" Davis making out the tour list, the list of men who were to be affected. Though a good thought of our officers' staff they [illegible] courtesies and ignored the request. On the second or third repetition he reached angrily at the salt shaker and threw it with malice into the tray of his neighbor. Private Lawrence, man of strong convictions and adequate vocabulary, loosed a stream of abuse upon the culprit which by no means made the picture any brighter. Result: a beautiful sock in the nose. After the blood had been washed away the two gentlemen ("well" call them gentlemen) tried to bring the affair to a more conclusive conclusion in the cloakroom but interfering spectators thought it better to separate them and preserve any further blood for the Red Cross Drive.

Lieutenant Dixon made the round of drill classes last week and made several comments on the preceding activities of the week with which we are all too familiar. We found what the Lieutenant had to say only too true but dared not suppose that there were many who agreed with us. So slyly, carefully we began to sound out those around us and were amazed to find that a good number were of a similar frame of mind. It is to be hoped that a realization of the true facts and of the part we play in them will make things happier for all concerned.

Abjectly, humbly, obsequiously if need be do we beg pardon of Student Lieutenants McCuiston, Thunder, and Houghland whom we so brazenly dared to address as Privates (mere paltry common-place Privates) in out last issue. Unfortunately, we were suffering under the rather strange delusion that all of us training here were of equal rank. Indeed, what with all non-com stripes removed, one can hardly be blamed for making such an outrageous error. But an error it was, as one of those gentlemen lost no time in telling us, and in response to his request we only too gladly make reparation by announcing that Student Lieutenant McCuiston was a Buck Sergeant before coming to Burlington, Lieutenant Thunder, a Staff Sergeant, and Lieutenant Houghland a Corporal. We sincerely hope that the long suffering trio has not suffered undue as a result of our unforgivable lack of foresight, and we [illegible] men of such integrity, men with [illegible] ranks they bear, will be generous enough to accept our humble apology and promise that never, never [illegible] shall we associate the names of such honorable men with a word [illegible] only to the vulgar, common "Private."

Squadron Commander Wood [illegible] of those rare individuals who [illegible] to temper authority with a sense of humor. At present there are five sections of college English being offered to civilian students at the University. Under Professors Lindsay and Pope two groups of freshman students, numbering ... pupils, are being instructed in the regular English I course. Has regular meetings three times a week and will be continued during the fall semester.

English II, a six hour per week course is being taught to twenty-four students by Professor Lindsay. The entire year's work in this course will be covered during the summer quadrimester. Likewise the course in Shakespeare ... of the advanced English courses is planned to follow these lines.

The reorganization of the army program finds fifteen sections of English in the air crew on the schedule for the department. Professors Lindsay, Hall, Wainwright, Dean, and Sullivan of the English Department, Professor Carpenter of the German Department and Professor Doane of the French Department are teaching these classes. When the regular summer begins on July 6 Professors Tupper and Aiken will conduct all English classes for summer session students.

Members of the English Department on leave include Miss Hughes who has completely recovered from her recent illness and plans to teach at the summer session of Hunter College, returning to U. V. M. in the fall, and Capt. Phillips D. Carleton of the U. S. Marine Corps who is spending a brief leave of absence in Burlington before returning to his station in Washington. Captain Carleton has recently spent several months on maneuvers in North Carolina. The third member of the department who is on leave is Mr. Elliott T. Merrick who is now in Washington with the Office of War Information.

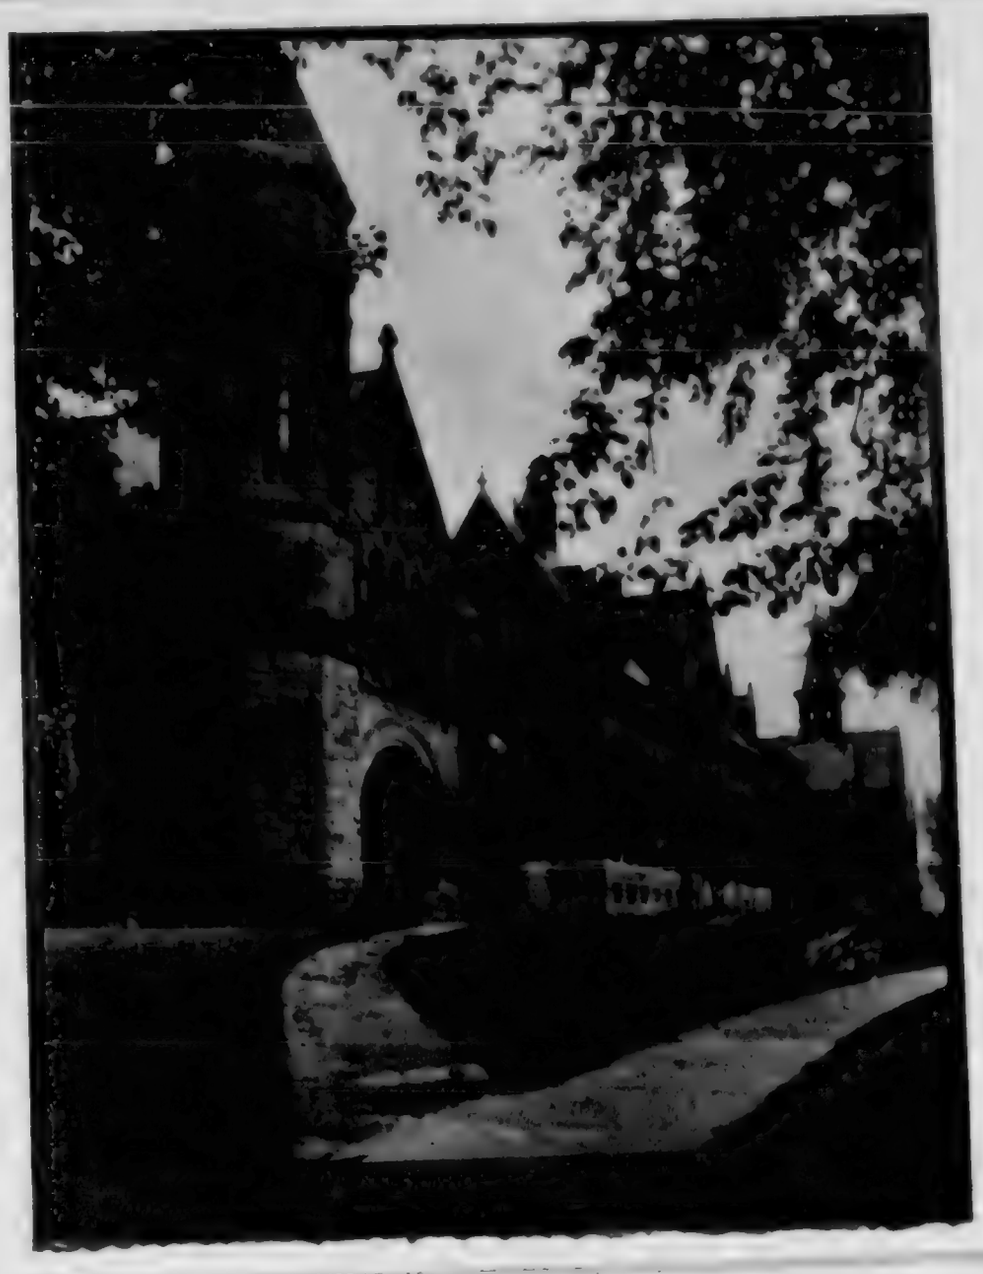
Over Two Hundred Will Attend U.V.M. Summer Session



President Millis Will Address Students at First Assembly Friday

The six weeks summer session began Tuesday, July 6, with registration in the Student Lounge of the Waterman Building and continued throughout the day Wednesday. Tuesday afternoon tea was served to the registrants by Ruth Jordan, Jane Moffet and Van Galatis. Preliminary enrollments showed that about fifteen states were represented including Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, and Illinois. Registration on the first day exceeded two hundred.

The first assembly of the summer session will be held in the Ira Allen Chapel Friday, July 9, from 12.00-12.20 p.m. with President John S. Millis as the speaker. These assemblies will be held regularly on Monday at this same hour and other special assemblies may be scheduled.

The opening reception and entertainment for the summer session faculty and student body will be held in the Student Lounge of the Waterman Building on Friday evening. A piano and violin concert will be given by Prof. Howard G. Bennett and Mr. Michael Anselmo who are well known on the campus as delightful entertainers. A series of entertainments in keeping with war-time conditions is being planned for the summer session. Among these may be dances in the Student Lounge of Waterman, an excursion to Ausable Chasm, Whiteface Mountain, and Lake Placid, band concerts, an excursion to Montreal, and excursions to Mount Mansfield and the White Mountains.

Several conferences and institutes have been scheduled to be held during the summer session. These will include the "Institute of Professional Relations" under the direction of Professor Nelle A. Adams, the "Parent-Teacher Institute" which will work on the theme "Safeguarding Children and Youth in a World at War" and the "Institute of Guidance" under the leadership of Principal H. D. Pearl of Burlington High School.

College Row Greets Returning Students

Perkins Initiates W.A.A. Activities

W. A. A.'s Green and Gold came into prominence among the freshman girls last Thursday, as Priscilla Perkins held the first meetings for tennis, softball, and swimming enthusiasts. These three meetings were held in the Waterman Building, and were principally for the purpose of signing up members of the teams.

Throughout the summer tennis club will meet at 4.30 on Thursday afternoons, softball club will meet 4.30 on Tuesday afternoons, and swimming meets will be held on Saturday afternoons. During the twelve weeks of the sports program a girl who attends nine practices out of the twelve will receive credit for probationary W.A.A. membership.

The sports are to be divided into three groups beginning, intermediate and advanced. Any girl who does not have her own equipment may use the materials which will be provided by the Physical Education Department.

At the meeting each girl drew green or yellow slips which determined the team on which she will play for the summer. Practices for tennis began this afternoon; softball begins tomorrow; and swimming begins Saturday.

R. O. T. C. Generals Drilled By Plain Sergeants and Looeys

Although the ranks of the present sophomore class have been considerably thinned out, the sturdy score that is left is undergoing an intensified military program. Under the able tutelage of Lieutenant Erwin and Sergeant Dwyer, the boys are learning a bit about camouflage, creeping, and other tactics of small bodies of infantrymen.

Sergeant Dwyer is one of the new officers here, and he is going about his job with a will. The sergeant is a rabid Brooklyn Dodger fan and has a couple of other loyal supporters in the platoon. Although the sophomores haven't had much rifle practice, Sergeant Dwyer insists that some of the fellows are always sharpshooting. But, all in all, the sergeant is quite a genial character and easy to get along with.

The fellows have lately become quite annoyed at the remarks passed by the air crew as we file out of the gym resplendent in our glistening new uniforms. For the edification of those who care, we even wear nicely lettered name plates. This is more or less for the sergeant's benefit as he has a peculiar tendency to get our names confused.

Anyone who is interested enough to attend an afternoon drill will probably hear some of the following cryptic remarks:

"Meyers, pull that butt down."

"Throw back those shoulders, Parker."

"When I gives youse de orders, turn to the right." (This by Sergeant Dwyer.)

Or if the spectator tires of the drill, let him attend a morning calisthenics session. Each of the sophomores is being given a chance to lead the company. The exercises are of the back-breaking nature, and if some soft hearted sophomore lets his comrades off too easily, Sergeant Dwyer is on hand to innovate one of his fiendish games. In fact, all of the officers usually attend the exercises to watch one of these bruising contests with sadistic glee.

Last week, the military brain trust thought up another delightful afternoon's tryst. A sharp-eyed onlooker might have seen several blue-clad figures crawling through the waist-high grass in front of Converse Hall. We were practicing the art of crawling correctly, and by the time the period was over, our gaudy uniforms were well covered with hayseed (which didn't look so unnatural on some of the fellows).

Included among the 20 sophomores are 19 generals and Willy West. . . . General Toye is good hearted enough to give the men "at ease" whenever he has the chance. . . . Bill Cook was a well liked general until his chance at calisthenics came along. . . . The whole platoon wishes that Generals Serino and Meyers would pull their butts down just to save Lieutenant Erwin's voice. . . . A few of the generals have been secretly amassing a large supply of cuts, and it is expected that these men will soon be building up the obstacle course, or performing some other such manual task.

Yes, the freshmen are undoubtedly missing something by not being sophomores. Their time is limited to drilling and military courtesy while the carefree sophomores are able to run and crawl through the woods.

Well, regardless of all this, fellows we'll be seein' you tomorrow morning at zero-seven-two-zero.

Important Meeting

There will be a meeting of the editorial staff — news editors, reporters, and scrubs —Tuesday, July 13, at 7.15 p.m. in the CYNIC office. The attendance of every staff member is required.

Girls Cooperate In Y.W. Projects

A Y W C A meeting was held last Wednesday night for the girls interested in the projects to be carried on during the summer. It was very well attended, and much interest was shown in the work which Y W is doing. There are two projects: U S O work and work at the Community Center. The Girls Service Organization has as its job helping out at the U S O building at the Saturday night dances and at the suppers on Sunday evening. Many girls have already signed up for this, but more are urged to, those attending summer school as well as those at the Summer Session.

The other project being carried on is helping at the Community Center. They are extremely short of help, and Y W has promised that University girls would come and take care of the children from 2 to 4 four afternoons a week. The response to this has also been excellent, but if there are other girls who feel they would like an opportunity to help out where they are very much needed they should get in touch with Ruth Jordan at the Bookstore.

Sewing Machines at Thrift Shop Available

For the summer the Thrift Shop is closed . . . but wait a minute! Don't give up hope. If you have a yen to try your hand at sewing you can use the sewing machine. When you get the material, the thread, the zipper (!), and the trimming, all you have to do is to go to Miss Everett, secretary to Dean Simpson, and ask for the key. Then step into the shop, go to work, be patient and soon you will have a new creation, like no one else's! (How true!) If you want to discard your masterpiece next winter, you can take it to the shop again and have it sold providing it is in good condition and wearable. The following semester, as far as we know, the Thrift Shop will open and second hand clothes in good condition will be sold at reasonable prices.

President Calls Faculty Members To Study Future

Will Investigate Place Of University in World And State After War

A new and important all University committee, later to be augmented by members from the board of trustees and citizens of the state, was announced last night (Thursday) by Pres. John Scholl Millis of the University of Vermont at a meeting of the University Senate. The object of this committee known as the University Committee on Evaluation and Planning, is to study the present program of the University and to determine its responsibilities to its clientele and to the state and its opportunities for service with reference particularly to the needs of the post-war period.

The time to prepare for peace declared President Millis is while the war is still going on. And he believes that a university should be a natural leader in such planning.

After the University Committee has made a study of the various phases of the University's activities and the possibilities for increased service to the state, it will be enlarged by standing committees of the faculty, by members of the board of trustees, and by citizens of the state drawn from government, industry, agriculture and education. It is expected that by thus adding to the original committee it may be possible to correlate the special needs of the state with the University's possibilities for serving them.

World Will Change

"It is the universally held conviction," said President Millis, "that Vermont, America and the world will not return to exactly the same kind of life that existed before the war. New ideas and new practices will be necessary in politics, government and economics in after-the-war society. It is the hope that the University of Vermont will be ready to meet the new demands which will be placed upon it in times of peace and that it will have a faculty and the curricula to render the service which the state and the nation have a right to expect."

The new committee will spend all available time for the duration of the war in study and discussion which it is hoped will result in a concrete program. This program will be the blue print of a university ready to serve adequately the state and the nation when peace comes.

Nucleus of 16

The membership of the committee is as follows: Chairman, President Millis; Paul R. Miller, Professor of Agronomy; Helen J. Underwood, Asst. Professor of Home Economics; Dr. Ellsworth I. Amidon, Assoc. Professor of Medicine; Harold B. Pierce, Professor of Physiological Chemistry; Ed R. McKee, Professor of Electrical Engineering; Robert G. Chapman, Assoc. Professor of Mechanical Engineering; Bennett C. Douglass, Professor of Education; Arthur B. Myrick, Professor, Romance Languages; George Dykhuizen, Assoc. Professor, Philosophy; Andrew J. Sargent, Assoc. Professor, Political Science; Robert C. Newton, Asst. Professor, Chemistry; Dr. Clarence H. Beecher, Dean, College of Medicine; Lilijah Swift, Dean, College of Arts and Sciences; George F. Eckhardt, Dean, College of Engineering; Joseph F. Carrigan, Dean, College of Agriculture.

The Official Student Newspaper of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College

VOL. 44 JULY 8, 1943 NO. 54

An Open Letter to the President

Mr. President: When you came to our campus only two years ago, you hoped to bring the foundations for a student government which within a year was destined to take over many a function that should have been in the hands of the students a long time ago. With the establishment of this governing body the students were given an opportunity to play a significant part in the growth of our university, and such an active participation of the students now will make for cooperative and sympathetic alumni of the future.

Mr. President: The CYNIC has always been the voice of student opinion and at all times has tried to stand for a cross section of the student body. This has been especially true as far as the editorial policy of the CYNIC on campus problems is concerned. Never have such editorials been written in the dark hours of the night when sudden strange impulses are frequent but they have always been based on the expressed needs and wishes of the students. Many a time the editorial board of the CYNIC gave up certain projects because they had been rejected by a majority cross section of the student body.

Mr. President: At the present moment and for some time in the future the CYNIC will remain one of the mainstays of student expression. We, the editorial board, will attempt to represent the student body as well as possible and as in the past will provide for enough space to allow everybody to challenge our findings. However, we would like to ask you to require that the members of your administration take heed of the opinions brought forth and see to it that not each and every one of the requests and ideas of the students go down the river Styx unheeded.

Mr. President: A few months ago a member of the CYNIC board took issue with the Board of Trustee's decision not to grant scholarships to Japanese-Americans. This editorial gave rise to some favorable student comment but at no time did we receive any advice from the people who had been responsible for the decision and who should have explained to the students the reasons for their actions.

In the last issue of the CYNIC we discussed the needs for a permanent student lounge and up to this moment we have not heard any comment from the administration that can and should provide us with such facilities.

Mr. President: We realize that your task in times like these is a very hard one, and we also realize that it is very easy to overlook the many details that must be taken care of when the necessity arises to steer a university safely through the turbulent years of war. We would like to offer our services to watch over the little things and bring to the university's attention the changes that the students deem necessary. We only ask you to let us know afterwards what we can have and why we must forsake other things. This, we assure you, will give the university a much more tranquil student body and a school spirit that will last far into the alumni days.

Mr. President: We are confident from your past record that you are with us.

Fein Points...

This is what is called rushing copy. Just returned from a week-end at home and have to make the Free Press Office in something of a hurry. Lots of news, some exciting, lurks after campus quiet before the holiday week-end. Don't know if you've ever had time to have a process as it were, but the Summer Session has students from many other colleges among them Vassar, University of Pennsylvania, University of Tennessee etc. I'll investigate the highlights and let you know. It sounds as if some of the girls for the Summer School has mostly women but women will like U. V. M. so much that they'll stay on here in the fall. Let's hope so anyhow—U. V. M. is wonderful...we love it.

You're interested in news of students and alums who are doing big or different things these days, either in the armed forces or in civilian life. Please let me know what more of you and your friends are doing. Last year's Kake Walk dignitaries are now miles apart. Chips Cudworth is working in a bakery in Brattleboro (she says: "Here they spell it with a 'C'") and handsome Norm Beaulieu (the dream of all U. V. M. women) is an aviation cadet at Keesler Field, Biloxi, Mississippi.

We got news of several Aggies recently when Chico Marks, now a Sergeant was home on furlough. He's in Air Corps Administration at Lunken Field, Cincinnati, and was obliging enough to supply data on several of his classmates. Lieut. Doug. Dana is also in the Air Corps, doing tow-target work, at McChord Field, Washington, and Charlie Webster, one of the famous track Websters, is teaching school.

The Army and Navy keep us informed, by their press releases, of other men who are making their mark. Chum Reynolds is an Aviation Cadet in flight training at Bainbridge Army Air Field, Georgia. Stanley Pike was just commissioned an Ensign in the Naval Air Corps at Pensacola, Florida. Bob Hennessy is at Bombardier School at Ellington Field, Texas. It seems as if most of our boys are going in for aviation in a big way—perhaps they've got their heads in the clouds anyhow.

Sylvia Hendershot is working as a clerk for New York Central, and already has met some big shots, having made reservations for Harry James, Kate Smith and Eleanor Roosevelt (not listed in order of importance).

Lieut. Howard Vreeland spent a recent week-end in town and Lyn Eimer is now flashing a very pretty diamond.

Selma Fienberg is in Burlington for the summer, though not as a student, as in past summers. She's working in the local Internal Revenue office and all in a muddle about these new Victory and Pay-As-You-Go-Taxes.

The summer quadrimester (the long sixteen-week grind) has two, at least, upperclassmen from other places. Lucille Underhill of Helena, Montana, came to join her husband, a Paratrooper officer, and is staying on even though he has left Ethan Allen. Lucille attended University of Montana for two years and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. The other young lady is Peggy Greenblatt Gleicher, recently added to the Air Corps, who will complete her junior year at Brooklyn College in the fall!

That's all for now—more next time if you'll let me have some news. Anyway, two of the Air Corps editors are heckling right now! Incidentally, anyone who can supply a well-enlarged map of the Carribean will be welcomed with open arms, as a careful study of that region is now being made by this columnist (or am I too presumptuous in bestowing that title upon myself?).

Religious Life Notes

Our chapel service which has been held Sunday at 5.00 p.m. will now be combined with the Summer Session Chapel which will be held every Wednesday, from 12:00 to 12:20 p.m. beginning July 14. Each service will be in charge of an outstanding religious leader and it is hoped that as many of the summer term students as can find it possible to will attend these services.

Rev. Dermot Cosgrove of Cathedral Parish has been appointed chaplain of the Newman Club to replace Father Joyce who has gone into the army.

Engineers, Agriculturists and Scientists Join in Teaching Math

Dr. J. A. Bullard, Professor of Mechanics and Mathematics in Engineering, gave very kindly of his time one afternoon to oblige a certain inquisitive CYNIC reporter. Now as head of the Mathematics Department of the 61st College Training Detachment, Professor Bullard is another of our University staff who has devoted his time and energy to aid in the training of the Army Air Corps men on our campus.

This course in mathematics, prescribed by the Army directors, includes the study of four subjects—Arithmetic, Algebra, Plane and Solid Geometry, and Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and provides a certain amount of time to be spent on each subject. As many as from 25 to 30 classes in mathematics meet every day, five days a week. Unlike history and English, mathematics is required for the majority of the Air Corps men.

The course instructors meet once a week to discuss their work, for the lesson assignments are kept uniform, and consequently, all sections progress at the same rate. Mathematical ability and experience is quite diversified, however, among the students. As men come and go the schedule has begun at different times, so that at present, four different stages in the advancement of the course are under way. After short daily quizzes are given in class, while at the end of each subject an hour examination determines each man's report to be turned into the Army Air Force Administration.

Professor Bullard has listed some 20 as members of his staff, although he stated that the number of instructors for the course varies from week to week. The group is very interestingly composed of many University faculty members, representing varied departments. Mr. M. D. Powers, Director of the Employment Bureau has offered his services; Mr. L. S. Rowell, Assistant Professor of Zoology, and Mr. Bennett, Professor of Music. From the Engineering College, Dr. A. D. Butterfield, Professor of Mathematics, Mr. M. H. Aldrich, and Professor L. B. Puffer in Civil Engineering; Mr. R. G. Chapman, Associate Professor, and V. L. Kenyon, new Assistant Professor, both in Mechanical Engineering. From the College of Arts [illegible] J. A. Hitchcock, Mr. N. K. [illegible] and Mr. D. W. Whitman. And [illegible] and Science Mathematics [illegible] Professors P. A. Fraleigh [illegible] son, and M. E. Witham. One [illegible] matical genius, Bill Pierce, a [illegible] the class of '43, is one of the [illegible] even our Assistant Dean of [illegible] Freda Harris, who incidentally is [illegible] guished as the only woman [illegible] ment. Outside of the U. V. M. [illegible] tatives, Mr. A. J. Lorenz of St. Michael's College, and Mr. A. D. Sexton [illegible] of Middlebury High School [illegible] under Professor Bullard's [illegible]

This mathematical study places the greatest emphasis on developing [illegible] in computation, and although the students have little time for outside study, Professor Bullard feels that for the most part they are interested in their work and make the best of their opportunities.

Professor Kenyon Joins Engineers

A recent addition to the Faculty of the Engineering College of the University of Vermont is Prof. Van L. Kenyon, who has been appointed to the Mechanical Engineering Staff as an assistant professor.

Professor Kenyon is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, the class of 1932, and until 1936 was employed in the industrial end of engineering with the Proximity Manufacturing Company of Greensboro, N. C., the largest textile mill in the world.

More recently he has been connected in a technical capacity with the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, which is also located at Greensboro.

Mrs. Kenyon, who is also a graduate of the Chapel Hill School, and received her M.S. from Duke University, will join him soon with their three children.

Because the women's tennis courts are not at present ready for use, all tennis club meetings will be held at Centennial Field courts at the usual time until further notice.

Parades Not What They're Cracked Up To Be, Says Slade Reporter

It would seem that the many and varied occurences that made the first few weeks of our Army life a novelty, have begun to drop off and we've settled down to a regular routine.

Of course it's not as dull as all that. The little things that happen from one minute to the next keep it fresh, but without a doubt we're seasoned veterans at last.

The advent of a new group to the 61st has also added to the feeling and given us an air of superiority.

To get away from the above blah, we've decided to write about parades.

Parades are a big point in our life, we look forward with patient expectation to their coming each week.

That's when we dig out our old clothes (we save the good ones for open post) and show off to whatever people are fortunate enough to be around to see us.

On the way down we especially enjoy passing the girls' dormitory on South Prospect and Main Streets—there is always a stray female about to bark at or even maybe get in a quick, "Hi Babe."

After standing around the gym for 15 minutes talking and looking disgustedly at Converse "Men," we go on our merry way to the parade field.

Just past the Fleming Museum there's a sewer—and next to the sewer there's a hole—and somehow we always manage to trip in it and darn near break a leg. We spend the rest of the long, long hike cursing the hole and the Burlington Sewer Department.

By the time we've finished cursing we're turning into the field, and it's there that another little accident always occurs, only this time it's the man in the middle file that gets the dirty end of it. Between the gates there's a large peg driven into the ground which does a beautiful job of sending him sprawling.

We laugh and laugh, and then when we get tired we have a change of heart, take compassion on his soul, and help him curse the peg and (this time) the Burlington Park Department.

The parade itself isn't much, we just go for the walk.

The band parades back and forth—plays something or other (mostly other) and then goes back to where they started from.

We had a little trouble Sunday—a little dog who didn't like the music (either), decided to voice his opinion.

Singling out one particular drummer he had a wonderful time—barking and running back and forth—too bad he couldn't have barked louder!

Anyway he was doing a swell job till this particular drummer looks down and glares—we know the drummer was hungry—so were we, but he shouldn't have looked at the pooch like that.

Well the little dog having no desires to end his happy life on the end of a spit and over the fire—took it on the lam and the music blared forth clear and unopposed once more—damit.

After the band has completed its routine preliminaries, we pass in review.

The Squadron Commanders yell "Right Turn "harch" (nobody in the Army can pronounce an "M." If you can't get out of the habit for you'll never never be a squadron commander). We wait till the mob decides which way is right and that's the way we go.

Maybe the wind's blowing a little harder from one side—that has a lot to do with our direction too.

As we pass the high command, somebody screams "Eyes Right," and we get a chance to give the gods in the stands the once over.

It would seem that even parades have their advantages. After completion of our little itinerary—we resume our original positions and do it all over again. Of course we growl and grumble but naturally it's to no avail. All I can say about the Army is—it's a good thing I need the money. Back to the parade.

There's one part where the adjutant calls "Report," and all the squadron commanders yell back—"All present or accounted for."

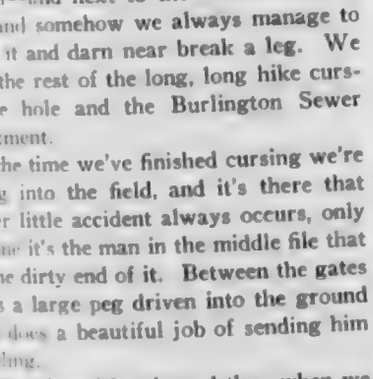
The first time we can see a definite need for such a procedure, but deep down in the adjutant's heart he can't possibly think that anyone has escaped from the field between the first and second times. There are ways of course to beat the rap . . . for instance . . . . fix it up with the fellow next to you—you'll faint and he'll carry you off the field (you should work?). In that way about 30 fellows always manage to escape.

See what brains can do? Well like we said we go through it all again, and then maybe we're allowed to go home.

Of course all this parade stuff must have some incentive to make us want to look good. So to the victor go the spoils of an extra two hour open post on Sunday night (sometimes).

Essay on parades has just been concluded.

This week we're incorporating a new feature, the "Put my name in the Cystic or I'll break your little neck department."



First on the list is Pvt. A. (Jelly Belly) Criscoulo. He's one of the big boys who wouldn't pay me to do this but rather took matters into his own muscular hands, and you can see the results above.

Of course the insert isn't quite as nice as it would have been had he done things the right way—but there's no denying he's got his name in.

Perhaps if the aforementioned party can see his way clear to present me with a slight monetary consideration before the next issue comes out—we'll see what we can do in the matter of retraction.

We've begun to take physics (the subject, that is) and with the fact that a good many of our instructors are women

Gym ◆ Gems

A visit to the gym: Carl Hagelthorne swinging from the ropes like a Simian and performing all types of weird gyrations, obviously in an effort to maim himself. Daley of Slade Hall working in dead earnestness in a serious effort to master the high parallel bars (he's really getting there too). Richards, running up and down the stairs on hands and rapidly becoming an ace performer on both the high horizontal bar and the high parallel bars.

Talking of gymnasts, however, let's not omit Mr. Masonbecker, by far the dean of all apparatus men at this detachment. Masonbecker went to Manual Training High School in Brooklyn, N. Y., and spent most of his spare time in the boys' department of the world famous Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., which has produced some of our nation's outstanding athletes, and boasts one of the best exhibition gymnastic troupes extant. Ensign Joe Calvetti of the U. S. Navy, master of the very difficult back-fly-away from the high horizontal bar is a Brooklyn Central luminary. When Masonbecker graduated from the boys' division he graduated into the men's department. By this time he was an enthusiastic gymnast. He was now under the direct tutelage of Mr. Rene Kern, former Olympic gymnastic championship performer and now Physical Director of the "Y."

It's been a number of years since Mr. Masonbecker has been a member of the gymnastic team but Rene Kern's teachings stay with a man, he's that kind of leader.

One can usually find little Matt Jaffe, C. C. N. Y.'s tiny powerhouse, trying to entice some six footers to work out with him on the mats. Though only a little fellow, the grappling wildcat has few takers.

Gil Cohen, powerful construction worker, has beaten all competition so badly at both Indian wrestling and wrist turning that he now takes on two at a time to get a workout. Even more incredible, I've seen him beat two men at once at the Indian wrestle!!

Joe De Bonis, N. Y. U's sensational Frosh hoopster, and Ken Keller, St. John's Sophomore ace, practicing the shots that made them famous. Joe's best is a left handed "hooker" that's really out of this world, while Ken is a master "set-shot" artist. Both of them are swell defensive players as well as good all around offensive performers, in addition to possessing plenty of scoring punch. Also out on the hardwood can be seen "Rip" Hornal, of Syracuse, Bill Forbes of Rutgers and George Eick of Cornell and "Red" Hennessey of Wagner.

Ferris, one of the "8 day wonders," is the same Ferris that starred for the Jersey City Giants of the American Association professional football league and his booming punts are a familiar sight on the athletic field. He spent his undergraduate days at Villanova.

Lieutenant Dixon, former guard on the Columbia eleven, came into Redstone Hall the other night (Sunday July 4) when he was O. D. He found a bunch of jitterbugs [illegible] in the lobby to Bob Gessinger's piano accompaniment. Those of you who think that Lieutenant Dixon can't smile should have been there!!! A wide smile spread across the big fellow's face as he said "carry on." He's a real man and Lou Little can be proud of "his boy."

Those Jeeps Have Finally Arrived At Southwick Hall

Ending of Lengthy Quarantine Period Anxiously Awaited

Guess what? The JEEPS finally came in after weeks of waiting. . . . But who said that they were Jeeps? . . . . Wow . . . . they're regular old time Army men. . . . . Buck, Staff and Technical Sergeants . . . . and their length of service in the Army runs from nine months to nine years. . . . Most of them have been in the Infantry but transferred into the Air Corps, to become Aviation Cadets. . . . Many of the men wear their blue overseas ribbon . . . . and others are bearing the wings of an aerial gunner. . . .

It was quite a surprise for the men left in Southwick to get regular Army men when they expected Jeeps. . . . What a disappointment—we so wanted to be their upper classmen . . . . and have them brace for us . . . . and all those other things connected with upper class system . . . . But nothing has been said about the class system since these men came in. . . . . I believe that these men can be kept on the "Beam" without the class system. . . .

The new men had their first G.I. cleaning party last Saturday nite. . . . They did a good job as we passed the inspection with flying colors. . . .

The parade Sunday was quite all right. . . . . I believe that our hall will be taking the parades from now on. . . . So that the men can get that extra two hours on Sunday nite. . . . If you other halls think you're going to beat us, you'll have to do plenty of practicing during the week day nites. . . .

These men who came in just can't wait till they get their open post. . . . So that they can see all the lovely girls that the old men talk about . . . . and from what I understand many of the boys have gotten dates with gals already. . . . How come, well they got hold of some phone numbers from men who are getting ready to leave . . . . (note to the young ladies who may read this. . . . "If you are interested in securing a date with one of the handsome new men, just get in touch with this reporter. . . ." Don't rush girls. . . . There is plenty to go around. . . .)

Put all kidding aside, these men are just waiting so that they can go in to town. . . . I am quite sure after you meet them, that you too will agree that they are a swell bunch of men to be stationed at U. V. M. They are friendly and only too willing to tell you of their adventures in B. T. C. 4 and 9. . . . And about Colonel Kimberly's Concentration Camp. . . . Or how they drilled all day in Florida. . . . Well that reminds me that I haven't told you just where these men came from. . . . Miami Beach Fla. . . . Down where it was always warm. . . . And gee you should see these boys going to bed at nite. . . . They get their G.I. overcoat and put that over them . . . . to keep them warm. . . . I guess they aren't used to this climate yet and here I am just sleeping between two sheets . . . . and thinking that was warm.

Here is a bird's eye view of the happenings as explained by new associate reporter—Bob Garsen.

Captain Ernst Is Well Liked by Men Of His Detachment

Former Sales Executive Received Commission as Lieutenant in 1942

Captain Ernst is an experienced hand at administration. He graduated from Rhode Island State College with a bachelor of science in business administration in 1939. His experience has dowed his hand in the organization of the 61st Signal Training Detachment. He received his appointment as commanding officer of the detachment and arrived on February 17 with three other officers of the organization staff. He had from that time to March 1, when the first contingent of aircrew students was due to arrive to organize the post. He and his staff did an excellent job considering the fact that they had only two weeks to get the ball rolling.

Captain Ernst was born in New York City, but spent most of his life in Rhode Island. After graduating from college he worked for the New England Telegraph and Telephone Company. On leaving that position he accepted Socony Vacuum Oil Company's offer as a sales representative. For Socony he covered the sales of the central part of Maine. His headquarters were situated in Augusta, Me.

He received his commission in the Army Air Corps in 1942 as a first lieutenant and was assigned to Maxwell Field. From there he went to Columbus Flying Field, Columbus, Miss., as a flight engineer. His duties were to provide for the care and maintenance of pursuit ships and bomber trainers. Then he went back to Maxwell Field where he received C.T.D. instructions.

At college he played varsity baseball. In his freshman year he pitched, and then played the outfield for the next three years. The greatest thrill he derived from the game was batting against Bump Hadley and Devans who later pitched for the New York Yankees and Johnny Billings who became famous with the Detroit Tigers. His favorite diversions from the daily grind are golf, fishing, bridge, and other card games.

I believe that anyone who has come in contact with the captain will agree with me that he is one of the most amiable men one desires to meet. He is very quiet and unassuming. All in all I believe that the captain is an excellent leader and has the faith and trust of all his men.

Conversationally Speaking the Play Is the Best Produced on Broadway

There are certain advantages which The Cynic boasts over Life Magazine. Perhaps some of you read in a past issue of it [illegible] "great" poems have come out of the war II. "Hitler," and [illegible] are commentaries. Whether they should be classified as "expressions" is a moot question but through devious channels we have obtained the first few lines of one of these masterpieces. Poetic reader, it is the privilege to [illegible] the following lines may suggest why Life hesitated to print the poem:

[illegible]
Wore a monstrous mouth but shorter,
Scented it with Fleur de Fiddle.

[illegible]

And that something about soldiers
[illegible]
But who cares a good gosh

In our last issue [illegible] we commented upon Pat Quackenbush's pleasant smile and [illegible] disposition. We now make a complete retraction. Not only did he calmly, collectedly, and carefully steal Lenny Pine's only flame without so much as an apology, but he proceeded to monopolize all available females in town last Saturday night and was seen hobnobbing (if that's the right word) with seven (he says it's eight) wenches in the USO. We are only too glad to report that by 8 o'clock the beguiling Pat was ditched by them all!

It seems that when yours truly moved from Converse to Sigma Nu, Edgar O. Appleby assumed that as the only intelligent and interesting personage still living at Converse he would naturally inherit this column. So little Edgar set about to see what dirt he could collect about your reporter. We understand he had little success and to give the poor lad some peace of mind, we urge anyone who knows the secrets of our past to communicate such to Edgar O. Perhaps Edgar may even be so gratified as to share some of his wealth of food which he prefers as a rule to munch nossily in bed after lights are out. (It lasts longer that way.)

We now have a little play in five acts titled "The Private and the Private" which we should like to present.

ACT I

Private Worsillow at the Converse phone calls Sigma Nu.

W: Is Private K. there?

C.Q.: No. He has a 6 to 8 lab.

W: Well, tell him that Private Worsillow wants to see him at Converse.

C.Q.: I'll do that.

ACT II

Private K wanders in dolefully from lab.

C.Q.: Private Worsillow called and wants Private K to see him at Converse.

Private K: Who the h . . . is Private W? Why the hell . . . can't he come over here? I'm bushed! (He climbs the stairs and disappears.)

C.Q.: (alias Cal, with a sly smile on his face calls Converse): Hello, Private Worsillow?

W: Yeah.

C.Q.: Private K. says if you want to see him to get your $xxxx&" YT over here. He's bushed.

W: Why that $xxx"S$"G! If he doesn't get his x$$(V&$ over here I'll break his $u&x—ouch.

C.Q.: I'll give him your message.

ACT III

Private K stumbles wearily over to Converse mumbling beneath his breath. Worsillow is out. He mumbles further beneath his breath. He goes to gym and accosts Worsillow.

Private K: Did you want to see me?

W: Yeow.

Private K: Oh. I thought

W: Oh, are the guys what writes for the Cynic?

Private K: HMMMMmmmm

W: Well, I just wanted to tell you I'm leaving pretty soon and Private K: That's too bad.

W: Yeah, and I wanted to tell you I'd be glad to tell you anything. It's all right with me if you want to write an article about me.

Private K: Well, that's certainly generous of you. I'll tell the guy who takes care of those things. I don't write up interviews, you see.

W: Oh, O.K.

ACT IV

Private K to the Interviewer.

K: Worsillow says he doesn't object to an interview.

Interviewer: Darn decent of him. Who the h . . . is Worsillow?

K: He used to be a Squadron Commander.

I: I got no time for has-beens.

K: I just thought I'd tell you.

ACT V

In justice to Private Worsillow we thought it only fair to mention the circumstances and show why there has been no interview of him. We can certainly vouch for his having been one of the best student officers (once we got used to his Brooklyn mannerisms) on the campus. May we wish him and all those who are to leave with him, when and if they do, bon voyage and lots of luck.

May we take time out now for a solemn prayer to God, Incorporated. He finds the world a rather complicated affair to run and we sympathize with him. Especially thrilling was his tour de force at the Burlington beach last week when the bronzed beauty rose statuesquely about two o'clock and with a peal of thunder announced to the sun-bathing soldiers that it was time to report back for parade. His sense of responsibility weighs heavily upon him and we ask the Lord to shed His blessing upon him and give him peace.

We have been making inquiries of late as to the hows and whys of a bellowing biped that walks like a ramrod and manages to make himself amazingly obnoxious in the 9 o'clock drill class. He has been referred to as the Monster but neither Frankenstein nor King Kong could hold a candle to him. There's something about his smile that reminds us of 32 teeth and when he is giving orders his upper lip has a strange and mysterious way of utterly disappearing. Any information as to how it came and why will be more than welcome.

Private David Gleicher has both our congratulations and our sympathies. Getting married these days is not what it used to be, but fortunately, there are still compensations. Perhaps Private Gleicher will tell us about them in time.

We understand that Converse's new Tactical Officer is doing things the boys rather he wouldn't. Somewhere, it seems, he borrowed Superman's X-ray vision, and discovered a pair of motheaten socks stuffed into the toes of some G. I. shoes during one inspection. The general consensus of opinion is that he shouldn't do things like that.

We envy Private Morris who decided to remain on Converse's fourth floor when the whole of it was vacated. For several days he lived a serene and blissful life, no room checks, no inspections, no G. I.-ing, no noise, no nothing. Commander Maciag, however, discovered the lad and life is now once again a series of G. I. parties. At any rate, he had a taste of civilian life.

In closing may we say a word to Lieutenant McClain. We appreciate his intentions on the new mail system but the results are rather painful.

Northeast Airlines Collects Oddities

Civilian Occupations Of Students Varied

Everybody has heard the popular song, "Wonder When My Baby's Coming Home." Kermit Guell wrote the lyric for that and he is right here in Burlington taking a course offered by the Northeast Airlines. He also wrote the lyrics of "Shepherd's Serenade," "Roxanne of Charing Cross," and "The Right Kind of Love."

One of the link instructors is Earl Berbrick who instructed dancers under Arthur Murray. He seems to go in for instructing.

Three former students of the Northeast Airlines were on the planes that ferried President Roosevelt to Casablanca. They are Richard Bohner, James Morrison and James Steen.

How did these men get into the Northeast Airlines? After they had collected 150 hours of flying they applied at a War Training Service Bureau. There are branches of the WTS all over the United States. Then they were sent to their present school. They live in either the Owl House on Pearl Street or the Phi Delta House on College Street. They entered the link course to start with. The links are in the Waterman Building on the second floor. There are several rooms with three or four links each. In these links the students learn to fly without seeing anything but their instruments. The main object of this first course which lasts eight weeks is blind flying. In order to fly blind, a pilot must be able to fly entirely by instruments with his windows covered. Ground school and link training are presented in the first course; then there is a four-week course in transition training. During this course they learn to fly either twin engine planes or Lockheeds.

After these courses are finished the pilot returns home and awaits a call to ferry an airplane or to do any other duty for which he is prepared.

Bitsa Bunk

Despite the sultry heat, the Dresser Cottage Quartet on Saturday, June 26, ascended and descended Camel's Hump; and great was the puffing thereof. Lightning, thunder, mosquitoes, gnats, cloudbursts—naught stopped the fearless four in their upward climb. They rested at the top for 15 minutes, enjoying the view of airplanes and mountains—or was it gnats and clouds? Anyway the planes bit, and the mountains were full of geysers, cold and upside down. So, to the tune of "Are We Still on the Trail?" sung by Rose Eisman '45, in between claps of thunder, they slid, skidded, and rolled down the muddy rocks and pathways to the foot of the mountain. Knee action is a great thing, but give us ours in smaller doses.

Kay Doane '44, and Peg Fake '44, went home for the Fourth to Bakersfield, and Dalton, Mass., respectively. Result? Toll house cookies and fruit cake.

Dresser has finally opened its doors to non-employees of the physics department. With the opening of the summer session, four new occupants have been added. They have not yet passed the test of fire and water, but are hopeful of gaining admittance to the inner circle before they leave.

Thelma Jacobs '45, of St. Albans, was the guest of Rose Eisman over the week-end of the Fourth.

Dot Thornton enjoyed the week-end in solid comfort with a dozen oranges, a zoology book, and the house to herself.

Slade On Parade

and young ones at that, boosts the interest rate no end. However, it's amazing at the complete lack of intelligence and the forgetfulness their presence induces. We just don't know nuttin', and have to be taught all over again.

While it has greatly boosted the morale, the morals seem to be on a rapid decline.

To turn to the serious for a moment—we would like to offer the opinions of what we feel is the majority of the students in regard to the present system of mail distribution.

Realizing thoroughly that there must have been some sound motive for the change over to the present method, it is nevertheless in its present form pretty rank. Perhaps something could be done to remedy it and facilitate the distribution but still leave it as it is now so as to retain whatever advantages the system affords.

Quoting several prospective second looeys—"Gig me, tour me, but please don't take my mail away."

Dr. Newton Advanced To Assistant Professor

Another Faculty change at the University, announced by President [illegible], is the advancement to assistant professor of chemistry of Dr. Kelton, who has been an instructor in the department.

Professor Newton, a native of Seattle, Wash., received his A.B. and M.A. from Wesleyan, and his Ph.D. from Princeton in 1939. He is a member of Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa honorary fraternities and was previously engaged as a research chemist with the General Chemical Company of New York City.

Those Jeeps

"We (approximately 200 women Aviation Cadets) slipped and slid [illegible] Southwick Hall that rainy [illegible] afternoon, just a week ago [illegible] then we have gotten to know [illegible] . . . . and we hope to become [illegible] with many more . . . . and [illegible] pretty Co-eds of U. V. M. [illegible] was very delightful to find that the University was Co-ed . . . but [illegible] rowful to hear that talking to [illegible] ing the week was tabooed. We are very glad to leave Kimberly's Reception Camp . . . . but we find that there are many restrictions here too. What a joy it was to leave the Mess Hall . . . . but it seems to be rather [illegible] sometimes . . . . and then again there is plenty of rain here. . . . It seems it rains often. . . . Too often. . . .

Really we are all happy to be here . . . . The food is wonderful [illegible] and the milk situation here is highly satisfactory. . . .

Seriously, we realize that we have assumed an important responsibility when we volunteered for Aviation Cadet training, and "staying on the ball" is a duty we all take seriously. . . .

Personalities in the news. . . Once again the walls of Southwick will echo those familiar tunes as played by that versatile Airman Art Tsoumdes on his sax and clarinet. . . . Speaking of burning the candle at both ends Ed Hoffman seems to be doing all right. . . . Al Springett who has been getting doubles on milk. . . . Is it that he knows the cow? . . . . Or is it that he is friendly with the pretty girl behind the mess line counter. . . . . Here is another question. . . Why did Willey Drabyk's back get sunburned last Sunday? . . . .

Well, it seems that it takes Susie longer to put on her make up than it does for Johnny stuck to put on his tie, and by the time all the Susie's got there, some of the starving males had left for better hunting grounds . . . let's hope they found some. However some sort of balance was reached because when I looked out (I was hiding under the table) everyone seemed to be dancing and having a good time. From my look-out post I saw a lot of feet, all different kinds of shoes . . . . [illegible] saddles, the typical brown and white [illegible] spectators, spike heels, and good old army boots. Of course, I saw a few feet stepped on and some intricate steps that were utterly new and different, but I also saw graceful dancing that would lighten Arthur Murray's heart. I was having a wonderful time there . . . . under the table [illegible] until someone moved the table and there I was, sitting on the dance-floor in the public eye once more. W. A. A. Asks Studes To Support Summer Athletic Program

An adequate and well planned W. A. A. Summer Program was presented to the women of the student body about three weeks ago. Clubs in tennis, softball and swimming were scheduled to meet weekly. At the first club meetings held for organization, some thirty girls signed up for club activity. It was the ambition of the athletic council to see 100 percent participation in this W. A. A. program. The council members felt that a nucleus of thirty girls was sound basis for a good beginning.

The following week the clubs met for their first activity. About eight girls appeared at the tennis courts and showed a keen interest in the development of the club. Barbara Morgan was elected manager. Last week the number of club members had increased doubly. Our tennis club is progressing excellently, and for that we are well pleased.

As for softball and swimming clubs the turnout has been outrageous! Maybe four or five faithfuls have attended the meetings these two weeks. What is the matter with the Vermont girls? Why shouldn't they take advantage of such a grand opportunity to be part of a regular campus organization? Can't they appreciate the fun to be had in a game of softball with competition between two full teams, or with a party of ten to twenty playing water games off the shore of Lake Champlain? Perhaps the older generation is right when they sorely picture their offspring as a bunch of mollycoddles!

Come on, U. V. M. coeds, let's make something of this summer term together. Let's start out with the determination to make a success of our W. A. A. Summer Program. Here we are a group of seventy women, divided into the green and gold teams. Let's have a tennis tournament with the green players opposing the gold in every match, so that each will determine a certain number of points for the team which the winner represents. Let's play a softball tournament and hold a swimming meet with green versus gold. The points will add up on both sides until the season ends with a climaxing W. A. A. final party, the losers treating the winners!

Here is the W. A. A. Summer Program in concrete form. Cut it out for your own date book.

Tennis Club meets Thursdays 4 p.m.-5 p.m. Women's courts behind the Weather Bureau.

Softball Club meets Fridays 4:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m. Hockey field behind the Weather Bureau.

Swimming Club meets Saturdays 3 p.m.-4 p.m. North Beach.

For detailed information contact your dormitory representative: Betty Paulsen, Allen House; Barbara Anderson, Roberts House; and Dot Whaley, Sanders. And to the students of Summer School we repeat that you are cordially invited to all club meetings.

No Handcuffs or Knives at Novel Date Bureau Dance

Students cadets co-eds medics
Leave your work forget your headaches
You can have a short date
You can have one tall
Before the evening's over
You'll have danced with them all

Not "anything goes"

Of course the poetry's poor but the idea is apparent we hope: the idea that we want everyone to sign up for this gala affair the U. V. M. Date Bureau Dance. Thus far the majority of persons signed up are Air Corps students. Haven't you read the posters lately. Haven't you read the posters lately. Those three letters U. V. M. mean a lot to you. You go to school here together even though you are slightly outnumbered by our industrious barnmates now quartered on our campus. But to us Old Timers the Yard men. But to us Old Timers this dance is a new venture. It will be one of a series of events on campus if it is a success. And you can't know what makes a new idea a success if it isn't a reception anticipatory from you as an individual and you group. Secondly a cooperative spirit—sort of being "on the ball" tonight and thanks the frame of mind to have a good time—some of the Boosters may down to Norwich and that means a meeting!

The social event could skyrocket and [illegible] the way. Our responsible others or it [illegible] have the air of those "dead" [illegible] plan you and to make a "hit" [illegible] and hop light with [illegible] drive [illegible] into a tizzy.

You are interested in the Dance or any [illegible] in the people at want. See [illegible] you.

Assembly Hears Professor Evans

Dr. Warren Speaks Next On Educational Problem

[illegible] assembly for summer session students was held on Monday, July 19 at noon in the Ira Allen Chapel. Professor Douglass officiated and introduced Professor Evans, the speaker of the day.

Professor Evans spoke on "The Situation on the War Fronts As I See It" and analyzed the situation by comparing the [illegible] in 1917 with that of today. He said that Germany finds herself now as in 1917 in a dilemma facing on the one hand a prospect of victory with a single stroke on the east or on the other hand [illegible] would be hard and [illegible] In the war however Germany faces the possibility of three or four fronts besides the [illegible] coast if the air [illegible] 1917. Mr. Pappoutsakis Directs on Steps Billings Library

There will be a campus sing this Saturday. This event will mark the beginning of a series of weekly activities on campus. College life isn't the same during this quadrimester in more ways than one. We of the regular fall and winter terms realize it only too well. It is necessary to start adjusting campus life to the exigencies of war and initiate a program that will serve as a blueprint for the simpler campus socials, until universities return to their normal pursuits. Such a program, when only a limited number of students are enrolled at the University, can only succeed with the full support and active participation of the whole campus group.

Students of U. V. M., your campus activity schedule has been released. The committee on student activities has planned the [illegible] you have been waiting for, and here they are:

[illegible]

The Official Student Newspaper of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College

VOL. 61 JULY 22 1943 NO. 55

You Can Make it a Success

This is a short editorial. Short, so that you will take the minute to read it. Short, because enough words have been wasted and it is time for action.

The students maintained in the past that the University needed a lot of things: Swimming pools on the back campus, Benny Goodman for the Friday night formal.

What the University really lacked and what the critics always forgot to realize was that this campus needed students interested in its activities, willing to become the life-blood of its affairs, smart enough to understand that to share means to contribute.

The past is gone; we must deal with the future.

The CYNIC has undertaken a new project: to invigorate the U. V. M. campus. We shall ask for the activities that will break up the monotony of our existence; we shall expect the simple little pleasures that even a war cannot and should not take away. We must ask for your cooperation in this enterprise: attend the dances, come to the sings, help in making a college community out of hundreds of segregated individuals.

We do not expect many of the students to go out and organize the affairs; of the people that do work there have always been only a few. But it should not be too incredible, too preposterous to expect that all the students will partake of whatever activities we have to offer and so make them a real success.

The governing bodies of this campus as well as the CYNIC will give you social affairs every week. Since the welfare of the whole college community is involved in their success or failure, we surely shall find you there.

Fein Points...

Met Mr. Robinson the mailman on the street the other day and learned the whereabouts of Vermont Phil former sports editor of the Cynic who also left with the ERC in February. Phil is in Orono Me. studying under the A.S.T.P. at the University of Maine.

Visitor in Burlington for the past two weeks has been Janet MacDonald who being here at work in New York City for the Longlean Company where she is an air representative.

Another recent visitor was Ruth Sewall who took off a few days from her secretarial work at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. She came in contact with Army men here mostly in the persons of medics.

The night that Irene Rich's daughter, Lt. j. g. Rich of the WAVES, was in town we were quite surprised to see Sally Roone there--and are happy to know that she's seriously thinking of entering that branch of service. Won't the former Kake Walk queen, now working for the Catholic Charities, look smooth in the Navy uniform?

Noticed in the Free Press the other morning that June Hoffman and Red Dorion are engaged; we've been waiting for that news for some time. June is a recent graduate, great campus leader—Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, Student Government, Tri Delt, and so on ad infinitum. Red is now in the Army, at Staten Island, when last we heard.

Saw Mr. and Mrs. John Noble walking hand in hand on Church Street—she's the former Bettina Terrill, whose brother Scotty (Ensign now in Jacksonville, Fla.) married Patty Page last month. But back to the Nobles: John in awaiting call into the Army Air Corps, and previously spent several months here after his graduation under the C.P.T. program.

Big news: A letter came from Chips Cudworth this morning with the wonderful news that she's going to be a WAVE and will report at Hunter College in two weeks. The letter was a very good one—full of thanks to everyone at U. V. M. for the wonderful time she's had here, and she really intends to return to college after the war: she'll tell us all about her experiences then—hope it's soon! ! ! Kake Walk queens go for the Navy!

The Phi Sigma Delta house had two sailors visiting over the weekend. Weren't we amazed to see Paul Zamzok and Noel Galen walking along wearing bell-bottom trousers. They're at Middlebury, with another fraternity brother, Dick Kaufman, in the Navy V-12 program.

Eleanor Hecht is at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles for the summer, and wants to know if she'll get credit for courses in cinema.

Mrs. Carpenter was in the Old Mill the other day, and said that Torrey is in the A.S.T.P. at Fordham University—studying German. Quote that Carp—but he wouldn't let you teach him any.")

Where they are when you want them: Prof. Newton out fishing. Prof. Walbridge Coffee Corner: Prof. Carpenter surrounded by girls. Prof. Fraleigh with his cats and dogs: Prof. Benny Ladd tutoring. Prof. Moody butterfly hunting with the summer session classes. Miss Christiansen and Dottie Jones whistled at by freshman boys on a Saturday night. President Mills, busy.

Final dope: Chet Mac and Jake Gershon are roaming together at the University of Chicago, where Chet is in the A.S.T.P. getting a first-rate training [illegible]

Black Coffee and Camels - - - Presenting Prof. Walbridge

By DONALD HACKEL

Professor Walbridge as a very matter-of-fact individual is to judge from [illegible] appearance. He is a cautious driver just the admirable quality of [illegible] although is artfully emphasized by the gold [illegible] adorning his office. Yet unostentatious enough his desk is an [illegible] and suitable mahogany chairs.

Our student, Miss X, told this reporter that she considered Professor Walbridge a [illegible] person and with a wonderful sense of humor. He can laugh no matter what it may do to him. This reporter has long ago learned that the essence of successful and contented living in this profession is knowing how to avoid [illegible] the more personal factors governing the subject's physiognomy or [illegible] syntax it [illegible] Miss X who [illegible] Prof. Walbridge is handsome" and Professor Z. "He's as bean as he was his senior year at Vermont."

Professor Walbridge was born in Montpelier, Vt., attended Franklin Academy in New York and received his A.B. at this University with a chemistry major. Professor Latimer considered him a fast and most capable student and he was consequently offered an instructorship in Physics. And so he learned Physics to be a better chemist."

"And do you consider yourself a chemist or a physicist?"

"Originally a physicist. I've forgotten all my chemistry."

He earned his master's degree at Vermont and did some graduate work at the University of Chicago. His instructorship began in 1924 and two years ago this fall, he was advanced to assistant professor. Last year, he became associate professor and is, at present, temporary chairman of the Physics department in the absence of Professor Holmes. He married in 1927 and has one child.

Professor Walbridge in his younger days, was drawn to any activity that involved an element of physical danger. He delighted in calculating the margin of safety, then in proving his figures. Needless to say, his judgment was inevitably correct. He has dived from atop the Yacht Club, a reported thirty feet. In addition to similar high diving stunts, he found canoeing in a storm to be delightful sport.

His more conservative interests lie in tennis and track. His "little tennis when I get a chance" amounted to playing on his college team, entering a number of tournaments, and coaching freshman tennis at Vermont during the first years of his graduate study. His track interests center around high jumping, pole vaulting, and middle distance running. Reliable sources report that in his estimation, the one-half mile run is the most difficult. It is safe to assume that for this reason, Professor Walbridge has tried his hand at it. I might add that he has done some officiating at inter-collegiate matches.

Professor Walbridge has a scientific mind. He is continually applying the scientific method. He will sit down and figure how a thing can be done in the quickest time possible, and waste more time figuring. As you would expect, once this scientific mind has completed its deliberations there is no such thing as retraction or reconsideration.

The scientific interest which compels little children to take watches apart to ascertain the cause of the ticking, leads Professor Walbridge to dismantle his students in a similar manner. He strives to learn the fundamental causes of student failure. It isn't enough that the clock ticks to an erroneous rhythm. Why? As a rule he attributes student failure to insufficient mathematical background for scientific studies. He considers the thought-process involved in the study of calculus, for instance, to be of the greatest value in developing a scientific mind and outlook. He stresses proper habits of thinking and feels that a man should have time and opportunity to think a problem through. Needless to say, he has a strong sense of humor and is a staunch supporter of that [illegible] quality just. For these qualities [illegible] a large amount of self-[illegible] accompanies the scientific spirit.

[illegible] suggests to Professor Walbridge [illegible] "Unbalanced Operation" [illegible] interesting at because it is [illegible] because it is revealing, he [illegible] the suggestion. But it [illegible] the professor to the book and [illegible] "Significant" the professor will purchase the book [illegible] spirit.

The professor feels that [illegible] all right in their place [illegible] characteristically adhere [illegible] tactful to coffee [illegible] a lit room. The [illegible] Corner are warned [illegible] wants something [illegible] must make use of an [illegible]

One of Professor Walbridge's [illegible] projects was the construction [illegible] machine now to be found in [illegible] Hall. It is [illegible] completed and was used [illegible] before the war in [illegible] for advanced Physics students. [illegible] constructed large transformers [illegible] X-Ray outfit, and on the [illegible] he devised and fashioned [illegible] two couple of microscopes. [illegible] device was also used in [illegible] his doctor's thesis which [illegible] ject matter—the measurement [illegible] of a given X-Ray beam [illegible] of the number of ions [illegible] that beam in a rare gas.

Professor Walbridge has the [illegible] problem of managing the A.S.T.P. Program which intends to [illegible] cadets with the equivalent [illegible] of Physics in twelve short [illegible] are 560 cadets taking Physics [illegible] a week the year round with [illegible] there were 100 students at [illegible] The air corps men have [illegible] lectures and sixty laboratory [illegible] which amounts to one lecture [illegible] hour laboratory period each day. [illegible] phasize more clearly what these [illegible] amount to, let us view the [illegible] different angle. This year's [illegible] the equivalent of eighteen years [illegible] hours. The laboratory equipment [illegible] suffer eighteen years of wear [illegible] To assist the department with [illegible] are five student instructors, [illegible] sistants, and eight men from other [illegible] partments, for all of whom Professor Walbridge remains responsible.

When I expressed surprise [illegible] mensity of his task, this calm [illegible] man only smiled and lit his last [illegible]

Building Project On College St.

Just a little way up the street [illegible] Sanders Hall, a building project is [illegible] on. It's not a very big building [illegible] —scores of people pass every day [illegible] never know of its existence. But it's there, growing every day, and it looks as though it would be there for a long, long time.

We first learned of the project on [illegible] afternoon we met Tufty. Tufty is a [illegible] and somber grey squirrel, the [illegible] of the grey squirrels on the campus. You see, Tufty's new home is the building project, and the reason it isn't [illegible] most of the passers-by is that it is [illegible] about twenty feet above the ground in a crotched branch of one of the College Street elms.

Tufty didn't tell us whether [illegible] reason for his seeking new [illegible] that the army took over [illegible] Certainly he didn't waste [illegible] for a new domicile. He began [illegible] it, from scratch, right where [illegible] an eye on the freshman dorm.

He didn't have much time [illegible] on the afternoon we met him. He's [illegible] shy, and besides, his mouth [illegible] twigs. His house was in an [illegible] stage then. Now it has [illegible] as the lining. We saw him [illegible] sitting at the base of his tree [illegible] tufts of grass to make a soft [illegible]

Tufty is getting quite tame [illegible] of climbing around to the [illegible] tree, he may stop for a moment [illegible] and then with a bright wink [illegible] and a flick of his tail, he is [illegible] for him some time when you [illegible] on College Street, six [illegible] Sanders Hall. And then [illegible] crotched branch. You won't [illegible] most of the house is hidden [illegible] branch with the dead leaves [illegible] that you are looking at [illegible] Tufty, the most energetic [illegible] pus squirrels.

LOST—Saturday afternoon [illegible] gold Waltham wrist watch [illegible] let broken. Somewhere on [illegible] Call 4535-J.

...ing home last Sunday nite from open post at about 9.30 we were accosted by some unknown young lady (we hope) and queried as to whether we were coming to the aforementioned dance—we assured her we were but since the conversation was carried on remotely, that is she was in the top floor of some house and we were on the sidewalk, we didn't get quite the opportunity to extend the casual introduction as far as we would have liked to—sooo—we don't know who she was but if she's interested, wear a sign about your neck next Saturday at the dance and we'll personally see that things are taken care of from that point on

I feel rather ashamed of myself for using this as a personal date bureau but we need something to fill the column up and this is doing it—ok Jake?

For one week since the departure of Lieutenant Schwartz, our former tactical officer, we've been under our present one, Lieutenant McClain—so to get on the better side of him we conscientiously practiced you-alls, he-alls and she-alls and every other kind of alls to develop our southern accent to a point where it became a little bit authentic.

Then what happens—off to Converse we're shipped and to a new tactical officer—Lieutenant Slate—but never fear we'll learn all his idiosyncracies and use them to our best advantage.

One good thing about this Converse business—there are of course a great many more inmates in that particular hall and thus a lot more quarters to be obtained for paid advertising. We sincerely hope that our new roommates etc will be a bit more cooperative than those persons we've had to associate with in the past. Perhaps you don't realize it, but not one single Slade Haller asked to have his name put in the Cynic

It certainly can't be for lack of money for we see plenty of the green stuff floating around—there just ain't no tangible reason, nevertheless the fact remains—no paid ads.

At the So Winooski Avenue USO last Sunday night we were pleasantly surprised to find one Brooklyn and one Bronx telephone directory which we pawed over for about a half-hour, reminiscing and wishing a lot. We pass this bit of information on to you, knowing full well that there are a lot of men from New York here who would do for the chance to get near something that even smelled of La Guardia's realm

Thats one good thing about Burlington as contrasted to New York—you got pin ball machines—we ain't

Our Commissioned Officers: Lieutenant Dixon has returned from his home in Washington D C where he was on leave He says he's glad to be back from the torrid turbulence that is our nation's capital Glad to have you back Sir

Lieutenant Slate was seen sporting a pair of shiny new silver bars at our last beer party. To confirm all rumors and our 20/20 vision (questionable after the seventh beer), the lieutenant admitted he had just won his promotion It is the opinion of those who know him that the War Department was far from wrong in its judgement Converse's Tactical Officer is here on temporary duty having come from Lockbourne Field, Ohio A feature story based on a personal interview with Lieutenant Slate will appear in a later issue. . . . Lieutenant Schwartz has been transferred to the 39th C. T. D. at Lafayette University in Eastern Pennsylvania Moving from the Green to the Alleghany Mountains he was sorry to leave as were we sorry to see him depart Always quiet and unassuming, he was well-liked and respected by his men.

Lieutenant Brossman is studying at the Tactical Officers School at Randolph Field. He is expected back early next month. . . . Lieutenants Dixon and McClain trimmed shellacked, and fairly whitewashed Sergeants Gordon and Richardson at tennis recently How about that non-coms?

Realities and Rumors: With the previous squadron commander out of action with a chipped ankle bone B Baum has been elevated to that position S C Baum sounds good calling "Pass in Review," but it is hoped he will not overuse that meaningful phrase. . . . The Rabbit and his superior caused something of a furor at Robinson the other day—they got the room. . . . The men on the new Dawn Patrol have their own motto! They go to breakfast, Flight, then Physical Training. Their motto is: "Eat, Yawk, and Drop with the D. P." . . . . After their first time up, the new Flight class discovered they had two kinds of pilots Hot and White the latter has no reference to race discrimination. Bob Jones, after several spins, on his first flight, asked his instructor for the "cup." Upon receipt of same, he proceeded to use it in the usual manner. It didn't seem at all funny to him when after his ejection he discovered that the cup had no bottom

Southwick Hall Laments Passing Of Old Buddies to Other Locales

Southwick Tells on Mail System Efficiency

Humorous side lights . . . A pretty girl stepped up to one of the new men and asked him why he wore the three ribbons on his chest He proudly exclaimed that he had gotten them for shooting three zeros from his Link trainer. She believes him yet, from the latest report . . . This is an established fact In medical aid, five cadavers were carted in Two minutes later ten cadavers were carted out We lose more cadets that way

The mail system is not as efficient as was before I believe the old way was more satisfactory for all concerned I do see the reason for this new system it cuts the number of men handling the mail but a note must be sent concerning to the officer in charge of the mail The men would rather have the mail at the end of the day It seems much more after spending a long day at class to come back to the barracks and get your mail without trouble and then lying on your bunk reading the mail from the folks back home It really is a pleasure.

Well this column must be brought to a close but before I do I want to mention that the new men will certainly know how to walk TOURS after watching this reporter . . . walking his ten. . . . So until next week when we shall bring you more news of the new men and Southwick.

SOUTHWICK HALL

Friends and buddies parted from Southwick Hall last Sunday morning for elsewhere on the campus but not before returning to the once lively hall of ...Miami Beach The men were just getting settled in their new barracks when an order came through to close the doors of Southwick At present we are unable to give you any information as to the reason but of course the army never has to give out

As the column is being written the typewriter echoes the only sounds in the once busy halls Although it is empty there still remains those intangible memories of those who lived here since the opening of this detachment

Many of the original first detachment lived in this hall but they have gone to Nashville But there are three men who above all are going to miss Southwick the most They came with the first detachment and have lived in this hall ever since the "snowy days" of last February They are Corp I Piacenza Supply Sgt C Ferguson and 1st Sgt R Workman

"To Be or Not to Be"

Some people like prizefighters Some enjoy a lynching party I'm told For myself I'll take my bloodless stunts straight Give me a mid sanitation class anytime . . . Lieutenant Guarino, the umpire threw the arena open for "debate" "What's Wrong with Morale" the topic At the end of a very hectic session it was generally agreed that the Sunday Parade was in back of most of the present discontent There was no argument there But where blood was spilt was on the question of a class system. Some were all for it Some, mostly the old and older men, disapproved on the grounds that if the men weren't able to discipline themselves without the pettiness of an upper-class system they weren't fit to be officers One question was left unanswered. Who among us were to be the upper classmen? Someone anticipated this question by remarking that it was a P (for pretty) poor idea to appoint men of your own class, your own buddies, to rule over you" It inevitably leads to favorite cliques and ends up a mess For example Gustkeam in Gustkeam's own words is "a natural born leader, but even though Gustkeam knows it nobody else seem to and nobody wants to take orders from him Davis on the other hand (not our own Davis bless his hide) commands respect and authority even if not in love simply because he isn't one of us

Well it was an interesting session No ball ended a more highly contested dispute Yet to quote one of the boys on the way out Men we have just begun the fight"

Prize cracks of the week during introductions we had three civilians pilot officers A quiz period followed with all the boys unburdening their latest rumors onto these three Out of nowhere came the query Do you have to be dumb to be a pilot?" During the same period Lieutenant Slate volunteered this striking information: "Don't worry so much about flunking out The army will find a place for you if you do do We're sure this settles the worries of the fellows who were afraid they would be discharged

Our 10 am class is especially interesting as we meet many new instructors there The constant change is a bit confusing, though The only "steady" instructor there seems to be Sergeant Green We have only known Sergeant Sorensen several days, but it is clear already why he is so widely respected and liked in English the emphasis is on style and technique In spiration is drawn from our professor Every time we see him he's walking

Converse Moves to Sigma Nu House; He Still Writes

Reporter Admires the Sartorial Elegance of Sq. Comm. K. P. Murphy

Now that your reporter has been irrevocably disowned by Converse we must necessarily consent to confine our news hereafter to Sigma Nu. Consent is the only appropriate word for the situation since a column of this kind can thrive only on bits of so-called dirt. Sigma Nu, unfortunately houses such a sterling aggregate of On the Beamers that a mosing columnist is at a loss for material We are in hopes, however, that eventually Cch will decide to sleep after reveille or Rudnick will go to bed without a mop in his hands. When that crucial day arrives, you can rest assured that this reporter will take advantage of the temporary and it will be only temporary—let down for a gorgeous splurge

In the meantime we shall simply voice any stray notions that come to mind

To begin with, we should like to nominate K P Murphy for the title of "The 61st's Best Dressed Man" Never before have we seen such scrupulous meticulous toilette The illustrious Murphy puts the rest of us to deserved shame when he strolls the campus, glorious as a Greek God in his gorgeously pressed uniform The very trees bow their heads as he passes, in humble acknowledgment. Little wonder indeed that the upstanding Murphy was made a Squadron Commander In the army, inevitably, justice must triumph.

We should like to pay tribute to Mr Baum's lovely piece of work in Sunday's parade Somehow, we find Mr Baum extremely pleasant and bearable when there is the width of a drill field between him and us. As Hollywood would say, "The gentleman isn't made for close-ups."

Time out now for a personal letter

Cynic Office
Today

My dear Mr Carabillo

Since you are now burdened with the tearful duties of running Sigma Nu we feel that a few words of paternal advice are the least we can offer.

There are two basic requirements for any Commander a sense of humor and a stoic mentativity You will find that it is both simpler and more comfortable to laugh with the boys You must know by this time that there are certain eloquent expressions in which every army personnel indulges simply for the joy of

Bill Clarke of Slade Hall Voted Outstanding Athlete of Detachment

[illegible] unknown reason the attendance at our second beer party was much smaller [illegible] This was unfortunate for those absent as they missed a wonderful time. The second beer party was a great improvement on the first and that was on a par with excellence. The athletic program was especially interesting and took the place [illegible] beer and drink that was served. The results of the athletic competition were as follows:

EVENT	WINNER	HALL
[illegible] Dash	Kowalsky	Redstone
[illegible] Dash	Cook	Redmen
[illegible] Throw (accuracy)	Lipton	Redstone
[illegible] Kick (distance)	Fick	Redstone
[illegible] Race	[illegible]	[illegible]
	Archbold	Southwick
	Kliteman	Redstone
	Clarke	Slade
	Forbes	Redstone
	Kowalsky	Redstone
	Cook	Redmen
[illegible] Race	Schultz	Sigma Nu
	Glenny	Sigma Nu
[illegible] Legged Race	Clarke	Slade
[illegible]barrow Race	Clarke	Slade
	Church	Slade
[illegible] Lugged Race	Glenny	Sigma Nu
	Schultz	Sigma Nu
Tumbler Race	Kersch	Southwick
Tug O War	25 Men	Redstone

Because of a lack of time the softball games were not contested. For the same reason the triangle sprint was also eliminated from competition.

The team championship went to Redstone Hall. Bill Clarke of Slade Hall was voted the outstanding athlete of the afternoon and received a complete suntan uniform. Len Kowalsky of Redstone Hall was second in the balloting.

Comparatively on the heels of the afternoon of thrills was the four man relya. Kowalsky running the third leg for his team got the baton 10 yards behind the leader. With a tremendous burst of speed (he won the "50" you know) he not only made up the 10 yards deficit but also garnered 10 more precious yards. Cook, anchor man, never was in any danger of losing his 10 yard lead.

Everyone had a swell time, too bad the attendance wasn't better. I'd like to thank all those who made this occasion possible. I know that I speak for my buddies as well as myself. Let's have more.

All Religious Life Organizations Carry on Active Chapel Program

The Rev. Charles S. Martin rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the speaker at the Chapel Service held July 14.

Father Martin pointed out by citing several experiences of his own, how anxious and glad people are to give help when they recognize a real need. A poverty stricken family in Burlington received many toys that they could use when their need was discovered. Many people have gladly given help to refugees and Chinese relief has been greatly supported.

But the other needs which are not as apparent we are not so ready to offer our help. A friend of Father Martin's was instrumental in feeding the children of France in the last war and again is feeding needy children in Virginia. Then he decided to turn his attention to the solving of the economic, social and spiritual problems causing the hunger and poverty of these children.

As this need is being met, so must we plan a peace not by numerous organizations and plans but by an agreement among nations on basic principles and fundamental spiritual truths which are embodied in religion and God, Himself. Physical destruction and loss of life are to be expected in any revolution but when our help. A friend of Father Martin's destroyed them indeed has trouble come upon us.

Our political leaders today are being suggested and followed as never before. We must in the same way unite behind Christ who is the leader of all leaders. We must be concerned with the ills about us, but we must lift up, for all to see and follow, the principles of Christ to eliminate the causes at the roots of our present troubles.

Hillel Club has a new director for the summer. He is Rabbi Solomon D. Goldfarb, representative of the Jewish Welfare Board who is responsible for the spiritual welfare of Jewish soldiers at Fort Ethan Allen and for students at Norwich, Middlebury, and U. V. M. He has instituted a Sabbath evening service for U. V. M. and air crew students in the Chapel at 6.30 on Fridays. The first meeting of the Hillel Club was held Wednesday night in the Waterman Building.

The Most Reverend Matthew F. Brady, Bishop of Burlington, has appointed Reverend Dermot J. Cosgrove as Chaplain of the Newman Club, to succeed Reverend Robert Joyce, who is now a Chaplain in the United States Army. Father Cosgrove was born in St. Johnsbury, Vt., and was graduated from St. Johnsbury Academy, Georgetown University and St. Paul's Seminary in Ottawa, Can. He was ordained to the priesthood at the Cathedral in Burlington in June of this year. He is now serving as curate at the Cathedral.

Father Cosgrove is planning a meeting with the Catholic students enrolled in the summer term Thursday night of this week.

The Y. W. C. A. at U. V. M. this summer is concentrating on two projects, the G. S. O and the Community Center. Professor Hall is now holding interviews with men students in the hope of re-establishing the Y. M. C. A. on campus. An organization meeting is planned for next week.

Yesterday's Chapel speaker was Rev. Robert L. Tucker, D.D. recently minister of the Indiana Methodist Episcopal Church in Columbus, Ohio. He goes this fall to the First Methodist Episcopal church in New Haven, Conn. Reverend Tucker was given an honorary degree from U. V. M. in 1940 when he was the baccalaureate preacher.

Reverend Tucker spoke on "Can An Intelligent Man Believe in God?" Many people today face the concept of God with confusion, ignorance, or plain indifference. If a man would believe in God he must give some attention to the matter. Many feel that belief and religion are something mystic, will-'o-the-wisp or mirage-like. But if God is to mean something that meaning must come from persistence and attention. Knowledge and education don't come as miracles. They take time and careful thought and study.

A. J. Cronin when working on a manuscript grew so discouraged and tired that he threw it into the ash can. A young farmer of his acquaintance rebuked him by saying "I dig every day in the peat bog to drain it. My father dug here before me and my grandfather before him. Some day the bog will be drained." Mr. Cronin recovered his manuscript and the book "The Citadel" is the result. If the idea of God is to be a life-giving correction you must give time to it.

One also must use intelligence in belief in God. A man cannot just park his brains and call his emotions to the front. The mind however is not enough. One would not find out what the home is like they must win the war this year or lose. Should they chance one big offensive and possibly lose control. This was the alternative chosen in 1917. Germany now [illegible] the Eastern front will be ruined in a short time since air bombing has already made great inroads on their resources and metals. However if they attempt a full scale offensive on the Eastern front they face the danger of the English and American attacks. One of Germany's advantages has been the ease with which she could quickly shift troops and supplies from one front to another. Now, however, the Allies can also move quickly and make surprise attacks for Hitler's air force over Germany is already spread thin and the air protection of Germany greatly diminished.

The Germans say that Russia started this offensive to convince us that Germany is not opening an all out offensive on Russia and to thus ward off attacks on her Western Front. This, however, has failed miserably. Hitler must drive eastward, as Ludendorff went westward, not because he wants to but because circumstances compel him to.

Since Russia held in '41 and '42 the optimism that she will hold in '43 is well founded, no one today thinks that Germany is capable of knocking out Russia. Also there is more hope now than in 1917 for a break of morale in Germany. We cannot measure the effect on German moral of the air attacks but there is no question but what it has been great. The "Will to Victory" has gone with the loss of air coverage as happened in Tunisia. Thus President Roosevelt's optimism is justified when he said that we are seeing in the summer of '43 the beginning of the end in Europe. In fact there exists a possibility, in view of the events of 1917, that the end of this year may see the close of the war.

Professor Worcester Warren of the Department of Education at Dartmouth College was the speaker at Monday's assembly.

Professor Warren spoke on "Equalities of Education." He said that the purpose of education is to give every child the opportunity to become of service to his fellowman and to give satisfaction to himself. Although this includes worthy use of leisure time, self-realization, etc. it also includes equality of opportunity which depends upon recognition of individual differences as well as free public education.

Besides providing for individual differences by organization such as special classes for those physically and mentally different and the use of psychiatrists for those emotionally different the ordinary teacher should recognize her responsibility and opportunity in that situation. The teacher should: (1) center her attention on the child and the growth of the child, (2) want the child to grow and believe that he can, (3) get all the knowledge she can about the child, (4) help him grow. The ordinary teacher can find out about the child in a number of ways among which are observation, friendly chats with the child and his parents, questionnaires, school records and possibly a standard testing program. The teacher should then utilize this knowledge to help the child in his growth, physically, mentally and emotionally.

Dear Sir

It has been called to my attention that about two weeks ago there was a statement in the CYNIC to the effect that medical students would not serve their interships after graduation. This is incorrect and should be corrected.

Very truly yours,

Hurry Call for Girl Basketball Players

Basketball enthusiasts have been striving against odds in organizing enough girls to participate in games for W. A. A. credit. The two meetings of the basketball club were insufficiently attended to produce enough members for one team.

Connie Garvin, who is leading the group, has stated that she hopes the third meeting, which was held last night, would result in the organization of enough girls interested in forming a club to choose green and gold sides, and elect a manager.

This is the time for all basketeers to come to the aid of their association! Girls are asked to remember that each practice they attend will not only improve their game—it will earn them W. A. A. credit as well!

War Is Hell

Yes, War is Hell, and I'll tell you why,
'Twas there he fell alone to die,
What pain that flesh so young must feel,
When put to test against hard steel.

His head was high and his shoulders back,
As he waved good-bye at the railroad track;
Just twenty-one when he went across,
His life half won before he lost.

Yes, youth marched away in anthems high.
And all I could say was just good-bye;
I gave a son who will never return,
Must a wound ever run? Must a heart ever yearn?

We'll win this war, and victoriously
Struggle through gore for democracy;
The lives to be spent to buy that peace,
Oh hate so intent! Will it never cease!

Yes, War is Hell, and I'll tell you why,
'Twas there he fell alone to die;
God grant me power to restrain,
The menace of the hour to return again.

Summer Session Party

A reception and entertainment for the summer session students held July 9th at 8 p.m. marked the opening of the session. Doctor and Mrs. B. C. Douglass, Dr. J. F. Scully, and Professor and Mrs. P. A. Moody received the students in the third floor west lounge at Waterman. Michael Anselmo and Prof. Howard Bennett of the Music Department gave a violin and piano recital, consisting of the following selections: Sonata in G, Grieg; Romance from Concerto in D Minor, Wieniawski; Waltz in A Major, Brahms; Rondo, Mozart-Kreisler; and Madrigale, Simonetti.

Miss Catherine Nulty and Miss Verna Parker, assisted by other members of the faculty, were in charge of the punch table, which was spread on the terrace.

Slade Improves

(so we understand). Of course Slade was well represented, having by far the most beer drinkers on the campus.

In the athletic contests that preceded the actual "beering up" one of our very own members placed in quite a few of the events, walking away with a new suit of suntans, cigarettes, pencil, etc. Bill Clarke's his name and he hails from Tenafly, N. J., (wherever that is).

We've advanced one step, in that we have our own student officers now. Not that it means anything, but we're getting hard-pressed for stuff to fill this column up, so hard-pressed that we're even using junk like this.

After reading that last paragraph I think I had better stop for the quality of writing material seems to be on a rapid decline. Whether it ever was anything but that, is something else, but keeping in line with our original thought—this is the end.

The girls at Allen House have gotten permits on a water hose and the next two or more cadets who sing or whistle or yell under the windows before twelve noon will be washed out! ! Quite a time with Tearing Terry, Droolin Doolin, Grapplin Kaplan, well-satisfied Garvin, and many more including Zealous Ellis, whose attendance here has been a profitable one (pipe the ring from Chuck Glueck). Book Reviews

The Billings Library has received many new books which are designed to satisfy the taste of all types of readers. Among the new books are fiction, history, plays, verse and children's books. Comprehensive reviews of these books will, of course, not be given. But the following comments have been selected as an indication of the variety of books which are in circulation there.

Aztecs of Mexico
By George C. Vaillant

George Vaillant is one of the few people who can make a complete story concerning the the average layman. In this book he is at the peak of perfection.

The account records the arrival of the Aztecs in Mexico in the eleventh century. In this book the reader progresses from this point to the strange story of the amazing rise of the Aztec empire and its over-nite fall under the merciless rule of Cortez and his followers.

Hands Off
By Dexter Perkins

This is the story of the Monroe Doctrine. As the reader continues to this interesting account he finds the Doctrine's high-spirits eaten filled with such exciting episodes as Maximiliano's usurpation in Mexico and the explosive Venezuelan episode of 1895. Mr. Perkins then goes on to discuss the "good neighbor" policy and its relation to the Doctrine. The volume concludes with a keen and penetrating analysis of the international situation as it exists today.

The Three Bamboos—A Novel
By Robert Standish

Three bamboos are the symbols of the Fureno family, whose sons turned against the old ideas of Japan and turned to heavy industry to make their family one of the most powerful and wealthiest in the country.

Here we find a family proud of its traditions, gentle, kind and peace loving. Gradually the sons see that greed, lust for power and ambition become the by-laws of the family. These laws become symbolical of the trend of events in the nation as a whole.

In this account we find geisha girls luring officials to delightful retreats where they secure vital information from their would-be lovers. Here are men seducing the Chinese nation with a generous supply of opium. Here are diabolically clever spies playing France against Germany, yellow races against white, in one of the most insidious episodes of modern history.

In this book suspense, intrigue and terror are interwoven to form a compelling novel.

just by reading "Swiss Family Robinson." He must give it a home and experience it. It is the same with God. Conviction of the reality of God comes after experiential attention. If a man would lay hold on God for himself he must assume that at the end of his search there is that reality which he seeks. Religion here asks no more than does any science. One does not perform an experiment in chemistry or physics without assuming that there will be ascertainable results.

Now a man seeking God should consult other people for those men and women who have really sought God claim to have found him. If you would reject this human testimony then why not reject other human testimony and thus all knowledge.

We are standing at the crossroads of civilization where the great cumulative powers of evil seem greater than we are. But nothing in the Almighty God can see it this way. No intelligent individual can believe in God and it makes all the difference in the world.

make the matter clearer.

1. The dance is at 8 p.m. in the Waterman Student Lounge Saturday July 31. If by some chance your date won't be there when you arrive!

2. There will be signing up next week on the same days and the same hours since the dance was postponed a week.

3. All dates must be arranged through the "arena"! No one will be allowed to enter with a date after the dance has begun.

4. If you are not particularly drawn to your date, don't worry, just act chivalrous or lady like and bide your time. The affair will be so managed that you will not be "stuck" the entire evening.

5. We want more of the remaining male civilians on the campus and more medics to sign up than have.

6. To see if you are to attend this first dance watch for the roster which will be posted on Friday the 30th on the Bulletin Board by the Student Lounge.

7. We do not use handcuffs, knives, lassoes, shot guns, shilalies or blinders to arrange the contracts between the two parties. Ours is a reliable firm. Our methods are pleasant and soothing to shattered nerves. In short we aim to please. Will you try us?

Introducing . . . Fleming Mummy

Ancient Royalty or Egyptian Handmaid?

Have you ever seen a mummy? It might interest you to know we have one right on our campus at the Fleming Museum.

It is dated 670 B.C. during the Late Period, from Floscht Egypt.

I suppose by now I've aroused your curiosity as to just why and how they began mummifying their dead. Let's get the story behind their powerful custom.

The tradition began in Egypt and China thousands of years ago. The Egyptians believed that every human being had four souls. When a person died the soul went to Osonnus, the god of the dead, to have his good deeds weighed against the bad. The two souls left were given journeys and tasks to perform. Only one soul called the "Ka" stayed with the body as long as it remained preserved. They believed if the body did decay the spirit would decay also. For this reason they did everything possible to preserve the body and keep their people of life ever after.

When a person died the body was embalmed by priests who removed only the vital works. After the contents had been removed from the body, it was filled with gums and spices. It was then stored away for a preservation till it had shrunk to about one third of its original size. Then, according to the custom, it was wrapped in strips of white cloth. With each turn of the cloth a prayer was chanted by the priests. The more money the relatives and friends contributed the more elaborate the ceremony. The body was then placed in a coffin built in the shape of a human body. The effect was to trick the spirit into staying if the body did decay. Many statues, called Yshabtics, were placed throughout the museum for the same purpose. Within sixty to ninety days later the body was laid in the tomb. Now the Egyptians believed that the spirit "Ka" had human sensations. It became hungry, thirsty, restless and longed for friends. To satisfy these sensations the tomb was filled with all the assorted wines and foods a human being could desire. Thinking only the spirit living, they believed only the spirit of the wine and food was consumed. Besides food, miniature objects of every imaginable form were placed in the tomb. It was through the spirit of these objects that the "Ka" remained satisfied, till all four souls united to such life everlasting.

This is just a brief summary on the mummy and its mysterious tradition. To satisfy your further curiosity visit the museum.

Whittemore and Lowe to Give Piano Recital Friday

Famous Navy Pianist To Play in Chapel

On the evening of August 6th, the walls of the University of Vermont chapel will once again resound with the music of established concert artists. Continuing the University's policy which last semester saw the engagement of Joaquin Nin-Culmell, pianist, and Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan Opera star, the summer session authorities have arranged for a recital to be given by the young two piano team of Whittemore and Lowe.

Messrs. Whittemore and Lowe interrupted a promising concert career by enlisting in the U. S. Navy at the start of the war. However, with the special permission of the commanding officer at Brooklyn Navy Yard, where they are stationed, this team has been able to give periodic recitals. Last season, they appeared at Carnegie Hall, the first team of its kind to perform publicly in the uniform of one of our armed forces. Since, previous to that engagement, they had appeared more frequently in the middle West, there was some doubt in the minds of New York concert goers as to the artistry of the two. However, by the time these two young Navy men had concluded their recital, the audience had materially approved of their efforts by resounding applause and requests for encores. The critics were obviously impressed by the recital judging by the favorable notices of the following day.

Now that Navy life is taking up most of their time, and recitals are few and far between, we at Vermont are indeed fortunate to have the opportunity of attending a Whittemore and Lowe recital. It is just recently that two-keyboard recitals have been coming into their own, and it is our opinion that the artistry of the two Navy men will find a high place in the estimation of all Burlington music-lovers.

Tickets are at $.75 and $.99 and are available at the Waterman Building.

G. S. O. Girls Hear About Traditions

The members of the University branch of the G. S. O. met with Dean Simpson on June 21. Mrs. C. A. Pease, of the local U. S. O. and Patricia Platt, who has done a great deal of G. S. O. work in other cities, talked with the girls regarding the work of the organization.

Dean Simpson first traced the development of the Burlington G. S. O. from its beginning as the Volunteer Hostess Committee in 1940, at the time that the National Guard was stationed at Fort Ethan Allen. This committee had to supply 500 girls for the first dance; it succeeded in finding the girls and has progressed ever since. In 1942 the local committee became affiliated with the national G. S. O. and took blue and gold as their colors.

In one way the University branch differs from other G. S. O.'s. The national age limit is set at 18, but it has been voted to allow any girl in the University, even though she may be only 17, to join.

Miss Simpson also mentioned that she feels that the G. S. O. girls at the University do not fully appreciate their duty; they are not to leave the U. S. O. during the program, and must treat everyone in the same manner. She stressed that the U. S. O. is not set up to provide a good time for the girls, but to entertain the servicemen.

Another point brought out by Miss Simpson was the lack of good taste in the wearing of military insignia. She sug-

Dean E. Campbell To Address Campus

Known Negro Educator Has a Great Message

Representatives of six Campus organizations: the Y. W. C. A., V. C. A., Newman Club, the Hillel Foundation, Student Committee on Religious Life of Student Government, and the CYNIC, met Tuesday evening in the headquarters of the Committee on Religious Life to plan the program for the week of August ninth when Dean Emmanuel Campbell of Tillotson College, Austin, Tex., will be the Campus guest.

Tillotson College is a college for Negroes with over seven hundred students, one of several schools for higher education for Negroes established in the South after the Civil War. Dean Campbell himself is a Negro, born in Louisiana, and after attending a college there went to Tillotson from which he graduated. He then went to Oberlin Theological Seminary in Ohio where he obtained his graduate degree. He is now Dean of Men at Tillotson and director of the religious program with the title of College Minister. He is spending some time in the State of Vermont this summer as guest of the Churches speaking and meeting with groups on behalf of racial democracy.

The next week's program will consist first of a convocation in the Chapel on Tuesday evening, August 10, at 8.00 at which Mr. Campbell will speak, the regular Wednesday Noon Chapel, and a forum meeting in No. 265 Waterman Thursday evening, August 12, at 7.30. Two dormitories are planning to give teas at which Dean Campbell will be the guest: Allen House, Thursday afternoon from 4.00-5.00; Sanders Hall, Friday afternoon from 4.00-5.00. Arrangements are being made by a student committee for entertaining him at meals at different tables in the Waterman dining hall on the third floor and by members of the Faculty.

Committees were appointed for publicity both in the papers and by posters, for entertainment, and for the meetings.

It is very timely to have a talented representative of the Negro race on the Campus at this particular time when racial tensions are increasing so rapidly. He is well qualified to interpret his side of these tensions as well as to present the larger aspects of the problem. He is an excellent speaker of pleasing personality.

Race Poll

In the spring Vermont students had a chance to express their opinions on post-war questions when this University participated in the nation-wide American Opinion Poll. 12,622 college students have expressed their opinions in the poll and though they do not claim to speak for all students of America, their opinions may be regarded as a fair cross-section, since the ballots came from 63 colleges well scattered geographically throughout the country.

Among the questions on "Race Relation and the War" was the following: "To implement the Four Freedoms all over the world, should Americans be taking steps now to end discriminations against Negroes in the United States?" Nearly three-fourths (73.6 percent) said "yes." discriminations against Negroes should stop. Many asked, "How can we really do it?" "We are only giving lip service to democracy if we continue our present policy of discrimination." The opposition (15.7 percent) argues: "We cannot take on everything at once," and "Negroes don't

Dr. Goodman Called To UVM Med School

Dean Beecher of the University of Vermont, College of Medicine announced recently the appointment of Dr. Louis S. Goodman of Yale School of Medicine as Professor of Pharmacology and Physiology at the University Medical School. Doctor Goodman, who has been Assistant Professor of Pharmacology at Yale since 1937 succeeds Doctor Slaughter who recently resigned as department head.

Doctor Goodman is a native of Portland, Ore., and graduated from Reed College, Portland in 1928 where he was also a teaching assistant. He studied Medicine at the University of Oregon Medical School where he received his M.D. and M.A. in 1932.

After graduation, Doctor Goodman was named House Medical Officer at Johns Hopkins Hospital, in Baltimore, Md. In 1934 he joined the National Research Council as a fellow in Medicine studying at Yale University Medical School Department of Pharmacology. He became a member of Yale faculty the following year and was named assistant professor in 1937.

In addition to Medical Research and lecturing, Doctor Goodman is co-author of a textbook in the field of Pharmacology that is widely used in Medical Schools throughout the country, including the University of Vermont Medical School. Doctor Gilman is the other author.

During the past year, Doctor Gilman and Doctor Goodman have associated in a war gas research project at Yale under the auspices of the National Research Council on the treatment of war gas casualties.

Doctor Goodman plans to establish a home in Burlington shortly.

Campus Sing Is A Great Success

Mr. Pappoutsakis Flies In From North Beach

"Many were the blythe notes her merry voice would pour" and so it was at the Campus Sing on Saturday the 24th of July. At 7.15 p.m., there was assembled on the Library steps a fine group of songsters, predominantly female. That was the only drawback. Really, more male voices were needed. An orchid should be sent (C.O.D. of course), to every freshman man who was there. Where were the upperclass men? Many of the freshman women weren't there either. Even though it was Saturday, the sing didn't last very long, so that many people could have come who didn't.

Although suggestions for the pitch squeaked, rasped, shrilled, piped and soared on the air from every quarter and for every song, Mr. Pappoutsakis, the leader, persevered well. For his enthusiasm, sport, and patience we now make three bows to the East, three bows to the West and four toward Mecca. We might interest the readers even more by saying that the poor man had to fly in from North Beach to arrive on time. Keep quiet, Junior! Of course the faculty as well as students love to keep cool these hot days!

The Campus Sing was a great success. Darn those lusses anyway. Let's have more upperclass men and freshman women next time. We need the first to give body to the men's voices, and we need the freshmen so that someone can sing the Vermont songs after we've gone.

How about that, could we have 100 per cent attendance next time?

Yours for bigger and louder Campus Sing.

Girls Will Invite Boys To Victory Semi-Formal

The U. V. M. Students' Activity program proceeds with a promising future. The schedule as planned, with one unique event each week Saturday evening for the remaining quadrimester was presented to the student body in the last issue of the CYNIC.

Over sixty students gathered for the Campus Sing two weeks ago; last Saturday's Date Bureau Dance provided novel entertainment for some one hundred of the campus population.

This is only the beginning, however. Student Government will sponsor the quadrimester's formal with a victory theme this Saturday. The following week end a Block Dance behind the Waterman Building will be followed by a picnic breakfast Sunday morning. Even outside sources have been busy lately to invigorate campus social life. During the next two weeks there will be a piano recital by two famous Navy men in the chapel, as well as a few smaller recitals.

Those are the blueprints and here are the details.

Block Dance and Picnic Breakfast Fill Next Week-end

On the week-end of August 14 there will be a U. V. M. Block Dance Saturday evening from 9 to 12. A portion of the pavement behind the Waterman Building is to be blocked off for dancing. "Yeke Brown and His Corn Hoers" will form a merry circle of musicians to swing out with requested numbers. A charge of 10 cents per person will be collected at the doorway.

The following morning a picnic breakfast is planned to be held under the oak tree on the hill beside the women's hockey field. Breakfast will be served for 15 cents between 9 and 10 o'clock.

Perhaps the Summer School students will wish to stay over for that last week-end of campus activity. The Air Cadets are cordially invited to join with the U. V. M. students for the week-end events. Dancing "To the Light of the Silvery Moon" ought to attract a large number, and Sunday morning breakfast in view of Mansfield brow couldn't be better.

A Publicity Committee to serve for the Block Dance has been appointed: Dot Thornton, chairman, Connie Garvin, Virginia St. Germaine, and Delia Snell.

For the breakfast the Food Committee consists of Florence Bevens, chairman, Cynthia Bailey, and Barbara Powers. Those appointed to serve on the Publicity Committee are Betty Paulsen, chairman, Dot Johnson, and Eleanor Rowden. Aglaia Ballas and Betty Moffett will be in charge of ticket sale. They announce that tickets can be purchased at the Book Store the preceding week, August 9 to 14.

Our Fraleigh Uses Live Cats in Calculus Class

Professor Fraleigh's "doggies" and "kitties" are well known, but this was supposed to be Professor Nicholson's Math 16 class. What then were those "things" in the chair? They were (I picked them up to make sure) they were real live cats, or should I say kittens? At any rate they weren't theorems or logarithms. I hope you notice the "they" because there was not just one pussy but two! They looked exactly alike, and I wasn't seeing double, soft and grey with little pink noses and long white whiskers. They were all curled up on one of the chairs in the sunshine with that smug look of superiority only a kitten could have in a math class. Twice during the class they awoke, stretched, looked scornfully at the poor math class and then went to sleep again.

We know of no owner and are still wondering if Professor Fraleigh forgot them when he left the calculus class.

Special Feature To Be Presented At Intermission

The Formal Dance will be held this Saturday evening August 7 from 8.30-12.00 in the newly decorated Student Lounge. For the first time this semester, the girls will get a chance to ask their favorite boys to the dance. A band will furnish the music for the well planned affair.

Summer time will give the boys an excuse to leave their tuxedoes at home, and the admission charge of 60 cents will pay for the girl's flowers in form of a victory corsage—defense stamps. The corsages will be given to the couples at the door.

This will be the last chance for the summer semester students to mix with the rest of the campus population this year and they are especially invited to make this dance a success. Quite a few students are expected after last week's informal get together where many new acquaintances were struck up. The Coffee Corner crowd of Medics and Air Cadets will add the human part of the national defense theme to the party.

Ruth Jordan, Chairman of the Decorations Committee, promises a unique arrangement of colors in keeping with the "Victory" theme. Those working with her are Peggy Durfee, Kay Doane, Irene Reimuer, and Inez Matarese.

A special feature never before displayed in any part of the United States or the whole world will be the center theme of the dance. Five special craftsmen had to be employed to carry out the design for this novel and remarkable display. The secret will be well guarded till intermission time when the dance will reach one of its highlights.

Laurel Hansen is Chairman of Publicity with Ann Wightman and Natalie Beal as assistants. Refreshments will be served by Ruth Mullington, Georgia Katalas, and Betty White who is chairman. Betty Mansfield heads the Floor Committee, while Bob Turner will be in charge of the ticket sale.

This will not be one of the formal dances of the old days. However, even amidst all the economy everybody is assured of a wonderful time because the committee will give out a good band, a timely theme, a novel feature that in months to come will be copied by many, and above all, the best dance possible.

Miss Marston Will Give Organ Recital Monday

Miss Miriam Natalie Marston will give an organ recital in the Ira Allen Chapel from 12.00 to 12.20 on Monday, August 9. This recital will take the place of the usual Monday assembly.

A Haircut -- Please

It happened in Burlington.

And it happened in Burlington in the second year of a war that has seen many of this city's boys die for a more tolerant, more understanding and peaceful world.

Our thoughts wander back . . . . a reflection on Jesus; a reflection of the man Jesus, nailed to the cross . . . . Man, as an individual, must find within himself a consciousness which tells him how to live in harmony with his fellows and in communication with the vast and beautiful mystery of this universe.

Even in times like these that consciousness is almost non-existent because it is hemmed in by narrow political loyalties, short sighted religious creeds, and age-old prejudices.

Even in the midst of war, there is room for Christian feelings and a recognition of what Christianity stands for—a world wherein man must find himself and learn to live. We cannot go on forever ignoring the need man has for international goodwill and cooperation. We cannot forever withdraw into an isolated nation or religion. Once we can get over that tendency we will be ready to cooperate with our fellows. Then we will be able to combat oppression and reaction wherever it occurs with no thought to our own interest. Then we will never sacrifice truth and loyalty to mankind for the sake of petty individual interests.

Today we are still reaching. We are still listening, but half-heartedly, to our inner conscience, to the humanitarian concepts of our religious teachers.

Otherwise, it could not have happened in Burlington.

The story is simple, tragically simple: A negro-educator, Dean of a southern college, who is visiting Vermont this summer on a good will mission, needed a haircut. And barber after barber of Burlington refused to cut his hair. A few told him to come after the regular hours; but during the day he was an outcast.

Take notice Mr. Sinclair Lewis, it can happen here. It can happen as long as every barber (or should we say, the patron supporting him) will not realize that there is a goal for mankind—the day when no one will seek to know for whom the bell tolls because everyone will feel instinctively that it tolls for him.

Next week this negro-educator will be on our own campus for a few days. We must show him that not all of us are like those barbers who refused a simple service to a member of humanity whom only the narrow-minded can call inferior. (The barbers and butchers of Germany and Japan call us inferior, too. Let that be a lesson.) It should be our sincere duty to make his stay here a happy and welcome one.

It would be useless to scorn the barbers; it would be of no avail to argue them down. There were money-changers at the time of Jesus, there are barbers today.

Somehow, in all the excitement over the incident, the face of the suffering member of mankind of all ages, of all creeds and nationalities seems to arise with a message on his silent lips, in his burning eyes: I know, yes I know . . . . at times we all grow impatient at the thought that ages must elapse before the human mind will be truly fused and man will live at peace and in happiness. Yet, the road from the Neanderthal man to Einstein or Jefferson, or Beethoven has been a long one too—millions of years long. We will do our best, but that will not overturn the world. Yet we cannot afford to despair, life is too short for anything but hope.

Fein Points...

By PHYLLIS FEIN

There isn't too much news this time, as students haven't been too helpful in supplying information, and I haven't walked the streets often enough to meet people and dig up bits to myself.

Noticed intentions to wed in a Free Press this week: Peggy Wishart, recent grad, and George Kemp, control tower operator at the Burlington Airport. Best wishes.

Also freshman Stanley Burns took a little vacation to go to Rutland for the wedding of his sister, Barbara Elaine Burns, to George Little of Burlington. This is a real U. V. M. wedding: Barb was graduated in May and has been working in the Summer Session office; Spook, former editor of the CYNIC, left with the E. R. C. on the fateful 19th of February, and just received his commission at Camp Lee, Va. Bill Sisson was best man. Good luck, kids!

Several girls are seeing lots of money during their summer vacation—working in banks here and there. Rosemary Thayer in Burlington, Agnes Mulholland and Peg Palmer in Malone, and Thelma Jacobs in St. Albans—Taj is learning all about rationing and the ration checking accounts.

The Sumner Firestones—he was a Tep here, graduated in '41 in advanced R. O. T. C.; she was Anita Berman, D Phi E, home eccer—are now stationed in Shenango, Pa.—they're certainly seeing the country, from Maine to Florida, since their wedding last June.

Harriet Pearl, daughter of the B. H. S. principal, is head waitress at Oakledge Manor, and is still seen around town. Betty Anderson is working at Abercrombie and Fitch in New York City.

Bob White was in town over the week-end from Middlebury, where he's in the Navy training program. Another visitor in town was Gladys Hoyt, also remotely connected with the Navy, since she's waiting to hear about her acceptance into the WAVES. Pvt. Robert Doherty of Fort Devens, until recently of U. V. M. was in town on a short leave, visiting Betty Hawkinson. He'll return to Burlington in January to enter medical school.

Lyn Eimer whisked off to New York for another week-end, and saw Lieut. Howie Vreeland, who's leaving shortly for an embarkation port and very interesting work over the pond—he's another February 19 man, SAE, recently out of Signal Corps O. C. S. at Fort Monmouth.

Read in the newspaper that Tommy Clairmont is receiving his basic training at Camp McClelland, Ala.—Tommy, a promising basketball player, was a junior in advanced R. O. T. C. and left early in May for active duty.

At least two of our girls are busily at work in defense—at Pratt and Whitney in Hartford, Conn.—they are Barbara Burnham and Ellen Stewart. Saw Ellen early in June, just after she started, and learned that she is checking experiments in the chemistry lab there. That's rather far removed from elementary education, but worthwhile nevertheless.

Eleanor Berig, recent graduate, is now Mrs. Jack Bloom. Jack was a Tep, graduated in the class of '41, now in dental school, as a private first class (like our dear boys, the U. V. M. medics) in the Army, at the University of Maryland—so Ellie and Jack are keeping house in Baltimore.

Help make Dean Campbell's visit to our campus a wonderful one—he's a negro educator who'll be at U. V. M. all next week, and he certainly deserves our attention and interest.

Please, kids, give out with some news of your friends and what they're doing this summer and where they're doing it, or else Jake won't have anything to fill up the Cynic. Oh yes, before I stop: some Cadets were very naughty boys about not coming to the Date Bureau Dance; they'll know what I mean, I'm sure. By the way, do you think it's possible to get occupation in Jamaica, British West Indies? So long for now.

Joan Hitzel was elected chairman of the Newman Club for the summer at the meeting held Thursday, July 22. Persis Yates was elected Secretary-Treasurer. No date has been set for the next meeting.

Violette Chun Masters Our Slang Very Well After Great Difficulties

Campus Comment

DEAR EDITOR:

It wasn't Superman that came to the U. V. M. campus but a new idea, something which everyone said could not be arranged. To be a success it had to be super and "chilluns" it was. The thanks of all those who attended the U. V. M. Date Bureau Dance goes to those who magically produced the impossible.

We haven't orchids (like columnists do) to give those girls who stayed even when they saw Johnny wasn't there, but those boys who were there are grateful to you for their pleasant evening.

It's lots of fun to dance with more than one boy, so at the next Date Bureau Dance don't stand up all those Jeans like you did last Saturday, fellows. I was amazed to see the number of girls who came to be entertained by you absentees. They turned out wonderfully. Had as many boys come as were needed there would have been many lighter hearts at midnight than there were.

Forming a Date Bureau for a dance has long been thought of but believed impossible because of the innumerable difficulties, chief of which was response. The committee did wonderfully with the idea. Why not personally express your thanks to them for their work by attending the next one.

Sincerely yours,
ROBERT TURNER '44.

DEAR EDITOR,

I can't help but make some comment about last week's Date Bureau Dance. No, the administration was carried out very well; refreshments were delicious; music, O.K.; women, right there and on the ball; but the men!

I can't help but think that if a man would definitely "sign up" and commit himself to be present at a specified function (especially a dance), that he would come, and gladly. The Air Cadets, I imagine, don't seem to share that idea as was evidenced by their attendance at the Date Bureau Dance.

These are the facts: The Date Bureau Committee worked hard and long for several weeks to plan, arrange and get a working plan for the dance which they thought would serve to entertain the Cadets and liven up the campus a bit. The University girls signed up with the Bureau to come to the dance and take 'Pot Luck' with the Cadets. And they came! Yes, almost every girl that signed up for a date with a cadet was present at the dance only to be disappointed by the absence of her partner. Evidently, the Cadets didn't take their part in the game seriously.

I think that when the University girls try to do something to make the Cadets' stay in Vermont as pleasant as possible the Cadets would cooperate in a more or less helpful manner. If they sign up to escort a girl, why don't they show up? Or did they get cold feet?

I don't think Vermont girls are that bad.

A. P. I.

You all have seen that [illegible] shine, compacted in only [illegible] female. Surely, that black [illegible] ning smile has caught your [illegible] is Violette Chun, better [illegible] to the girls in her dorm. [illegible]

With close to 11 years [illegible] war behind her Violette left [illegible] years ago on an English boat [illegible] was called, and this she always [illegible] with a smile, The Empress of [illegible].

I. T. [illegible] mother at Simmons. Her brother, a fine looking chap, is also at M. I. T. now.

In the summer of 1941 when [illegible] first came over, she kept house [illegible] and a cousin, who is attending [illegible] Academy at Andover. She returned to Holyoke and in the summer of 1942 she remained there for summer school and then in the summer of 1943, she made her entry to the Summer Session at the University of Vermont.

I have often wondered, like many [illegible] people, just what were the first things that caught the eye of people, as one first entered the United States. V was mostly impressed by our slang. A story she told me of her first meeting with it was very amusing. While at a football game, which she didn't quite understand some one, laughing, told her that she had "Bats in the Belfry." Thinking quickly of the Liberty Bell she thought that this was a compliment to her freedom-loving soul, and quickly replied "thank you." This was a source of great amusement among her companions and when she asked what it meant she was told that it meant she was "nuts." More mixed up than ever she asked for further interpretation. Such things "cuckoo," "wacky," "screwy," and "marbles in the attic," did not help her any. Finally one kind soul said that it meant that one was out of her mind. This cleared things up, and "V" laughed along with everyone else.

Our dances, jazz, and other things that the modern day has brought upon itself are no more understandable to our Chinese friend than our slang. But she does not look on with disgust at the modern American boy and girl, she is constantly watching and waiting for something new and different by which she can make herself one of us. For Violette was born here in the United States while her parents were travelling here and is an American as well as a Chinese.

Here we have a young normal Chinese girl, lovely to look at and lovely to talk to. One who has seen the terrors of war, one who has known what it is to wait for months and months for word from those so dear to her. This representative from China is just part of what the rest of her country is like. We are going to do their best and fighting hard for what is dear to them. Their country, their loved ones. We say best wishes to you, Violette, and we hope that you have liked Vermont and the University as much as they like you.

DORM NOTES . . .

As far as Roberts House is concerned the Date Bureau Dance was a success, as everyone went who did not have a date—all in all Roberts House was vacant on Saturday evening last. Could two certain hard working social committee members by name of Barbara Anderson and Betty Mansfield be responsible? More power girls!

And oh yes, Barbara Anderson had her mother up to visit for a few days, a week or so ago—and all the way from New Jersey too!

The Community Center has been very thankful to Aglaia Ballas for coming to entertain the children several times a week.

Barb Powers played hostess to her sister last week.

Barbara Anderson has been an ardent worker on the Social Committee, preparing for the Date Bureau Dance [illegible] with sleeves rolled up, busy with the coming Formal, which promises [illegible] huge success.

Southwick Hall Receives Cadets From Missouri; Are Satisfied With Set-up

This week will be spent waiting for Friday and first Open Post, which will probably be followed by candid comparisons of St. Louis and Burlington. We'll see.

...otherwise) from a two day ...and six weeks at Jefferson ... Missouri, at three a.m. on July ...s stepped from a typical troop ... the Jesse James era onto a ... station platform. So this was ... Look man, you can actually ... breath!"

... the hill Southwick Hall looked ...ly formal and academic in the ... Its peace was forthwith shat... however, by some 400 dusty G. I ... stamping up and down its marble ... to our first real rest in forty-... hours.

General opinion had it that "this set-up looks plenty O. K.," and the idea still prevails. Since first impressions are ... strongest, we shall probably remember the events of our first week at U. V. M. as vividly as any.

With barracks bags barely hung on ... we learned that the shining brass ... on the staircases were to be ... shining, one ascended and descended without benefit of their support. Also forbidden was falling into formation still in the process of dressing. "Fix that tie and that button, mister!" And finally came the harsh admonition that we were not to speak to civilians, under which heading, coincidentally enough, fall co-eds.

By the end of first drill class we had learned how Army clothes should fit, that gum chewing is discernible from the rear that conversation is not indulged in while "at ease," that a student officer's word is law, and that an extra three hour drill on Sunday is entirely possible. "Got it?"

In two days we memorized the important passageways in Waterman basement and learned that standing in mess lines made for healthy appetites.

Two hundred of us were recipients of our first gigs when the general spirit was running a few notches too high after hours in both the gym and the ballroom. It's a blasted shame to waste all the humorous talent which somehow appears only after 9.30 p.m., and lights out. Next time, as warnings have it, we'll be double-timing it around Redstone Campus along about midnight.

First fire drill came Wednesday night at 10.00 p.m. It takes a good man or an old soldier to fail out from a sound sleep in the time it took Southwick to be emptied after a single whistle blast had punctured the silence. Many and varied were the attires of the moment, but the most original, and yet unoriginal, stood sleepily in the front rank—au natural.

Good material for a human interest photographer would have been the platoons which halted and right faced at a curbside root beer stand set up by the neighborhood children on South Prospect Street. The Air Corps purchases at two cents per glass must have considerably swelled the young proprietors' weekly allowances.

A joy to the First Aid faculty would be the sight of the few much-practiced-upon, be-bandaged souls in the ballroom during study hour.

We give-up Dept.: The individualist walking to a table in mess hall carrying a tray full of food—and wearing a gas mask.

Even the Officers Learn How to Wait

Our assignment for this issue was to write up an interview of Lieutenant Dixon and/or Lieutenant Giamo and/or Lieutenant Slate. To uphold the presidentially approved Army tradition of deliberate advanced planning, we must postpone any and/or all of these interviews until the next issue. We could, of course, present several excuses for this action, such as: (1) Lieutenant Slate has been transferred to another post; (2) the latest copy of the New York Who's Who, with its inside story about Lieutenant Giamo, has not come off the presses as yet; or (3) the Office of War Information has not replied to our increased inquiries about Lieutenant Dixon, but since we must abide by another equally important Army tradition, all we can say is, "No excuse, sir."

Our Commissioned Officers

Our Commissioned Officers: Lieutenant Slate—as intimated above—is now attached to the 58th College Training Detachment, Massachusetts State College, Amherst, Mass.

There is probably no need to mention the fact that the officers and enlisted men of the 61st feel the loss of its hitherto sole first lieutenant who was as capable as he was quiet and reticent . . . Lieut. Brassman is expected back very shortly, may even be here before this ink is dry . . . Captain Ernst and Lieutenant McClain beat Lieutenant Giamo and Lieutenant Dickens at tennis last week. This news must have been heartily received by Sergeant Richardson and Gordon, who, as a team, seem to have established a post rivalry (in tennis, of course) with the defeated team of lieutenants. To quote Sergeant Richardson, "although we haven't beaten them (the looies) yet in match play, whenever we take a game Lieutenant Dickens complains that his racket is too light. One of these days we expect to weigh it down for him with ignominious defeat (in tennis of course)."

Farewell Burlington And Many Thanks

City People Tried Hard To Please Air Cadets

Since there is a very strong probability that this will be the last Cynic I shall write in all conventional standards I should now indulge in a sentimental "adieu." But Army life seems to be nothing but a steady series of adieus so I propose to show my indifference to them by starting now to ignore the conventional. Instead I shall continue myself to the usual chatter and prattle.

Before I leave Burlington however there are some few acknowledgments I should like to render and now is as appropriate a time as ever.

First, on behalf of all of us may I thank Miss Margaret Whiting for her selfless generosity and kindness. Miss Whiting opened her home to Cadets and their out of town visitors when this post was first established. She has done all one could ask to make our stay in Burlington a pleasant one. She has gone out of her way to accommodate and fulfill our extra-military needs and desires. All of us who have met her will always remember her sincere and warm open-heartedness. Our very deepest thanks to you, Miss Whiting.

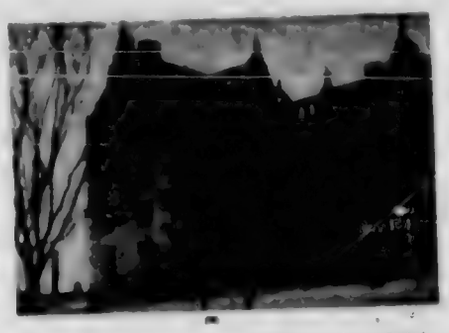
To Professor and Mrs. Dykhuizen and their lovely daughters to the Misses Holbrook and Terrill to Professor Bennett of the Music Department, to Chaplain Hall, to all the instructors here at the University we offer our thanks for their quiet understanding, for their very kind efforts to make us feel that Burlington is our home, for their patience and tolerance in and out of class, for their willingness and thoughtfulness outside the line of duty.

To the two Burlington USO's we give thanks for the very many things, things without number, that they have brought us, for the hearty Sunday morning breakfasts, the surprise of the cookie jars, the atmosphere of relaxation, the well stocked libraries, the smiling attendants, the dances, buffets entertainments, and movies. And especially for those intangible things it is impossible to repay, the genial company and genuine interest, the contagious good will and freely given assistance.

To the University Cafeteria, the dietitians, the serving line, the clean-up squad, the cooks and bottle washers, to the whole staff our hearty thanks for smiling service and appetizing food. We realize how gigantic a task you have taken over and how well you have done it. For all the trials and tribulations we have brought you, accept our humblest apologies; for all the satisfaction and pleasantness you have brought us, accept our thanks.

To the doctors and the staff of our Health Service our thanks for keeping us well, for the personal interest you have taken in all that you have done, for your gentleness and expertness in treating all our minor aches and major pains.

To the University staff and students our thanks for letting us invade your beautiful campus, stroll your walks and sit in your classrooms; for your good will and assistance to us who usurped so much of what is yours; for your sincere welcome and your constant labors to keep us satisfied and happy.



To all our officers our thanks for their efforts to make us a happy crowd, for their patience and good humor, for all of themselves that they have given us, for

Slade Hall Restorms Bastille Four Days After French Comrades Did Same

With the fires from Slade Hall consumed the Bastille on July 19 four days earlier and we could have celebrated it with the French. At any rate half of our original 87 are in Converse and the other half, surrounded by workmen, waterhoses are abeding in Sigma Nu.

One of my former roommates and myself were lured methodically into a den of thieves—Room 26, North Wing. (Ali Baba, please take note.)

Not only were they thieves, but Irishmen too. They squeezed us for our every penny, beat us into submission with a rubber hose, and made us do all the cleaning.

They were fair about the cleaning though, and even went alphabetically—Anglis and Daley, Anglis and Daley—etc.

In two weeks of very unhappy life we've lost 10 pounds and are still going down. If they're going to eat us, and I'll swear that's what they're building up to, why don't they want us fat.

Please Finneran, somewhere in that black Irish heart of yours, there must be a tiny spot of human kindness, so please have compassion on our persecuted souls, just for a while.

Still on the topic of Converse—we find that 1st Lieut. P. H. (the P. H. is just what you think) Brossman is returning—or has returned, and once again the hallowed portals will ring with the sounds of "Ah tell yo gent'mun when ah was in Pearl Habah. . . ."

Too bad we lost Lieutenant Slate, he really was a darn good Tactical Officer, not only in my opinion, but also that of the rest of the squadron.

The latest piece of interest in our turbulent lives is our recent attempt at flying.

We're not quite the hot pilots we thought we were, but we're doing our best to fly the wings off the crates.

That isn't too hard either. Not that the planes aren't safe, but when we bank the termites have to hold hands to keep the wings from falling off.

We gave the instructor such a ride we even got him sick—sick of us and ready to give up in despair.

He hasn't smiled once yet—the only time we see his teeth is when he snarls, and that happens quite often.

We enjoy it although, especially the hangar flying we do back at the barracks where we're all magically transformed into experienced flyers and can do all sorts of things we somehow couldn't do at the field.

One thing we don't like at Converse is the bugler. We're not attacking him personally, just his renditions, which are hardly solid, nor could we dub him "hot lips Leslie, the boogy-woogy bugler boy from Squadron D."

Since it has been our practice not to criticize without adding suggestions for improvement, we include the following.

Perhaps if you held the bugle a bit closer to your lips instead of spitting at it from three inches away or even used a mouth piece (we don't mean a lawyer but if this keeps up you'll need one).

If you don't care to take the foregoing suggestions at least don't stand under our windows—maybe out in the woods some place. Huh?

Last Monday night a very unreasonably young gentleman walked into our room and offered us a can of ground bombs. Grabbing the can and ripping the lid off our corporal—a pyro-maniac right from Iowa which hardly appeased our hunger but which did arouse in us a vague premonition.

While we're still in the mood for offering suggestions perhaps a more practical jokester would bring some candy or other food around with them, the hunger of having their young lives snuffed be eased.

If you've been wondering why the boys from Converse march so well, it's because we wear leg irons. They do an excellent job of keeping us in line, although we must admit they're a bit uncomfortable to sleep with.

Still some more revelations—yes, we have cellblocks and those aren't striped curtains, they're bars.

Unable to attend the date dance last Saturday night, because of the visit of a certain party that ordinarily lives some 350 miles away, we had to get our information from other sources.

It proved to be quite a favorable report in spite of the fact that it was pay day and some of the fellows decided to spend the evening in town.

The formal this Saturday would appear to be an elaborate follow up and likewise prove to be an excellent one, too.

Our pre-mentioned flying has one drawback though—no more Physics. Not that we enjoyed the course but that was the only place we got near anything that resembled a woman—and young ones too.

With nothing more to add to this beautiful bit of confusion, and with a close coming up in just three minutes, a conclusion is demanded so this is it.

U. V. M. Bombers Blast Dorm Team

The first U. V. M. women's softball game of the year was played Friday, July 23rd on the hockey field behind the Weather Bureau building. The Burlington Bombers (self-named) composed of physics instructors, school teachers, and town girls, defeated the dormitory team, 14-13 (accurately as a three-inning game).

The dorm team took the first inning, from there on the Bombers led to the final score. Peg Hatty Mansfield 46 pitched for the dormers while Julie Fletcher '44, and Lyn Fitzer '44 alternated at the ground for their team. Playing on the town team were Peg Pake, Sharlee Thomas, Peggy Perkins, Eleanor Milligan, Dot Thornton, Julie Fletcher, and Lyn Fitzer. The dorm team made up mostly of Sanders Hall freshmen included Betty Mansfield, Marion Merrill, Dot Whaley, Eleanor Rowlson, Laurel Hanson and Betty Paulson.

Betty Mansfield was elected club manager. In case the dorm team is anxious to wipe out the memory of this disgraceful 14-6 defeat the town team will meet them this Friday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. on the women's playing field.

Sanders Hall Stands Its Ground Against Mice and Air Cadets

Well, here I am once again. I thought I'd be through out with that last article, but having mercy on the poor people I'm once more. Sorry I must say that though I have tried hard, I can't seem to keep up on the news all by myself. So anything you don't like on this list of news I will now able to blame on someone else. This is going to come in handy in future years.

After our formal meeting last Tuesday night, many of us went merrily back to our rooms after having a long lecture from our waitress on table manners and other things close to our hearts. It seems that when we walk in to the dining room all the waitresses hold their breath in hopes that we don't sit at their table. I can't blame them very much. If they come anywhere near our table they may get in the line of Nelly's fine bread throwing, or they have to wash tablecloths because one poor soul didn't like the red juice we had and fed it to the plants. I must say that those flowers died the next day, so maybe it wasn't her fault at all.

Nancy hunt is usually spent in the dining room getting the last smoke of the evening, and listening to Julie Fletcher give out some startling words. Last night was the limit, when in great thought she let out with, "Morning comes so early in the day," and "You were born rather young in life, weren't you." She isn't dumb. She is just reviving her active mind after many long hours from 11 to 12 that is in the day time.

We have our little Wolfe's parents here for a while, not in Sanders, but in town. They are charming people. Someone was asking me if that was Helen's sister, they looked so much alike, and what a charming husband she had. I, to save Helen the embarrassment of such a question, told this innocent soul that it was her mother and father. They carried the inquisition out on a stretcher.

Barbie Morgan's light of her eyes was here this week-end before taking the final steps of entering the Army. From the day he came until the moment he left she was with him, and that light never left her eyes. But something else has now made her eyes shine. It has been raining, hasn't it Barbie?

Reformation has taken over our dorm. No more spoon bracelets and things. I do hope, however, that the person who has made a collection from different rooms will be sure to return them to the right owners come Christmas. I did so love my silver earrings.

Were there some mice around the dorm one night LATE last week? The scrambling around and eating of things could easily be taken for mice. But these were messy mice, with subdued giggles which could not be identified as squeaks, even if one stretched one's imagination a lot. These mice were making the rounds anyway. Well nuff is said only if we wish Barbie and Ginnie a very happy birthday now and next year.

Oh by the way, Ginnie have you worn that lovely bathing suit you got? I think it would be very attractive on you.

Dot Whaley has been trying to convince us that she went home because she was homesick (also because Jerry was to be home) this last week-end. Well it is just as good as any other excuse, only next time, Dot, lay off on Sunday.

One Cadet who has tried for some time to get a date with the girls in the dorm, but who put his wrong foot forward when he caused trouble between Suzy and Dick and hasn't succeeded, resorted to carrying laundry around the school. He must have been surprised to find it with his things, and even more surprised when our dearest intimate roommate came down stairs to claim it. Is it really a role that those things have to be delivered to the person to whom they belong or was he just dreaming.

Did you hear about Mim? Well it seems that she went on a picnic and becoming fatigued looked around for a comfortable seat. Seeing some pretty green, three pointed leaves, she lowered her bulk. But the catch to—well those aren't marijuana leaves, are they Mim? Here's where Bunny practices a little pre-med! (But have you studied the cures for poison ivy, Bunny?) Mim went home this week-end but this has no connections, she just hadn't seen her family for two months and quickly decided that this was a good time to go. We hope you had fun, Puggy.

Eleanor has helped recruit for the Navy. Is it a commission or is Mr. Anthony slipping? Poor Zeak. I'd go and enlist too, if I had the troubles you do.

The date dance was not what it should have been even if Julie did put so much time into it. The Cadets that go around town were so afraid that they might not get a Hedy Lamarr that they didn't come. Frankly, I wouldn't be so fussy if I were you. You know we were afraid that we wouldn't get any one as nice as Mortermor Snurd. But we were surprised, there are some nice Cadets around here, believe it or not. It's a fifty-fifty chance, anyway you look at it.

Bobbie and Suzy have quieted down a little. We don't feel as though the whole ceiling is going to come down, but we often wonder if maybe we might some day see them coming through from above. They seem to have come through quite well in other cases. You can see them most any time with a uniform, and what forms. "Nothing can stop the Army Air Corps."

We aren't quite satisfied with the spreading around of the phone number. I thought everyone knew Bunny Wolfe, but I guess the ones we have in mind just haven't met her yet. You're really missing something.

Well it is getting late and I have class to make. The truth is that there goes a man and he seems to be going in my direction. I've got a mask on today so no one can see my face. Gee, it works wonders. I got barked at today. So here I go, I'll see you all next week in the Funnies.

gested that the G. S. O. members should take the lead in trying to stop this fad.

Patricia Platt re-emphasized Miss Simpson's remarks. She mentioned some of her experiences in canteens in Philadelphia and New York. She also suggested ways of building up a proper party spirit, and emphasized the importance of complete adaptability.

Mrs. Pease underlined the more important points made by both Miss Simpson and Patricia. She also mentioned that the University girls have done their best work in the last six months, and have been a great help to the U. S. O. directors, since they have become more used to the work. She especially praised the work of the summer term girls.

An informal discussion followed the talks. Future plans were discussed and several new ideas were suggested.

their interest and application in a difficult assignment.

There are many personal thanks I should like to offer to Burlington friends, to Miss Alice Derby, to Dr. and Mrs. Thomas, to Dr. and Mrs. Cowles, to the young Mr. and Mrs. Cowles, to Mrs. Isham, to Mrs. Slocum, and to innumerable others who have opened their hearts to me and to others of us here, but perhaps this is not the place for such personal debts of gratitude. Instead, let me thank Burlington, its shady trees, its busy shops, its lovely lake and gorgeous skies, its firm belief in the rightness of our fight, its unwavering determination to do its share in the battle for our way of life. When we leave Burlington, we shall leave a part of us behind. Many of us hope some day to return and repay in some measure the hospitality we have enjoyed.

And now for a few bit and miss tidbits:

Inside story: The Goon with the Dog, more commonly known as Greenbaum and Family, is responsible for a story in today's edition on Murray (something no longer low about him) Levites. He gives a very inaccurate and exaggerated story of Levites' first day at the airport. Unless censorship erases most of the tale before it reaches the press we advise all readers to take every word with an abundance of salt grains.

May we pat super-salesman Rudnick on his generous back. He looks after the food situation at Sigma Nu, orders for the boys and whatnot. We should like to commend his attitude: he makes no bones about what profit he is making, explains fully that a 15 cent hamburger nets him two cents, etc. He is at present running FDR a close race for the title "Square Dealer."

One Physics teacher is surely grateful that he no longer has a group in his class (they're now on flight.) Inevitably, when discussing electrical Watts in class he was deluged with a flood of questioning "Watt's?" "Watt's that you said," and so forth. It was rather disconcerting.

We understand "Hot Pilot" McCarthy had a close call with a rip cord the other day. Seems that the little loop is a little too handy.

There are rumors that if Fred Bennett doesn't cease his midnight snoring he will return to Room 2 one of these days and find his bed evacuated.

Here's hoping we get one more crack at a column before we leave Burlington. If not, best luck to all you lucky men we leave behind. Some day you too will be called "Hot Pilot" by our illustrious sergeant.

VICTORY DANCE

To be held from 8.30 a.m. to 12.00 m. in Student Lounge. 50c Defense Stamp Corsages will be sold at the door. Refreshments will be served.

Realities and Rumors

to prove this, but will not display them unless coaxed—with the muzzle of a .45.

According to all reports, last Friday's graduation dance was a huge success and left the graduates in a jovial mood which they retained as they departed last Saturday for points south. Their spirits appeared imbued with good humor as they marched down the hill to the station, happily singing their favorite songs. Among those who will be missed: Dick Bloom, Drum Major par excellence, who sings even better than he struts. Dick "Murphy" Cohen, whose Brooklyn accent, Harvard mind, and Greek physique were always a source of interest . . . K. P. "Murph" Murphy, whose clean clothes and pleasant personality will not easily be forgotten . . . B. Baum, Corps Commander a la dictator—even more pleasant than K. P. . . We wish them all the best of good luck . . .

All men who can play in a dance band—you needn't be a union musician—are urged to attend meetings as announced on the barrack's bulletin boards. Instruments are available for your use. You will not be gigged for trying out. You may receive extra privileges if you join up.

With reference to the above, preparations are being made for a show to be given at Camp Abnaki, North Hero, on Friday, August 6. Lieutenant Giamo, who, as Special Service Officer, is responsible for these shows, points out that although a band has been organized for this week's show, new members will be needed for future occasions. He also mentioned the fact that both U. S. O.'s in town produce radio broadcasts every week-end and would welcome any talent we can send them. So, students, if you can sing, dance, play a musical instrument, fly a Piper "Cub" upside down, or become a student officer without changing your nose pigment, don't fail to get in touch with Lieutenant Giamo . . . The latest rumor is: with the establishment of the Cadet System—armbands etc. — we may soon be permitted to wear "U. S." and "Wings" pins on our collars and cadet patches on our sleeves. So, there'll be no difference between us and a real cadet except $25 a month . . . hmmm . . .

Many and varied were the expressions uttered by extremely disappointed aviation students outside Southwick Hall when, after being paid, they realized that there would be no parade because of the rain, last Saturday. (If any A/S over 5' 10" thinks I'm serious, perish the thought.

With every new flight class, there are inevitably new flight stories by the hot pilots. Among the latest was one told by "Doc" Levites, H. P., which went as follows: Instructor and student take off for first lesson and everything is O.K., after climbing to 150 feet, the motor begins to sputter . . . both fliers check plane—which is losing altitude, but fast—carefully . . . everything seems right (plane still falling) instructor executes a fast bank and lands on an emergency field. Student wonders if this is some new maneuver . . . both proceed to hangar and locate mechanic—instructor asks: "What are you trying to do, kill me again?" Levites is by now, a very light shade of white . . . Instructor explains situation to mechanic who replies, Oh, I guess I forgot to tell you: I reversed the switch on the gas shut off valve—"On" is "Off," and "Off" is "On." Instructor and mechanic carried out Hot Pilot Levites who was then pretty cool).

Date Bureau Dance Is Disappointment

The Date Bureau Dance [illegible] of the past . . . long may it [illegible]. The few couples who really enjoyed themselves will please not read this [illegible].

Almost everyone will agree that the Date Bureau was a good idea. As in many another good idea, it missed fire at its first trial. Dates were arranged for 80 men students, largely Air Crew, and about thirty men failed to appear at the dance. Result? Manpower shortage, of course, and it was a [illegible] It was the largest snub [illegible] ever witnessed. Those hot pilots apparently got cold feet.

A date bureau is reliable only insofar as its clientele is reliable. Misfortunes are to be expected, but not the total disregard for feelings evidenced by the failure of some of the men even to attend the function.

Professor Rowell did his noble best, as did Max Ahrens, the band, and the girls at the refreshment table, but the disappointments incurred early in the evening seemed to pall the whole affair even after most of the crowd had gone home. Seven couples were observed to be enjoying themselves.

The future of the Date Bureau is very uncertain. It may dissolve in smoke (if it has not already done so) or it may function as an integral part of the campus organization. That depends on you, U. V. M. students, and on you as well, Air Crew students. What have you to say on the matter? Any contributions and suggestions are welcome. Drop them in the box in the CYNIC Office, North College, Old Mill.

Victory Formal Greatest Social Event of Semester

Sergeant Soronson Issues Famous Proclamation for Division of Italy; Grand March Follows

...love better than any other dance ... on campus in a good long ... That band—uh uhh!" And so was the student enthusiasm over the formal Victory Dance held by Student Gov ... in the student lounge on Saturday evening two weeks ago.

When the announcement of a formal dance had been made, there was considerable turmoil among the campus co-eds. Many of the girls had failed to include evening dresses in their summer school wardrobes. But never say "can't" to the Vermont girl—by airmail orders ... special deliveries the gowns flowed in. One clever Home-Ecer bought flowered cotton that Saturday morning and made her own dress for evening. In one way or another they managed and really—over one hundred of Vermont's fair sex appeared with their dates, some students and some more cadets; ... flowing gowns of summer fabric ... colorful hues filled the room. The entire evening was pronounced a big success by everyone.

A "special feature never before displayed in any part of the United States ... the whole world" had been promised, ... be kept a dark secret until intermission ... The suspense was broken at ten-fifteen when the couples were asked to ... form two single lines the length ... the dance floor, and with a fanfare of trumpets the leader of the band presented Sergeant Sorensen. Spoke the Sergeant: (Proclamation.)

Issued this Saturday, August 7 within the hallowed halls of the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont.

WHEREAS, I, mighty sergeant, leader of a thousand men, have presented my terms of surrender to the former Emperor of Ethiopia, the former King of Italian East Africa, Tunisia, and Sicily, the present King, unless my troops have overrun his country during the last 24 hours, the present King of the Italian boot and

WHEREAS, I have not been listened to.

Physics and Latin To Help Farming

The latest rumor has it that the U. V. M. Physics Department is going to apply their book 'Larnin' to the harvesting of crops this fall, and to be complete, not only the Physics Department but members of the other departments are planning on some farming this fall.

It all started last week when Dean Carrigan of the U. V. M. Agricultural School called a meeting of those interested last week to discuss the serious labor shortages on the farms this fall. Robert Davidson, Extension Farm Labor program head, spoke on the situation and stressed the necessity for everyone to give his full cooperation in order that the crops may not be wasted.

Twenty-six members of the University volunteered to help, to work on farms during their week-ends and vacations this fall. It is expected that they may be called upon to do anything from pitching hay and picking apples and corn and digging potatoes.

There is still plenty of room for anyone who is interested in some good outdoor exercise, a free meal and hourly pay to sign up for the fall farming work. Just telephone Ramon Lawrence at the Farm Bureau Office, 4485 and ask for particulars.

Over 100 Hear Duo Present Recital

Whittemore and Lowe Offer Varied Program

Before a group of some hundred odd music-lovers, Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe presented a program of two-piano music on the evening of Friday, August 6. Their recital was postponed for an hour due to the advent of a speech by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox. It was indeed unfortunate that the speech had been scheduled for the same evening, for it is likely that a much larger crowd would have appeared at the University chapel.

The varied program began with the Coronation Scene from Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounow." The composer's music for this opera is not too well appreciated today, but the pianists' interesting arrangement ably held the interest of the audience. The well-known Brahms "Variations on a Theme of Haydn" followed, and was played with a bit more feeling in addition to a better synchronization between the two pianos.

Next came an inconsequential "Melodie" by Gluck, played in a pleasing style by the two artists. This was followed by what was probably the most popular selection on the program, namely Georges Enesco's famous "Rumanian Rhapsodie No. 1." The artists' arrangement was a particularly good one, and they played it in the correct vivid and imaginative manner.

Four "Pop" Numbers

Following a short intermission, Messrs. Whittemore and Lowe demonstrated their versatility with a group of four "pop" numbers. A superficial arrangement of Cole Porter's "Begin the Beguine" began the group, and this was followed by "South American Way," "Temptation," and a medley of well-chosen Strauss waltzes.

The last group was comprised of four short numbers, beginning with a light-fingered rendition of a number made famous by Jascha Heiftz, Dmicu's "Hora Staccato." This is an engaging little composition and was well received by the assembled listners. Next came a waltz by Reger, followed by Prokofieff's March from his "Love for Three Oranges" suite.

The final number on the program was the ever-popular "Bolero" of Maurice Ravel. Messrs Whittemore and Lowe performed this in a rhythmic style which accentuated the glowing Spanish melodies.

Enthusiastic Audience

The group of students, teachers, and service men expressed their warm approval of the recital, and the two white-clad Navy men graciously complied by playing a group of three short encores. The first was a Siciliano from one of Bach's sonatas. Fritz Kreisler's popular "Liebesfreud" followed, and the evening's performance was concluded with an often-played two-piano version of De Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance."

The arrangements made by the pianists were for the most part carefully and skillfully contrived, but it may be said that they might have chosen the first part of the program more wisely. The Moussorgsky and Brahms compositions are known in their orchestral forms, and it is difficult for some people to adjust

COMMUNITY SUPPER

For entire college community, Students, Medics, Cadets, Faculty, this Saturday evening at 6 p.m. in the third floor dining room, Waterman Building.

Tickets must be purchased before Friday noon in the Bookstore. Price 35c.

Full Moon Dominates Parking Lot Dance

The elements of the weather gave their shining approval to the "Block Dance" of last Saturday evening as more than a hundred students, air crew and otherwise danced to the light of the moon in the parking area in the rear of Waterman. Starlight, gentle breese, mellow moon, music soft and low, all added to the general atmosphere of good fun.

The orchestra advertised in the posters turned out to be plural and invisible, with Monroe Allen at the controls. Due to unforseen circumstances, Zeke Brown and his corn-huskers were prevented from coming, but Harry James et al did very nicely, thank you, from the flat disks.

Colored lights strung up carnival fashion, chairs placed strategically along the grass border, and lollypop sticks emanating from between dancers lips were among the inanimate objects noted by the casual observer. As for personalities seen in the crowd, there were Professor and Mrs. Francis Colburn, the Sarge, the Editor, and a host of other notables. Priscilla Perkins '44 officiated at the ceremonyless presentation of lollypops to the gathering. Robert Turner '44, was chief ticket seller.

Yours for bigger and better things in weeks to come. We've made a start. Let's keep it up. Thanks, students, for your support.

Prof. Dykhuisen Back for Ethics

Returns from Lecture Trip Through Canada

Professor Dykhuisen has just come back from a trip through Canada where he gave lectures under the auspices of the Department of the Extension of the University of Alberta. He is the first man from the United States to serve in such a capacity. The topic of the lectures was the social philosophy of American and Canadian agriculture, and the purpose, to relate democratic principles and values to agriculture.

Among the groups of people with whom he came in contact Professor Dykhuisen found that there were many different nationalities represented, including many Americans. He found these farmers and homesteaders progressive and alert to the problems that face them. Having found that individual, competitive farming is not successful, they are hoping that cooperative farming is the answer to their economic problem. He explains their interest and enthusiasm to the fact that they are a pioneering people, anxious to maintain a good life in their surroundings. They are worried about the social contacts and cultural needs of their children.

On his tour, Professor Dykhuisen visited many Canadian colleges which he terms "young and lusty." Among them were the Universities of Alberta, of Manitoba, and of British Columbia. At a number of these schools there are army and navy training programs, such as we have here at the University.

Shakespeare films will be shown in the Fleming Museum, Saturday, August 28, at 11 a.m. Public invited. A film of Macbeth as well as one on the Life of Shakespeare will be presented.

Dean Campbell Makes Big Impression On Campus

Allen House, Sanders, G. S. O., Phi Sigs Entertain Negro Educator at Informal Teas

By LLOYD SPIEGEL

Many men have trod the campus walks of the University to preach their gospel to the students. Old and young, famous and unknown, they came here to attempt to instill in us a little of that intangible something called human kindness. Although each in his own field excelled, none could excite the young Negro minister who was our guest on the hill last week in bringing his problem to us.

To the man on the corner the name Campbell would not strike a responsive chord. We on the campus had never heard of the man until last week. This is not strange for Campbell is a common-place name and Dean Emmanuel Campbell is not well known—not famous, but he is more than that, he is a flaming torch burning in the night, he is a glowing beacon whose glare lights up the smoky blackness of racial intolerance and bigotry that covers this great country with a murky splendor that periodically lives and will erupt into a fountain showering over the multitudes of sparks of hate.

Dean Campbell is the Dean of Tillotson College of Austin, Texas. Dean Campbell holds degrees from Oberlin and several other colleges. Dean Campbell is an educated minister. Dean Campbell was compelled to ride in a separate car to Austin, by [illegible] as well as many more incidents, and was told wooden benches. In the white car there were good seats and white people. The coaches were black and the ride one, but because the passengers got there last as the engine cools. There were 6 carloads of students Dean Campbell in a letter.

It is true that there is a race problem in our country. It is true that many of us have never encountered the Negro problem. Yet we are all an integral part of this great country and in many sections the battles between the White and Negro is increasing instead of decreasing. All of us at some time will come abreast of this problem and it is necessary that we have a coherent view of the situation.

We at Vermont owned an little school to Dean Campbell, and I trust that his stay here was both fruitful and enlightening. The student body responded enthusiastically. Dean Campbell was the guest at teas rendered by Allen House last Thursday afternoon from 4-5, and by Sanders Hall last Friday afternoon and by G.S.O. on the following Friday. For dinner Thursday noon he was the guest of the boys of the Phi Sigma Delta fraternity. During the other days he was entertained

R. O. T. C. Will Venture on Hike During Week-end

Reliable sources have it that sophomore and freshman men will venture on an overnight trip to the army grounds at Underhill on the week-end of August 28. Such an enterprise has never before been attempted in the history of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Vermont. However, the University is now a war conscious state and the military department has introduced many innovations designed to be of value in forthcoming army life.

In preparation for the journey, instruction is being given in the proper way to make up different kinds of army packs. The men have been issued the necessary pieces of G. I. equipment and it is expected that by the time the 28th rolls around each man will know as much as the average soldier about field packs.

The sophomores, especially are getting extra training in preparation for this trip. Every Monday and Thursday they can be seen making vicious lunges with bayonets out on the back campus. In addition, open order formations are being perfected so that maneuvers at Underhill will be facilitated.

Some of the students are surprised and more at the ideas which the department pops at us. However the Air Cadets appear to be quite confused. Let me illustrate by a few of the remarks we overheard in the locker room last week.

"Say bud, how much do you guys get paid for all this—no cadet enquired. (We disillusioned him by letting him know that we paid them—they didn't pay us.)

"How do you fellows come down here from Fort Ethan Allen or are you medics."

One fellow presumed that we graduated as second lieutenants. For the information of all interested parties, we graduate as buck privates but mind you buck privates that know a darn sight more than the average buck private. Of that's any consolation.

But the pay off came when one airman sympathized with us. Said he "Gee you fellows have to get up SO early for calisthenics! We don't have it that bad. Oh well, one expects experience like that after being a civilian for a while."

The last remark came from a southern boy. He thought that he wasn't getting enough physical exercise in the Air Corps. "Boy, I could certainly go for a couple of months of the training that you fellows are getting," he stated.

Well, everyone to his own taste.

Education Must Be Different After War

Some two years ago the CYNIC published a series of articles on education. [illegible] Many of the suggestions made at that time have since become an integral part of our present curriculum. In the meantime, however, the educational problems on our campus have become the problems of our whole American school system. We take pleasure in the opportunity to reprint an [illegible] which was published in [illegible] of January 28. A commentary on the article itself will further illustrate the problem in hand and we hope to continue this discussion in the remaining issues of the summer term.

"Not so long ago education and the [illegible] was the [illegible] of an ordered democratic world. Today in certain countries literacy—once thought to be the hallmark of free peoples—is a tool of modern rule. No one any longer expects education, any education, to produce automatic enlightenment. Our early faith rested on the conviction that man was becoming wiser, more humane; it withered visibly at the first touch of World War I, which showed that men had not forgotten how to be brutal, and of the mid-peace depression, which showed that they had not learned how to be wise. And in World War II we found ourselves at war with the supposedly well-educated. The war emphasized what was already too clear—the results of schooling can be worse than ineffective: they can be vicious."

Educational Hodgepodge

"As a whole our American education is still progressive, not traditional, not 'new' but eclectic. Nor is it the education of our forefathers. It is generally speaking, a hodgepodge of all of them, and as such, serves as the setting in which arguments about the best way to teach are carried out. Essentially there are two sets of opponents: the traditionalists, prophets of the older liberal-arts tradition, and the modernist proponents of the curriculum more directly in touch with our inflated society. Both groups are sharply critical not only of each other's ideas but also of our actual educational system."

Education for Independence

"We shall decry any form of education that treats the student as an organism that needs to pass its prescribed requirements with a dosage of facts and suggestions. Indeed, too much of our schooling aims at having the proper courses run in the students' well-constituted minds when they hear slogans and catch words.

Furthermore, we shall probably have to admit that our present education is not educating us any too well, and that is unlikely to teach us any better by attempting to teach us everything. Our students today resemble nervous victims of indigestion induced by overeating. So far as information about the world is concerned, they live in an economy of over-abundance; the schools too often force them to swallow more than they possibly can assimilate. Simply giving students the facts of our brave new world will not train them to think; besides, it is impossible to expose them to more than samples.

Nor is it wise to let the student choose what he thinks he might like, any more than it is wise to let him dictate his own diet, particularly if his taste runs to chocolate nut sundaes. Predigesting the conclusions and procedures of current thought might succeed better if current thought, when translated into the schools, was of the high quality of the writings of John Dewey or of Albert North Whitehead. Unfortunately current thought—considered as a corpus of generally held belief—is of no such quality. It tends to lack logical consistency, and it seldom examines critically its basic assumptions. Students do not learn how to think critically by studying thought that is itself uncritical and shallow."

Education for Individuals

"But what is this real work? We still face the task of training the student to think critically and to act civically. One of the most foul-proof methods of training him to think is to introduce him to ordered units of thought; indeed, the best way to learn how thinking should be done in the present is to study the way in which it has been done in the past—to study, that is, the great writers, the great mathematicians, the great scientists and philosophers, the great historians, and the great artists. Some of these men of our own time; more of them are of the past.

A student and a good book can together accomplish much. But the positive effect of good teaching is tremendous. Good teachers, of course, are in part the product of a good education; they themselves need to know how to think. They need not only a thorough acquaintance with general knowledge (as well as with their specialized subjects) but also a passion for translating that knowledge to others sufficiently intense to weather the rigors of classroom life.

"If our schools are not strengthened and if they do not teach the student to discriminate and to evaluate, not they but commercial indoctrination or, still worse, political mobstering will form the minds of our children, and in so doing destroy whatever capacity is within them for democratic thinking . . . A streamlined adapting of children to our present world will only produce adolescents whose dissatisfaction is inhuman and whose only course of action is aimless violence."

Education Must Be Stimulating And Show Results

Commentary by DONALD HACKEL

This article is intended as an introduction to a problem of primary concern to those participating in the American system of education, both to faculties and student bodies alike; its solution will, in many ways, decide the cultural and political future of this country. The basis for this commentary is an article entitled "Ferment in Education," included in the July Fortune magazine. This stimulating article is strongly suggested as imperative collateral reading for a thorough understanding of the problems which we shall only superficially examine.

Educators recognize that education is judged by results. A student must be made fit for a calling by systematic instruction and when he remains unfit, the educational system has failed. The average American is trained for one calling, the role of the rational citizen—the citizen capable of independent thinking, the citizen willing to accept his civic obligations. The other, equally important object of education is to flash before the student mind the many areas of knowledge and culture and the relative possibilities in these areas, with the hope of stimulating the intellectual potentials. Both purposes require that the educational system give courses which cover the gamut of learning.

But this becomes gradually more difficult. The range of American interest gradually widens defying integration and we find American educators struggling to convey to students the essence of mechanics, science, language, and the arts in the short span of twelve years in most cases. They may succeed in arousing and stimulating the student mind but are they producing the rational citizen? They may be teaching their subjects the date of the Civil War but are they preventing race riots? They may be teaching the student about George Washington and the Revolutionary War but does the student understand Paine's "Common Sense" which illustrates the abstract and fundamental theory for which a war was fought and for which a George Washington came to the aid of his countrymen? The negro problem introduced by last week's visiting lecturer, Dean Campbell, illustrates the insufficient number of rational citizens.

The question then is: which phases of this too-extensive educating process must be eliminated and what basic theories are all-important? The problem is ultimately a choice between the "education for human aims" and the "nightmare of aimless education." It is the argument of the traditionalist who sponsors the liberal arts and their accompanying truths against the "pragmatic" moderns who insist that if one faces the facts of life and comes down to earth, he will realize that education must be more directly in touch with our inflated society. The moderns claim that the student of Plato's Republic will not be the citizen of accomplishment which the student of Current Events is likely to be. They refer to Shakespeare's demise some centuries ago and ask how he can possibly factor in molding a rational citizen.

The traditionalist theory which Fortune's builds believes that the good citizen is the possessor of a sense of values and that a sense of values comes with Plato, Shakespeare, and Aristotle rather than with the 500 pages of a textbook on Current Events. The student of Plato can, when he feels inclined, learn his Current Events because he has established an unchanging foundation to work from, built on the eternal truths as conceived by the philosophers and poets and artists and musicians of the past and present. He is more likely to desire to study his current events after reading Plato and he will certainly understand more readily the significance of the events of today as well as their transitory nature. Plato's Republic will encourage dreams of a federation of the nations of the world after this war.

Traditionalists have always realized that "the participation of the people in their government has no point if they are incapable of independent thinking; if human beings can only react to outside stimuli, if they can only think what they are told to think, then we should frankly admit that democratic ways of life are without sense and should make no pretense of trying to educate children for them."

Students study inconsistent, illogical current thought. They study "uncritical and shallow" texts. Simply receiving facts and dates and memorizing them will prove useless, if for the simple reason that there is an excessive and impossible number of dates and facts. As I said before, knowing the date of the Civil War will never prevent race riots. The students of today "resemble nervous victims of indigestion induced by overeating." They have been stuffed with an overabundance of unassimilated information which would eventually be learned in life anyway or which will only too soon be forgotten. The best way to prevent race riots is to study the Bible which suggests that equality of all men in God's eyes. But the Bible is even older than the long-dead Shakespeare!

"Most of what a man knows he has to learn for himself. The school, however, can awaken his interest in knowledge and, most important, it can give him a discipline of mind that enables him to understand and to retain what he sees and what he reads. We can probably cope with the air age more successfully by reading Swift, Cervantes, or Goethe—or even by being exposed to Dostoevski, the Bhagavad-Gita, and Las-tze—than by confining ourselves to courses in aerodynamics."

Although a good book and a student can accomplish much together, the factor of proper teaching is of tremendous importance. Unfortunately, teachers are very much underpaid. "The average teacher gets about $500 a year less than the average federal employee." Factory workers without the expense of a college education, earn $500 more than the average teacher. In addition, the financing of school systems in inadequate. In negro areas in the South schools are deplorable" and we have the confirmation of Dean Campbell to this effect.

In conclusion: "The schools, in their confusion are only the reflection of the confused life around them. They are of society, not above it, and their aimlessness is the aimlessness of today's ever-changing world." We can adapt children to this confused and aimless world or we can "consciously and deliberately make our schools more vital and creative, to the end that our children go beyond today's confusion and understand it better than we do ourselves." It may produce more critical adults but it will produce more thoughtful adults. It will produce the rational citizen.

Converse Hall Cadets Leave Only Their Barracks to Former Officers

[illegible] we mean by that last crack? [illegible] goofing-off, gold-bricking — [illegible] or whatever other name you [illegible] it is a definite art and science [illegible] something that's not to be tried by inexperienced people.

[illegible]ps you were the best goof-off in Miami Beach or Jefferson Barracks [illegible] before you can claim that title here [illegible] best to work your way up to it.

Don't get the idea we're encouraging you to try all this—we're not, but as long as you insist on doing so, we feel it's our [illegible] to give you the benefits of our [illegible] learned experience.

There are several general rules to be kept in mind at all times.

First is the object of the game. It's your wits pitted against those of the officers whose ever is better naturally wins. Of course you have the advantage, as you're on the offensive more or less, and have the element of surprise. However one must remember that the officers are not the complete imbeciles some people would have us think they are. They're not particularly interested in confining you or sending you to Ethan Allen "to make little ones out of big ones," rather it's the fact that you're inviting them to do all this, that puts them in their present position of "super sleuths."

Let's start from the beginning.

You've got a reason to stay out on a Saturday night—maybe it's a woman — it usually is—or perhaps you have other reasons. Nevertheless you never stick out your neck unless you feel it's worth the risk.

Therefore you weigh the result against the risk—is it worth it? This would be a sweet time to quote that "crime doesn't pay"—line, but we won't—for sometimes it does, so go ahead and goof-off.

It's rather hard to go into detail about any one specific case—so we'll stick to generalities.

Lay your plans carefully—include the least number of other persons you have to—figure all the angles—logical and otherwise and plan accordingly.

That brings up the point of whether a tactical officer's mind works along a logical line or not. Quite often it doesn't so you had better make provision for plenty of unusual occurences.

There's not much more to it—just go through with it all and see what happens. We don't guarantee anything, since in the short space we're allotted here we hardly have room to give you a complete foolproof course.

However we do sell a book on the subject for only seventy-two cents, and it may be purchased by Room 26 Converse Hall—North Wing.

Along with the book comes a blackjack for slugging O.D.'s. padded shoes some counterfeit money for bribing the guards, and three skeleton keys (we don't know what you'd use the keys for but they might come in handy).

Speaking of counterfeiting we also have a book in the same series on making bad nickels that ring when you bounce them. That might come in handy for the fellows that like to play the little slot machines in town.

A complete list of our publications will be sent on request.

Right now we feel like a pretty big dope. There's been a lapse of several hours in the writing of the last paragraph and this one, and in the meantime we've been picked up by Lieutenant Dickens for coming to mess late.

Maybe we're not the hot F.O.'s we thought we were!

Also we noticed that this week there are as many names listed as missing from bedcheck as there were last week. Looks like the officers are improving, or at least getting inside information [illegible] some place.

Oh well, see you at [illegible] Taps tonight!

Last Saturday at parade we were accused of messing up the proceedings. Saturday's parade [illegible] That flatly isn't true. That is definitely a misstatement which we feel should be retracted. It appears will take the time to examine that particular parade he'll find that if were the officers placed in charge of us who were to blame, since many of them had never gone through a parade at least not [illegible] in the 61st.

We will say that the last parade was a definite improvement and as good as we've ever seen up here but that hardly soothes the indignities we had to suffer.

Maybe it's the power of the press, maybe it's coincidence, but after our essay on the bugling job that was being done at Converse, something or somebody has taken steps to see that it was rectified.

At any rate we have a new bugler, and boy, he really is hot. Gone forever are the catcalls that used to be thrown at the unfortunate Mr. Leslie and in their place is complete silence broken only now and then by an ecstatic sigh.

We won't go as far as to say that it's a pleasure to be awakened by this particular bugler, for that would be a gross exaggeration of the truth, however he does as good a job of it as anybody possibly could and for that we compliment him.

From the time we enter this place, we have but one great expectation, and that is the day we'll start to fly.

That day came for some 200 of us two weeks ago, and the things an airplane won't do for your disposition is nobody's business.

The major change that has been brought about, besides the constant tales that are being heaved around, is the average loss in weight.

Perhaps many of you haven't noticed it, but hop on the scales and see how it checks with your weight before you started flying.

Of course this doesn't necessarily mean that everybody has lost weight but the great majority of students have. Some ten pounds, others five, and a few supermen nothing—but boy it takes something out of you.

The first day up we thought that it was going to be a snap, and just a joy ride for the entire ten hours, but just take inventory among your flight-men friends and you'll discover it's a lot of hard work. But do we look like we're sorry?

Well as a closing paragraph, my predecessors usually wrote a last will and testament, in which they left everybody, the officers included, something or other to remember them by.

Keeping in compliance with the already established precedent, we too would like to leave a will.

Our will isn't very much—we don't want to leave anything but Converse Hall.

Music Department Presents Concert

Last Friday, before an audience of about 100 people, the last function of the Summer School took place in the form of a concert given jointly by the Summer Session Chorus and the Summer Session Orchestra in the Ira Allen Chapel. The Chorus was directed by Ippacratus Papoutsakis and the orchestra was under the direction of Michael Anselmo.

The Chorus opened the program and the following pieces were presented: Cherubic Hymn, Bortmansky; Lo, What a Branch of Beauty, Praetorius; Hear My Prayer, O God, Arcudelt; Ave Verum Corpus, Mozart; Lovely Appear, Gounod; Go Down Moses and Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen, Negro Spiritual's; The Kerry Dance, Malloy; Good Night Good Night, Beloved, Pensuti; and Mariania, a Folk Song.

The second part of the program included solos by four of the vocal students who were coached by Mrs. Elizabeth Brandish during the summer.

The orchestra presented the following program. First Concerto in B Minor by Vivaldi for four solo violins accompanied by the string group. Brandenburg Concerto Number Three in G Major by Bach.

Gym ◆ Gems

[illegible] is a name at one [illegible] put the [illegible] athletic and [illegible] under [illegible] Dick [illegible] A boy [illegible] outstanding [illegible] gym's Y [illegible] used to [illegible] [illegible] Norway, weight lifting [illegible] wrestling, etc. He has participated in amateur [illegible] and boxing bouts. Dick is an ardent follower of all sports and well versed on all that seems truly fine and is the life of a party. One could [illegible] that [illegible] entertaining. He [illegible] prepares for the Army Intermediate Trial [illegible] and Gil Cohen. Think it's easy? Try the first [illegible]. His ability at mat-play [illegible] earned him much renown during the Great White War of [illegible].

Among other celebrities here we have Lee Evans, who played basketball for St. Lo's and was high scorer. We miss those old skirmishes on the basketball court between Lee and Joe De Blois.

Let us not overlook the "mighty Mite" of the campus, our lover of the rugged sport of mats (and I don't mean gym exercises, but wrestling)—Mat Jaffe. Our boy invites all comers, but competition since the departure of Dick Cohen, is very unready, unwilling, and unable. (Here's hoping my English teacher, Mr. Hall, doesn't read that last series of badly chosen adjectives.)

Ah! There goes Gil Cohen, the hand wrestler, the nemesis of all strong men in Converse Hall. At all hours of the night, Mr. Cohen can be seen dashing from one wing to other looking for competition. After all comers have been vanquished, Mr. Cohen will return to the North Wing very dejected and wondering where his next competitors will come from. We might be able to find some worthy prospects for him at Nashville. One never knows, does one?

We also have Bob Conn who was initiated into the "devilish and bloodthirsty" sport of parry and thrust. Touche!! A combination of a beautifully executed symmetrical ballet with a little jigger of attempted murder. Ugh! They remind me of bayonets.

Let us say a word or two also about Murray Moskowitz, an addict of the ancient pastime of the bow and arrow. I wonder if he ever made a bull's eye! His age-old room-mate, Bob Montiwerdi, used to indulge in the pugilistic sport of boxing before he entered the Army. Certain forces (those we study in physics) prevented his turning pro.

We welcome to our ranks our brother athletes, Teddy Lipton, another battler, (friend of Montiwerdi from way back), Bill Forbes, little All-America of football, who hails from Williams College, and also Rip Formal, another football star.

By the way, men, have you heard of a certain staff sergeant of the dispensary who makes the rounds of the campus telling us cadets how to stand straight and carry muscles like cadets? In the recent physical exams for the permanent party staff, he did exactly zero pull-ups!!! Some record, eh? By the way, in the same exams, our most distinguished drill sergeant Sorenson, claimed he did 138 sit-ups. Need I go further? Stick to sailing, Sarge.

Well, the time has come to bid you adieu and we who are graduating give a toast to those midnight trackmen we so ruefully leave behind. We regret leaving behind such fine gym instructors as "Pinky" Ryan and his basketball, "Fuzzy" Evans and his football, Archie Post and his running, Bob White and his calisthenics, Sherry Fogg and his swimming, and Larry Gardner, ace of old time baseball.

W. A. A. Swimming Club will meet Saturday at 3 p.m. in front of lockers at North Beach to discuss plans for the coming swim meet.

Allen House Features Its Inmates Only Through Mysterious Back Door

The [illegible] of Allen House is very [illegible] by the treatment of Sanders Hall. We don't want anyone to think that we are hiding anything or that we're trying to get the secrets before the proctorous will, if that [illegible] anything.

If anyone who wonders why we all use the back door at Allen House—just the secret is out. You never [illegible] we don't have to sneak in at all but the gatepost. It's not that the front door is [illegible] it's more people who would [illegible] up here. One night the we walked in and found four people sitting in the living room. What a mess! Traffic passing in front of our windows, and no [illegible] way to get a little privacy in the back door.

[illegible] has stopped [illegible] she hasn't got a letter from her man in Scotland. Yes Helene, we know it's not easy there.

Now that Dot Johnson is going to graduate in September everyone has been asking "Where's the big event?" Dottie's secret, just about the whole thing but we bet you can't wait.

Alice Tyndall has been worried about entering the U. V. M. Medical School next January. Somehow she can't picture herself in a khaki uniform — but don't worry Alice, we think you'll look cute.

Last Thursday afternoon the girls of Allen House entertained Dean Emmanuel Campbell at a tea at his home. Mrs. Lawton, Miss Simpson and Reverend Hall were also present. We were quite enchanted by Dean Campbell's personality — he was charmingly young and [illegible]. We thank him for giving us the pleasure of meeting him, and wish him luck and success in all his undertakings.

Last Sunday night as one of the boys brought the girl back from the Flynn [illegible] he kissed her good night and a loud barking which seemed to come from all parts of the house. In order to clear up any suspicions the young man may have had, let us explain—it was a dog. Mrs. Lawton, our house mother, has a sympathetic heart and takes in all stray animals. Stop barking boys.

One of the girls of Allen House finally hit the jackpot. Yes, she graduated from the realm of privates and danced with a lieutenant. Isn't that Russian?

Connie Carson has been acting rather mysteriously lately about that diamond on her third finger, left hand. Miss C. won't admit it's an engagement ring, but insists that it's strictly to keep off the wolves. Now Connie, isn't that a rather expensive way to do it?

Miss Mary Easton of Pelham announces awards posts of Chatta, Scotland and other points abroad. Her man is with the Air Transport Command and really seems to be covering a lot of territory.

We have one married woman in the house. Mrs. A. Heaton Underhill, Lu, to her friends. If it weren't for the ring on her finger you'd never believe it because she doesn't look a day over 21. Heat was a paratrooper here at the Fort, so Lu came to U. V. M. to study while he was here. Then Uncle Sam shipped him out of "unsquished Vermont" to where, only God and the paratroopers know. However Lu is keeping her chin up, and is studying hard to keep busy till Heat comes back.

We'd like to say something about our illustrious House President but it seems that anything about her has already been said. She is the author of "Fein Points" and active in almost every organization on campus. We're sure she'll be a success, except that we can't exactly see her living in the British West Indies. However Phil doesn't care where she lives just so long as she marries the guy—which is her main ambition in life right now.

Lieutenant Giasmo has reported that there were three Cadets who scampered out of Allen House on a Monday night. Lieutenant Dixon chased them, but they lost him in the woods. What's the matter, Lieutenant, can't you find your way around in the dark? The girls of Allen House wish that anyone who knows the names of these boys would please report to them—a man in the house and we didn't know about it!!

Next week we'll give you the lowdown on the rest of them. In the meantime, we'll close our door (the front one).

Fein Points...

By PHYLLIS FEIN

Here are most little tidbits of what's going on, around campus and with students and alums who are here there and everywhere at this point.

A U. V. M. reunion could be held in the Bus Terminal as many familiar faces are seen there practically every day in the week. Last week we saw the former June Kidder, the other night the former Norma Wilbur, who's working in Schrafft's (with the Bennett sisters and others) at 6 P. now that her husband is boss in England. Another afternoon Ed Runnals and Deane Moore were waiting for a bus or something at the Terminal.

Hearing our lovable mains bellered across Church Street last week, Snuffy condescended to turn around, and there was last year's Business Manager of the Cynic until February 19, that is—Julie Goldberg. He's in the Air Corps, stationed somewhere in the Carolinas.

Home for a week-end from their important work in a defense factory in Bristol, Conn., were Ita Casey and Justine Whalen—Joan Garrity works there with them, but didn't see her in town. The gals look simply wonderful, certainly none the worse for their hard work. Another visitor to school was Dawn Nichols who's working in Washington now—told us that her sister Dotty had just gotten married.

Dud Davis left about two weeks ago for Columbia University and the Navy—Stan Fieber left for Fort Devens and the Army, but will come back in 1944 to enter Medical School. With him in the Free Press picture was the beaming face of Myles Brown—who will be remembered from past football seasons but not as a hero of the gridiron.

It seems that the Phi Sig house plays host every week-end to some of the sailor-boys from Middlebury. One week-end recently the guest was Ronny Mershon, former Delta Psi here—the Phi Sig boys (Zamzok, Kaufman, etc.) at Midd. must pass out calling cards.

The night of the swell formal dance was full of several surprises—meeting one's first boy-friend so far from home is something in itself (sorry, Sanders, if you were slightly shocked!). It was nice seeing handsome Mr. Wolfe dancing with Dean Simpson; the Wolfes were almost mistaken for college kids. Barbara and Spook Little breezed (or do I mean floated) in on their way to Orlando where the Lieutenant is now stationed.

Monday afternoon Peggy Wishart became Mrs. George Kemp—reports tell us that it was a very fashionable wedding, with the reception at the Alpha Chi house—several of the bride's sorority sisters were in town for the wedding, including the two bridesmaids, Cynthia Bailey and Janet Stimpson, plus Mary Perry, Barbara Bishop, and others. Janice Berry caught the bride's bouquet, so we'll be waiting to hear the big date!

Flo Bevins left last week-end for Washington, D. C., where she will begin a year's internship at the Walter Reed Hospital (Army) in dietetics; at the end of a year she'll be Lieut. Florence Bevins. Best of luck, Flossie.

Read in the paper the other morning that Corporal Irene (Quimby) Mallon of the WAC was in town for the week-end. Boy, that's some going—a corporal in just a few months. She loves being a soldier; notice that she took off a few days or weeks before reporting to Fort Devens to zip down to Texas and get married.

Ruthie Jordan, who must be Burlington and U. V. M.'s prize letter-writer (doesn't the Bookstore keep you busy, plus all the other work you're going, Ruthie?), supplied the following little news items: Alison Carr and Helene Levesque are working as counselors in a camp for undernourished children in Springfield, Mass. Jean Smith is working for the War Production Board in New York. Maybe she can do something about allowing a few extra inches of material for longer dresses and pants with cuffs. Penelope (Dee Dee) Easton is doing dietetics work in an army camp at Palm Beach, Florida. Esther Gustafson is in the production department of some company in Worcester. Shirley Hibbard is a riveter in a defense plant, probably in her home town. Shirley Buckingham is working in a hospital in White Plains. Jeanne Hotchkiss and Betty Farnsworth

Farewell Parties to Old Seniors Followed by Marriage at Sanders

Here we are looking out the window, looking at this wonderful Vermont weather. It rains and rains for two weeks and then for a change it rains again for just another two weeks. This is the kind of weather in which one gets those much wanted tans. Oh well, we can't sit here and think about the weather, there's work to be done, things to talk about.

Rumba lessons have taken place the past couple of evenings in the student lounge where our "Bomb-shell from Brooklyn" has shown us just how much one must and must not wiggle their hips. If anyone would know she would. Oh yes, Bunny, I shall now make all amends for spelling your name wrong in the last article. It happens to Wolf, without any frills. I'm sorry I put an "e" on the end of it. Do forgive.

Another amend goes to Nelly's little sailor boy for misspelling, instead of his name being Zeak, it is just Keke. Oh by the way he wrote to Nelly's roommate and told her all about his new girl. That boy has brains. Nelly went home this week-end just to kill the other girl and to make up with Zeke. There wasn't any other girl but it worked wonders. Now I think she is sorry that she sent him off to the war.

I walked out of my room one night last week-end only to see a vision go floating up the stairs to third floor. It turned out to be Suzy who had just left Dick outside. It's funny what can happen. Only the day dreamy, light manner soon leaves her and we find her coming through the ceiling on top of us. And by the way, if you and Bobbie are going to giggle all night do come down and let the rest of us, who because of you can't sleep anyway, in on the big joke.

The man-power situation is so bad that the whole dorm had to go out and adopt a boy, and make him dependent on us. We cut his hair, or that is Laural Hansen and Bobbie McGeever did, and the outcome was so bad that we had to take care of the poor boy. Anyone else who wants his hair cut? The next day however they had to shave him too. Mac is his name and he went off and left us Sunday. The farewell party consisted of one peanut butter sandwich and a glass of sour milk. On leaving he gave us all little things to remember him by and we gave him bobby pins, curlers, and other things to keep him beautiful. He said he would send us all something. What was it did he say he would send you, Ginnie?

The Posters that you all saw around the Waterman Building and Old Mill on the formal dance were made up by the poor inmates of Sanders. Every five minutes we would get news that this had been changed or that had been changed so we each made about five different posters apiece. But the outcome was nice. It was one of the nicest dances we had ever been to.
